Women and Students May Help In Harvest

Harvest time may find women, high school students and local non-agricultural workers helping gather Alabama's 1942 crop.

This is indicated by studies of threatened farm labor shortage just completed by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. According to these studies, the expansion of war industries wil lcontinue during 1942 with a further increase of two million non-agricultural workers. Over two million men will be added to our armed forces and the 1942 production goals will have to be attained under conditions which draw more and more workers from the rural areas, and deplete the farm labor supply.

In areas where the labor shortage is likely to be acute, it may be necessary for women, high school students, and local non-agricultural workers to help harvest the crops.

MESS ATTENDANTS NEEDED FOR NAVY

Lieutenant Commander J. E. Meredith, in charge of Navy Recruiting in this District, today said that one of the urgent needs of the Navy is more Mess Attendants.

"The Officers in the Navy while at sea," said Commander Meredith, "are always on duty or are standing by for duty. They must have foid and their quarters must be serviced. They have no time to do this themselves. This work must be done by Mess Attendants and Stewards."

Commander Meredith said some of our battleships have as many as 100 officers aboard and some plane carriers have an officer, personnel of over 200. Naturally a great many Mess Attendants are needed and they are not coming forward, though several thousands are needed.

"The Main source of Mess Attendants," he said, "Is the colored race who can enlist in this branch. The pay is good, the retirement privileges are negerous and above all the beds are dry and the quarters are comfortable. A capable man may gain advancement in rating and his pay may go over $100.00 per month. His food, quarters, medical and dental services are free."

Commander Meredith requests all our readers to advise colored boys with good health and good reputation to join the Navy as Mes sAttendants. "I believe, he said, 'that every one that enlists will better himself. The training alone, without the retirement privileges, should assure such men a good income in civil life after the war is over."

MORE PEANUT HARVESTING MACHINERY MADE AVAILABLE

Auburn, Ala.—In an effort to make certain that peanut growers will have ample machinery to harvest their 1942 peanut crop the Georgia-Florida-Alabama Peanut Association has announced the purchase of the entire output of pickers and hay balers of six manufacturing companies.

The Association has also asked that these companies increase their production four-fold so as to have a minimum of 3,000 pickers available as compared with 750 last year.

The GFA will purchase these machines outright from the manufacturer and distribute them among the peanut producing counties on the basis of need. It is thought that not more than one peanut picker can be provided for every 500 acres planted in each county.

After establishing need for te harvesting machinery in certain localities the machine will be placed with a purchaser who, if he cannot pay cash, will be granted satisfactory terms by the GRA.

Although the GFA will not purchase or distribute peanut planting and cultivating machinery the organiaztion is working actively with the War Production Board and manufacturers of farm mchinery in n effort to secure stepped-up production of such machinery.

Save Antifreeze For Use Next Year

Auburn, Ala.—Antifreeze solution for automobiles, tractors, and trucks may not be available next year because of war needs for chemicals used in their manufacture, so Alabama farmers will do well to drain radiators and save antifreeze for use next winter, says J. B. Wilson, Extension engineer.

A JEMISON SCHOOL BUS DRIVER

Editor Chilton County News:

Would you allow us old bus drivers a little space in your paper each week. It is getting close to election time. Let's just see if each one of us can write just a few words a week. I know there is a pretty good bunch of us. It seems to me we are about the least thought of county employees there are in the county. We see teachers mentioned all along. But never a bus driver. Guess we don't mean anything. But I tell you, that they don't know. Just try driving a week and see what we have to put up with. I see in the Birmingham Age-Herald that our Hon. Governor Dixon sees funds for raising school teachers salaries. But did not say anything about bus drivers. But we are just old farmers anyway. We don't need it I guess. Well let me hear from some bcdy else and I will write some more.

Chilton Boys Exhibit Fine Beef Cattle

Ralph Patterson, of the Stanton 4-H Club, was judged Grand Champion winner of the Chilton County 4-H Fat Stock Show. Ralph carried off the top honor with a 950 pound Hereford calf. Both of the official judges, Dr. D. J. Meador, Livestock Specialist of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad, Mr. W. H. Gregory, Extension Animal Husbandman from Auburn, declared his well finished calf to be a U. S. Prime animal. Prime is the very best grade that can be produced, and this is probably the first prime steer that has ever been produced in this county.

The show was deemed a complete success by everyone attending. The most outstanding group of animals that has ever been led into the streets of Clanton were shown by our own school-boy 4-H club members, and this success was made much easier by the help of the Clanton Kiwanis club. The Kiwanis club sponsored the show and a large number of the individual club members.

An estimated 1,400 to 1,500 Chilton County farmers and citizens of Clanton either attended the judging or visited the display of beef calves sometime during the day.

Everyone declared that this excellent showing, made by 4-H Club boys, was a challenge to all farmers in the county. It was proof that the very best quality beef can be produced here at home. It was proof that farmers can profitably use the acres that are now going to waste on their farms.

Other outstanding winners in this show were J. W. Mitchell, also of the Stanton 4-H Club, who drew the Reserve Champion award. He showed an excellent animal and beat every boy except one. Earl Varner of the Enterprise 4-H club took third place of the show and First place in his class. Buddy Perkins, a ten year old 4-H Club member of the Mt. Nebo 4-H Club took Fourth Place honors, with his sleek, chuffy 625 pound Hereford calf.

All of the exhibitors showed calves and many farmers attending the show were heard making the statement that they had no idea that such attractive meaty animals existed in Chilton County at all.

M. R. Glasscock, the Assistant county agent states that he is indeed proud of the excellent job that his boys have done throughout the feeding and showing process. Every 4-H club member, regardless of his place in the show accepted the decision of the judges without any question. Their conduct has proven that they are real sportsmen and their animals have proved that they have learned an excellent lesson from their projects.

Jim Folsom, Progressive Candidate for Governor Talks To Alabama Voters

Outlines The Measures He Stands For And Tells Them How He Will Make Effective For The Common Good.

In a WCOV Radio Hook-up, Montgomery, Jim Folsom, Progressive candidate for Governor, last Friday night, delivered one of the most straight forward speeches made by any candidate in the pressing campaign.

He said:

Ladies and Gentlemen. To me there is a sacredness about this the first political speech I have personally delivered here as the one you heard last Monday evening was a transcription, as I stand before this microphone speaking to the people of Alabama and the people of Montgomery County I can't help but pause for a moment to pay tribute in my heart, and mind to that great leader, and humanitarian who recently passed on to reap his rich reward. And whose ideals, and philosophy of Government, whose love and friendship to every Alabamian has been felt throughout the state.

Education

(a) I shall call a special session of the Legislature immediately after my inauguration for the purpose of appriating the large surplus which will be in the educational trust fund for immediate use by the schools. This amount will guarantee a minimum school term of eight months and a twenty to thirty per cent increase in teacher's salaries.

(b) I shall favor the doubling of the present four hundred thousand teachers retirement fund and make it continuing rather than contingent as at present.

(c) I shall favor providing free text books for the first nine grades of our public schools.

(d) I shall favor extending vocational, educational, opportunities to all grades in the high schools, and I shall favor a constitutional convention declaring education to be a primary function of government.

Old Age Pensions

I am the original old-age pension advocate in Alabama. I ran for Congress in 1936 on this platform against Congressman Henry B. Steagall. I was defeated by a very small majority and my present opponent the Hon. Chauncey Sparks worked and voted against me in that campaign. I am a member of the National Legislative old age pension board, and was fighting for these old people who have spent their lives in service to their state while my opponent Chauncey Sparks was fighting against giving them a pension that they so richly deserved. My work has taken me into many homes of Alabama and as I see these old people sitting on the porches of their sons and daughters who are supporting them my heart goes out to them because a majority of them do not have the funds to buy the things they so richly need. I propose to do this without levying additional taxes as the state's income last year was $28,375,000.00. This money wisely spent could take care of every function of state Government. I shall favor an old age pension of fifty dollars per month for each citizen of the state of Alabama who is more than sixty five years of age, and I pledge to do everything in my power to provide such pension. I shall advocate the immediate passage of such laws as may be necessary for carrying out my plan for pensions.

Labor

If elected Governor of the State of Alabama I shall create a department of labor the head of which shall be known as the commissioner of labor and he will be drafted from the rank and file of organized labor. The commissioner of labor shall be a member of the Governor's cabinet and have a voice in the state government. And this department will be separate and distinct and it will be taken out of the Department of Industrial Relations where it is now. It is a department in name only.

I will strengthen and extend the department of public welfare. I feel that the health and well being of our people is of vital importance to the life of our state. I will widen the scope of the department so as to adequately care for all.

Roads

I favor the construction and upkeep of all thoroughfares throughout the state, many of our highways are too narrow and should be broadened to care for four lane traffic. I shall favor the construction of hard surface roads between all county seats and other towns.

I shall favor and do everything in my power to encourage the construction and maintenance of post roads throughout the state of Alabama thereby enabling the citizens of the state of Aloboma to receive their daily mail.

The farm to market roads of the

We do not know who is to blame for this unlawful act but it is punishable by fine and imprisonment and anyone caught practicing this lawlessness will be prosecuted.

Maplesville Boy's FFA Program Success

Hansell Grooms, member of the Isabella FFA Chapter, has won a place among the successful young hog growers of this section.

After entering the Junior III class in 1940, Hansell became interested in hogs and bought a two months old registered gilt (Duroc Jersey). He borrowed corn for feed from his father until he could raise a crop, and in addition fed the animal hog supplement and allowed her to range in a field of kudzu.

In October of 1941 the gilt brought nine fine pigs, but stepped on one and killed it. When the animals were two months old Handsell sold three of them for $10 each, and he plans to sell the other five after he has increased their weight to 200 pounds.

In addition to his corn and hogs, Hansell included in his last year's project program a heifer which he raised and 250 New Hampshire red chickens which he sold as broilers. The program gave him a net profit of $114.84, and he is striving to do even better this year.

Here's The Reason For Sugar Rationing

If sugar rationing can really help win this war, Uncle Sam is going to fire some big guns.

Authorities have revealed that every time a 16 inch gun is fired, it burns the distilled product of a fifth of an acre of sugar cane.

A thousand field pieces in an hour's firing burn up as much sugar as could be refined from a field two-thirds of a mile square.

When you have saved nine-tenths of a pound of sugar, you have saved the equivalent of enough sugar alcohol to make, together with nitrate acid and ordinary guncotton, a whole pound of smokeless powder.

Sugar is refined from cane sugar molasses. Cane sugar molasses is one of the best sources of first-class ethyl alcohol. We make smokeless powder from ethyl alcohol.

Sugar alcohol is used for other military purposes, too. It's used in compounding "dope" for use on airplanes with fabric-covered wings. A very important use is in making "detonating agents." A detonating agent is super-sensitive and explodes very easily. It is used to light the bulk of less explosive powder which forms the shell's bursting charge.

To make detonating agents, sugar-alcohol is combined with mercury to make fulminate of mercury.

We used a lot of alcohol (183,500,000 pounds) to make fulminate of mercury during the last war, but the absolutely vital use of alcohol then, as now, was in the manufacture of smokeless powder.

Smokeless powder fires our guns, and when you've saved nine-tenths of a pound of sugar, you've saved the equivalent of enough sugar alcohol to make together with nitric acid and ordinary cotton, a whole pound of smokeless powder.

Major General William Crozier, who had charge of munitions for us in 1917-18 called smokeless powder "the best single measure of strength which is afforded by all the materials of war." Our consumption in that fight totalled 330,000,000 pounds, and we'll need much more this time.

Smokeless powder of the nitro--cellulose type is made by treating cotton linters, or short fibers, with nitric acid and dissolving the resulting guncotton (pyre-cellulose) in a mixture of alcohol and ether. Cellulose from wood pulp may be used instead of cotton in a similar process.

Guncotton, alcohol and ether make a jellylike mass and this mass is formed into grains of various sizes and shapes depending upon the purpose for which the powder is to be used. Ether and alcchol are expelled by drying and the finished product is hard, horny grains or strips or pieces of almost pure guncotton.

About 65 per cent of the solvent is recovered, but only half as much alcohol as ether.

CHILTON COUNTY TRAINING SCHOOL NEWS

Gardens and peanuts along with other food and feed crops are still being discussed with different groups through the county.

To the farmers of Chilton County the call for "Food for Victory" is still on the schedule for our home, for our training camps, for our Allies, and all who have taken a stand against the enemies of Democracy. We have measured off plots for gardens, we are measuring off peanut acres, and assisting in every way possible to achieve Chilton County's goal for food production. When we think of the statement made by Secretary Wickard after having made a survey in England, relative to the food problem and the percentage of work in the effort of producing their own supplies for fighting war, it serves as a deep urge on the part of every "Red blooded American" to put forth extra time and effort to answer wholeheartedly to the roll call when the harvest days are ended. This is a very serious problem and one will have to think deeper than the surface to get the real view point of what may be the outcome should there be a let up in our effort to produce food enough for the maintenance of our working and fighting forces. May we have your cooperation in making the necessary food for winning the war?

B. T. Whittington, Voc. Ag. Teacher Chilton County Training School.

The evening school class with the adult farmers at the Chilton County Training School closed on April the 2nd, 1942. This session was the best that had been taught for a long time. The farmers were so full of interest that their efforts were worthy of giving first and second prizes. Mr. Noble Darby, Ralph Oden, Mrs. Linnie Oden, Mrs. George Parker, Mrs. Noble Darby were the competitors for first prizes; Mr. Otho McKinney, Mr. Will Watson, Mrs. Lulu Mae Gordon, Mrs. Ada Oden were the competitors for the second prize. The prizes were secured from the merchants in Clanton with whom we trade. We wish to take this opportunity to thank those merchants for their gifts of encouragement to the farmers in this community, We are asking these farmers to show their appreciation by producing food to help Chilton County hold up the requested goal.

SPRAYING IS ESSENTIAL TO HAVE GOOD FRUIT

Auburn, Ala.—If you are planning to harvest a good crop of peaches from the orchard you had better also plan to fight the insects and diseases which are sure to come.

The first spray to combat curculio (cause of wormy peaches) should be made as soon as three-fourths of the petals have fallen. One pound of lead arsenate, four pounds of hydrated lime and one pound of zinc sulphate should be mixed with enough water to make 50 gallons of spray mixture. This spray should be repeated when shucks are shedding and small fruits are exposed.

Two weeks later to fight scab and brown rot mix four to six pounds of wettable sulphur in 50 gallons of water. About one month before harvesting peaches, mix four to six pounds of wettable sulphur, one pound of lead arsenate, one pound zinc sulphate and four pounds of hydrated lime in 50 gallons of wate rfo ra final spraying. This will control curculio, brown rot and scab.

This spray schedule also applies to plums.

Spray schedules for apples, pears, grapes as well as peaches. (The Alabama Home Orchard Circular 138) may be obtained free from your county agent.

Child Health Day Plans Being Made

Auburn, Ala.—The Alabama Extension Service is cooperating with the Ala. Health Department in promoting the celebration of Child Health Day to be held May 1. Extra Majors, child care and family life specialist, is working at present with county extension workers in making plans for health programs on that day.

Miss Majors is reminding extension and health workers, also farm men and women of President Roosevelt's proclamation naming May 1 as Child Health Day:

"I call upon the people in each of our communities to contribute to the conservation of child health and the reduction of illness among children by exerting every effort to the end that before May Day, Child Health Day, children over nine months of age be immuized againts diphtheria and small pox, the two diseases for which we have the surest means of prevention," said the proclamation.

MORAL ECHOES

By Rev. D. W. Haskew, D. D.

The fire had swept over the hillside and there was blackness everywhere. In casting my eyes over the blackened ground I saw a white lily that had pushed its way above the darkness below and was standing there as a thing of beauty. That is what I call courage. The lily had been made to grow in the midst of blackness and yet it bloomed forth in the most perfect white that it was possible for God to make. To be sure, it will take courage and determination to remain white in the middle of blackness, but like the lilly, we can master our environment. We do not have to take on the way of living in which we live. We can be white and clean in the midst of blackness.

My little boy and I had been on a long stroll through the woods, and now our path was turning toward home. While walking along just in front of me little Charlie looked up into my face and with tears in his voice he said, "Daddy, I am mighty tired." I knew that my lad was telling the truth and with the strength of a father I reached down and lifted him to my bosom. Never shall I forget the relaxation of that child as he let himself go, with his arms folded around my neck. The journey had been long and every bone in his body was weary. As we live and as we journey on this way of life, we too become weary. Our Father in Heaven is walking with us and watching every step we take. He knows when we become tired, and beneath us and all around us, will go the everlasting arms. God loves us and He cares for us all the way home.

In the gold fields of the West a man staked out a claim. He was certain that gold could be discovered on his property and with pick and shovel he started digging for the treasure. Day after day and week after week he worked and dug, but he found no gold. Finally the acid of discouragement ate up his courage and one day he stuck his shovel deep into the rocky soil and walked away. For years that shovel stood there and at last the handle decayed. Along came another prospector and he set up a claim and started out to find gold. Coming upon the pit of the first man he saw the deserted spade, and where the othe man quit, he started digging. About ten feet away he found a rich vein of gold. The first man quit too soon. Often do we lose the rich treasures of life by quitting too soon. life by quitting too soon. It pays to dig on.

A large ship came slowly up to the pass that opened into the bay and the port. I noted that it slowed down and that the anchors were cast overboard. I asked of an experienced pilot," Why has the ship stopped out there in the deep water?" His reply was, "Parson, this is a port where big vessels can only enter at high tide." The captain of the ship had to wait until an unseen power out of the sky pulled the water toward the shore, so that his ship could pass over the bar. No one knows how but that power from above pulled the waters in and then the captain lifted anchor and came through. There are certain experiences that are for us along the way to heaven, but they can only be had when there is a power out of the heavens lifting us up. God alone has the power to lift us over the bar and guide us safely into port. Lift anchor and sail in when God brings in high tide.

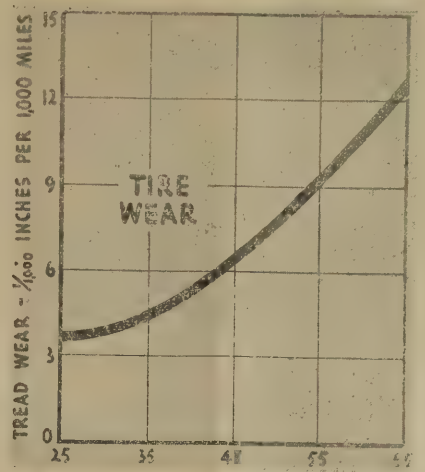
How Speed Tires Tire



TOP CRUISING SPEED (MILES PER HOUR)

WHAT THE MILES DO to your vanishing rubber supply: Chart shows that a car cperated at a maximum speed of 40 miles per hour for 1,000 miles wears approximately five-thousandths of an inch from tires. At 55 miles per hour, the tread wear almost doubles. At 65 m.p.h., a driver burns up his tires at a rate almost four times as much as at a speed of 25, the State Highway Patrol points out. Moral: Drive slower and get farther and more safely.

The annual Easter singing met for the 31st session at this place Sunday. A very enjoyable day was spent by those attending.

The singing was called to order by Prof. W. M. Devaughn singing the first song, followed with prayer by Emmett Wilson. Prof. W. M. Devaughn was elected chairman for the day. Lockhart, Philip Headley, W. F. Gilliland, Mrs. John Cox, Ocie Rich, D. L. Robinson.

We were dismissed for lunch for about 1 hour. Dinner was spread for the singers. Everyone seemed to enjoy this part of the service very much.

The afternoon session was called to order by Prof. W. M. Devaughn. The directors for the afternoon were: W. M. Devaughn, T. E. Wyatt, Lee J. Grant, Philip Headley, Marion Easterling, Dewey Hughes, O. L. Devaughn, Jessie C. Jones, Curtis Bean, Annie Boswell, Bill Senn, Grover Gilliland, Lena Mae Devaughn, Marion Mims, O. C. Billingsley, H. G. Gotthard, J. L. Baker, Floyd Little, Bill Smith. There were several quartets arranged in the afternoon. Pianists for the day were Lena Mae Devaughn, Eason Maddox, Marion Easterling, and Mrs. Dumie Jones. The singing was dismissed by the pastor, Rev. J. D. Hughes. Let's all remember the fine talks that were made and especially remember that God is still ruler over the world no matter how hard we try to run things ourselves. God is always going to win. So let's give Him full rightaway in our hearts and lives today.

BLACK-DRAUGHT

A TOP-SELLING LAXATIVE ALL OVER THE SOUTH

TO THE VOTERS OF CHILTON COUNTY

—o—

Clanton, Ala., April 4, 1942
Editor, The Chilton County News,
Clanton, Ala.
Dear Sir:

Will you please allow me some space in your worthy paper in order that I may express myself to the voters of Chilton County on behalf of Mr. J. A. Nivens who is a candidate for the office of sheriff of Chilton County.

I have been in this county for about 14 years, and Mr. Nivens was one of the first men I became acquainted with in Clanton. Since I've been in Clanton I have had many business dealings, however, small, with Mr. Nivens, and he has always been courteous to, and considerate of, me in every matter. Mr. Nivens has been in Chilton County for more than twenty-five years, and has reared his family here.

At one time Mr. Nivens was chief deputy sheriff of Chilton County, for a period of four years. He is now Chief of Police for the city of Clanton, a position he has held from the beginning of the present city administration. Mr. Nivens is not a man to go out of his way to favor a citizen only while the campaign for office is on—but he is a man who will go out of his way to render any assistance he possibly can to any one regardless of their political affiliations. In short, Mr. Nivens keeps the proverbial "hand-shaking" and "baby-kissing" up-to-date when there's no contest for office on.

Mr. Nivens, I feel sure, has the desire only to be elected, to the office of sheriff, by merit alone, and, I believe, his efforts in office would be to serve the people of the county, in the capacity of sheriff, in strict accordance with the law. I feel sure in saying that Mr. Nivens stands for law and order one hundred per cent and that he will, if elected, fulfill all the obligations of his office to the very best of his ability. I believe also that Mr. Nivens will employ only men of high standards and good morals to assist him in hi swork. Anyone who knows Mr. Nivens will tell you that he is a man who considers all men—like they were created—equal. I feel at liberty to say that Mr. Nivens has no ill-will towards any of his opponents and that he regards them as gentlemen of good morals and high standards.

During the course of of the cam- you will find Mr. Nivens in there pitching—and it won't be mud-balls at his opponents—and he will, I feel sure, continue to pitch everything straight across the plate when it comes to serving the people as their sheriff in an impartial manner. If you support him in his efforts to become our sheriff I feel that you will never see the day of regrets for sc doing.

With kindest regards to all concerned, I am respectfully yours,

MANCY C. JONES.

IN MEMORIAM

On February 11, 1942, God in His infinite wisdom called from our midst to be with Him, one who was greatly loved by all who knew her. She was the wife of J. D. Driver, the mother of three children: Clifford Driver, Jim Driver and Mrs. Luella Williams. She was a member of the Baptist church at Pleasant Valley. She was an invalid for the last ten years of her life. Her radiant smile and her patient endurance of pain was a living testimony to her Lord; and knew the "Glory of His Presence." She will be missed by all who knew her; but our loss cannot compare with her gain. In the last service that was held with her, she requested that we sing, "The Old Rugged Cross." She now has exchanged the "Old Cross for a Crown," and is waiting for her friends and loved ones to join her where pain and suffering never come, and "all things are new."

A Flower for His Throne

God was walking in His garden,
One He made with His own hands,
The sun was shining on each blossom
Young and old throughout all lands.
In our midst He walked still searching,
For a lovely full grown flower,
Pausing here he found one ready
To be taken any hour.
Striving to be worthy children
In the sunshine of God's love,
We shall join her there in Heaven—
Flowers in the realm above.

Better Care of Pigs Means Greater Income

—o—

Auburn, Ala.—Since the demand for hogs has increased and the price is good Alabama farmers can make money by taking better care of their young pigs.

W. E. Sewell, professor of animal husbandry, Auburn, says that by using simple precautions farmers can cut down their young pig losses. Figures show that from 30 to 35 pigs are lost for each 100 farrowed and that half of this loss is caused by the sow laying on the pigs soon after they are farrowed.

This can be prevented in a large measure by the use of guard rails in the farrowing house. Boards or poles placed eight inches from the floor around the inside edge of the house and allowed to jut out six inches from the wall are recommended. Small pigs can get under this shelter and the sow will not lay on them.

Another aid is levelling and making firm the floor areas to do away with holes in which small pigs may be drowned or mashed. If possible keep pigs on fresh ground where they will not become infested with worms.

HOW THE New War Conservation Order AFFECTS TELEPHONE SERVICE

To conserve vital war materials, the War Production Board has limited replacements or additions to existing telephone plant equipment.

As a result, some types of equipment and services normally provided by the telephone company will not be available to civilians as heretofore.

The order is expected to save many thousands of tons of vitally needed rubber, copper, zinc, lead, iron, steel and other scarce metals. Southern Bell is complying with the order by doing its utmost in every respect to achieve the desired results in saving materials.

Within the limitations imposed by the order, the Company and its more than 27,000 men and women will continue in every possible way to furnish you dependable, efficient service.

We know that we may depend upon your wholehearted cooperation.

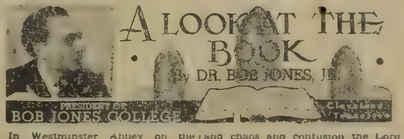
A LOOK AT THE BOOK

By DR. BOB JONES, JR.



In Westminster Abbey on the tomb of Britain's unknown soldier of the First World War is carved a portion of II Timothy 2:19, "The Lord knoweth them that are His."

A sinner lost and undone, without hope here and hereafter, by simple faith in the Lord Jesus Christ as his personal Saviour, the Bible teaches, becomes a child of God, a member of the family of God. Just as a father knows the name of his children so the Lord knows the names of those who belong to Him. As a shepherd can identify his sheep though they may be mixed in with a strange flock, so the Divine Shepherd identifies the sheep of His flock wherever they may be among the kindreds and tribes and nations of the world.

This verse brings great comfort to God's people in trying times like these. In all parts of the world families have been separated, sons have gone off to war, homes have been broken up by the invader, parents have lost contact with children, but in the midst of all the turmoil and chaos and confusion the Lord still knows His own. To whatever spot they may have been removed His eye has followed them. Amid the destruction of armies God's eye has seen as His own have fallen in the field of battle. Amid the carnage on the seas He has watched as His children have gone down to death in the deep waters. He has watched planes speeding through the flaming air and has seen the fall of His own to the earth.

Just as the Lord called his friend Lazarus by name, bidding him come forth from the grave, so on some glorious day the dead in Christ shall rise at the sound of His voice speaking to His own, "Come forth!" God's family will some day be united; but now scattered over the earth He knows them that are His and He keeps watch even above the scattered dust of His sleeping children. The Lord knows them that are His and in all the darkness of these days "standeth God within the shadows keeping watch above His own."

The Battle Lines Are Drawn

The result will mean for the masses Serfdom under a nefarious Political System; or Freedom and Security in the Average Home.

The battle lines of Alabama's two political armies are definitely formed, and for the remainder of this campaign, it is going to be a fight to the death. No quarter will be asked and none will be given.

The issue is clear and unmistakable. On one side is arrayed Progressive Democracy, under whose banner our lamented leader spent his whole life, battling for Human Welfare, for the betterment of the masses, for the uplift of the underprivileged, and for the greatest good to the greatest number.

When our beloved leader fell on the battlefield where he had been fighting all his life for the rights of the masses, a stalwart young man, Jim Folsom, native of Alabama's Wire Grass Section, now of Cullman, Alabama's banner white county, stepped into the breach, unfurled the banner of Alabama's Progressive Democracy, and is now carrying the fight direct into the camps of intrenched greed, special privilege, and government of and for the wealthy classes, rather than for a government of, for and by the masses.

At the head of this army is Chauncey Sparks of Barbour County, who spent 12 years in the Alabama Legislature, and we challenge anyone to show where he sponsored one single bill during all that time that was for the direct benefit of the underprivileged [illegible] and, or for the general welfare of Alabama's great army of working men and women, who are the real creators of the wealth which provides every good thing that makes for the abundant, clean, nobler better life, or for making secure and free the home life of the individual family—which is the only hope in this tragic hour of the world's travail, for the salvation of civilization and freedom.

Under which banner are YOU fighting. Are you for a Governor who is backed by corporate wealth, that will be demanding the lion's share, or special privilege, in every function of government—Sparks, if elected. Or,

Are you for a Governor when elected will be free to administer the affairs of State in the best interest of the whole people, instead of a chosen few. Then you will vote for Jim Folsom.

We have copied a few facts from the Records of the Alabama Legislature. Here they are:

Sparks Votes Against Good Roads

S. 525—"Constitutional amendment for $25,000,000.00 road bond issue, etc. Passed. Yeas—75, Nays—8. Sparks voted Nay. House Journal 1931, Vol. 2, page 2777."

Sparks Votes Against Schools

Mr. Matthews, of Clarke, moved that the rules be suspended for the purpose of considering this resolution. Motion lost Yeas—51, Nays 15. Sparks voted Nay. House Journal 1919, Vol. 2, page 1826. Sparks Votes to Tax And Muzzle Poor Man's Dog

Sparks voted Yea. House Journal 1919, Vol. 2, page 2517. Sparks offered an amendment, which was adopted, to strike out $1.00 and provide that for each female the license shall be $2.00. Same page as above."

Sparks Votes Against School Teachers

Bill passed Yeas—[illegible], Nays—15. Sparks voted Nay. House Journal 1933, Vol. 1, page 752."

The Danger Signal

It becomes more apparent every day that there is to be—in fact it is going on now—an all out effort to buy the nomination for a man for governor who is not wanted by at least three-fourths of the people of Alabama.

Key political men of certain groups of voters, who a month ago were definitely anchored to a liberal progressive political philosophy, are now drifting, or have already "drifted" into the port of the enemy—the non-progressive, reactionary, keep all you have and get all you can crowd—hoping, no doubt that a few political crumbs may drift their way.

The leopard does not change his spots over night, and these leaders who have deserted from the Graves-Rooseveltian political faith do not represent the rank and file of the groups they head.

We cannot believe that the great majority of the voters of Alabama, both men and women, who have fought side by side with President Roosevelt and our own beloved, departed Chieftain, in the defense of the weak, human welfare and the general good, are going to allow themselves to be bartered into the hands of their political enemies by a bunch of petty political self-seekers.

To elect this super-political reactionary to the Governorship, would mean the surrender of practically everything progressive Democracy has gained during the past twenty-five years.

The ballot is our only weapon with which to combat this real danger which now confronts us—If you are honest and sincere in wanting to protect what has been gained, be careful how you use it.

state of Alabama are of vital importance to the farmers and at least one all year around farm to market road should reach every community in the state of Alabama. The federal government appropriates monies to aid counties in building farm to market roads. As Governor of Alabama I pledge to all county Governments the cooperation of the State Highway Department in building these vitally necessary roads.

Farms

I believe in the program of the advanced welfare of the farmer, they feed the world and therefore their welfare is of the utmost importance to the world today. If elected Governor I shall do everything in my power to remove the shackles of unfair freight rates, trade barriers and low prices. I shall broaden the program of the Farm Extension service and use the Governor's office to help the Farm Security in carrying on the fine work it is doing.

Economy

I believe in the strictest economy possible with good Government and if I am elected Governor I hope to use the same economy in the affairs of the state as I now use in my own. There shall be no additional appropriation under present conditions and I shall not favor spending money for anything that is not necessary with the proper functions of our state affairs. Under present conditions we should not try to expand more than is absolutely necessary.

I shall favor reducing the salaries of all over paid state employees and shall abolish useless or unnecessary bureaus and agencies.

Many people have asked me what I expect to do about the so-called merit system. I think the only merit system that we have at present is a system whereby the political bosses can, not only control all patronage of the state, but can, at the same time, control the individual liberties of each and every state employee as well. When I am elected Governor I will recommend to the Legislature that this infamous political monstrosity be done away with at the earliest possible moment. In this connection I do favor a constitutional amendment which will provide a true and impartial merit system that will be free from political manipulations.

Oppose Nex Taxes

I am constitutionally opposed to any new taxes, conditions at the present time are such that it is necessary that our Federal Government impose additional taxes and it is my opinion that the states do not impose any new taxes as long as this condition exists to win the war. Our state income today is $28,375,000.00 and God only knows what this money has been spent for except for useless functions of Government like the Dixon merit system that is costing the tax payers thousands of dollars annually which doesn't mean as much as the paper it is written on, and the cost of advertising to the newspapers for the different functions of state Government such as a skein of silk around a young ladies neck which was manufactured in England and some machinery which maybe shipped here five years from now to manufacture the silk which may be grown on Governor Dixon's and Colonel Persons' silk farms at Atmore, which has cost the tax payers of this state approximately $60,000.00 for a peck and one half of silk coocoons.

Referendum

I shall favor the call of an immediate referendum on the liquor question said election shall be held within not less than ninety days and not more than one hundred and twenty days after the passage of such an act by the legislature. Among the advisers and backers of Chauncey Sparks we find Frank Dixon, whiskey man, Marshall Johnson, Lloyd Bowers, and others. It is said birds of a feather flock together, what do the people of Montgomery and Alabama think of this crowd?

Who has now doubled crossed Sherlock, and is supporting Sparks? Frank Dixon. Who cussed the pie brigade? Chauncey Sparks. Who is now welcoming the pie brigade, Chauncey Sparks. Now why is the whole bunch trying to double cross each other? We don't know. Are the people of Alabama going to be doubled crossed by a bunch of professional double crossers? I should say not. I have never doubled crossed any one and I won't if elected Governor of this great state. I try to be clean, courageous, trustworthy and sincere, and I am the only progressive in the race, I am no reactionary.

I remember a dear old lady whose life was a constant benediction, sitting in a group where everyone but herself seemed picking to pieces the church, religion, and finally even Christ Himself. Like an avenging Angel she suddenly stood over them, silencing their chatter with words that pierced like swords. "How dare you criticize my Lord," she demanded. And they all wondered how they had dared. You couldn't criticize General MacArthur with any officer that ever soldiered under him in the room, but the man Chauncey Sparks, that criticized that great leader, and humanitarian Bibb Graves, now has around him some of the very men he criticized, nnd called political spokesmen. I cannot but wonder how these men could ever forsake that trust that the great humanitarian Colonel Bibb Graves gave them. No man who believed in the political phylosophy of Colonel Bibb Graves, can vote for Chauncey Sparks, and be honest with himself. Some men are so naievely made up that they would even sell their birth right for a mess of porridge. The true Gravesmen are supporting me and will do so until the end. And don't you Gravesmen ever think that had Colonel Graves lived that Chauncey Sparks, does not know that you would have fought him with everything you could humanely possibly fight with. Put yourself in the place of Chauncey Sparks, what would you do for men that would have defeated you. I can tell you what you would do, and that is a capitol Nothing. And so will Chauncey Sparks.

In my way of thinking the Health Department of the State of Alabama is one of our most vital state departments. It is the department that must carry on under adverse conditions. Without health no man, woman or child in Alabama wuold be immuned from the ravages of disease. And the department of health working in conjunction with the Medical forces of this state must be properly maintained. In order to maintain this department and continues its proper function certain funds must be appropriated. When I am elected Governor of this state I shall see the heads of the department of health and succor to their needs.

The disease of cancer must be controlled, the disease of tuberculosis must be controlled, malaria, venereal diseases and hook worm must be controlled. And especially if any epidemic should fall upon our state this epidemic must be met with all the resources of our health department. And when I am Governor of Alabama I shall personally see that the department of health has sufficient funds.

The Birmingham News and the Montgomery Advertiser in editorial endorsement of Chauncey Sparks stressed the fact that, although they differ with Judge Sparks in many things, his record is such that he has always been a man who kept his word. Just what word it is that they would like to see him keep. Will Chauncey Sparks keep his word regarding the Liquor question when he has changed his whole idea about it. We think not. Will Chauncey Sparks keep his word regarding the various other things mentioned? We think not. The only word that Chauncey Sparks will keep is his word that he has given to the big mules and special interests of Alabama and you should know what that means.

In conclusion I want to take this opportunity to say that the people of Alabama realize they have in me a man that stands for clean government and I will do more for Alabama and for the little man than all of my opponents put together.

So therefore when I am elected Governor of Alabama I will demonstrate to you that I am no reactionary that I am a progressive, and that my policies shall always be fairest and justice to all.

In view of the conditions of this day in which we live the whole world at war, the nation staggering under unspeakable burdens incident to the war millions of homes giving up their sons, sacrifices being made by the citizens of this nation. It is not well to elect a Reactionary of Mr. Sparks' calibre to the office of governor.—In view of all these it is a good thing to call to mind "Kipling's Recessional."

God of our fathers know of old,
Lord of our far flung battle lines,
Beneath whose awful hand we hold.
Dominion over palm and pine,
Lord God of hosts be with us yet,
Lest we forget, Lest we forget.

Lest We Forget

Chauncey Sparks was a 2nd Lieut., Co. G, 2nd Infantry Alabama National Guards from 1912 into the year 1915 at which time he resigned when the war clouds began to rise over this country remember our boys went to the Mexican border in 1916 and to France in 1917. Where was Chauncey?

Lest We Forget

That at the present time he is too old to be drafted for military service, and hence he is one of the lucky Americans who has enjoyed the benefit of our freedom and has never done anything to defend the freedom of this nation.

Let me pause here to say: If my services are needed and I am called to defend this country I will not hide behind the immunity of the Governor's office to keep from going into the armed forces and to the front. To safe guard our Democracy.

That Chauncey Sparks is a man of means himself but instead of spending his own money in his campaign he is being financed by the big mules whose candidate he is and whom he will serve if elected Governor. Chauncey Sparks is a bachelor and bachelor because he's too stingy to support a wife, and have a family of his own. Men need not expect that he will have a very great interest in educating the children of either men and women, although he has tried to gain the favor of the teachers, and the school forces men need not expect that he will go any further on supporting education, any further than the special interest will let him.

Chauncey Sparks is not going to drive the big mules or control the corporations but instead the corporations are going to put a ring in his nose and lead him around just where they want him to go, and make him do their bidding and not his own.

All of his fine proverbs about giving the people a referendum on the liquor question are going to prove themselves both to be elastic, and brittle. They will be as rubber, and as brittle as pie crust, he first said that he would give the people a referendum but he did not say which means that, that promise is like a piece of rubber which will stretch across and clear through his administration and the referendum will never be called on the other hand his promises about the liquor traffic is as brittle as pie crust for he has already said in his speech at Wetumpka last Saturday March 28, he would try out the present laws before he did anything about calling a referendum, and if the present law did not work then he would call a referendum still he has never said when it would be called.

Chauncey Sparks sarcastically charged all the friends of Bibb Graves as being pie eaters, and the lamented Bibb Graves be charged controlling the state spoils system, yet when Colonel Graves passed away he made all kinds of political overtures to those he had formerly tried to discredit.

In his political philosophy he is reactionary, and is living not today but twenty-five years ago. Professing to be a democrat but instead of having the mind of the democrats today he has the mind of the Republicans, not of today but of a qaurter of a century ago.

As voters of Alabama we need a man for the Governor of this great state who is modern enough in his outlook to fit his policies into the plans, and purposes of our great President of the United States and who will absolutely not run counter to the social, economic, political gains of the United States as this whole nation is led by our great President, Franklin Roosevelt.

The record of Chauncey Sparks in the legislature, House Bill 348 — Chauncey Sparks by his vote, and action turns down help for disabled veterans. House Bill 402 "Where was Chauncey when aid for dependent children was voted upon, he was present but did not vote. House Bill 98—Chauncey Sparks voted against Veterans poll tax exemption. House Bill 164 Chauncey Sparks votes against free text books. House Bill 281 Chauncey Sparks votes to tax the poor man's hunting dog, and House Bill 403—Chauncey Sparks votes against Governor Miller's income tax. Chauncey Sparks didn't have a coon or rabbit dog but he must pay income tax, so therefore he voted for one, and against the other.. House Bill 199 Chauncey Sparks introduced a bill to abolish the office of tax Collector and Tax Assessor, and what will he do if elected Governor with our tax officials, we wonder.

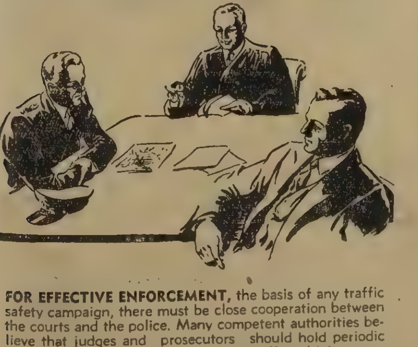
ENEMIES OF RECKLESS DRIVING



FOR EFFECTIVE ENFORCEMENT, the basis of any traffic safety campaign, there must be close cooperation between the courts and the police. Many competent authorities believe that judges and prosecutors should hold periodic meetings with the chiefs of police, sheriffs or highway patrol officers with whom they work—to discuss what makes adequate evidence for successful prosecution of necessary cases. Remember: traffic accidents killed at least 753 persons in Alabama last year!

I See Three Men

By DONALD C. MacGUIRE

A gentle breeze stirred the papers on his desk as John Bullion sat back in his swivel chair, softly cushioned with red Morocco leather. He pulled out a silk handkerchief and wiped his glasses, and then leaned forward and flicked the ash from his specially made Havana cigar with a pudgy finger, for he was sleek and fat. When these preparatory motions were over he settled his big frame in a comfortable position in order that he might be at ease to meditate on his successes and good fortune. He was very successful; he had forced his way to the top of the heap, and he found much satisfaction in gloating over his riches and the power he wielded over thousands of men who worked under him.

"Yes," he thought, "I am a big man; I'm indispensable to the country at a time like this. It couldn't get along without me. And while the war lasts I stand to make money, lots of it. It is good to be a patriot."

He looked through the window and there below him, stretched out like a giant octopus with smokestacks in its back, lay his factory; his brain-child. It belched out stinking smoke and made a frightening din. But to him it sounded like a symphony. Its crashing(roaring noises blended together in his mind to make music, and right now it was playing a cosmic selection, for it was working 24 hours a day turning out war orders. It made his heart glad for it was playing a Victory March before which Hitler would retreat and ultimately be beaten. The guns and tanks that rolled off the production line would tear Hitler to shreds, and the name of John Bullion would become a synonym of power in even a bigger way than before. Yes, he was doing great work; he was a patriot.

The shadows cast by the morning sun played across his desk and fell on a bronze statute he had picked up in a bazaar in the Far East on his last world tour. It set him thinking about his travels. He could not travel now, of course, but when the war was over he could. He dreamed of drinking rare wines and eating strange dishes in far-off places. He mused about being entertained in the homes of the mighty as he had been in the past. When he came into his greater kingdom of wealth, as he would surely do if the war lasted long enough, he would travel and in luxury. He saw how he could use the influence his wealth gave him to shape the policies of the country, if the right party got into power. Streams of fat dividends rolled into his pudgy hands, and they would buy him power which he could use to lay the foundations for the future increase of his wealth. He would use it secretly, behind the scenes, for he disliked publicity, and did not want to stir up the people. Yes, his factory played great music; his soul took delight in what he saw. He was making big money and he deserved it, for he was a patriot.

Another patriot stood on a platform in the factory working a mighty crane with claws like a tiger. Bill Workman pulled a grimy handkerchief out of his overalls pocket and wiped the sweat from his face, for there was grime and dust and heat in his part of the factory. Bill liked his work and did his job well. His thoughts turned to the years of the depression when he had waited in the bread-line for food for his family. He had searched in vain for work, any kind of work that would enable him to earn enough to keep his family, but he could find none. He had grown bitter against John Bullion and his kind, anw now that he had John pretty much in his power he meant to work out his bitterness against him. This was the time to do it. John had never known the humiliation of accepting a handout; he would be made to feel the accumulated grudges of the workingman, now that there was a good chance.

Bill loved his country, and he would turn out weapons to beat Hitler in order to keep his country free. It was something that he could speak his mind about things. He could call up the mayor and protest against taking up the garbage on Sunday and making men work when they should be having a holiday. That was worth something. He would work hard, and do a good job and so help his country to win the war.

Bill looked ahead to payday and saw his envelope, fat and bulky with crisp, new bills. He had never before made so much money, and he hummed a merry little tune as he thought of the new radio and the bicycle he would get for Bobby. Now was the time to get his share of the money war production put in circulation. John Bullion was not the only one who would make money. He and thousands of others like him would get theirs; they would strike, if necessary, Hitler or no Hitler. They would put the screws on John Bullion and his kind, and shut down the shop until they got what they wanted. The war raged on two fronts; between Bill and John at home, and between Hitler and his gang on one side and Uncle Sam on the other. The [illegible] war must be won first; the an[illegible] grudge would have to be sat[illegible] Yet, he was a patriot, but like John, he was going to be a paid patriot.

So went the first two visions. Each man was thinking first of himself, and reaching out to grasp all he could get out of the mad confusion caused by the war. Neither saw that others were concerned in what they were doing, or if they saw they cared but little. They did not see that life and liberty for millions depended upon them.

Far through the mist and gloom there loomed a third figure. He was a soldier on the Bataan Peninsula, and he was taking what shelter he could get in a rabbit hole. All day the Japs had been dropping bombs and shells around him. He was hungry; food could not be brought up because of the continual bombardment. Just a minute before his buddy was shredded into raw red flesh before his eyes. His turn might come any minute now. Perhaps the Japs would capture the peninsula. God only knows what they would do to the boys. It would be plenty. But he put that thought away and kept on fighting. He thought of home; what were they doing now? He could smell supper being cooked in the old kitchen, and hear the merry laughter of his little sister as she romped over the place. He wished he were with them. No—he must stop thinking of home. There was a job to do and he must attend to that. But, what was he doing anyway? And why was he doing it? Twenty-one dollars a month and hell popping around him day and night. Then he saw John Bullion and Bill Workman; and he saw what they were thinking. For a moment he envied Bill; he would be going home when his shift was over. Then he smiled a world-wise weary smile, for the soldier is not a fool. Danger makes him clear-eyed and keenly clairvoyant. He knew that these two men and their kind had in their keeping not only his life, but the future destiny of mankind. Yet, they were fighting for themselves mainly; being patriots was only incidental. As long as he held out they would be safe; they and their grubby, sordid way of life.

Then he thought of home again, for he was very young, and this was his first trip away from it. If anything happened to him what would become of the old folks They would go on working, of course, and paying taxes out of their slender means. Old age would come faster to them. His father's steps would lose its spring. His mother would be silent for long hours, thinking, and praying for strength to go on.

He shook himself. He must stop thinking of home. The rich industrialist and the laborer were both fools. Their love of money blinded them to the real things; things that mattered now and always would, like freedom, decency and friendliness among men. He felt like shouting to them across the ocean, "Wake up, you fools; you are playing Hitler's game for him. He laughs when you fight among yourselves. I don't mind giving my life, but I want it to count for something; for freedom in the future; for Americanism and what it is meant to stand for. You are helping to destroy what I am fighting for and willing to die for. Wake up."

Two fools and a man! We, the people need to be wakened too, to hear the voice of the soldier piercing the distance and stabbing us wide awake. It is time that we told both John Bullion and Bill Workman, "Stop your selfish dreaming and your bickering. Get down to work, or we shall rise in the majesty of our authority as a free people and knock your heads together until you come to your senses. Neither of you is a true patriot; you cannot be while you put your own interests first. Wake up."

Then we can say to Hitler, "Y[illegible] spawn of hell, you are on th[illegible] you and your gang [illegible] We stand together as a [illegible] shall work together [illegible] We shall neither [illegible] until we give you th[illegible] we beat the life [illegible] kind, and make [illegible] intended it to be. Chilton Farmers Asked Plant Gardens

Chilton county farmers may have to depend on late Spring and summer gardens for their major supply of vegetables, because of the unusually wet spring this year.

Abnormal rainfall during the early planting season has seriously handicapped all gardners. However, the 350 small farmers working with the Farm Security Administration are not easily discouraged, according to Miss Patton, County Home Management supervisor.

In spite of the wet growing season Farm Security Administration farmers expect to have turnips, lettuce, onions, rape, mustard, carrots and English peas, for home use and market, in a few weeks.

Tomato and cabbage plants are coming along fast in plant beds, and preparations are being made to bed seed potatoes for slips

Most of the canning will be done from Spring gardens this year, Miss Patton said, and any surpluses from summer gardens will be dried, preserved in brine or sold. The canning goal for Chilton County borrowers has been raised from 85 quarts per person last year to 100 quarts per person. Families will begin their canning program soon by putting up strawberries.

Chilton County farmers cooperating with the FSA plan to produce as much food as possible for home use this year, in order to release commercial supplies for military purposes. They will also raise some garden truck for sale.

In cooperation with the Department of Agriculture's Food fon Freedom campaign each bororwer in the county will have a 12-month garden in addition to raising more milk, butter, chickens, hcgs and eggs for subsistence and for sale.

BEHIND WITH GARDENING? THEN PLANT THESE VEGE'BLES

Many folks over the State have their gardens well underway but if you are a little behind now's the time to plant beets, turnips, carrots, radishes, corn, squash and beans (both snap and butter).

Also time is right to transplant small tomato plants from the seedbed to individual cans, drinking cups, or the like. By transplanting to individual holders the plants will develop a better root system and will grow off faster in the field when they are set out.

Salvage-For Victory Drive Is In Progress

MONTGOMERY —Alabama is relying upon the salvage committee being set up in every county in the state to carry through successfully the salvage-for-victory drive so necessary to American war industries at this time, Governor Frank M. Dixon said today.

"Under the plan worked out by Chairman Tom Bragg of the Alabama Salvage Committee, discretion is being left with each county as to the method to be worked out for the gathering of scrap metal, waste rubber, old papers and the thousand and one articles which can be salvaged," the governor said. "This is a war of the democracies against the dictators, and democratic processes must govern our every campaign. Thus, the principle of local responsibility for collection will be upheld."

Appointment by the governor of five new county salvage chairmen was announced by Leon Gilbert, executive secretary of the Alabama Salvage Committee, whose offices are in the Klein-Ashley Bldg., Montgomery.

Earl Gore of Clanton was appointed Chilton County salvage chairman. Fred J. Lawley of Goodwater was appointed Coosa County chairman in place of the Rev. J. O. Colley of Goodwater, who was unable to serve. Other Andalusia, postmaster, for Covington; chairmen named were: L. E. Brown, J. R. Williams, Decatur, for Morgan, and M. B. Thompson, Troy, for Pike.

Notice Farmers

MONTGOMERY.—Blanks will be available soon at the offices of all county agents for farmers wishing to apply for the renting of pure-bred bull calves from the Kilby Dairy Herd, Col. W. E. Persons, director of the State Department of Corrections and Institutions, announced today.

The bull calves, of fine Guernsey stock, will be leased to farmers, in cooperation with Auburn, as part of the program for improving Alabama livestock. Ten or 12 of the calves will be leased this year and more in succeeding years as they become available. Lease applicants must meet Auburn standards and must be approved by their county agent.

The lease form provides: That the farmer shall keep the rented bull in good condition and make it available for use in his area after the animal is one year old; that the farmer will make breeding reports to his county agent, and that the bull shall be sold after three years, with the department and the farmer splitting the proceeds.

This Week In National Defense

A WEEK OF THE WAR

War Production Director Nelson, speaking in New York City, said "America's industrial plant is really beginning to roll." He said airplane production schedules for the first three months of this year have been met or exceeded, and production of tanks is ahead of schedule.

CIVILIAN SUPPLY

The WPB ruled persons buying toothpaste or shaving cream in tubes must turn in to the retailers some kind of tin-coated tube for each new one purchased. The Board froze sales and deliveries of all new bicycles for adults, including those already ordered and paid for. Red Cross local chapters began collection of the extra cloth made available by the elimination of cuffs from approximately 50 million pairs of trousers now on hand in stores. The salvage clip will make about 300,000 new suits.

PRIORITY ORDER COMPLIANCE

The WPB reported investigations of 14,000 firms for compliance with priority orders have been undertaken since last June. Reports have been completed on 3,500 firms, the Board said, and of these 1,600 showed no violations while approximately the same number reported violations through misunderstandings. The report resulted in 35 suspension orders, affecting 46 firms and one individual. Thirteen Federal agencies and more than 3,500 investigators are cooperating with the Board in the surveys.

PRICES

The Office of Price Administration froze manufacturers, wholesale and retail prices of plumbing fixtures and of 44 common household electrical appliances, all at March 30 levels. ceilings were also set on wholesale prices of bond, ledger, book and plain and fancy cover paper and Bristols, and on producers quotations for Pennsylvania anthracite coal. The Agriculture Department said the retail cost of food is now 15 per cent above the 1935-39 average, but is still below the 1929 level.

CIVILIAN DEFENSE

Civilian Defense Director Landis said Axis air raids on American war industries this spring are "entirely possible." He said "It's worth a dozen bombers to the Germans to wreck vital industries, even in the heart of the country." Mr. Landis said $20 million of OCD funds have been transferred to build facilities for manufacture of civilian gas masks. First shipments of helmets, arm bands and other equipment for air raid wardens and auxiliary firefighters and police were sent to more than 40 Atlantic and Pacific coast cities.

THE ARMED FORCES

The Senate passed and sent to the House a bill granting pay increases from $30 a month to $42 for privates and apprentices seamen, and providing proportional increases for other classes of enlisted men in the armed forces. The Post Office Department issued regulations for granting of free first-class mailing privileges for all ranks of the armed forces. The Senate passed and sent to the House a bill eliminating restrictions on marriage of Army and Navy officers during the war. The President signed legislation to permit the War Department to recruit American technicians serving in foreign armed forces and to pay them more than $21 a month during the first four months.

THE WAR FRONT

The Navy reported as of April 4 total Japanese losses inflicted by U. S. Naval Forces included 21 warships sunk, 13 possibly sunk and 22 damaged; 48 non-combatant ships sunk, 14 possibly sunk and 14 damaged. The Army and Navy said Axis submarines sunk or presumed sunk by the Navy total 24, and those by the Army number four. Assistant Secretary of War for Air, Levett, said U. S. pilots in the Far East are shooting down five Japanese planes for every plane lost.

The forces of Lt. Wainwright in the Philippines repelled several enemy attacks by land, sea and air on Bataan Peninsula and Corregidor Island with heavy Japanese losses. Japanese bombers sank the U. S. aircraft tender Langley, the destroyer Peary and the Navy tanker Pecos in the Southwest Pacific, with an estimated loss of 700 men. The Navy reported the torpedoing of 15 more United Nations merchant vessels in the Atlantic.

SHIPPING

The maritime commission reported all contracts have been awarded for the 23 million deadweight tons of merchant shipping—nearly 2,300 cargo ships and tankers—which the President has set as the 1942-43 goal.

AGRICULTURE

The Department of Agriculture said it had purchased more than $800 million worth of farm commodities, totaling more than 7,500 million pounds, during the first year of the Department's expanded purchase program—March 15, 1941 to March 15, 1942. More than half of all purchases were for meat, dairy and poultry products. Most purchases were for lend-lease shipment.

The Agriculture Department reported prices of all farm products combined were 99 per cent of parity on March 15, 1942, and 46 per cent above the 1909-14 average. The Commodity Credit Corporation reported it has contracted for the sale, during the period ending April 30, of about 5,500,000 bushels of corn and about 240,000 bushels of wheat to be processed into industrial alcohol.

Better Food Markets Mapped By Leaders

Auburn, Ala.—A committee of farm leaders and distributors has mapped plans for securing more and better markets for the food produced on Alabama farms.

Agreeing that there should be closer cooperation between the Alabama farmers who grow the crops and the men who distribute them to the state and the nation's consumers, the committee designated the Alabama Extension Service as the clearing house for production and marketing information between farmers and distributors. P. O. Davis, director of the Extension Service, was named to direct the clearing house.

For war needs and for the years to come, pave with enduring, economical
CONCRETE

Many strategic roads of this state must withstand heavy concentrations of wartime traffic. To make sure that these roads can "take it" without disastrous failures, pave with concrete!

Concrete has the rugged strength to stand up under emergency overloads without frequent repairs that tie up traffic and eat maintenance funds.

Concrete costs less to build than other pavements of equal load-carrying capacity; far less to maintain. It's the safe, low-annual-cost road, good for future years as well as for wartime needs.

Concrete is the choice for important new access and strategic highways in Alabama. Where main-traveled roads are to be improved, ask for this strong, economical type of pavement.

Letters To The Editor

ISABELLA BUS DRIVERS

Dear Editor, Chilton County News:

Will you give us a small space in your paper, so that we can boost our brother bus drivers from Jemison whose letter we read in last week's paper. We believe that Brother Hall has hit the nail on the head. We are not kicking against the teachers salaries. We believe that they ought to have a raise and we also believe that we should get a raise also. We are all poor farmers and we need all the help we can get. Let's all remember that it is not long until election and let's get our heart and mind just right before that day.

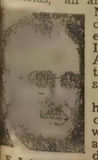
Dairy Cow Is Encroaching On King Cotton's Domain

The South surpasses the rest of the nation in dairying growth—

Compared with 1925, cash farm income from milk has risen 27 percent in the South, while cash farm income from cotton has dropped 65 per cent—

Bossy's encroachment on King Cotton's domain is leading to a better-balanced Southern agricultural structure, with better nutrition, more stable farm income and better soil as by-products of the change.

These are among the facts and nclusions in "Cows in the Cotn Fields," an article by E. J. Mather, president of Southern Dairies, Inc., in the April issue of the "Progressive Farmer."



E. J. Mather

Writing as the head of an organization which processes and distributes dairy products in many Southern states, Ma- ..cknowledges that cotton's is nothing to gloat about, ut ..nts out the South's shift to irying has compensating factors. "If the vulnerability of our otton Empire lay in great part in ep..ndence on an export market ..ich steadily dropped away ..en it is just as well the Southn farmer has something to turn which does not depend on forgn markets," he asserts.

"And if many of the land problems now facing the South have resulted from the greedy, soil-depleting grip of the cotton plant —then it is just as well the Southern farmer has something to turn to which enriches and restores the soil."

Problems to Solve

There are problems to solve, Mather warns. The Southern farmer must learn to handle his land with skill, to plant the pasture crops which will do most to boost milk production, to feed his cows according to scientifically determined methods.

He must also become particular about the kind of cow he keeps, culling losers, adding good producers, joining Dairy Herd Improvement Associations. With the constantly growing emphasis on the need for milk in America's meals, and the favorable economic and physical conditions in the South, Mather concludes [illegible] may one day become the [illegible] Southern farm commodity.

AMERICA FOR AMERICANS

When Hitler first started this war, he did some very boastful strutting, little dreaming (before it was acclaimed), how whole hearty his "back to home movement" would meet with the unanimous approval of every native American. I think this war had to be. For a number of years, we have been a long way off the correct way of American life and living. And I honestly think we have been pushed off by foreigners, brought to this country by men of great wealth, to add to that accumulation, with very cheap labor. Utterly disregarding the Lord's word, "That a laborer is worthy of his hire". Thereby disrupting the American way of life and living.

The sacredness of the home, and what it means to us, the importance of which, I need not stress. Every thinking citizen in the land, knows that the home is responsible for what we are, what we have been, and what we will be. It forms the concrete back ground of our lives. But how can you make a home, with mother and daughetr, both working on a small earning basis, while father and son, unemployed, are left with the awkward task of house work, and home making. Which I do not believe God intended for them to do.

Nor do I believe that it was God's plan, for mother and daughter to dash out to catch a street car morning and night for six days a week, leaving the home for business, what ever it may be. There are women filling positions today, whose capability, is great, of which I heartily approve. I also think it splendid for a dependent woman to be able to make her living.

But I very much disapprove, husband and wife both working. I am glad I can vote, and I try to put it to good use. I think God's high aim for man, was for him to provide the home, marry the wife of his choice, who in turn shall be his help mate, in making the ideal home for husband, self and little children. I think children started in the right path, seldom stray too far. When the smoke of battle has cleared and Hitler's "back to home" movement has been successfully carried out, Germans for Germany, Japs for Japan, then and then only, can our boys return to a free America, with plenty of work to be had, jobs, and positions that will enable a man to marry, have a home, and live as God meant man to live. cord that floats Old Glory.

I am looking forward to the day, when history repeats the story, and our boys once again shall pull the cord that floats old Glory.

It has never yet been pulled down,
And never will while the Allies live.
No Jap can bring our flag to the ground,
While America has men and money to give.

JARMAN'S PENSION VOTE?

Mr. Jarman in a letter to me has objected to remarks by me concerning his attitude on congressional pensions.

Here's What I Have Said:

> "We want a Congressman who won't stand idly by while a Pension Bill is being passed for himself to be paid for by the taxpayers of this country."

This shameful bill became a law giving rich pensions to ten-thousand-dollar-a-year representatives; and it was repealed only by brave action of a few Senators and a roar of protest from the public.

NOW LET MR. JARMAN EXPLAIN!

Respectfully,

A MESSAGE

TO THE PEOPLE OF CHILTON COUNTY FROM

DELOS P. CULP

I am asking you to make me your superintendent of education. I believe I am well prepared for this place and I promise a fair, honest, progressive administration if elected.

I have been trained in all phases of school work. I hold a Master of Science Degree in school administration. I have taught all school grades and in all kinds of schools from the one-teacher unit through the largest of consolidated schools.

I know that the schools belong to the people. Accordingly, I believe that the people must have a voice in running their schools. Teachers and administrators must serve as leaders in planning and executing school plans, but the people must be a forceful part of the educational structure. If elected, I will keep you informed about your school's progress and I will tell you the whole truth about any matter that may arise.

I stand on my record and I invite you to inquire of those communities where I have worked. If you give me your votes, I will give you my very best service in return.

Respectfully yours,
DELOS P. CULP.

PANAMA—HEMISPHERE GATEWAY

Gateway between oceans become battle arenas, gateway by land for nations of two contients girded for defense of hard-won liberties, the Panama of the present is as vital to the cause of the Americas as it was vital to the maintenance of Spanish power in the New World in days closely following discovery.

Only eleven years after Columbus, on his fourth and last voyage, was exploring every indentation of the Caribbean Coast of Panama in search of a way through to Cathay, Vasco Nunez de Balboa was forcing his way through tropical isthmus jungle and across mountain range to astound the world with his discovery of the Pacific Ocean.

Hardly six years were to pass before Pedro Arias de Avila, following Balboa, was to found the old city of Panama which was later to become seat of a Spanish colonial government. Jurisdiction ranged from Nicaragua in the north to the Straits of Magellan in the south, including the provinces of Cartagena, Peru, Chile and what is now Argentina.

A dozen years more and Francisco Pizarro was setting out from Panama for his conquest of Peru. The city of Panama became port for the shipment to Spain of the treasure and splendor of the Inca empire, and the distribution center of imports from the mother land to the colonies in the New World.

It performs that function today. But the commerce of Spain has diminished to a trickle, and upstart and unheard of nations say whose ships and whose goods may cross the 50-mile Isthmus, in the man-dug ditch that mingles the mighty waters of the Atlantic and the Pacific.

As early as 1529 a lieutenant of Balboa forsaw the need for a canal. For the potentates of Spain he prepared the first survey of a route, but it was Cortez, immortal for his conquest of Mexico, who wrote, "No matter at what cost, we must build a canal at Panama.

Landmarks of French ambition, doomed to failure by the mosquito, may be seen in Panama today. It was not until Goethals and Gorgas, the one fighting the elements, the other disease, earned the fascinated interest of the world that the herculean labor of linking the oceans by canal was trimumphantly completed in 1914.

Safely through the vicissitudes of youthful nationhood, and now an independent republic with constitutional guarantees to her people, Panama ceded to the United States the right to build and to operate a gateway for world commerce that left to the lurid pages of history the trek of sailing ships around Cape Horn.

For an annual sum the United States by treaty has obtained the land for five miles on either side bordering the Canal. To the credit of both parties be it said that no more than petty problems have disturbed the relations of landlord and tenant.

A curious geographical paradox is the discovery that the Atlantic or Caribbean entrance to the Canal is farther west than the Pacific terminus.

Almost from discovery, Panama has taken leading role in the movement of the world's goods fruitages of peace, as spoils of war. Though the republic has its own important place as a producer it is known the world over for its bananas, cocoanuts, hides and skins, balata and rubber, tagua, cacao, pearl, hemp, tortoise shell and gum—its position and function as vital gateway between oceans and continents, gives it a part even more prominent than in centuries past in the ever-changing drama that is history in the making.

FOLKS AND THINGS ABOUT TOWN

By BEN

We caught the nicest string of fish Tuesday afternoon late, or maybe it was Tuesday evening early. Anyway, it was the nicest string that we have landed in a long time. . . and believe it or not, we caught them out on the highway betweent Upchurch Drug Store and Burdette's Filling Station—no bate what-so-ever was used. We just drove down the highway and Leroy Martin hailed us and there you were, six of the nicest you ever saw. Thanks "Pe-Wee."

* * *

Have you ever seen more beautiful flowers than are blooming in our city this spring. . . Betty and Otto Jones, Mrs. and Mr. Upchurch's, Kathrine and Jim Wade's and we could go on and on, (we put the ladies name first here because they are the ones who do the work anyway). They're as pretty as anybody's and you should spend your next free afternoon driving around and enjoying them.

Bob Alred, down at Alred Drug Co., says that the engineers at the Automobile Factories sure are geniuses at making driving easier. . . he says that in 1940 there were no cars; in 1941 no gear shift; in 1942, no cars... Jack Hayes can't even talk politics without speaking in term of baseball . funny how fast the high school children walk from school at noon and how slow they return at 1 o'clock . . . we understand that Chick Fiquett got Durwood Teel out of bed the other night when he heard over the Radio that no more bicycles would be sold after April 1st, made him come to town and sell him one . . . wonder if Earl Parrish is real sure he caught those 25 fish he was telling me about the other afternoon.

Well if we keep on getting attractive neighbors up here in this part of town it will soon be the 'main stem'... now comes Miss Harriett Elam, from Brent, Ala., a most attractive young lady and one that we are glad to welcome to Clanton. She has accepted a position with Farm Security.

George McCain has a new colt.... Mr. Penton who looks after things for George at the stable calls it his Easter colt. It is as white as snow all over with the exception of his two brown ears that stick straight up like an Easter rabbit's ...imagine, the former Edith Hand is now living with her husband in Van Buren, Ark., and right across the street from Bob Burn's folks. We understand she hasn't met Grandpa Snazzy yet. . . . Mrs. Lande, at The Leader is displaying this week the Trophies won by the C. C. H. S. basketball team within the past four years. If you don't think those boys are somebody to be proud of, go down and take a lock at the prizes that they have won. . . The wife and I have been married exactly 16 years—come Wednesday, and we've our first time yet to refer to her as an "old battleship." She could, however, be termed as sort of a "light Destroyer" . . .if you know what we mean.

Confidentially,, and this a bit out of our usual trend, we don't think that the high State officials should be bragging about the cleverness of the officials in having enough steel on hand to make the 1943 license plates for automobiles. The other states of the Union are going to use a small Tab instead of new plates and what is good enough for them is good enough for us. The steel that has been bought for tag making should be turned back into the channels of industry where it would do the most good. We probably won't be buying automobile license plates anyhow . . . they're not needed when you walk, and that is probably what the most of us will be doing.

FOR HOARDING

What Is a Hoarder? A hoarder is a person who wants to have an "edge" over his fellow citizens to the extent of having an abundant supply of things on hand where there are not sufficient stocks available to supply all his neighbors during a war time emergency.

What Hoarding Results In: If many people hoard they bring on the scarcity situation which we are all trying to avoid. "Scare" buying depletes stocks at retail, creates panic buying among merchants, forces the manufacturer to bid against the government to secure his requirements of basic materials.

What It May Lead To: Great dissatisfaction among the millions of people who cannot afford to build up reserves of merchandise and who would be content to endure mild deprivations if "everyone were in the same boat."

Is There Any Real Urge to Hoard? No, if you are willing cheerfully to accept mild deprivations in war time. Defense needs constitute a great drain on our raw material supplies and productive capacities. Yet our manufacturers are ingenious and will undoubtedly provide us with substitutes for almost everything—just as good or almost as good. They need encouragement in this search for substitutes. War time needs usually result in very valuable discoveries of new methods, new materials which are of importance in our economy.

What Is The Cure For Dangerous Hoarding? Government rationing. The government will undoubtedly ration where an emergency exists. If it does, your hoarding will have done you no good. The government may be forced to ration even where no emergency now exists if hoarding results in "scare" buying and creates abnormal drains on existing stocks.

What Should You Do? Take good care of your things. Don't waste. These are war times. Play your part, by buying only for your immediate needs as usual. Being a good American Citizen you want no advantage over your neighbor. Think it over. You'll probably conclude that you WANT to share war time inconveniences when and as they materialize.

Did you ever have the experience of running-up on yourself We did that thing this week. . . . we were [illegible] around at Pat Smith's office wh[illegible] a gentleman walked up to us and asked, "is this Mr. Tucker?" We said that it was and he said, "Well. This is Mr. Tucker too." And we said we were glad to know him etc. Then he said, "Is this Ben Tucker?" and we said it was, and then he said, "This is Ben Tucker too." and we sorta felt around on ourself and decided that we surely had taken on weight since we last saw ourself. But sure enough it was me and it was him . . Ben Tucker of Route Two, Clanton, Alabama. Which now accounts for all the mail we have been receiving that we knew nothing of.

Mrs. J. C. (Mary) Burnett, well known in Church and social circles in Clanton, underwent an operation at Highland Baptist Hospital in Birmingham this week. . .latest reports are that she is getting along fine and that's good news. . . best of wish'es for a quick recovery Mrs. "Rip."...

Spring is came. . . the birds are singing and the sun is shining and half the population of Clanton is g[illegible] fishing. Heard R. W. Lowe has sold his store in South Clanton and Mr. J. G. Blair has taken up where Reuben left off. . . . we wish him a lot of luck . . . if these candidates each poll as many votes as we hear they estimate for themselves, Chilton County will vote about 50,000 votes in the Primary. Reports from the Stork Club proved interesting this week but we better not pass any of the information on at present. . .

A certain school teacher was giving the class a talk on taking things not belonging to them last week when the children were given the job of shelling peanuts for some farm program. . . it seems that some of the boys, as boys will, had eaten just about as many peanuts as they had shelled. Upon completion of the 'lecture' the teacher opened her pocket book to get her handkerchief and shelled peanuts rolled out all over the floor. . . . the embarrassment to the teacher must have been awful . . . but no fooling the teacher had merely taken them away from one of the boys earlier and forgotten they were in her pursé. . . the dog-gondest things happen to people. .

Received a mighty nice letter from Doris Newell Dent this week. Doris has moved to Valdosta, Ga., her husband is stationed there in the Air Corps. Says she is getting along fine and as happy as a bug in a rug. . . Reedie Taylor has a mighty good idea about this strawberry picking . . . . Reedie says we ought to all get together and help the fellows who have raised these berries get them picked and marketed. Start thinking now and see what kind of an idea you can work out on the question.

Mrs. Erle Ellis and a number of the members of the Glee Club from Chilton High went down to the Capitol City Monday and appeared on the Farm and Home Hour broadcast each week by WSFA. Our face is red . . . we owe Chicago Sales Co., an apology. . . . we deliberately took their beautiful window display out of their store and placed it across the alley in the Leader window. Last week we stated here that the beautiful trophy's won by the Chilton Basketballers was in the display window of the Leader when it was in the window of Chicago Sales all the time. You've heard if you didn't C-sharp that you would B-flat. Well we certainly wasn't seeing Sharp that day. Reedie we're sorry.

We understand that a number of the students at Chilton County High are having "Growing Pains." Hamp Draper Endorses Folsom For Governor

Hamp Draper, one of the most influential politicians in Elmore County, and Alabama, and decidedly the most popular man ever connected with the State Convict Department (Draper Prison at Spiegner is named for him), has endorsed Jim Folsom for Governor.

Mr. Draper says:

"I have gone over the platforms of all the candidates for governor and have carefully studied them. As a follower of Col. Bibb Graves' political philosophy for the past 20 years I have decided that Mr. Folsom has a platform which is more nearly in line with the humanitarian program of Col. Bibb Graves than any other candidate in the race. Therefore I will cast my vote for Mr. Folsom. I cannot understand how any real Graves men can vote otherwise and be honest with themselves.

Local Scouts Conduct Board Of Review And Camporee

Clanton Boy Scout officials will conduct a Board of Review for local Scouts at the City Hall Thursday at 4 p. m., Patterson Hicks, chairman of advancement will preside and will be aided by Charles B. McKee, Field Scout Executive. Scouts will appear for badges of rank and merit and will receive their certificates at the Court of Honor to be held Friday evening at the Clanton Camporee.

The Clanton District Camporee will be held at the High School grounds from 4 p. m. Friday to 4 p. m. Saturday afternoon. Patrols from the Clanton and Thorsby Troops will participate in Scouting and camping demonstrations, showing abilities to care for themselves in the open and without the niceties of modern civilization.

A huge camp fire program will be held Friday evening at 7:30 when a Court of Honor will award Scouts who appeared at the Board of Review recently. Each unit will produce stunts, songs and other entertainment. The feature of the campfire will be the Indian ceremonies carried out in costumes and colorful rituals. The public is urged to attend this event.

Saturday afternoon at 1:30 the Camporee events will be held at which time the Patrols will vie for honors in many camping and Scouting contests. Every patrol will receive a leather plaque showing its rating in the activities of the Camporee. The Camporee will close at 4 p. m. with the lowering of the American Flag and a bugle ceremony. Parents and friends should view these activities.

Field Executive McKee will arrive in Clanton early Thursday and spend the balance of the week assisting local Scout officials to plan and conduct the Board of Review, Camporee and other Scouting activities.

Big Jim Folsom Gaining Fast In Governors Race

Big Jim Folsom, aggressive [illegible] Alabama to be deci[illegible] primaries. Startin[illegible] campaign only a few [illegible] has taken the State [illegible] every day sees thousands flocking to the Folsom Camp

With a slow start in Chilton County due to the popularity of the late Col. Bibb Graves, the voters were slow to commit themselves [illegible] just waiting to choose the [illegible] for the office. The man most capable to carry on the work of [illegible] fallen candidate. They have decided that the man is Big Jim Folsom. It is stated that the Old Age Pensioners are waking up to the fact that Jim Folsom was carrying their banner when Sparks was stumping the State to defeat them. The question has arisen here in Clanton as to the why Sparks' change of heart and are wondering if it could be to get a few more votes, or as one voter remarked. "He might have changed his mind, but his heart is the same as it was."

With less than three weeks to go the races of the local candidates have warmed up a little and between now and May 5th we will see plenty of bustling. In the Tax Collector's race Tom McKee will be hollering at more voters, Jim Parrish will be rushing about to call on more people and Jack Hayes will be shaking more hands if that is possible.

With the candidates for Tax Assessor, Buck Roberts is working hard every day in the rural districts and A. D. Martin is not letting any grass grow under his feet, either.

Grover Walker, candidate for Legislature, has no opposition, and neither has Buster Foshee, candidate for County Prosecutor.

Looks like our Sheriff's race is running pretty even at present with both J. R. Hardy and J. A. Nivens working hard.

Delos Culp, candidate for Superintendent of Education is without opposition but is keeping in close touch with his friends here and is watching his political fences to see that they are kept intact.

Mass Meeting At Court House Well Attended

The Laymen's movement to Make Alabama Dry met at Clanton at two o'clock Saturday afternoon in the Circuit Court room, which was comfortably filled.

Judge L. H. Reynolds, the Chairman of the Committee called the meeting to order, and announced as the first part of the program three musical numbers by the high school glee club.

Dr. T. C. Casaday then led the assembly in prayer. Judge Reynolds then spoke a few minutes on the essential importance of temperance and prohibition as a means of preventing crime and increasing efficiency.

Judge Reynolds was followed by Mr. Hollis B. Parrish, Sr., of the Weekly Call. Mr. Parrish emphasized the importance of cooperation among the believers in prohibition and the relation of drink and crime.

Hogs Need Mineral Mixture All Times

Auburn, Ala.—It is highly desirable, says the Alabama Extension Service, to have a mineral mixture before hogs at all times. Brood sows often develop lameness in the back and legs and produce litters of weak, undeveloped pigs when grazing on peanuts, soybeans, or sweet potatoes. All these troubles are usually due to a lack of minerals. Mineral mixtures should consist of salt, charcoal or hardwood ashes, and ground limestone or slacked lime, equal parts by weight.

Farmers Are Urged Save Legume Seed

Auburn, Ala. — Alabama farmers are being urged by agricultural leaders to save all the legume seed possible.

The importance of farmers planting more legumes this fall than ever before to replace some of the nitrogen which will be short on the farm will be on hand when needed and will save the farmer putting out cash to secure legume seed.

Although it is too early to predict in most cases what kind of seed crop winter legumes will produce this year, farmers, where possible, should be preparing to save at least enough seed to meet their own need, and possibly some for sale.

OPM has ruled that fertilizer dealers can charge no more for mixed fertilizers, superphosphate, and potash now than they did for these materials during the 5-day period, February 16-21 of this year.

MORAL ECHOES

By Rev. D. W. Haskew, D. D.

Dr. Francis G. Peabody tells us of seeing the student body of a certain University as they walked down the street, carrying a banner with these words, "This University has waited three hundred years for us." This was their anniversary day with them and to celebrate, they were saying this to all who looked upon them. While the inscription on the banner appeared a bit presumptous, yet their claim was not totally wrong. There is a sense in which the world has been waiting for us to walk down the way of life and give to the world the things that will make it a better world in which to live. Shall we be the pride of this age, or shall we be a disgrace?

One of the prime ministers of England had great trouble with his legs. They had been imposed upon, and now he was needing a good pair of legs the most in the world, but they would not function. One day this Prime minister was heard to say, "If I had known when I was a young man that these legs of mine would have to carry about the Prime Minister of England, I certainly would have taken better care of them when I was a young man." Some of these days your body may be the living quarters of a bishop, a famous lawyer, a renowned doctor, a world famous statesman and it certainly is in order for you to take good care of that body now. To cripple your body with disease and bad habits, is to hurt the man that you are going to make, whether he be known or unknown.

You have a belief that you can make as good man, or as useful woman, as is to be found in the world. There is a great difference between belief and faith. I am standing in the door of the fiftieth story of the Woolworth building in New York, with a parachute stropped to my back. I believe that if I jumped out of that door, the parachute would open before I reached the street below, but I would not jump out for a million dollars. It takes faith to make the jump. You believe that you can almost do anything that other people are doing, but you hesitate to do that thing. You believe that you could make a lawyer, a doctor, or a banker, but you never make either one. It is the lack of faith that is holding many back from success. Faith is the thing that determines our ventures in life. Faith opens the parachute when we take the leap.

A second story building was on fire and a little girl was urged to leap from the window, but she hesitated. A Christian lady spoke to her saying. "Darling, jump, God will take care of you." Then the little girl closed her eyes, threw up her hands and as she made the leap she said, "Get under me God, I am falling." She was caught in the arms of her father who stood waiting for her, and when he pressed her to his heart she said to him, "Daddy, God told me when I was coming down that He was already under me and that he would give you strength to catch me." That was chilish faith. That is the kind of faith that has in it salvation. When we trust God He will be there to save us.

During the first World War Germany planted mines everywhere in the water, and the Allied shipping was almost paralyzed. Scores of ships would strike those mines and they would be sunk. After much damage was done to the Allied shipping, it was discovered that when a ship was making a certain speed that it would push the mine out of its way and it would not explode. After this discovery all the ships were ordered to this speed in the mine infested sections and there were but few ships that were sunk. Making the right speed the ships would wash the mine from their path. Enthusiasm is a good thing in kingdom service, but too much enthusiasm is most likely to produce danger. A well balanced, steady, firm way of living and serving, will help to wash the dangers from our Christian path. Lean to live and work every day just about the same and you will not run into so many hard blows.

Best Time Given For Planting Lespedeza

Auburn, Ala.—Lespedeza sericea does best when seeded about cotton planting time and fertilized with 500 pounds of superphosphate or its equivalent, and 200 pounds of muriate of potash per acre, according to the Alabama Experiment Station. This application should be repeated every two or three years, or annual treatment of 200 to 300 pounds of superphophate or its equivalent in basic slag, and 50 to 75 pounds of muriate of potash per acre may be made.

Data indicates the lowest early spring population of screwworm flies east of the Continental Divide since 1935, and is probably one of the lowest for the past 28 years with the possible exception of four years prior to 1931.

NOW IS THE TIME FOR A CHANGE IN CONGRESS
Vote for
HAYSE TUCKER!

QUICK change to better leaders is the greatest call of these dangerous days.

On fighting fronts, we have replaced our armchair military officers of peace time with men of action, experience and leadership.

On the front at Washington—in Congress, where our laws are made and leadership is needed—we now want men of action, too.

The present incumbent in Congress has had full opportunity and every consideration. Six years at ten thousand dollars a year, plus a liberal travel allowance, plus an excellent salary for his wife as office helper. The Sixth District has done for him all that party courtesy demands, and more.

But the Record Clearly Shows
OUR PRESENT CONGRESSMAN HAS DONE LITTLE OR NOTHING FOR THE SIXTH DISTRICT

The Sixth District has lost standing and prestige for six years. Let's look at the facts! Great governmental financing of industries and plants has placed:

—Aluminum and ammonia factories at SHEFFIELD
—Chemical plants at HUNTSVILLE
—Shell factories at GADSDEN
—A huge powder plant at CHILDERSBURG
—A great bag loading plant at TALLADEGA
—An ordnance works at ANNISTON
—Large Army Posts in DALE and COFFEE COUNTIES
—Air feilds at SELMA, MONTGOMERY, MOBILE, DOTHAN and TUSKEGEE
—Many huge developments at MOBILE

These tremendous improvements in Alabama run into hundreds of millions of dollars. The supply contracts which follow such construction have added hundreds of millions more.

But what has happened here? While other sections of the state were gaining these great industries, the Sixth District lost the Veterans' Bureau, lost a large part of the veterans' service at the Tuscaloosa facilities, lost the W.P.A. Headquarters, and witnessed the end of river improvements and other projects started under Congressman Oliver. Skilled workmen in large numbers have left the Sixth District to find jobs in busier sections. Neither in material matters nor in honor and prestige has the district advanced as it should.

An outstanding leader is available—studious and liberal, trained by business and legislative experience, skilled as speaker and legislator, vouched for beyond question by the head governmental experts of Alabama. Hayse Tucker after eight years as State Senator from Tuscaloosa County was voted by Alabama newspapermen in Montgomery "the outstanding member of the Legislature." He has had all the honors that his home folks at Tuscaloosa can pay him. He is ready for distinguished service to the nation. A central committee of more than five hundred, serving without thought of personal reward, offer him to the District.

Let's Stop Standing Still! Let's March Ahead!

Keep the wheels rolling on durable, economical CONCRETE

Concrete is ideal to speed wartime traffic, for three reasons, important to the war effort and to you:

1. Concrete stands up—keeps open continuously under heavy traffic that would close lesser pavements for frequent repairs or resurfacing.

2. Concrete is safe—skid-resistant rain or shine, visible for night driving with a minimum of headlight illumination.

3. Concrete saves money compared with less durable roads—costs less to build than other pavements of equal load capacity; far less to maintain; less total cost per year on main-traveled routes.

Strategic roads paved today with concrete as a war need will give a bonus of long, safe, economical service in future years.

Concrete is the choice for important new access and strategic highways in Alabama. Where main-traveled roads are to be improved, ask for this strong, economical type of pavement.

DECLINE IN RURAL AUTO TRAFFIC

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — A seven per cent decline in rural auto traffic in Alabama for March, as compared with March 1941, was reported today by the statewide highway planning survey—the first such decline in more than a decade.

Ten electric traffic recorders in various parts of the state showed practically the same per centage of average decline both for North and South Alabama. Three points of the 10 showed the following increases: 21.5 per cent on a Lauderdale County road near Florence; 18.6 per cent on U. S. 72 and State 2 near Paint Rock in Jackson County, and 11.4 per cent on U. S. 84 and State 54 near Elba.

Greatest decline in rural traffic was near McKenzie, Butler County, on U. S. 31 and State 3, where the traffic was only 72. 6 per cent of March, 1941.

Tallapoosa farmers plan 7,000 acres in peanunts in 1942.

"Useless timber fires swept over nearly eight million acres of forest land in the three states of Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana last year causing total money loss to timber and farm woodlot owners estimated at $6,907,000," says George T. Stephenson, forester for the Federal Land Bank of New Orleans. "Farmers," says Mr. Stephenson, "may protect their woodlots from fire by simple preventative methods which any farm group can follow."

The above picture represents a typical farm woodland properly cared for and kept free from fire. It is paying its owner handsomely this year when timber products are playing such a vital role in the national war effort.

Know Your Neighbor

VENEZUELA—LAND OF "BLACK GOLD"

In the Extreme northwest corner of the Republic of Venezuela, where the Colombian peninsula of Guajira and the Venezuelan peninsula of Paraguana thrust out into the Caribbean to form the Gulf of Maracaibo, inland and connecting with the Gulf is the famed Lake Maracaibo. Along the coast and to the north and south of the lake are thousands of square miles of swampy lowlands.

These tropical swamps were scene of the earliest exploration of the South American mainland. Columbus, in 1498 had sailed around Trinidad, touching at present day Puerto Colon and skirting the northern coast as far as the Isle of Margarita, to which he gave its name, only to return to his base at Santo Domingo. A year later came a former companion of Columbus, Alonzo de Ojeda, with a company of explorers. One of the company was Amerigo Vespucci whose name the continent was one day to bear.

Putting into Lake Maracaibo, the explorers found native villagers living in shelters set on piles along the swampy shores. Struck with a resemblance, they gave to their discovery the name of "Venezuela," — "Little Venice." It was not for them to know, nor in their wildest imaginings of treasure to be come upon in this wilderness could they have dreamed that the waters of the lake and under their feet, as they picked their way through jungle swamp, was a treasure-vault of "black gold," — petroleum,—a mineral so precious in an age of science and invention centuries away that wars would be fought for its possession.

Gold there was in Venezuela, and precious stones, chief lures in Spanish quest. They are still there. But in the ecenomy of the twentieth century they take a place subordinate to the petroleum deposits of the lowlands. Today Venezuela is producing more oil than are all of the other Latin American nations combined and is outpaced only by the United States and Russia. And there are large regions unexplored, notably the wild country of the upper Orinoco, "River of Mystery."

Geographically, Venezuela is an agricultural country. And if oil has drawn interest and workers from the farms, a progressive and wide-awake Government is seeing to it that this latter source of wealth and widespread prosperity is in no way neglected. In the mountainous regions of the Andean and Coastal Ranges the climate is temperate and the soil good. This is the most populous section of the country. From here comes the bulk and the best of Venezuelan coffee, once economic backbone of the country and still its major agricultural export. Cocoa, sugar, corn, cotton fruits and vegetables, with the cattle meats and hides from the Central plains and the lumber and cabinet woods from the Guayana Highlands in the south, are other important items in Venezuelan export trade.

As the Orinoco and its tributaries drain almost the entire territory of the nation, so are modern highways reaching out as aid to commerce or to open rich but undeveloped regions. Thirty years ago Venezuelan highways were practically non-existent. Today a 6,000-mile net-work spreads fanlike over the half of the country north of the Orinoco and Opure Rivers. Trunk lines run west and south from Caracas, the Capital. Chief among them is the Simon Bolivar highway. Paved or surfaced over most of its distance, this road connects most of the principal cities of the nation and forms the Venezuelan sector of the Pan American Highway. Completed, the system will link the capitals of Venezula, Colombia and Ecuador, the three countries which composed the early republic of Greater Colombia, of which Bolivar was president.

Linked in the patriotism of the Venezuelan are two facts of his country's history. One is that the republic flowered from the first Spanish colony of the New World to proclaim its independence through an elected Congress. The other is that it was the great Bolivar, himself a Venezuelan, who led the army of patriots in 1823 when the last Spanish force was driven from the country.

Letters To The Editor

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Dear Sir:

Since the automobile tire shortage will soon force most cars and trucks off the roads, the farmers will soon have a real serious transportation problem if steps are not taken at once to relieve the situation.

This problem could be solved with rural bus and freight transportation which would carry the farmer and his products to his local markets.

This would give the farmer economical transportation to market his products and would take less gas and rubber than the farmers are consuming at present. It would take many times less tires to take care of a few trucks and buses for each county than it would to put tires on all cars and trucks that will be needed to transport all the food to market for government defense.

Without a car or trucks the farmer and two mules would have to be taken out of production an entire day just to go ten or twelve miles to market. In a years time millions of man and mule days would be lost.

If the farmers are able to lose millions of days and still feed the nation they will be able to spare enough men to do a big job fighting and building ships and guns if they are provided with adequate transportation which would make him able to produce more food with less men.

Rural bus and freight rates could be kept real low because buses and trucks could be operated by farmers themselves and present farm owned cars and trucks could be converted into buses and freight trucks.

The sooner we get rural transportation routes the sooner we will save gas, rubber and tires.

We won't have a satisfied farm people unless we do the modern way. This would not only help the farmer during the war but it would be such a big saving that the farmers would not think about giving up when the war is over.

Still Building

The keynote of the late 'twenties was a constant improvement in the road's physical plant and the completion of this work extended into the early Depression years. Bridges were re-built, portions of the line were double-tracked, grade separation work was done and heavier rail was laid.

At Birmingham, Ala., for instance, a number of crossings at grade were eliminated and passenger facilities were rearranged. This work was begun in the latter part of 1928 and was completed in April, 1933. Similar work was done at Louisville and in the Cincinnati area during this period.

The line was double-tracked from Winchester to Sinks, Ky., a distance of 56 miles, in 1925-1928 and from Lebanon Junction to Parkston, Ky., 14.1 miles, in 1926 and 1927. Other construction work included the building of a new mechanical coaling station at Muscogee Wharf, Pensacola, completed on November 12, 1927, to replace the one destroyed by the "big blow" of September, 1926; and the building of an annex to the General Office Building at Louisville, completed in February, 1930. The L. & N. also completed its $1,000,000 Sibert Yard and Shops, near Mobile, in October, 1929, and helped build the gigantic $41,000,000 Cincinnati Union Terminal project which was dedicated on March 31, 1933.

The 14-mile C. C. & O. Connection between Chevrolet, Ky., and Hagans, Va., was completed on December 1, 1930, at a cost of over $5,000,000, and created a new route for the movement of coal from the coal fields in Southeastern Kentucky to the Eastern Seaboard and the Carolinas.

The 168-hour week for all-out war production is nothing new to the Louisville & Nashville Railroad. It has been operating on an around-the-clock schedule 365 days a year ever since the line was opened to Nashville in October, 1859. The increased production of America's factories and National Defense plants has found the Old Reliable in first-class physical condition for the handling of this traffic, and with a trained personnel equal to any emergency.

A burnt out fuse is worthless as a conductor of positive energy. What would an habitually negative politicial be worth as governor of this great progressive state?

CULLMAN'S TALL "SYCAMORE" BLOSSOMS FORTH

(From The Cullman Banner)
(Editorial)

Ever since Alabama has been a State, North Alabama has furnished the majority of the voters, and a miserable minority of the governors; in fact, no governor has ever had for his native residence any county north of Jefferson.

This week there appeared on the [illegible] horizon a bright hope for North Alabama, when Cullman County's Big Jim Folsom became a definite possibility in the present governor's race. Even the politically-wise Montgomery Advertiser conceded that if the election were held this week, Big Jim would take more than 35,000 votes, yet a week ago it was doubtful that he would take 5[illegible]

When the "Cullman Sycamore" (so dubbed by a Birmingham political commentator) announced his candidacy [illegible] North Alabama [illegible] that [illegible] [illegible] would [illegible] [illegible] Bibb Graves, whose [illegible] North Alabama as well as in the rest of the state, was [illegible] everybody.

However, upon the passing of that [illegible] Graves supporters were [illegible] and the nomination of [illegible] to one of the five [illegible] Chauncey Sparks [illegible] every voter [illegible] [illegible] kinds [illegible] the [illegible] for good [illegible] found that they mixed [illegible] Some Graves leaders were [illegible] by Sparks promises and [illegible] a lot of luke-warms crawled on what they thought was a bandwagon.

[illegible] ks had [illegible] ng the [illegible] of his [illegible] enthusiastic about [illegible]

What [illegible] wants right now, however, is some assurance that the new governor will be able to cope with all the new problems which the war conditions will shunt upon him. Certainly ruggedly - conservative [illegible] Sparks or [illegible] ist [illegible] Sherlock do not fill [illegible]

[illegible], last week, voters began looking over the list of candidates to find a man who did possess those progressive qualifications so necessary for the governorship, found him, [illegible] passed around the word that "Big Jim Folsom is the man!"

This journal is proud to have supported Bibb Graves. But our support for him was based on the logic that Alabama needed a liberal and progressive governor. Our ideas have not changed. Bibb Graves' death has not made [illegible] Sparks one mite more progressive.

[illegible] Alabama has a candidate [illegible] for governor, and his [illegible] are better by far [illegible] other North Alabama [illegible] Shose gentlemen [illegible] their hearty support simply because he seems to be the winner will be the same gentlemen who will wear the seats of their pants slick waiting to see the governor, should their candidate be elected.

In Big Jim Folsom lies great opportunity for North Alabama. He is a good Democrat, a good neighbor and has been a progressive for years.

We have not deceived ourselves into thinking that Big Jim can perform the miracle of being elected overnight. But he has stepped into the "big ring" with a good starting support, and the rest depends upon his friends.

This journal is glad to endorse Big Jim for governor, and to entreat Cullman County and North Alabama to seize the opportunity by giving their candidate an overwhelming majority on May 5.

Jim Folsom Visits Columbiana

"Big Jim" Folsom, candidate for Governor of Alabama, visited Columbiana on Thursday, parked his loud speaker equipment, dismounted and proceeded to entertain a large crowd of Columbiana people, who were greatly impressed with this young statesman who is a new comer in political circles but who holds promise of being heard from in future years. Discount not his popular appeal, his sound arguments of the records presented. Mr. Folsom has that "certain something" known as personality and the writer has heard many favorable comments on his outstanding presentation and his creditable claim for your consideration in the coming gubernatorial race.

Mr. Folsom's discourse was both enlightening and entertaining. He received quite a curbstone ovation!—Shelby County Democrat.

Minority Rule

Here in Alabama, we have minority rule. Of course, we elect our officials, send our representatives to the national Congress, elect our convention delegates, by a democratic method; but the fact remains that we have minority rule. Our record at the polls proves this; whatever our methods of governing, the facts are conclusive.

The United States Bureau of Census reports that our state has 1,555,369 potential voters. Our largest vote on record was in 1938 when 314,380 persons cast ballots in a single primary.

These figures can be broken down. It is possible to point out the large number of Negroes who do not vote, the numbers of so-called "poor whites" who do not vote, the numbers of women who do not avail themselves of their once hard-fought-for right. But these things are well known to all who are interested in the situation. The hard fact remains that we are ruled by a minority. Are we content to let it remain so?—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Big Jim Folsom Was Here Monday

Big Jim Folsom, candidate for governor, was in Hartford Monday afternoon, and unlike a certain other candidate for Governor who passed through Hartford last week, Big Jim found the News Herald office and entered into the issues of the campaign in his usual frank and confident manner.

Mr. Folsom stated that the runoff will be between him and Judge Sparks and that he will win over Sparks in the second primary.

Mr. Folsom stated that he will be back here before the campaign is over. He was enroute to Mobile for a Folsom Rally on Tuesday night.

He was accompanied by G. W. Han-[illegible]. We suggested our mutual friend, Tit Graves, who is about half as tall as Folsom, as a traveling companion.

People in this section know Big Jim [illegible] and know him to be a good [illegible]

[illegible] usually some surprises in [illegible] campaign. We predict that Big Jim Folsom's strength will be the surprise in the gubernatorial race this year. The time is short and it all depends on how well Big Jim gets HIMSELF and the issues before the people, and he is an energetic campaigner.—Hartford News-Herald.

Miss Grace McKinney spent the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John McKinney of Plantersville.

[illegible] C. Casaday went to Tuske-[illegible] to preach the funeral [illegible] Mrs. Annie B. Graves, of [illegible], who died Sunday. Mrs Graves was 91 years old.

For the second year, Robert Martin, Dallas County, exhibited the grand champion calf at the Montgomery fat stock show. Mary Alice Whatley, Autauga County, exhibited the reserve champion. Both were Angus steers.

BEER INDUSTRY BUYS $9,000,000 WAR BONDS ON 9th ANNIVERSARY

Dunn Says Beer Wages In State Top 30 Million Since Alabama Legalized Sale On March 10, 1937

DAVID E. DUNN

MONTGOMERY, ALA., April 7.—While the American brewing industry observed the ninth anniversary of beer's relegalization today with an initial purchase of $9,000,000 in defense bonds, the Alabama beer industry pointed to payments of $9,057.403 in direct taxes and more than $30,000,000 in wages since this Deep South state made beer legal in 1937.

David E. Dunn, director of the Alabama beer industry's "Clean Up of Close Up" campaign against law violating retail beer dealers, also announced that 2,621 investigations had been made in Alabama since the self-regulation campaign was begun three years ago last month.

"On the basis of these investigations we sent 463 warnings to dealers and in only 56 cases were these warnings unheeded," Mr. Dunn said. "These 56 cases were placed before the ABC Board with a request from the organized beer industry for punitive action, and we obtained 100 per cent convictions—24 revocations, 21 suspensions and 11 dealers placed on probation."

In announcing the initial purchase of $9,000,000 in defense bonds by the brewing industry and its employes, Mr. Dunn said that the purchase of these bonds will continue "on the same scale for the duration."

Highlights of the social and economic gains since Congress relegalized beer nine years ago on April 7, 1933, include:

Employment of one million persons in the brewing industry and allied trades.

Purchase of 33 billion pounds of farm products at a cost of 815 million dollars.

Payment of Federal taxes of $2,345,000,000, and state and local taxes exceeding $935,000,000.

POLITICS SHIFTS TO GUBERNATORIAL CANDIDATES

The future weeks will determine the destiny of many men now running for various official positions. The Governor's race has held the spotlight of discussion on Main during the past week caused mainly by the visits of two gubernatorial candidates—namely, Chris Sherlock of Montgomery, and "Big Jim" Folsom of Cullman. Judge Sparks has not yet made a personal appearance, but has many spokesmen here who are sponsoring his cause. We are anxious to meet the gentleman, but have never stood for the reactionary program which his record reveals him to have advocated. . . However, we shall give you some news items on his appearance. . .when he arrives. . .It is anybody's race as things now stand and we personally believe the Second Primary will be needed to tell the final outcome. Mr. Sherlock is gaining votes every day . . . and there are many people who will think long before casting their votes for a bally-hooed band wagon ride, which might terminate in a dead stand still for Alabama's future progress! This would be a tragedy hard to estimate in ultimate cost of dollars and cents to the people of Alabama.

Let us beg you to search the record of these official candidates, find out what they stand for, what they have always advocated, how they have voted in the past, and weigh their potentialities for future welfare of Alabamians before placing your cross mark by their names on May 5, 1942. Please have some legitimate excuse for voting ror a man other than.... "I believes he will win from what I see in the papers... .hence I am voting for him because most of my friends are hopping on the "wagon." My friends . . . preserve your individual convictions . . .and be not like a "dead fish" which drifts only with the current. There is often VICTORY in a DEFEAT . . believe it or not!—Shelby County Democrat.

Dixon Passes Buck To State Board

MONTGOMERY. — Responsibility for the granting or failure to grant a raise of as much as 25 per cent to Alabama school teachers has been placed squarely on the state superintendent of education and the State Board of Education by Governor Frank M. Dixon.

In a letter to every board member, the governor made it plain that funds will be available in the state treasury to grant the raise effective for next fall and pointed out that early action should be taken because most teachers' contracts are made in May and June.

"All of us know that teachers' salaries are too low in Alabama and that the 25 per cent raise herein outlined is not too much," the governor wrote, adding that he was not interested in who gets credit for the action.

Jake Peacock and Clifford Cook, Scottsboro, while bank casting in Guntersville Lake, caught 16 largemouth bass (64 lbs.) in one hour. Largest weighed 5 1-2 pounds; smallest 2 1-2 pounds.

Letters To The Editor

San Francisco, Calif. April 12, 1942
Dear Editor.

Just a few lines to let all my friends in good old Chilton hear from me. Although it will be some surprise to many of them to know I am in Sunny California only it is rainy in place of sunny.

I started on my trip Saturday, April 4th at 1:36 o'clock and arrived at my destination at 8:45 a. m. April 8th. I had a nice trip.

In place of the men going to see the women now-a-days the women go to see the men. I met up with several sailors and soldiers wives going to get a glimpse of their hubby. I met up with a Merchant Marine who was lucky enough to be on a boat which was torpedoed at 20 times and struck only once. And still he doesn't believe there is a living God. I let him know we were praying for those kind each and every day.

The happiest part of my trip was Wednesday the 8th at 5:45 p. m. when who walked in but Morris Kemp, and I was some surprised and happy too. I think he was as happy as I was too.

I don't know how long I will be in California. You can't ever tell when your ship will sail. I could write a small novel but guess I better go. So friends please write to me. And this goes to all of my friends and relatives too. So keep your chin up until we meet again. I remain a true friend to every one in old Chilton county. Bye now.

Mrs. R. M. KEMP, (Or Lucile)

A LOOK AT THE BOOK

By DR. [illegible] JONES, JR.

[illegible] put into the mouth [illegible] of his characters in "The [Merch]ant of Venice" these words, [illegible] devil can cite Scripture for [his pu]rpose." The Scriptures them[selve]s bear evidence of the accuracy [of S]hakespeare's observation, for [the de]vil in tempting Christ quoted [the W]ord of God. Evil and dis[hones]t men have never hesitated to [illegible] [pass]age of Scripture in an at[tempt] to justify their wrong course [illegible] or to excuse their evil do[ings]. Of course, such a procedure [is in] itself evil and dishonest since [Sc]ripture is by them misquoted [or] misused or misapplied. The [Wor]d of God nowhere admonishes [illegible] to a course of action which [vio]lates the law of God.

Whatever else the Scriptures may [or] may not prove, they do testify that the Lord Jesus Christ is God manifest in the flesh. It is a sad fact that by many people today this great and primary truth of the Book is overlooked or forgot.

Apollos preaching at Ephesus convinced his hearers, "shewing by the Scriptures that Jesus was Christ" (Acts 18:28). Christ Himself admonished His hearers to "Search the Scriptures; for in them ye think ye have eternal life; and they are they which testify of Me" (John 5:39). Christ is the center of the Book, the burden of the prophets' message, the theme of the psalmist's lay, the chief character of the Gospels, the fountainhead and inspiration of the Epistles, the sublime and majestic central figure of Revelation.

The Bible is the revelation of God's will and purpose and love for man. It is God's Written Word. Christ is the Incarnate Word—the Word of God come in the flesh The Bible speaks of Christ. Christ manifests in His own wonderful person the truth of the Bible.

Men today wrest the Scriptures to prove their own pet theories and opinions. They are glibly quoting Scripture without regard for its purpose or true teaching. But the man who searches the Word diligently with open mind cannot fail to be convinced of this fact, that Jesus is the Christ, the One come in the flesh to redeem men from sin by the blood which He shed upon Calvary's cross. He must admit that there is no doubt of the Scriptures teaching that "there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved." In the sacred pages of Holy Writ, God the Father [illegible] Christ as His Son, proclaims His Deity, acclaims His perfections. Through the Word the Father speaks to us of the Christ. "This is my beloved Son, hear Him."

Peanuts For Oil? Here Are A Few Facts Concerning This Vital Question

—o—

QUESTION: Peanut oil is needed to win the war. What will this peanut oil be used for?

ANSWER: The increased production of peanut oil will probably be used to replace imported oils for shortening, cooking fats, oleomargarine, and salad oils. But in an emergency, it can be substituted for other oils that are used in making explosives, antifreeze, medicines, and other vital products. Grow peanuts for victory.

QUESTION: Will the increased acreage of peanuts for oil reduce the amount of peanuts which can be sold for food?

ANSWER: No. You can sell for food all the peanuts you grow under your Triple-A allotment, just as you have in the past. On the other hand, if you wish to sell for oil part or all of the peanuts growns under your allotment, you may do so. Of course, you may sell for oil all the peanuts grown over and above your allotment if you wish.

QUESTION: The Federal Government is supporting prices of peanuts grown for oil in 1942 because they are an important war material. Are prices received by producers likely to be above or the same as these support levels?

ANSWER: Prices to growers may not be much, if any, above the support levels if the present government price ceiling on oil is maintained. However, the support level is much above ony prices prevailing for peanuts grown for oil for many years.

QUESTION: What is the Government support level for prices of peanuts?

ANSWER: The Government support level is $82.00 per ton for No. 1 white Spanish peanuts delivered at designated points; $78.00 per ton for No. 1 runner peanuts; and $70.00 a ton for Class-A Virginia-type peanuts. Lower grades of peanuts will be supported at somewhat lower prices, according to the value of the oil and meal they yield.

QUESTION: The Secretary of Agriculture has asked cotton farmers to plant to their full cotton acreage allotment in 1942. How does that affect the plans for growing more peanuts for oil?

ANSWER: Wherever possible, you should plant peanuts for oil, even if it means that by so doing, you cannot meet your full cotton acreage allotment

QUESTION: How can farmers be sure that the increased peanut crop will be harvested this fall?

ANSWER: It's a good idea to ask your County USDA War Board for help in making sure tha mechanical peanut pickers will be available when you need them.

QUESTION: How will returns from peanuts grown for oil compare with returns from other crops?

ANSWER: Recent studies made by the United States Department of Agriculture and the State Experiment Stations in two of the principal peanut-producing areas in North Carolina and Georgia show that on the basis of the price supports set for the peanuts and 85 per cent parity for cotton, returns per man hour of labor should about equal for cotton and for peanuts grown for oil in 1942. Returns from peanuts grown for oil should greatly exceed returns from corn.

QUESTION: What are the uses for the various parts of the peanut plant?

ANSWER: Every part of the peanut plant can be used to advantage. The hay is better than stovers and grass hays as a source of protein. The meal left after the oil has been extracted from the nuts makes a high-protein feed for livestock.

QUESTION: Should peanuts be grown in rotation?

ANSWER: Yes, peanuts should be grown in a definite rotation including at least two soil improving crops such as vetch, cowpeas or clover, or lespedeza If soybeans are used in the rotation, peanuts should not follow them immediately.

QUESTION: When should peanuts be planted?

ANSWER: The soil should be reasonably warm at planting time. Best results are obtained from planting in April and May in a carefully prepared seedbed. But in some cases, peanuts planted up to July 1 yield [illegible]ly well.

QUESTION: Will planting additional acres of peanuts interfere with farmers' participation in the soil building program?

ANSWER: An amendment to the Agricultural Adjustment Administration program was announced recently of interest to peanut growing areas. As you know, the soil building program requires that cooperators devote at least 25 per cent of their cropland to erosion-resisting crops. The amendment allows peanuts grown for oil to qualify under the 25 per cent requirement — provided that such acreage is seeded with an approved clover crop next fall following harvest. However, only half the erosion-resisting acreage requirement may be met under the amendment.

QUESTION: When should peanuts be sarvested?

ANSWER: It is important that peanuts be harvested withiin a week or 10 days after maturity but not before they are mature.

QUESTION: How long after the peanuts are harvested should they be left in the fields to cure?

ANSWER: This depends on the availability of mechanical peanut pickers and combines. Better ask your County USDA War Board about what to expect. The War Board can tell you just how long after harv[illegible] the peanuts may be safely [illegible] fields to cure.

Facts About The Occupational Registration

To be conducted by Selective Service System and U. S. Employment Service.

WHAT IS IT?

Every man between 20 and 44 years of age who registered for Selective Service on February 16 will receive an "Occupational Questionnaire" from his local Selective Service Board. The questionnaires will be mailed to registrants in April, and must be filled out and returned to the Selective Service Boards within ten days after they are received.

This occupational registration is being conducted jointly by the United States Employment Service and the Selective Service System, to provide information for the former.

WHAT IT ASKS

Each questionnaire is in two identical parts—one for the Selective Service System and one for the United States Employment Service. The questionnaires ask for information about the registrants' present job, his education, and also asks him to indicate the kind of work for which he considers himself best fitted, whether or not he is presently employed at such work. In addition, the questionnaire contains a list of 228 different occupations which are important to the war industries. Registrrants are to check any of these in which they have had training or experience and indicate those for which they are best fitted.

Applicants who need help in filling out their questionnaire are told to ask for such assistance from their employer, their labor union, from any office of the United States Employment Service, or from a member of the Selective Service Local Advisory Board for registrants. No fee is to be charged for this service.

The questionnaire is to be returned altogether in one piece to the local Selective Service Board within 10 days after it has been received by the registrant.

How The U. S. Employment Service Will Use This Information.

The United States Employment offices will examine the occupational questionnaires which it receives to determine which men are already qualified or can be quickly trained for work in essential war industries. Those men will then be asked to come to the local United States employment office for a fact-finding interview.

Workers possessing skills important to war production, but are not working in war industry or in essential civilian activities, but who are willing to be trained and transferred to such work, will be given an opportunity to do so.

PURPOSE

The purpose of the occupational registration is to provide the Government with a complete occupational inventory of its man power in order:

1. To avoid the induction into the armed forces of men who are more urgently needed in war produtcion.

2. To replace workers who are now deferred from military service on occupational grounds whenever possible, with vocational trainees or other qualified persons who, because of age, sex, or other reasons, are not suitable for military service and

3. To speed up war production by promotion, the transfer of workers from nonessential to essential work.

Following this first occupational registration, the same questionnaire will also be mailed to those men who registered for Selective Service during 1940 and 1941 (except those already inducted into the armed forces), and later to those men from 18 to 20 and from 45 to 64 who are still to be registered. Eventually the Government will have information on the occupational skills of the entire male population between 18 and 64 years of age—approximately 40 million men.

The Selective Service System and the United States Employment Service will work closely together in carrying out the objectives of the registration program. The United States Employment Service will provide the Selective Service System with current information on the need for workers for war production so that these needs may be taken into account in classifying registrants for deferment or induction into military service. In any individual case the United States Employment Service will be in a position to provide the Selective Service System with factual information as to whether or not the individual possesses a skill urgently needed by the war industries. The Selective Service System will be guided by this information on war production labor needs in making its decision as to the way in which each individual can best contribute to the war effort.

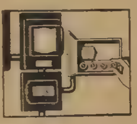
WHY WAIT
for a Service Man When YOU
Can Replace Fuses Yourself?

It takes only a few minutes to replace a blown fuse. It's as simple as screwing in a light bulb.

By keeping a few fuses of the right size on hand in case of need, you can save yourself the inconvenience and time of waiting for the service man to arrive.



Get a few fuses (30A and 15A sizes) the next time you pass an electrical, hardware, drug or power company store. They cost only about 5c each.

What To Do When A Fuse Blows

1. Pull extension cord plugs from convenience outlets.
2. Stand on DRY WOODEN surface and turn OFF the main switch.
3. Locate the blown fuse. In the blown fuse the "window" will be smudged or the flat wire inside will be burned in two. In spring type fuses, the wire spring will be coiled tight instead of stretched out. Remove the blown fuse and screw in a new one of the right size in its place. (30A for main lines, and 15A for branch circuits.)
4. Turn ON the switch. Do not reconnect out-of-order appliance or lamps or those with frayed or worn extension cords until they have been repaired.
5. If the fuse blows again immediately or soon after you've replaced it, CALL AN ELECTRICIAN to locate and remedy the trouble.
6. DO NOT TRY MAKESHIFTS—they are dangerous and can cause scrious damage or start a fire.

ELLIS RENEWS PLEDGE FOR HUMAN WELFARE

BIRMINGHAM.—Assured by thousands of Alabmians who gathered here for the Alabama Education Association's convention that he is far out in front in the race for Lieutenant Governor. Handy Ellis of Columbiana, resumed his statewide campaign tour with high confidence this week after pledging anew that the key note of his public service will continue to be "Human welfare."

In his campaign for the State's second highest office, Handy Ellis is offering the record of his years of faithful legislative service as indisputable evidence of his determination to keep on working untiringly for public education, public health, farm relief, assistance to the old and needy and public welfare generally.

Entering the state senate in the first Graves Administration in 1927, Ellis organized and directed the Legislative fight which resulted in greatly increased appropriations for Alabama's schools and colleges, public health, farm extension work and other public services essential to a well-rounded human welfare program. As a leader in the House of Representatives in the second Graves administration he continued this fight, and again schools, health, farm services, and other public welfare programs received increased funds for continued advancement. In the House during the Dixon admiistration he had an important part in providing a greater share of state revenues for these vital public services.

As Lieutenant Governor, Handy Ellis pledges that he will continue to put "first things first" and work his hardest for the State's advancement. Able, experienced, fair-minded and public-spirited, he will at all times be found working harmoniously with the next governor and legislature for four years of sound government for the benefit of the state's entire citizenship.

Ellis has served on the State Board of Education under there governors, (Graves, Miller and Dixon). During his years of outstanding legislative service he had the confidence and esteem of those who served with him. Even those who sometimes differed with him on legislative measures recognized him as a leader who believed in fair play and who knows how to get things done. A check-up reveals that Handy Ellis' former legislative colleagues are supporting him almost to a man, having learned through years of association that he will be a fair and impartial Senate presiding officer, see that every citizen from the highest to the humblest gets a square deal and work industriously, as he has in the past, for human welfare and state-wide progress.

Farm and AAA News from the County Agent

CHILTON COUNTY FARMERS MUST GROW MORE PEANUTS

By P. H. Smith, County Agent

Present indications are that Chilton County farmers will plant far below the expected peanut acreage in 1942.

At the outbreak of war in the Pacific Ocean, the United States was purchasing about 2,000,000,000 pounds of vegetable oils in the vicinity of the Philippine Islands. This supply has been completely cut off. This oil must be available to "our side" if we are to win the war; therefore, the American Farmer must produce this vegetable oil. Peanuts will produce more of this oil per acre than any other crop that we can successfully grow in Chilton County.

To insure this supply of oil after the foreign supply was cut off farmers were asked to plant peanuts. A goal for "oil peanuts" was set up for each section in the United States that could successfully produce peanuts. In line with this, Alabama was assigned a goal. And Chilton County was assigned its proper share of the State's goal. Our Chilton county goal is to produce 8,000 acres of peanuts for oil in 1942. This peanut oil is needed to help win this war and present indications are that Chilton county will not plant much more than one-fourth of its goal of "oil peanuts."

There are few farms in Chilton county that will not successfully produce peanuts with proper care. Land that will produce on an average of one half bale of cotton each year, with proper care should produce about 1,000 pounds of peanuts per acre. Like other crops, peanuts yields are greatly influenced by weather, time of planting, cultivation and fertilization.

A satisfactory price for these "oil peanuts" is assured. Our government has guaranteed not less than $78.00 per ton for U. S. No. 1 Runner and $82.00 per ton for U. S. No. 1 Spanish peanuts for oil. If sufficient acreage is planted in Chilton County, a government peanut buyer will be located in the county.

Planting peanuts is at least one way that every farmer in Chilton County can help win this war. Not only this help win the war, but this is other very good cash crop for Chilton County farmer and pres indications are that we will be in peanut business for the next sev years.

Seed peanuts are still available this County for those who have already obtained their seed.

Farmers Allowed Sell Excess Seed Peanuts

Auburn, Ala.—Farmers having on hand excess peanuts from their 1941 crop may sell them penalty-free to neighbors under a plan devised by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration to insure better distribution of seed.

It is necessary for those selling under this plan to clear the transaction through their County AAA office. Seed obtained by this method must be used only for planting peanuts for oil.

Protect Young Calves By Preventing Scours

Auburn, Ala.—A couple of raw eggs or a cup of strong coffee may be helpful as supportive treatment for calf scours, but nowadays, when every calf counts in the Food-for Freedom program, prevention is much more important than cure, says F. W. Burns, extension dairyman.

Mr. Burns points out that calves fed damaged feed, sour milk from dirty cans, skim milk from a dirty creamery skim-milk vat, or skim-milk hauled warm and exposed to the sun in unclean buckets may cause the disease.

Best prevention is to protect calves from cold and dampness, keep them in clean, disinfected stalls, provide clean milk and feed in clean buckets, and don't overfeed.

If diarrhea does develop, a couple of raw eggs or a cup of strong coffee will often provide relief. Services of a veterinarian are required for specific treatment.

Auburn Rodeo To Be Held April 25-26

With the applications of over one hundred students already received, plans for the second annual Auburn Rodeo, which is to be held in the A. P. I Football Stadium at 2 p. m. on April 25 and 26, are almost complete.

Sponsoring the two-day show is the Auburn Rodeo Association, a non-profit organization, which is composed largely of students associated with the American Veterinary Medical Association, Agricultural Club, Collegiate Future Farmers of America, and the Agricultural Engineering Club.

An outstanding attraction on the rodeo program this year is the Hollywood wonder horse, King, who will appear under the direction of his owner and trainer, Cowboy John Sonney. King performs an astounding variety of stunts which include addition, substraction, counting, color selection, answering questions, writing, barrel rolling ,and fancy dancing.

In addition to other professionals from different parts of the country who will be present, there will be of course, many able students riders and trick performers who will demonstrate their abilities during the two-day program.

Farmers Should Plant Peanuts For Victory

This Week In National Defense

A WEEK OF THE WAR

Var Production Chairman Nelson d pending conversion orders, plus se already issued, will virtually t production of civilian durable ods within the next two months. said chief current bottlenecks in nversion are machine tool shortes and difficulties in expanding instrial facilities.

VILIAN SUPPLY

The WPB ordered a reduction in soline deliveries to filling stations 17 Eastern States, the District of lumbia, Washington and Oregon, ective April 16, from the current r-fifths to two-thirds of the avere amounts they received in Decem-, January, and February. Petrom Coordinator Ickes said the rection may remove the necessity for d rationing of gasoline. Mr. Ickes nounced the relocation of 1,400 es of pipelines to increase East st oil supplies. The Board also hibited the installation of new uefied petroleum gas equipment.

OUSING AND CONSTRUCTION

The WPB prohibited unauthorized idential construction costing more n $500 except for maintenance and pair, agricultural construction of ore than $1,000 and all other conuction costing more than $5,000. e Board prohibited sale, purchase, livery or withdrawal from inveny of any construction material for such purposes. Projects of certain Government agencies and those to restore property destroyed by fire or floods were made exempt from the order.

Local Federal Housing Administration officers will determine whether construction projects are eligible for recommendation to the WPG. Appeals from decisions of local FHA officers may be made to a board composed of the Administrator of the order, a representative of labor and a third member who will represent the branch of the WPB within whose jurisdiction the class of project would fall.

RATIONING

The Office of Price Administrator postponed the date for rationing typewriters from April 13 to April 20 because some congested areas had not received supplies of application forms and certificates. The OPA also broadened the eligibility base for purchase of new and used machines. The WPB ordered all production of medium and heavy trucks for civilian use discontinued after existing quotas have been completed.

The OPA said defense workers may obtain recapped tires for their cars only when no other means of transportation to their jobs is available. The agency said Army and Navy Intelligence Officers and FBI agents are exempt from regulations requiring names, addresses and occupations to be published of all who get tire purchase certificates. The WPB granted additional sugar quotas for April to more than 40 defense areas whose population had increased 10 per cent or more during the past year. The Board also said canners and packers may obtain quota-exempt sugar fo rthe original canning of fruits and vegetables.

PRICES

The Labor Department reported the average family food bill advanced 1.5 per cent from February 17 to March 17. The OPA authorized increased prices of one cent on each five pounds of sugar in six New England states to offset increased transportation costs. The agency also authorized motor fuel retailers in 17 states, Washington, Oregon, and the District of Columbia to charge three cents a gallon more than wholesale prices. The Office stated uncontrolled inflation would add an additional $100 billion to the nation's war bill.

THE WAR FRONT

Numerically superior Japanese troops on Bataan finally broke through the lines of approximately 36,000 American and Filipino defenders weakened as a result of short rations since January 11. Most of the defenders, well supplied with arms and amunition, were successfully evacuated to Corregidor Island where they set up a new defense. Corregidor was subjected to continuous bombardment by the Japanese.

NAVY

The Navy said it will train 40,000 men annually in three types of privately-operated schools: Elementary electricity and radio material, visual signaling, and radio operators. Twenty-one such schools are scheduled to start by June 1, and 13 have already begun to turn out trained men. Secretary Knox said the Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard will recruit Negro volunteers for general service in Reserve components, as soon as a suitable training station is established. The Navy asked the public to use only one of two designated post office addresses in writing the naval personnel outside this country —Care Postmaster, New York, and Care Postmaster, San Francisco, whichever is nearer the addressee.

AIR

Funds for 31,000 airplanes were provided in a $19 billion War Appropriation Bill passed by the Senate and returned to the House. The Army said it will use 25 per cent of commercial airlines transport planes to transport military cargoes and personnel. The OCD reported its Civil Air Patrol courier service along the East coast has released Army fliers for more important duties. WPA Commissioner Hunter said WPA workers during 1941 had improved facilities at 887 airports, including 533 completed projects.

JEMISON HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

By FFA and FHA

The Future Homemakers and Future Farmers of Jemison high school have taken "Improvement of School Grounds" as their joint program work for this year. Although all the work planned can not be completed now, we hope to finish it this fall.

The drive in front of the high school has been outlined by the planting of jonquils, buttercups and butter-and-eggs. A bed was made in the center of the lawn and violets, verbena and other flowers were planted there.

This fall, we plan to plant rows of thrift around the lawn and drive. Iris are also to be planted in the small beds in the corners of the lawn.

Trellises, made by the boys and painted by the girls, will soon be put up for the Dorothy Perkins roses.

Although this work will not show up until next year, we feel that our school grounds will be greatly improved. Each year we plan to add more to the school grounds and hope that in the near future the school grounds will be one of the most attractive places in this part of the county..

The advisers of the FHA and FFA are Mrs. J. C. Phillips and Mr. H. H. Denson respectively.

Peanut Machinery

By Bob Oglesby

Several farmers are hesitating to plant peanuts as they are not sure pickers will be available to pick their crop this fall. This is a mistake because we should all realize that as bad as the peanut oil will be needed there would be some provision made to handle the crop. Let's not use this excuse.

As provisions has been made for peanut pickers in the territories where peanuts are planted.

The provision is that the GFA (Georgia, Florida, Alabama Peanut Association) has taken over the complete production of peanut pickers in order to supervise their distribution and they will be distributed where they are needed.

In other words if you plant the peanuts they say they will let us have the pickers and they will be operated. I believe this strong enough to plant twenty acres myself.

We must do our part to win this war and planting more peanuts is part of our part.

School of Instruction For Sugar Rationing Held April 15-24th

Faced with the biggest problem of its kind in history, the United States Government, through OPA, advised State Administrator Houston Cole today that the trust and confidence of the Nation is reposed in every person who takes part in the sugar rationing program.

"It is the patriotic duty of everyone to prevent criminal sabotage of the registration program," OPA decreed, adding that "whenever official investigation discloses that a crime has been committed OPA will recommend to the Attorney General of the United States that criminal presecution be commenced."

Sections o fthe U. S. Criminal Code provide for punishment ranging up to ten years in prison, $10,000 fine, for such offenses.

Registration for wholesale and retail dealers in sugar, hotels, cafes, cafeterias, candy makers, bottlers, bakers, (industrial users) and institutions will be held in the high schools on April 28-29.

This program, tremendous in its scope, will require conisderable time and hard work on the part of the administrator, the county rationing boards, the superintendents of schools and the person designated by the superintendents to act as school site administrator, the county custodians of sugar material and the teachers, P.-T. A. or groups selected to serve as registrars.

Civilian registration will be held in the elementary schools on May 4-5-6-7. "Success of the sugar rationing program in Alabama will depend upon the success of the registration," Houston Cole declared.

Schools of instruction for the suggar ratioing registration will be held in eight Alabama cities, opening in Tuscaloosa and Birmingham on April 15, Houston Cole, State Administrator announced today.

These conferences have been arranged for the convenience of the large number of persons who will be charged with the responsibility of carrying out the sugar rationing regulations as outlined by OPA, Mr. Cole said.

Clanton Doctors Write Letter To Farmers Of Chilton County

Someone has said we are in a war up to our necks. Perhaps it would be more nearly correct if we would say we are in a total war away over our heads. We are in a total war, and that means that we must ALL FIGHT; not only with guns, swords, airplanes, and ships; but with production, economy, and conservation, till it hurts.

Our enemies have bought up and saved all kinds of war material till they have a supply that will last for months and years. They have already sent many many spies in our midst and kept them here for a long time. They know much more about our strength, or rather our weakness, than our average citizen knows. They know the formation of our fleets, they know the approaches to our most vital forts and strongholds. They not only know how to fight from long experience, but they know all the tricks of war; many of which are too brutal and savage for us to think of using, but they will use them to the limit.

You have but to recall that at the very moment that they were attacking Pearl Harbor and killing more Chilton County boys than were killed in battle in the entire World's War 1; they had their special emmesaries in Washington talking peace to President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull. The most diabolical trick imaginable.

For these reasons, and many others it becomes necessary for all of us to get ready to do anything and everything our government calls on us to do.

The most sure way for a football team to get beaten is to become overconfident, cocksure, and careless. America has never been beaten. Shall we forget our forefathers and disgrace them by being "asleep at the switch" and losing this war?

To the farmers of Chilton County, your government has asked you to plant 8,000 acres of peanuts, or a little more than one fourth of that amount will be planted.

Some other counties in Alabama are going over 100 per cent more than their goal.

Now why is our government asking our farmers to plant these peanuts? The Japs, in taking the Philippines and surrounding territory, have cut us off from an estimated 2,000,000,000 pounds of vegetable oil. This oil would be used in cooking, making soaps, making glycerine for high explosives, etc. It is very necessary for us to do something, and do it mighty quick, to counteract this shortage. Peanuts average about 650 pounds of oil to the ton, and they seem to be the only real answer for this great loss of 2,000,000,00 pounds of oil at one full swoop. Before you farmers decline to plant these peanuts, just remember such action will be helping those little yellow devils to win the war. Think seriously what it means.

If capital or labor have been playing the fool by holding up production and thus sacrificing the lives of our boys and belating our chances for victory; let not our farmers do likewise

Yours for victory,
V. G. GRAGG,
J. D. EILAND,
WILLIAM C. GOLDEN,
J. P. HAYES,

C. O. LAWRENCE,
MARY WALTON.

J. N. DENNIS:

"We are planting a large acreage of peanuts to keep from having to go after the Japs. If it takes more peanuts to keep the Japs from coming after us we will plant more peanuts."

BILL EASTERLING:

"I am planting ten acres of peanuts on my farm because I feel that peanut producing is the most important item that my farm can contribute toward winning this war."

JOHN DERAMUS:

"I am planting all the peanuts that can be planted on my farm to lick the Japs."

Alabama coal mines produced 3,085,000 tons of coal in January and February. Ordering winter coal early will help keep rail lines clear for important war traffic next fall.

Heroes Of Bataan

Deeper, even, than heartache for the over-whelmed heroes of Bataan is the sense of pride and gratitude for their amazing valor. Hopelessly outnumbered, they have fallen at long last, but the epic they have written with their blood will never die. Nor have their sacrifices been in vain. For three crucial months they have held an army of the enemy's picked troops which elsewhere would have been hurled against other American or Allied fronts, and thus have gained precious time for the upbuilding of [illegible] and communications in the Far Pacific.

It is indeed a tragic circumstance that while we were benefiting from this interval, we could get no adequate aid to the gallant defenders of Bataan who made it possible. There were repeated and urgent efforts, it now is revealed, to reinforce them. He also cited instances of what can be accomplished by steadily maintaining efforts to bring about reforms, in the closing of liquor stores on Sundays, and the regulation requiring that liquor establishments should be forbidden to display their wares on their shelves.

The Rev. Malcolm Lockhart was then recognized, and expressed his approval of the Movement, and his determination to cooperate with the Committee.

The following resolution was then introduced and adopted:

Whereas it is the opinion of the Executive Committee of the Laymen's Movement to make Alabama Dry that a state wide referendum should be submitted upon the liquor question, and that every honky-tonk, road side dance hall and other liquor outlets which cater to the youth of our State and particularly to our boys in the Armed forces, should be closed and outlawed, and that during these war times particularly Alabama should be dry;

And Whereas Judge Chauncey Sparks has condemned the honky-tonk and the road side dance halls, and has advocated and promised a state-wide referendum upon the liquor question, and whereas the Committee believes that the dry movement will be best promoted by the election of Judge Chauncey Sparks as Governor;

Therefore Be it resolved that the State Executive Committee of the Laymen's Movement to make Alabama Dry assembled at Clanton on the 11th day of April does hereby endorse the candidacy of Judge Chauncey Sparks, and calls upon all the opponents of liquor and its evils to vote for and support Judge Sparks for Governor on next May 5, 1942.

After the adoption of this resolution, Rev. N. M. Israelson of the National Prohibition Committee was introduced and expressed his approval of the effort to make Alabama Dry.

The meeting was then adjourned at the suggestion of the Chairman.

The oratorical contest is sponsored every year by the "Birmingham News Age-Herald" in order to promote democratic principles among high school youth. Last year's subject was "Abraham Lincoln." Next year's subject is to be "Education for Democrocy." The present contest orations concern "Democracy on Trial." The six minute memorized orations must be related to that basic subject. After delivering the memorized speech, the contestant is given a question from his speech on which he is to talk for not more than four minutes. Given about thirty minutes to prepare this extempore speech, the contestant must consult no reference work, nor receive help from anyone else. Upon the presentation of the memorized oration and the extempore speech the judges base their decision.

The contest serves the dual purpose of training young speakers and of making the desire to obtain knowledge an interesting one. Though some contestants go no further than their own high school eliminations, they do receive a great deal of practical experience in writing a speech and in delivering it.

The finals for the contest will be held at Birmingham-Southern College May first. At that time, nine champions—one from each Congressional District—will compete. Scholarships valued at $2,400 will be awarded to the state finalists.

ALABAMA WEEKLY WEATHER AND CROP REPORT

Although upland soil is generally tillable the rainfall of the past week kept most bottom lands too wet to be worked. The weather continued too cool to permit good germination but was warm enough to advance the growth of winter field crops satisfactorily.

Planting and cultivation of crops in most sections were held up to some extent by general rains during the past week but considerable progress was made.

Oats continue to show improvement with some heading being reported in South Alabama. Cover crops are being plowed under throughout the State, with the operation being well advanced in the Southern areas.

Some cotton is being planted in the middle and southern sections, but the weather has been too cool for good germination of seed. Planting of corn and peanuts continues and has become general in most sections.

Near freezing temperatures in some sections of north Alabama did some damage to tree fruits in scattered localities, however, the outlook is promising for a good crop. Present indications point to a good strawberry crop, while irish potatoes are reported from poor to fair. General improvement of gardens was noted during the past week and the conditions is now reported good.

Pastures continue to show improvement and are affording some grazing in most areas.

Quartermaster Corps Conserving Resources

During the past four months of total war there have been days of troop movements and sudden departures in the South. The turnover in the Army camps has been swift and often unexpected because the Army is increasing so rapidly.

The old problem of supply and demand has taken on new proportions. These are war-born shortages of critical and strategic materials. Greater quantities of food than ever before are needed. And the Quartermaster Corps has had to solve the problem.

According to Colonel William F. Riter, supply officer on the staff of the Fourth Corps Area Quartermaster, the supply system, although frequently strained, is able to furnish every soldier, in war as well as peace with food, clothing and equipment. The American troops, after 4 months of all-out war, are still the best cared for group of individuals in the world.

Units ordered to leave a camp, of course, leave certain supplies behind. The Quartermaster ships the left-overs immediately to another camp where new units are arriving. In this way nothing is wasted or stored when it could be in use. The second way in which the QMC is making the meager supply meet the huge demand is by conservation.

The conservation program covers thousands of items. A modern selection of materials being saved by the Army would include all metal . .nickel electrodes from spark plugs to tin cans, even used razor blades. Textile bags are reused. Brushes are salvaged so that the remaining portion of bristle may be reclaimed. Fats, grease, and garbage accumulated in the messes are sold to dealers or used as food for animals. Tailors make worn overcoats into mackinaws. Used but serviceable uniforms are reissued soldiers. Shoes are resized and reshaped on machines and reissued. Tents are mended as long as repairable, and treated to guard against fungus growth. Rubber heels are salvaged and worn rubber tires are inspected, repaired and reused. Manila rope is used sparingly. Yes, the QMC even saves old rags, which have been used for cleaning. Some are wool and can be reclaimed.

The problems of war are many and complex but America's burden can be made lighter if everyone will follow the lead of the Quartermaster Corps in conserving our resources.

CHILTON COUNTY'S BOYS IN THE SERVICE

Good news comes this week concerning Bascom Venable. After spending some time in an army hospital Venable has been released and transferred. He is now stationed at Jefferson Barracks, Missouri. Venable entered service a short while ago and has served as cashier of the local unit of the Alabama Mills.

o

Aubrin Kelley, son of H. M. Kelley, who enlisted in the Navy in January of last year is now stationed at Portland Maine. He has had several promotions since entering service and is now a second class electrician.

o

Among the many Chilton County boys recently entering the armed forces of the United States are to be found the names of Hershel E. Shanks, of Maplesville, and Jack W. Jones of Mt. Creek. Jones and Shanks have enlisted in the Navy.

Carl Cooper, graduate of Chilton County High School in 1940 and at present a member of the sophomore class at Howard College, has joined the Marine Corps reserve. This allows Carl to finish college. Upon graduation he will report to Quantico, Va., for training as a Marine Corps officer.

If Cooper sets as fine a record in the Marine Corps as he did in school the Marines are unusually fortunate. Carl was president of his class, of the "C" club and of the FFA at the Chilton County high school. He played basketball and was alternate captain of the football team. He made his letter this year in football at Howard and is a member of Pi Kappa Alpha Social Fraternity.

o

Sergt. Nolan J. Woodfin of Selma, is visiting his parents this week Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Woodfin of Clanton.

o

Private Ray Enfinger of Keesler Field Mississippi, was home for the week end. This is the first time Ray has been home since his induction into the service about a month ago. Ray paid the news office a visit while here and we would say that the army sure isn't hurting him any as he was looking very splendid in his uniform.

o

Private Lige Smith was another welcome visitor here over the week end. Lige has been in service for only a short time and we understand that he is stationed at Fort Bragg North Carolina.

o

Herman Woodfin, son of Mrs. H. M. Kelley and of Texas, is stationed at Lake Field, Phoenix, Arizona. He says he is joining the air corps and going to school. He also says that the uniform and good food make a fellow all the more determined to whip the Japs.

Mr. Ben Tucker,
Dear Ben:

Here I come with another letter and if you can, please publish it.

Today makes three months I have been in the army and they have been good for me and I hope that I have done my bit during that time. I sure do like army life and the morale is very good in our squadron. There is more complaints about not being over there fighting them gangsters and outlaws than there is any thing else. We all realize we have a job to do and the quicker we get it done the better off we will be. We are well fed and clothed and our barracks are new and modern.

The weather has been very fine for the last three weeks and I have been swimming several times in the Gulf, although it is a little early for that. The water is fine.

I guess the singings has started in Chilton County now and if nothing happens I will get to take in at least one in June somewhere up there for I am pretty sure I will get a [illegible]lough then, but if I don't I won't complain for all of us should realize we must make many sacriifces to win this war so that in the future those pleasures and privileges may continue as they have in the past.

I have met two boys from Cla[illegible] who are stationed here. They [illegible] Herman Edwards and Donald Bates. I don't see much of Bates but Edwards and I are very good buddies.

It will soon be vacation time and many of you will come to Panama City on your vacation and when you do I would like for you to look or call me up while you are here. You can call number 33 Tyndall Field and ask for me and if I am not a[illegible] you can leave a message and i[illegible] be given to me promptly and I can look you up.

Let me say to all of you that if you want to help keep the morale of the boys who are in camp good, you can do a lot just by sending them a card or letter every once in a while. I know that to be a fact for I handle the mail for my outfit and when the boys don't get a letter from home pretty often they get mighty blu[illegible]

Well Ben, I must close for this time so be sure to keep my paper coming and good luck.

Pvt. Henry C. Driver, 348 School Squadron, Tyndall Field, Panama City, Fla.

STATE'S PRISON POPULATION OFF 23 PER CENT

Alabama's prison population has declined 23 per cent in three years, from a high of 7,633 in July 1939, to 5,895 today, a decrease attributed by Coy. W. E. Persons, State prison chief, to a decrease in crime, and operation of the new parole and probation system.

Boom times in industry and agriculture, resulting in reduced unemployment, was one reason assigned for the falling off in number of persons in Alabama penitentiaries. Probation granted first offenders through the courts, and paroles in worthy cases, were cited as other causes.

The drop in prison population has been followed by an executive order to department heads to cut down the number of trusties on duty at the capitol as porters, and by discontinuance of five convict labor highway road camps. These camps, located at Hamilton, Greenville, Evergreen, Opp and Geneva are now used as headquarters for engineering and maintenance crews and for housing road machines, and free local labor is employed at them.

The Highway Department still maintains 23 convict camps in various sections of the State, employing 1,524 convicts, including those transported daily from Kilby, No. 4 and Draper Prisons. These camps are at Scottsboro, Decatur, Cullman, Gadsden, Cleburne, near Oneonta, Sumniton, Fayette, Tuscaloosa, Livingston, Heflin, Childersburg, Alexander City, Auburn, Verbena, Selma, Thomaston, Camden, Baldwin, Union Springs, Headland and Troy. T. S. Burnum of the State Highway Department supervises the camps.

Got a letter this week from Edith and Blanton from Van Buren, Ark., hat was mighty nice and we appre- ated it . . . said she received the old hilton County News and was glad get it each week. . . we were born ut there only a few miles from where dith is living now, but we never new "Uncle Slug" either. Mr. Blan- on, Edith's husband is now Captain lanton, he used to be here in Clan- on too, and has many friends here.

Saw this in a paper somewhere: For ale—A violin by a young man in ood condition, except for a loose eg in the head.—Wabash (Minn.) erald . . . had you stopped to think he initials of Richmond Pearson Hob- on and Remember Pearl Harbor are he same . . . what with candidates unning in and out the front door wanting last minute advertising and spring fever attacking from all sides we can't think of a thing to write about this week.

Wilbur Prince was marching down the street Saturday afternoon by himself, blowing his horn and playing to beat-the-band . . : we rushed back into the house, got out the tow-sack full of peanuts and rushed back to the front to wait for the parade. . . however, nothing happened, Wilbur was evidently just practicing.

The other day we sent to town for a small package of rubber bands . . . just a nickel's worth and believe it or not. . . . they couldn't be found in Clanton . . . and by the way something we forgot to tell you about the Whites, Charlie has been made a corporal he's got a A. M. Degree too, whatever that is . . . Bob has written to find out . . . May Annice Polk writes us that she is getting along just fine at the University.

A very feminine voice came over the wire today when our phone rang and we answered hello . . . "if there are any of the girls there, tell them I'll play". . . Well, what would you think under similar circumstances? That's just exactly what we thought . . . but, we stammered a little and said lady there isn't any girls here, haven't you the wrong number? Then she answered, "isn't this the Chilton County High School?" and we told her this was the Chilton County News . . . oh, oh, click".

Cecil Wilson, who used to operate the Linotype machine here is slowly but surely on his way back home . . he has served several newspapers in East Alabama within the past few years but has wound up at Wetumpka . . . looks like Clanton will be next if his Uncle Sam doesn't send for him first.

Senior Class Presents "Growing Pains"

Tonight the Sr.II class of our local high school will present their play "Growing Pains" Here is both a new and old-fashioned start at unsophisticated youth as it flutters uncertainly on the wings of sixteen., George and Terry McIntyre, represented by Harry Snead and Katherine Bell, are problem children in the play. Their father, represented by Ed Neeley, is a stiff college professor, who is all in favor of laying down the law. Their mother, Mable Wood, is very soft-hearted and lets them have their fling. And they do. George gets a car while Terry gets a permanent wave and high heels.

The class paid a high royalty for this play and our cast is trying to match it by giving an exertmely good performance.

Earl O. Headley Is Killed at Work

Earl O. Headley, age 22 years, was killed accidentally Tuesday morning while at work on his dump truck on State Road 22 that runs from Cooper to Rockford. The accident happened at the intersection of this road and the road that turns off to Mitchell Dam.

It is reported by Ed Propst, State Highway Patrolman who investigated, that Headley had been seen working on the exhaust pipe of his truck by the driver of the large sprinkler that makes routine trips back and forth the road to keep it sprinkled. On a return trip the driver noticed that the dump was down and had caught the victim between it and the chassis. After summoning several drivers to aid in lifting the boy from beneath the truck he was immediately rushed to Central Alabama Hospital where he was pronounced dead upon arrival.

He is the son of Mr. Monroe Headley and it is approximately 10 years to the day that his mother was killed in the big storm that wrecked so much damage in Chilton County and took so many lives.

It is thought that Earl must have released the dump unknowing while he worked on the exhaust. Funeral arrangements were announced by Martin and Sons.

About forty Boy Scouts and leaders participated in the Clanton District Camporee held at the ball park last Friday and Saturday. Three Troops took part from Clanton and Thorsby and Assistant Scout Executive Charles B. McKee was in charge of the program.

The Troops set up the campsites and lived there for the camporee period, cooking meals, arranging sleeping, and other techniques of Scoutting and camping they have been studying. Troop 52 was led by Scoutmaster R. M. Robinson; Troop 60 by Clark B. Blickensderfer and Troop 57 by Fred Buckelew aided by James Carl Martin and Oscar Jones.

A large audience witnessed the campfire program on Friday night and saw the Scouts put on a program of songs, stunts, ceremonies and an Indian pageant of songs and dances. Mr. D. W. Waite, District chairman, gave a short talk to the audience tellin gof the progress Scouting has made in the city and district and urging more interest and support to this movement.

The Indian pageant included the Sioux War Dance, the Iroquois False-face Dance, the Omaha Tribal Prayer and an Invication for campfire color and warmth. Executive McKee led

County Wide Drive To Spur Purchase Of Defense Bonds

TO THE PUBLIC OF CHILTON COUNTY:

A campaign will be started in the County within the next few weeks as soon as the organization can be set up, for the promotion of the sale of War Savings Bonds and Stamps

This is a nation wide drive and each State in the Union has its organization and in each of the sixty-seven counties in Alabama, there is an Executive Chairman and Co-Chairman, consisting of the Judge of Probate and the Mayor of the largest city in each county. I have agreed to serve as Executive Chairman and under the set up, Judge Smith, as Judge of Probate, and Mr. C. E. Stapp, as Mayor of Clanton, will be Co-chairmen. There will be appointed some fifteen or more committees, representing each of the trades, professions, occupations, civic, religious, and public bodies of the County. There will probably be around three members upon each of these committees, and when you are approached to serve upon one of these committees, I hope that no person will refuse.

It is needless for me to state that this is the most important drive that has ever been presented to you. This is my war and yours, and regardless of the reason that we are in it, or our unpreparedness, or any other circumstances, there is only one way out now, and that is to win it, and this is going to take billions of dollars. The government is calling upon the people in this drive to loan their money in the purchase of bonds. The bonds can be bought as low as $18.75 each, and will return to you $25.00 in ten years, which is a fair return for your money. Defense stamps can be bought for as low as ten cents each, up to $5.00. Thus, it is within the power of every man, woman and child in Chilton County to invest some to help win this war

Germany and Italy take property and money from the private citizens for war purposes, without any return to them, but our country is only asking for a loan with interest, which you can cash out within sixty days, if you desire your money returned, and I cannot think of a better creditor than the United States, and I know of no safer investment than in Goverment bonds

There is a lot said about inflation, which is an abundance of money with

E. P. GUY VISITS CLANTON IN INTEREST OF RENZO GUY

Mr. E. P. Guy, brother of Renzo Guy, who is a candidate for the office of Commissioner of Agriculture, was a visitor to Clanton the first of the week. Mr. Guy says that things look mighty good and that it looks like the people of Alabama want Renzo for their Commissioner of Agriculture this time.

Mr. Guy is a salesman and has traveled this part of the state for 20 years and has many friends in Chilton County.

Pre-School Clinics Open In County

Parents of all children who will enter school for the first time next fall are urged to take these children to one of the pre-school clinics being held in various school centers over the county. Many children fail to do good school work because of trouble with hearing, seeing, or general physical condition. The free examination given at these clinics will help parents to get their children ready for successful school work. Parents are urged but not required to have their children protected against diphtheria, smallpox, and typhoid fever.

The Alabama school law requires that a child be six years old on the first day of October to enter school. As proof of this a birth certificate is necessary. Parents are asked to take or send the birth certificate with the child to the clinic. When there is no certificate, the attendance supervisor, who is present at the clinic will make application for one. This should not be postponed until next fall because if it is there will probably be a delay of several weeks in getting the certificate.

Letters To The Editor

FROM RENZO M. GUY

On May 5, a few weeks hence we will experience the priceless heritage of Americans. We will go to the polls to cast our vote. This privilege symbolical of freedom itself is something that men have died for. It's the very root and fountain head of our freedom in all that the word implies. The chaotic condition of the world is such with countless millions of men, women and children being slain, enslaved and starved that it almost benumbs the mind of the average citizen. It is so like a hideous nightmare that until we see our American boys, our own sons and brothers marching down the road that leads into the great unknown and then as we look upon these youngsters trudging along, gun upon their shoulders, chins up and a slight look of bewilderment in their eyes we offer up an inaudible prayer. God bless you son, and may all the luck in the world be yours. We turn away with mingled emotion knowing that critical conditions are ahead and that the future will be packed with problems. Some of them that we have never experienced before, therefore it is of utmost importance that every citizen when he walks into the voting booth on May 5, before casting his ballot, stop and ponder, think hard, thoughtfully and patriotically. Each and everyone of us should ask him or herself the question, am I voting for the one best fitted to serve and to lead during these trying times, or am I voting for a robot, a hand picked candidate of some particular organization or clique.

If ever there was a time in the history of our nation when the American voter should walk into the polls and cast a ballot for those that can think practically and intelligently instead of a candidate filled with crackpot theories of government it is now. We have an opportunity on May 5, to take a great step in the right direction. Think as you will, each vote will have its bearing on the future So let me ask again before we mark our ballots on election day, weigh each candidate's qualifications carefully Think hard, thoughtfully and patriotically. Remember that you and you alone are to decide who is best fitted to serve. Your vote is a contribution and an integral part of freedom.

RENZO M. GUY,
Letohatchee, Ala.

FROM J. H. JACKSON

Editor The News:

Will you allow me space for a few words.

Well I listened to Mr. Carwile with much interest last Saturday the 28th at the court house. I wish every farmer in the state could have heard him. I really believe that he is our best man for governor for all of the people. He knows the burden of farm life and I believe if elected he will work to do the things that he promises to do

I believe our old age organization has made a mistake in endorsing Sparks for governor He says that he is for an old age pension with the ultimate objective of $30.00 per month.

Now if I get the right interpretation of the above it means being the last or finally

Now friends we don't want to be fooled no such way as that. Look in both our county papers. He says he believes in a teachers retirement program. Why does he mention a program for the teachers and not all other classes. Mr. Carwile says if he is elected governor and fails to do what he promises, that we may come down and kick his pants off of him.

So let's put him in and if he fails we won't only get his pants but we will get part of something else. For we are getting tired of promises and getting nothing. Yours for justice and equality with all white people.

FROM E. J. DEASON

Are the people of Alabama asleep? Please hand me a spotting scope. I want to give it to some of our so-called State Executives. They may want to read a word or two.

The Laymans Movement to make Alabama Dry. Met for what? Well for nothing. This is why.

If Alabama is made dry, what will our drinkers of alcohol and brews do? Well they will continue to drink. Yes by slipping around to do it.

Oh well! They will get caught probably, yes this may happen. But the State or county will have to keep them up. Naturally we have to pay tax for this or that man to drink and get caught. That doesn't benefit our state any.

I for one man, do not drink, although I have associated with quite a few people that do drink. I have observed all over United States and one of our island possessions. The places that has open bar rooms have less trouble with drunkenness than the places that is dry. With people slipping around and drinking.

Right here in Chilton County, those who want to buy alcoholic drinks go to some other county and buy it. Who gets the taxes of this purchase. Naturally where it is purchased the taxes will go there. If Alabama is made dry, surrounding states will profit by it.

This age and time is a venturesome age for young people. They think it is smart to drink. But just as a child with a new toy. The child will be more temperate about playing with the toy, as he gets more used to it. The people who drink has the same reaction about drinking when they get used to it. They will be more temperate. That is only human nature.

I have done duty with Sailors and Marines. You cannot keep them from drinking. In fact beer is legal on every military post or station I have been at. Alcoholic drinks are used as a social drink among strangers. That will as we call it "break the ice" between two strangers. Why shouldn't our service men drink if they want to. The majority of them use alcohol very temperate.

I have accepted invitations to strange homes for a drink. To my surprise I found out that some people invite service men into their homes for drink and entertainment. The people use drinks as friendly offering to a service man. That is a social drink. You may think of the morale. That is already taken care of.

There are four things that pleases service men: 1 Letters from any and everyone: 2 mass entertainment: 3 an invitation to your home; 4 a social drink. Then you have a happy man. I know as I have been there.

Who wants our state dry. Don't be surprised dear public. Your preachers, bootleggers and "muck-ade-muck" politicians want it dry. Naturally your preacher wants it dry. His job is to teach the people not to drink. The politician may swing a vote or two by promising a dry state. But in his heart he knows if he wants a drink, his yes-men will furnish him and no one will get caught at it. The bootlegger says he has got to make a living and that is an easy way. If the state is dry his goods are always in demand.

Which is worse for a man to do, slip around and drink when he knows it is a violation of the law, or for a man to go to a bar and drink legal drinks. It is cowardly to slip around and drink.

Oh, our younger set will have to be "taught not to drink," probably our grandfathers uttered those same words. But anyone can see that it is still used.

What good will it do the state by being wet Mr. David E. Dunn, director of Alabama beer industry made a report that Alabama beer industry has made payments of $9,057,403 in direct taxes and more than $30,000,000 in wages since beer was made legal in 1937.

Mr. Dunn reports that the American beer industry observed its ninth anniversary with the purchase of $9,000,000 in Defense Bonds by the industry and its employees. They will buy bonds on the same scale for the duration of the war.

He reports that in nine years the industry and allied trades has employed one million persons. That will reduce our unemployment problem considerably.

Since April 7, 1933, the industry has purchased 33 billion pounds of farm products at a cost of 815 million dollars. How many families would that help in nine years?

Payment of Federal taxes $2,355,000,000. That would be approximately 30 battle ships cost. We need plenty of industries to pay those kind of taxes.

These figures are just to show the people what industry will do for our State and Nation.

We need leaders and not drivers for our state officials. Men who can think clear enough to see that we need a way or ways to insure our State treasury. How may we get this insurance. By keeping industries we already have and by inviting more to come to our state. Yes, to stay! So why should we make our state dry I ask you?

When a good citizen goes to vote for an executive he may have to vote a split-ticket to get all the men he thinks could be an official. Don't be stupid, all Republicans cannot be good, nor all Democrats, you have to split a ticket to get your best leaders. The best is what the state and people need, not just anyone who promises all bright things for the future.

We want leaders that want to work for the betterment of the State and its people. Each state as each nation, has got to have a free thinking leader. Not a man who sits up spending and demanding taxes while he is in an office. Not knowing if he is benefitting the state or its people.

The fight to survive is always on, so why can't we have real leaders who lock up to the people and not down upon them as being stupid because he has out-schemed them. Let them be leaders who look up to the people and down upon their problems no matter what kind of problem. If it is to make a state wet or call in any industry possible. If we have industry running, we have prosperity at all times.

GUATEMALA—SEAT OF ANCIENT CULTURE

A thousand years before Columbus was to come, when Rome was in ruins and the shadow of the Dark Ages was beginning to fall over Europe, a sculptor, swarthy of skin and delicate of feature, was at work on a massive statue which was to give final touch of artistry and dignity to a temple set high in the mountains of a region to be known in far-off centuries as Central America.

The statue was finished. Standing slightly atilt, it can be seen today in ruins of an ancient city of the Mayas, Juirigua, 60 miles from busy Puerto Barrios, Guatemala. It is known to science as 'Stela K." On it an inscription in hieroglyph records the Maya date 9.18.15.0, 3 Ahau, 3 Yax, or approximately 535 A. D.

The pyramid temple of Uaxactun; 'the ruins of Tikal and Chacula, in the silences of the deep forests they speak of the triumphs and splendors of ages gone; of two great empires stretching into antiquity half a thousand years before Christianity, of strong and enlightened peoples who knew mathematics and astronomy, the melting and fashioning of gold and silver, the arts of husbandry; who lived their lives in accordance with a remarkable religion; who were skilled in certain arts and sciences, and who spoke tongues highly developed and rich in color.

Guatemala, for at least one long period, was lofty seat of this pre-Columbian civilization. Scientists, painstakingly uncovering buried cities, edifices demolished by time or by man, endeavoring to decipher hieroglyphics, have established the great age of this Indian people.

Lying at altitudes 4,000 to 11,000 feet above the sea, Maya rulers chose ies later it was to attract colonial over later it was to attract colonial overlords who made it site of Spanish power in Central America.

The people of Guatemala are among the most colorful of the Americans. Lineal descendants of the Mayas, they have preserved many of the rites and customs of their ancestors. Maya religion has given way to priest and church, but their fiestas, dances, music, retain the flavor of other years.

Guatemala has its rightful place of distinction in the practical world of trade. The coffee it produces is unexcelled in quality anywhere in the world, and leads the nation's exports. Four-fifths of an annual production of about 130,000,000 pounds go abroad. Other increasingly important items on the republic's export list are bananas, sugar, cacao, chicle, rubber, cattle, hides, skins and woods, cabinet and dye woods especially. Awaiting further exploration, development and transportation facilities, all included in the planning of a progressive and energetic Government, are known deposits of gold, silver, copper, iron, lead, zinc and antimony, with great unexplored regions containing probable stores yet to be discovered.

Yet, with all of this; with all the wealth in minerals; with all the present and potential fruitfulness of lowlands, lofty valleys and timbered mountain fastnesses, the greatest and most satisfying of all Guatemalan treasure, in the appraisal of those who put value on things of the spirit, is the rich tradition of a culture of ages gone which finds expression still in the daily life of the people of this modern New World republic.

HAYSE TUCKER

As Their Representative In Congress As We Are Of Him As Our Employer

MOST of us were with Hayse Tucker during the soul-trying depression days of 1932-34 and he took care of us to the extent of waiving every penny of profit for himself in order to keep the organization together and to keep from laying men off even though there was not sufficient business to keep them working. Hayse Tucker has been considerate of his employees to the highest degree, and has for many years made it a practice to give 'extras' to the men such as cash presents for Christmas, a turkey for every man each Thanksgiving, Thursday afternoons off, vacations and holidays with full pay even for the men in the shop who were on a strictly hourly-pay basis. His office door is always wide open to every employee who seeks personal aid or advice and we know from experience that Hayse Tucker has a sincere and helpful desire to improve the well-being and needs of every working man and wage-earner.

From a small business with seven or eight employees he has built up a highly successful organization, outstanding in the community. He has accomplished this through his keen business ability and by having the loyalty and respect of his employees, and instilling in them a desire to do their best to make the business a success. In addition he has developed department heads who take the details of every-day operations off his hands and enabled him to devote many hours and days of his time to civic affairs for his community. His record of doing a real, bang-up job as State Senator for the past eight years is a matter of public record and we know he will do just as fine a job of handling the affairs of the Sixth District as your Congressman, as he has in all his past activities in his community and for the State.

Sanitation Checks Spread Of Cowpox

—o—

Auburn, Ala.—Alabama dairy farmers can help prevent the spread of cowpox through their herds by rigid sanitation and by milking infested animals last, says F. W. Burns, extension dairyman. Otherwise, cowpox blisters on teats and udders may be broken during milking and the disease carried on the hands to healthy cows.

Cowpox is relatively harmless, says Mr. Burns, but if improperly handled, may lead to more serious complications. For example, if calves are allowed to suck infected cows, the blisters may grow and spread, and sores extend up into the teat. Garget may develop and the whole quarter be permanently damaged or lost.

Mild, softening, antiseptic materials such as zinc oxide ointment or boric acid ointment may be used on ruptured blisters on teats. Material containing carbolic acid or cresol compound, however, should not be used, as they are likely to cause severe irritation, and the milk may absorb their odors.

If the American way of life was like Chauncey Sparks' way of life, there would be few, if any, native Americans in America one hundred years from now.

We send only young men to the front to defend America and Democracy. Therefore, only young men should be elected to public office to protect and defend the rights of the young men who are facing the enemy on the battle front. Jim Folsom, being a young man, can be depended upon to look after and protect the interests of our boys who are fighting our battles, at home and abroad.

The most corrupt thing in the Corrupt Practice Act, is the Absentee Ballot. Next in line is the accumulative poll tax requirement. Both should be abolished at the earliest possible moment.

An Open Letter To Sportsmen And Farmers

To The Sportsmen and Farmers of Alabama:

We must get action now on our Game and Fish program. Our program is this—Each county to organize its Game and Fish Association. Each county sends four representatives to form the State Game & Fish Association. These representatives formulate all laws, rules and regulations of the Game and Fish Association, which are to be enacted into law by the Alabama Legislature. These county representatives elect officers of the State Association, and appoint a Board of Ten Trustees. The President of the State game association and the Board of Trustees will handle all finances of the association, which must be used to produce all forms of game, fish and sea foods.

Every land owner will be made a GAME WARDEN for his property with power to appoint another in his absence. This is done by act of the Alabama Legislature. This procedure will save more than $200,000 to this department now going to the [illegible]

[illegible] 148,502 sportsmen and fishermen paid license in 1940. There are at [illegible] 30,000 farmers who did not hunt in 1940. To these farmers we are [illegible] to do a special favor by making their bird and fish crop a money making crop. It is their property just the same as turkeys, chickens, pigs etc. They should get pay for them. If they get pay they can raise one hundred times more than is being raised, therefore their income from this crop will be worth while. Every community can soon have fresh water fish ponds and every farm can be working alive with game in the next ten years. The waters around Mobile can be loaded with fish, oysters, shrimp, and other sea foods. and the fishermen there can soon have a harvest that will surpass any known to man since the first game department was organized in Alabama.

The question is—Shall we adopt these new plans that are the most democratic ever known to man, or shall we continue in the old rut of abomination, racketeering, persecution, flim flamming, wilful destruction of the common man's personal rights and liberties?

As Chairman of the Sportsmen and Farmers Club of Alabama, I say adopt the new plan.

Listen Friends, the following men now running for public office in Alabama have endorsed the new plan, the democratic plan, the plan to put the Game and Fish Department in the hands where it belongs. WHERE? In the hands of the Sportsmen and Farmers where there will be cooperation, production, and good sport for all.

THESE MEN OK THIS PLAN AND WILL ASSIST IN EVERY WAY POSSIBLE TO PUT IT INTO EFFECT.

FOR GOVERNOR, JIM FOLSOM HAS OK'ed.

FOR LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR, HANDY ELLIS HAS OK'ed.

FOR COMMISSIONER AGRICULTURE, RENZO GUY HAS OK'ed.

ABOUT 17 MEN IN THE SENATE AND LEGISLATURE HAVE OK'ed.

Listen, Sportsmen, take this letter to your representative and get him to express himself now, and write me what he says about it.

Judge Sparks has evidently committed himself to some form of the old arrangement. A letter from him says, I quote, "I regret that I am not in a position to definitely approve the program at this time. After the election, I shall be very glad to give your suggestion further consideration, and to discuss it with you in person."

May I say in answer to Judge Sparks that it is customary in Alabama politics to answer such seriously important questions before the election. This is an important question to these 148,000 sportsmen and 30,000 to 50,000 farmers. To the sportsmen it is their recreation, entertainment, nourishment. To the farmers it is one of their sources of income. In either case it is more important than simply having a present popular man in the Governor's chair.

Let's get men who will work with us. Let's help the country folks, they are the salt of the earth. They are the backbone of our existence.

Listen at some facts and figures—Alabama's population is 2,832,961. The rural farm group is 1,338,664. When we begin to help these farmers, our country will begin to grow.

Friends, select your Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Commissioner of Agriculture, Senators and Legislators who will help the farmers and a way will soon be found for all others to help themselves.

DR. S. D. SUGGS, Chairman,
Sportsmen and Farmers Club of Ala.

this group of redskins on the program; Scouts Dave Parrish, George Engle, L. J. Stewart, Maxwell Hargrove, Howard Buckner, Jack Bates, Oscar Jones had charge of the stunt and song period with both Scouts and audience joining in the events.

The Saturday Scout Rally events were well contested as the patrols strived for council rating in standard activities in Scouting and camping. Events included personal inspection, site inspection, knot tying, equipment race, stretcher bearer relay, chariot race, string burning contest, and first aid. Troop 60 gave a demonstration in fire-by-friction and produced a flame in very few seconds.

The Scouts encamped at the ball park did a "good turn" by cleaning up all rubbish and burned or piled it, following the afternoons events. Professor Hicks granted them all shower bath privileges while the scores were being compiled. Each Patrol received a leather plaque with their camping and scouting rating inscribed upon it.

Army Air Force Offers Many Opportunities

Most young men in our larger cities have become aware of the opportunities available to them of becoming officers in the Army Air Force, but we feel that there may be some within the radius of your paper who still do not know of these opportunitites.

In order that they, too, may have this information we are asking that you publish this letter or the contents of this letter in your paper. So many times we contact young men who never realized that they had the chance of becoming Flying Officers in the Air Forces. They just assumed that the requirements for Avia- their ability. Actually, school or col- tion Cadet Training were above lege credits are not required. The only educational requirements is the ability to pass a mental screening test which any man with the equivalent of a high school education should pass. It tests his ability to think clearly, express himself well, take instruction, and absorb knowledge of current events and scientific development going on about him, rather than the amount of academic schooling he has had. A rigid physical examination is also given. The following is of great interest to many young men:

What The Cadet Receives While Training

1. Pay of $75.00 per month with an additional $1.00 per day for subsistence.
2. Living quarters, medical care and hospitalization.
3. All necessary clothing, uniforms, equipment.
4. A $10,000.00 Government Life Insurance Policy.

What the Cadet receives after successfully completing the course of training:

1. A Commission of 2nd Lieutenant in the Army Air Corps Reserve.
2. Flying pay of $240.00 per month including allowances.
3. Uniform allowance of $150.00.
4. An opportunity to advance in rank with service and ability.

Upon relief from Active duty Air Corps Reserve Officers are entitled to a Bonus of $500.00 for each year of active duty with the Air Corps under their Reserve Commissions.

Necessary steps to be taken in making application. Age of applicant must be 18 to and including 26 years of age.

1. Obtain three letters of recommendation.
2. Obtain some documentary evidence of birth, preferably a certified birth certificate.
3. Obtain parents consent to enlist if under 21 years of age.

With these papers, the applicant should go to the nearest Aviation Cadet Board or Recruiting Office where all other necessary papers will be given to him and where he can take the mental and physical examinations.

Further information will be given by the Aviation Cadet Board in the Post Office Building in Montgomery, or at any other Cadet Board or Recruiting Station.

BOND DRIVE

a scarcity of things to buy, and by putting our surplus money into government bonds and not buying at this time, articles that the Government needs to help win the war, will also help prevent an inflationary period which will be runious to this country. When the war is over and the factories and munition plants are closed, and millions of men will be thrown out of work, and millions of soldiers will be turned back on the country without a job, the family or person who invests a little in bonds, when these times do come, and they are sure to come, will be fortunate indeed.

None of us want America to lose this war, without our help, and all of us want America to win the war, but I am sure every person had much rather it be won with his help.

I do not think that it is asking too much for every wage earner or person with an income in Chilton County, regardless of the amount, to invest a certain portion of this wage or income in sound investment like this, which has a double purpose, of helping your country and helping you at the same time.

The Government is stressing buying bonds and stamps out of your income, and I notice the recent daily press is asking each of us to tithe, that, is, invest one-tenth of our wages or income each week or each month in buying bonds or stamps.

All the persons connected with this drive will serve without any pay, not even reimbursement for any expenses. It is entirely a voluntary organization, and every penny that you invest will go directly to the Government and be put to work immediately, making guns, tanks, and ammunition for the use of the soldiers at the front.

There are many Chilton County boys in service, who are giving all of their time, making the greatest sacrifices, even giving their life itself to defend us back home; certainly we should be willing to do this little bit to back up our boys at the front. They are helping us, let's help them by making Chilton County the most patriotic county in Alabama.

Yours truly,
L. H. REYNOLDS Exec. Chrm.

A Vote for Folsom is a Vote for Just Rights for all the People

JIM FOLSOM

The Only Progressive In The Race

Asks Your Support

FOR GOVERNOR

What Folsom Will Do

I AM FOR—Old Age Pensions for every person over 65 years of age—No strings attached. Our old folks should have not less than $30.00 per month, and I will work to get $50.00 per month for them, as I have been doing for 10 years.

I AM FOR—Better pay for school teachers and the placing of school teachers pay on the same basis as other state employees.

I AM FOR—Equal opportunity for the farmer with that of industry and commerce, and will use the power of the Governor's office to further the constructive work the Farm Security Administration is doing

I AM FOR—Giving every right and privilege to which they are entitled, to all men and women who labor and produce the wealth of the world.

I AM FOR—All possible aid to the needy, undernourished and under privileged.

I AM FOR—All possible aid in the furtherance of the great work being done by the State Department of Health and the expansion of this work wherever needed.

I AM FOR—Submitting the matter of sales of alcoholic beverages to all the voters of the State—and will be governed by their decision.

I AM FOR—Divorcing of the Game and Fish Department from all other departments of the State. I believe this department should be controlled by the farmers and sportsmen who raise and take the game.
The two hundred thousand dollars now going to game wardens should go to the farmers to encourage them to grow more game and fish.

I AM FOR—The conservation of the State's natural resources and will protect them against greedy, foreign or local exploitation.

I AM FOR—Removing the sales tax from the laborers' bread and meat and letting the big mules carry their share of this tax.

I AM FOR—So amending the Workman's Compensation Laws in such manner as will insure all men and women covered by Workmen's Insurance, this assistance when needed from any cause.

I AM FOR—Labor. I shall create a Department of Labor, the head of which shall be known as the Commissioner of Labor. He will be drafted from the ranks of organized labor. The Commissioner of Labor shall be a member of the Governor's cabinet, and have a voice in the State Government.

I AM FOR—Expanding the road and bridge system of the State to the point where every populated area will be easily accessible. Especially will I stress the necessity for more farm to market roads and bridges where they are needed.

SPORTSMEN AND FARMERS ARE FLOCKING TO FOLSOM

WHY?

He believes that the Game and Fish Department should be divorced from all other departments of State.

He believes that the Sportsmen and Farmers should control this department.

He believes that the two hundred thousand dollars now going to game wardens should go to the farmers to encourage them to grow more game and fish.

He believes that if the money is used to build more large fresh water ponds that the ultimate owner of these ponds will have an old age pension in the pond.

He believes that the license now charged farmers for growing quail ($1.00) and the $10.00 license to sell the quail after they are grown is an outrage and cannot encourage the growth of quail.

There are 148,502 people paying license to hunt and fish in Alabama.

Sportsmen, and Farmers, think seriously before you vote. Folsom is the only Gubernatorial candidate who has come out in the open on this question.

My Pledge to the Educational Forces of Alabama

If I'm elected Governor of Alabama I pledge you that I shall stand for and secure the following relief for our schools and teachers.

1. Call an immediate session of the legislature for the purpose of appropriating the large surplus which will be in the educational Trust Fund to the schools. This surplus will guarantee a minimum school term of eight months and a twenty to thirty percent increase in teacher's salaries.

2. Double the present $400,000.00 teachers retirement appropriation and make it continuing rather than contingent as at present.

3. Provide free text books for the first nine grades of the public schools.

4. Extend vocational education opportunities in the High Schools.

5. Favor a constitutional convention declaring education to be a primary function of Government.

All of these appropriations can be made without levying additional taxes.

Small Farmers Pledge "Acre For Soldier"

Reports to the regional office of the Farm Security Administration from its field personnel in the four states of Alabama, Georgia, South Carolina and Florida, showed today that more than 5,000 small farmers have pledged to dedicate each an "Acre For a Soldier."

Most of these are farmers participating in the FSA program. However, although started within the ranks of these tenants and small farm owners, the movement has spread to other farmers, with prospects of taking on national scope.

"The idea was presented by Farm Security as a means of identifying the average citizen with the war effort," said Marvin Durbin, County FSA Supervisor, "and to help create a feeling of individual responsibility on the part of every person.

"It is, indeed, an idea, a symbol, rather than another campaign of food production. It is not designed to conflict with the 'victory garden' program or any other war production effort. On the other hand, it is to strengthen these things by adding the incentive of obligation which has been recognized and accepted.

"It is hoped that those pledges will increase, and that each one will be a kind of movement of loyalty and patriotism."

American Legion Members Cooperate

MONTGOMERY. — Cooperation of the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, the Junior Chamber of Commerce, Associated Industries and a host of statewide and local civic business organiaztions assisting in Alabama's salvage-for-victory drive was praised today by Governor Frank M. Dixon.

"If every citizen will ransack his home and his yard or farm for scrap iron, old paper and rubber and other material needed in arms plants Alabama can make a great contribution to winning the war," the governor said.

FARM SECURITY ADMINISTRATION

Montgomery, Ala.—More than 500,000 visits to farm and homes of low-income farmers who cooperate with the program of the farm security Administration were made by FSA county supervisors in the last 12 months in the States of Alabama, Georgia, South Carolina and Florida; which comprise FSA's Region Five.

Reviewing reports from 248 county officers, E. S. Morgan, regional director, said that emphasis has been placed on supervision of farm and home operations to assure the application of good farming practices and improved home living.

In addition to the visits, 4,000 to 6,000 group meetings will be held in the next year in this region, assembling approximately 200,000 members of the FSA borrower families, for discussion of common problems and solutions.

"Supervision is the essential part of the Farm Security job," Mr. Morgan said, "which is a job of education of depressed farm families in proper farming practices and in living standards, directed toward accomplishing their rehabilitation.

"Critics of FSA recently have sought to measure the costs of administration against the amount of loans made each year. The loans, however, are but one of the tools of rehabilitation. Supervision and education are no less important.

"Costs of administration should be measured against the supervision which is applied, and also against the total investment of loans made and assets acquired, which must be served and which in this region amount to $120,000,000 since the program began seven years ago, rather than against approximately $10,000,000 lent for purposes of rehabilitation in a single year'.'

Group meetings will be increased in the coming year, Mr. Morgan said, both to overcome difficulties of travel in the field and to develop community feeling and attitudes of planning and achieving together. He described it as a social as well as an educational purpose.

State Tax Officials Expect Tax Decline

MONTGOMERY. — Taxes which yielded one-fourth of the state's total cash receipts in the last fiscal year are expected to show an appreciable decline in revenue beginning next fall, and perhaps before that, State Revenue Department officials pointed out today.

Of the state's $84,418,459 total cash receipts for 1940-41, $20,940,308 came from auto licenses and gasoline taxes. The auto and tire shortage may reduce auto license revenue from $3,460,433 in 1940-41 to as low as $2,000,000 this year, with a consequent cut in the 20 and 30 per cent share received respectively by the counties and cities making these collections.

A tapering off in gas tax collections, expected to occur this month for the first time in years, inevitably will reduce county funds from this source, which amounted to $8,683,888 in the 1940-41 fiscal year.

School Bus Transportation in Chilton

By Rascoe Maddox

Three years ago we were up against a proposition in Chilton county. Our school buses were worn out. Our transportation costs were seven thousand dollars more per year than we were allotted for transportation of pupils. We were put on notice that we would have to provide safer buses.

We were faced with two possibilities. First we could let individuals buy new trucks and new bus bodies and contract with these individuals to transport pupils to school. Or we could buy the equipment ourselves and hire drivers. Before making up our minds we studied the two methods for a year. We studied costs and the satisfaction of the service given. I visited counties in Alabama like Calhoun, Fayette, Walker, and Jefferson, where the counties owned the buses. Members of the County Board of Education and I visited Perry County, where county ownership had been tried for two years. We studied the experience of North Carolina whose buses have been publicly owned for many years.

After a year's study we became convinced that we could save the taxpayers money and that we could provide safer and more comfortable transportation for our children by having the county purchase its own buses.

Therefore, on May 14, 1940, after having advertised for bids, the Chilton County Board of Education purchased forty Wayne bus bodies and forty-five Chevrolet truck chassis. On this purchase we secured the trucks for $544.43 each. This price was for the same truck for which an individual would have had to pay $900.00 cash. Here was our first saving to the county, a saving of nearly $16,000 in the cost of of the trucks, which the taxpayers of the county would have had to pay if individuals had bought these trucks. Most of this $16,000 would have been drained out of Chilton County going as profits to manufacturers and finance companies in the North. We kept it in the county.

We bought the most modern and safest bus bodies for $708.17 each. If individuals had bought these they would have cost $1,100.00 each cash. On this purchase we saved the taxpayers over $15,000.00. Had we not made this saving, this money too would have been lost to our people.

There are two reasons why we were able to get these buses so cheaply. The first was that they were in large quantities. The second was that the manufacturers hoped to use the experience of Chilton County, which is centrally located in the state, to sell their trucks and buses to other counties.

We should also mention the fact that while individuals pay interest at from eight to twelve per cent, the County Board of Education pays two and three-fourths per cent.

It might be well to mention that these trucks and bus bodies were manufactured according to specifications drawn up in a National Safety Conference. Some of the safety features of the new buses, which were absent from the old buses are: Safety glass throughout; gas tank placed outside the bus body to eliminate the danger of fire; all-steel construction; forward facing seats; an emergency door at the rear that can be easily opened from both the inside and outside; and governors to control the speed at which the bus can be driven. In addition to these safety features the bus bodies were insulated and lined. The steel floor was covered by a floor covering. These features make the buses warmer in winter and cooler in summer. They help keep dust and gas fumes out Every child who has ridden the old and the new buses can testify to the greater comfort of the new buses.

In September 1940 the new fleet of buses went into operation. From the beginning there was greater satisfaction than ever before. Parents were quick to realize the greater safety of the new buses. Children were enthusiastic over their greater comfort and beauty. The county received favorable publicity over the state. At the end of the year it was found that the total cost including the payment of principal and interest on the buses was $26,617.99. The previous year the cost had been $35,773.25. Here was therefore a saving to the schools of $9,155.26. And yet 384 more pupils rode the buses than during the previous year.

We have been asked why we bought a complete fleet in one year instead of buying a few new buses each year. One reason was that we did not have any choice, for with the exception of five bodies, which we kept, all our buses were worn out. Another reason is that we could buy the larger number at a better price. Also the mechanic can become more efficient working on one model. It is cheaper to keep parts for one model than for several. We have saved and will continue to save quite a bit by having all buses alike. It will be well to point out that had we delayed the purchase of many of our buses until the present, we should have the greatest difficulty keeping our schools going during the war. We should be thankful that as we face the dark days ahead we have new buses and are not as some counties which are unable to replace their worn-out buses.

Some people have wondered if the cost won't increase so much after the first year that there will be no saving or even an increase in cost over the old. The answer is that the experience of other counties does now show this. We all expect maintenance costs to be higher as the equipment grows older. But with proper supervision and care of the equipment we confidently expect that costs will never be so much as they were under the old system. Calhoun County, for example, which has owned its buses for several years and had 22 buses five years old or older in 1939-1940, operated at a cost of $6.53 per pupil per year. The average for the state was $10.44. Cullman, DeKalb, and Walker counties with 22, 34 and 31 buses five years old or older operated for $6.96, $7.94, and $7.93 per pupil per year respectively. The cost in Chilton County was $10.82. Last year under our new system the cost was $7.23 per pupil. Indications are that for the second year will be under $8.00.

We have been asked if the savings we've made have not been due to the low salaries paid bus drivers. The answer is no. As explained before, the savings have come from the savings made in the purchase of the equipment, and in the cost of gasoline, oil and parts. As for drivers' salaries, probably everybody agrees that they are not receiving enough, just as we are all agreed that teachers' salaries are too low. The salaries of bus drivers, however, were raised more in proportion than teachers' salaries. They should be raised next year. While we shall not try to compete with wages paid at Childersburg and in other defense areas, we do hope to help bus drivers meet the increased cost of living.

A word of praise should be said in recognition of the services given by our bus drivers. They drive crowded buses on all sorts of roads in all kinds of weather. Rarely does a complaint reach the office about the work of the drivers. As a group they are careful, competent, conscientious workers. They are taking care of the children under their supervision and of the buses they drive. Taxpayers and school patrons are invited to inspect the buses at any of the schools and to check their condition after nearly two years of service.

Much of this article has dealt with costs because we wanted to show that the purchase of these buses was a good thing financially. Let us also keep in mind that the safety of children riding these buses every day is a matter of greater importance. We have tried conscientiously to protect the health and lives of these our children. That not one child has been injured is proof of our success. With the cooperation of all may we succeed as well in the future.

More than 72,080 Alabama school children were among the record breaking number of 6,165,000 boys and girls who ate free nourishing lunches at school during February, according to P. O. Davis, Director of Alabama Extension Service.

Alabama's strategic roads need the strength, safety and economy of CONCRETE

Roads must have all-weather strength and durability to carry heavy wartime traffic without costly damage.

The most economical way to build such roads is with concrete.

Concrete has what it takes to carry heavy traffic without frequent repairs and disruptions of service.

And concrete's moderate first cost, low maintenance and long life make it the LOW-ANNUAL-COST PAVEMENT for main highways.

In improving strategic main roads for emergency needs, why not get pavement that will give a bonus of safe, economical service in future years while insuring "all-out" performance today?

Concrete was chosen for important new access and strategic highways in Alabama. Where main-traveled roads are to be improved, ask for this strong, economical type of pavement.

TO THE FARMERS of the Sixth District

SEVENTY-FIVE per cent of all the people of this Congressional District are farmers. The Sixth District is largely a rural area; and I realize that many of its keenest problems are in the domain of agriculture and in the life of farm people.

Born on the farm myself, most of my business dealings having been with rural citizens, it is only natural that I should have a deep and abiding interest in farm problems. As a state legislator, I voted for the Agricultural Code, the increases in Farm and Home Extension funds, the laws which helped Alabama farmers participate in the A.A.A., the funds for Bang's Disease Control, and the improved Forest and Soil Conservation laws. I supported also and voted for the Minimum School Law which improved rural school terms and salaries, the extension of county health services, and for every other improvement proposed for rural life under both the Graves and the Dixon administrations.

As your representative in Congress, I will support fully and instantly the programs of Senator John H. Bankhead and other such farm leaders who are trying to give the farmer something like a fair deal, a parity with other lines of business. When the farm bell rings, I will not be absent.

I pledge to farm people my deepest thinking, my warmest feeling, and my constant and full support. On this basis, I ask your support and your vote.

Sincerely,
HAYSE TUCKER

Save Every Scrap Of Rubber For Offense

With a scrap rubber shortage confronting the nation, State Salvage Committee Secretary Leon Gilbert appealed to Alabama citizens to concentrate on salvaging every possible pound of old rubber.

"Old tires and inner tubes, hot water bottles, rubber bath mats, old raincoats, rubber jar rings—those and any similar items of rubber can be found in nearly every home," Mr. Gilbert said.

"Naturally, we do not want anyone to give up rubber articles which are still usable. But, if our rubber reclaiming plants are to be able to produce on the vast scale needed, we must rely upon American housewives for the unstinted cooperation they are giving the paper salvage campaign.

The Salvage for Victory program has been so successful in stimulating the movement of waste paper back into production that paper mills throughout the country are now able to meet all current orders, Mr. Gilbert continued.

Much of the waste paper material being returned by dealers to the consuming mills has been inadequately or badly packed, or is of inferior quality. Dealers have been urged to pack their paper shipments carefully, and to direct their efforts toward moving paper of higher grades.

Mr. Gilbert stated the public can aid by segragating household waste paper, bundling it carefully. All dirty, oily or wet paper should be eliminated, and magazines, newspapers and cartons should be bundled separately.

A LOOK AT THE BOOK

By DR. BOB JONES, JR.

PRESIDENT OF BOB JONES COLLEGE

Cleveland, Tennessee

Possibly none of the words of Christ are more often quoted than these, "And ye shall know the Truth, and the Truth shall make you free" (John 8:32). They lend their beauty to many a political speech and many an educational lecture. They gleam like brilliant gems amid the rubbish of many a sterile sermon. They are engraved on the walls of university libraries and carved over the doors of college chapels.

In one sense there is freedom in all truth. However, truth is arrived at by two different ways. Some truth comes by discovery; some truth by revelation. The scientist in his laboratory, by experiment and research, may discover truth in the realm of science. The [illegible], the botanist, or the chemist may discover truths of natural law and use those truths to free men from the scourge of disease. The archaeologist may uncover truths from buried civilization and free men from false ideas about nations long since vanished. By the trial and error method, many may attain to truth, and truth brings freedom from error.

Spiritual truth, however, comes by revelation from God Himself. God, who in Himself is the embodiment of all truth, reveals Himself to man in the person of the Lord Jesus Christ, His Son. The truth of man's lost condition, the truth of the life hereafter, the truth of the person and love of God is revealed in the Bible, the Word of God. Truth which man discovers for himself frees him from error, but only the truth which God reveals frees man from sin and its power and its penalty. The mind of man by searching cannot discover God, and only God in the person of the Lord Jesus Christ is able to strike off the shackles of habit and sin and weakness which bind man body and soul. This eternal freedom which evades human discovery but comes as the gift of divine revelation is found in the Lord Jesus Christ. He who said, "And ye shall know the Truth, and the Truth shall make you free," said of Himself, "I am the Truth": and only God's Son frees man from self, from his own sinful passions and tendencies, and from the condemnation of his sin.

Wonderful words, these, "the Truth shall make you free," but completely realized only in Christ, the Incarnate Truth "If the Son therefore shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed" (John 8:36).

MORAL ECHOES

By Rev. D. W. Haskew, D. D.

One morning I was called to meet an engagement with an important group, and as I looked at my collar in the mirror, I was in doubt about its being clean enough for the interview. I stood there debating as to whether I should change collars, when my wife made up my mind by saying, "If your collar is dirty enough for you to argue over its condition, it is too dirty to be worn." Of course I changed collars. Have you ever stopped to argue the question of right and wrong? When we meet a situation where an argument arises as to whether we should do a thing or not, the best way is to leave off the argument and do what we know to be the right. Why debate the question of going a fishing, or attending a picture show on the Sabbath? Better leave off doing the thing that lifts a doubt in your mind. Settle all doubts by doing what you know is right.

Years ago a steamship went down off the coast of Alaska and four hundred passengers were lost. The ship struck an uncharted rock along the shore and only one man was able to swim through the slush-ice to safety. He alone of all those on the ship was permitted to hear the criticism that was made because the rock had not been charted. It is consoling to know that there are no uncharted rocks in our life course. God has charted all the danger rocks along our way of living. God has done all that a God can do to prevent the word, "Wreck" in our travel through life. Not only has God charted all the rocks, but He has also given to us a Pilot who knows the sea, and our Christ can guide us safely by all danger points. A wayfaring man, though he be a fool, need not err therein.

When the photographer snaps the picture, he can not be said to be in the possession of the picture. It is true that an impression is made upon the plate, but the least exposure to the light and the picture is hopelessly spoiled. The plate must be taken into a dark room, and there it must be immersed in a chemical solution before the picture is fixed and assumes a permanent form. It is true that the impression is made upon the sensative plate, but in its first condition, it is useless to all purposes. Just so, it is with the thoughts that first enter the mind. At first our thoughts are fugaive and light of impression. Our thoughts become steadfast by meditation. When we develop our thoughts into a will to act, then it is that they become permanent. It is then that our thoughts photograph our character and soul.

Ruskin tells us in one of his lectures, a story that was told to him by his mother. His mother said that one day when he was an infant that the nurse held him in her arms and his little baby hand went out to touch a bronze tea urn that was boiling merrily on the stove. The nurse pulled him back and then he set up a yell. His mother then ordered the nurse to let the baby touch the boiling urn if he wanted to, and he then had his way and touched it. Ruskin said that he then learned his first lesson on personal liberty. He had his way, but found out that what he thought to be his personal right, was not the thing that he wanted at all. The foolish baby cries to catch a hornet, and then it cries because the hornet is caught. For our own good, some force should restrain our personal liberties. We do not always need what we want.

It is said that an engineer who pulls his train from Philadelphia to Washington, must pick up and obey six hundred signals to insure the safety of his train. To be sure this engineer has personal rights and liberties, but when he is dealing with other human beings his liberties must not clash with the rights and liberties of those for whom he is responsible. When you hear one of these, "Wet Howlers" crying out for personal liberty, just ask him if he would like to ride on a train that is pulled by an engineer, who obeys nothing but his own wishes. It is nauseating to hear the "Wet Contenders" talking about their liberties being taken away from them. They have no right to wreck society and ruin the world with their personal rights. All of our liberties close where the rights of our fellowman begins.

The Sixth Congressional District Needs

AGGRESSIVE LEADERSHIP

ELECT SENATOR

Karl C. Harrison

The Sixth Congressional District needs courageous and aggressive leadership, which Senator Karl C. Harrison will provide. As Senator from the Fifteenth District of Alabama his record of outstanding achievement is well known. His ability won coveted recognition and his work as a member of the Code Committee won for him a respect from all his colleagues.

Senator Harrison is now staging a spectacular race for Congress and is gaining in each County comprising the Sixth Congressional District. He is definitely destined to be in the run-off --- Senator Harrison, booked a few years ago as a "political phenomenon," has never lost a political battle --- He has proven himself a winner and one who deserves the promotion he now seeks. JEMISON FFA MEMBERS TO GROW VEGETABLES

Members of the Vocational Agriculture classes and the FFA at Jemison High School are going "all out" growing vegetables for the home. About ninety per cent of the boys have added home gardening as an improvement project since the United States was forced into the war. Most of the boys are not only growing better vegetables but are planting a wider variety of vegetables. In these gardens we are planting cabbage, Irish potatoes, carrots, corn, beans, butter beans, lettuce, peas, squash, turnips, okra, spinach, asparagus, tomatoes, radishes, egg plants, onions, cucumbers.

In raising our own vegetables we are helping to save food for freedom. If we have plenty of vegetables in our home garden it means that we can do without many things which we would have to buy.

Our adviser has asked that all boys take home gardening in addition to the projects we had already started and he is getting 100 per cent cooperation.

It is important that the registrant detail as well as give full particulars as scribe his place of residence in de- to the address at which he will be sure to receive mail or other communications.

Anyone who is unavoidably away from his home on April 25 or April 27 may register at the registration place most convenient on that day, the Director said, but all registrants are urged to make every effort to register with their own local boards to avoid possible confusion in the future. Any person who must register away from home also is warned to carefully specify his home address so that his registration card may be forwarded promptly to his own local board.

Special registrars also will be provided to register men who cannot appear at a designated registration place because of illnes sor other incapacity, the Director stated, but it is incumbent upon these men to advise a registrar in their local board area of their inability to appear at a registration place.

A registrant who has more than one place of residence may choose which one he wants recorded as his place of residence, but no transient address may be recorded, Director Smith declared, and a registrant who lives on an RFD route which goes through two counties or States is required to indicate the location of his residence, rather than his mailing address.

After the registrant has answered all questions and signed his name to the registration card, he will be given a registration certificate signed by the registrar. This certificate must be in the personal possession of the registrant at all times. Failure to possess this certificate, or to show it to authorized persons constitutes a violation of Selective Service Regulations and is considered prima facia evidence of failure to register.

Director Smith pointed out that those who register on April 25 or April 27 are not liable for military service under the Selective Training and Service Act of 1940, as amended. They will be required later to fill out an occupational questionnaire concerning their civilian qualifications and skills, but that is for the purpose of obtaining information only.

226,000 Alabamians To Register Monday

Approximately 226,000 male residents in Alabama will be registered April 25th and April 27th for classification according to their skills and aptitudes of war production work, Brigadier General Ben M. Smith, State Director of Selective Service announced today.

National Selective Service Headquarters in Washington, D. C., anticipates a total registration of about 13,000,000 men between the ages of 45 and 64 years, inclusive, in Continental United States, the Territories of Alaska and Hawaii, and Puerto Rico.

The registration will include every male citizen and every male alien resident, other than persons exempted by the Selective Training and Service Act, who had attained the 45th anniversary of his birth on or before Feb. 16, 1942, and has not attained the 65th anniversary of his birth on or before April 27, 1942.

These men who register on April 25th and 27th, the Director pointed out, are not liable for military service under the law. They will be given certificates of registration which they must have in their personal possession at all times and produce at the request of authorized persons. Later they will be required to fill out an occupational questionnaire, detailing their civilian qualifications and skills, but that will be for the purpose of obtaining information only.

Anyone unavoidably away from home Monday may register at the most convenient registration place, the Director said, but all registrants are urged to make every effort to register with their own local boards to avoid possible confusion in the future. Director Smith pointed out that those men from 45 to 65 years old now registering are not liable for military service under the Selective Training and Service Act of 1940, as amended. Later, he said, they will be required to fill out an occupational questionnaire, but that will be merely for the purpose of obtaining information.

HERE IS THE POLITICAL SITUATION AS REGARDS THE RACE FOR GOVERNOR

When Col. Bibb Graves died, Chauncey Sparks had less than fifty thousand votes; a few thousand voters, who thought they saw a band wagon—made a hop, skip and jump—but the band wagon wasn't there. Chagrined and ashamed, most of them have returned to where they belonged.

Fully 100,000 voters, after Col. Graves died, found themselves leaderless. Jim Folsom—stalwart defender of the Graves political policies and philosophy, stepped into the breach, and the 100,000 leaderless Gravesmen started assembling under the banner of the only true representative of the masses. The tide to Folsom then began turning gradually—and has been growing steadily ever since—it has now reached tidal wave proportions, and on May 5th the true democratic citizenship of Alabama will nominate a man of the people for Governor, who in turn will be Governor for all the people—and his name will not be Sparks.

Revival Services At Methodist Church

Beginning Sunday May 10 and closing Sunday night May 17 a revival will be conducted in the Clanton Methodist Church. Rev. E. A. Childs, Pastor Dexter Avenue Methodist Church, in Montgomery, will do the preaching. Dr. Childs was pastor of the Clanton Church two years in the recent past and is very popular with all classes in this community. Associated with Rev. Childs, and leading the song services and conducting the childrens and young peoples services, will be Mr. Moody B. Cunningham, who was with the church last year in a two weeks revival. Mr. Cunningham is dearly beloved by all the people of the church and the many friends who heard him and met him last year.

The people of all denominations and those who do not belong to any church are cordially invited to hear these fine leaders of the church during their ministry in Clanton.

The pastor of the Church, Dr. T. C Casaday, urges all christians to pray daily for a great revival in Clanton.

THE McKEES AT PRYOR OKLAHOMA ARE O. K.

Word has been received here by Mr. T. L. McKee that his children who live at Pryor, Oklahoma, where the cyclone struck the first of this week, are all safe and o. k.

The cyclone killed 70, wounded some 200 and did approximately $2,000,000 damage.

IMPORTANT POINTS TO REMEMBER ABOUT SUGAR RATIONING REGISTRATON

The doors of the Clanton Elementary school will open at 8:00 a. m. Monday, May 4 for the registration for sugar rationing cards. The doors will close each day at 5 p. m. The registration closes Thursday May 7.

It will speed up registration if all registrants can give the following information readily:

1. Age, weight, height of each member of family.

2Exact amount of sugar on hand.

Time: May 4-5-6-7 from one to five o'clock.

Place: The nearest or most accessible elementary school building.

Who should register: Everybody except inmates of an institution or the armed forces of the United States.

Why everybody should be registered: A person who does not register will not be able to buy sugar.

Who can register: A person eighteen years of age can register for the other members of the family, and for himself.

What is the maximum amount of sugar a person may have on hand at the time of registration: Two pounds. But a person may have up to six pounds and have a stamp removed from the War Ration Book for each pound of sugar above two pounds. If he has more than six pounds of sugar no War Ration Book will be issued.

Must he report the amount of brown sugar he has on hand? Yes. He must also report the pounds of melted sugar.

Highlights of President Roosevelt's Message Delivered to The People Last Monday Night

WASHINGTON. — Highlights of President Roosevelt's message to Congress Monday follows:

The rise in the cost of living during this war has begun to parallel the last. The time has definitely come to stop the spiral and we can face the fact that there must be a drastic reduction in our standard of living.

We must . . . adopt as one of our principal domestic objectives the stabilization of the cost of living, for this is essential to the fortification of our whole economic structure.

I assure Congress that if the required objectives are not met and if the cost of living should continue to rise substantially, I shall so advise the Congress, and shall ask for any additional legislation which may be necessary.

We are now spending, solely, for war purposes, the sum of about $100,000,000 every day of the week. But before this year is over that rate of expenditure will be doubled. This means that a sum of equal to more than half of the entire national income will be spent in the war effort.

Profits must be taxed to the utmost limit consistent with continued production. This means all business profits—not only in making munitions, but in making or selling anything else,

And I therefore believe that in time of this grave national danger, when all excess income should go to win the war, no American citizen ought to have a net income after he has paid his taxes, of more than $25,000 a year.

I earnestly hope that the Congress will pass a new tax bill at the earliest moment possible. Such action is imperative in the comprehensive all-out effort to keep the cost of living down —and time is of the essence.

All stabilization or adjustment of wages will be settled by the War Labor Board machinery which has been generally accepted by industry and labor for the settlement of all disputes.

Most workers in munition industries are working far more than 40 hours a week, and should continue to be paid at time and a half for overtime. Otherwise, their weekly pay envelopes would be reduced.

* * *

As a national policy, the ceiling on farm products —in other words, the maximum prices to be received by the producers of these products—should be set at parity.

I have been urged by many persons and groups to recommend the adoption of a compulsory plan of savings by deducting a certain percentage of everyone's income. I prefer, however, to keep the voluntary plan in effect as long as possible, and I hope for a magnificent response.

I am confident that as to many basic necessities of life, rationing will not be necessary, because we shall strive to the utmost to have an adequate supply. But where any important article becomes scarce, rationing is the democratic equitable solution.

The result will mean that each and every one of us will have to give up many things to which we are accustomed. . . Our standard of living will have to come down.

Don't Forget! Next Tuesday is election day. Go to the polls and vote.

Traffic Deaths Fewer In 1942

With some 200 traffic deaths recorded in 50 Alabama counties during the first four months of 1942, including one in Chilton County, the State Department of Public Safety expects some 200 to 300 lives to be saved in the remainder of the year through the public's cooperation in observing the 40 miles per hour speed limit.

The new speed limit already has reduced traffic deaths from an average of more than two a day last year to little more than one a day since the law went into effect, Public Safety Director James F. Brawner pointed out.

Housewife to Get All Sugar Needed

Housewives of Chilton County can get ample supplies of sugar for preserving and canning.

This news comes from the Office of Price Administration which has charge of sugar rationing. Registration for ration cards were held here on April 28 and 29 for merchants and other business men stocking sugar and will be held on May 4, 5, 6 and 7 for the public in general. School teachers will have charge of the registration.

In order to obtain sugar for canning and presrving the housewife will have to declare herself an "industrialist." She will be asked to fill out blanks stating how much preserves, canned fruits, vegetables and other food products she expects to put up and how much sugar she will need.

With the government asking for a record production of food in 1942 and urging that nothing be wasted, it is not the position of OPA to retard this program in any way, an OPA official said.

"Therefore, this is assurance that the good housewife can quit worrying about sugar for canning," he added.

OSCAR A. DAVIS

O. A. Davis Resigns At First Baptist

Rev. O. A. Davis resigned as pastor of the First Baptist Church here Sunday. Rev. Davis has been pastor of the local church for the past four years and has made hundreds of friends in Clanton and Chilton County. His resignation will become effective May 15th.

Rev. and Mrs. Davis will go to Gadsden, Ala., where they will take up their work in the First Baptist Church there. Rev. Davis stated, "I have been in Clanton for four years among delightful people and have enjoyed most pleasant contacts with all church and civic groups."

Clanton and Chilton County will miss the Davises.

Gore Urges All To Save Scrap Iron

Citizens of Chilton County were warned today by Earl Gore, County chairman in the salvage-for-victory campaign, that the importance of the immediate collection of all scrap iron and unused rubber in any form cannot be overestimated

"We can't fight this war this year on the rubber tires, tubes and scrap lying around in backyards," Mr. Gore said, "even if they are turned in six months from today. We must have them now

"We must rush this rubber into useful war channels right away," he added. Mr. Gore pointed out that even small rubber articles—rubber gloves, short lengths of discarded garden hose, old bath mats, even the rubber heels of old shoes—can be used in the production fight fo rvictory.

"We—everyone of us—whether a housewife or a garage owner—must join today in the drive to strip every single scrap of surplus, discarded rubber from junk heaps and backyards, basements and attics." Mr. Gore said. "It may not seem important at the moment ,but every citizen must remember that his discarded casings, reworked at processing plants, may some day be carrying American soldiers to front line battles—battles which could be won or lost because of the amount of scrap rubber collected in Chilton County.

"The campaign of the Alabama Salvage Committee, named by Governor Frank M. Dixon to collect all war-useful material, is entirely localized in its organization," the Chilton county chairman said, pointing out that the responsibility rests with each local county.

Even the forests of Alabama are being combed for scrap iron and old rubber to increase collections in the salvage-for-victory campaign. Under orders of Dr. Walton Jones, state conservation director, all game wardens and forest rangers are on the alert for potenital salvage donations.

Postmasters Meet In Montgomery

Mrs. Gladys W. Deramus, Chilton County Chairman, states that the Alabama Chapter of the National Association of Postmasters a few days ago selected Montgomery as the convention city for 1942. Headquarters will be at the Whitley Hotel on convention days, Monday and Tuesday, May 18 and 19. Interest in Chilton County is already growing and indications point to the fact that a number of postmasters from this section will attend. Mongomery is centrally located and is an ideal place for business and pleasure. The importance of the post office in its part in the war program, no doubt will attract the largest attendance in Montgomery.

FARM MACHINERY EXEMPT FROM GAS REGULATIONS

Auburn, Ala.—Curtailment of gasoline deliveries to service stations and bulk consumers will not affect supplies for use in farm machinery. WPB has announced that the order limiting service stations to the 12-hour day (6 days a week) exempts deliveries to commercial vehicles, ambulances, or for the use of physicians, Federal, State and local governments, agricultural machinery, and others. The order limits service stations and bulk consumers to two-thirds of their average deliveries of last December, January, and February. Seventeen eastern states, the District of Columbia, Orgon and Washington are affected.

MORAL ECHOES

By Rev. D. W. Haskew, D. D.

We imagine a man standing by the side of a deep ditch, deep enough to be dangerous and yet not wide enough to keep him from leaping it if he should try real hard. While standing there if the man takes counsel from his fears, and magnifies the danger of the jump, he will not likely take the leap. If that man will say to his fears, Be gone,", and with faith in his ability to leap across, he will likely go over. Having faith in himself, he will take a leap and land safely on the other side. We often find ourselves facing danger and difficulties, and if we take counsel of our fears ,failure will be our reward. To face the problems and the difficulties of life with confidence in ourselves, we will most likely be able to go over them to safety and happiness. Self confidence creates power to make the leap.

While visiting in a home the lady of the houes showed great concern about her husband's health. In sympathizing with her I informed her that I saw him down town that morning and that he did not seem to be ill "That is just it," replied the wife, "He does not seem to be sick, but he thinks that he is and to make it alarming to us, he has gone to reading his Bible and saying his prayers like he thought that he was going to die." There are more wives than one in the land who would become distressed over the health of their husbands, if they were seen reading God's word, or saying their prayers. When a man thinks that he is likely to die, he becomes very pious.

I was reading the composition of an irreverent author, and met with a thrill as this writer described a creation of his imagination. He described a duck that flew backwards. According to this author the duck would squawk and then rise on its wings and fly backward. This duck was so bent on seeing from whence it came until it flew backward. Seemingly it cared nothing about where it was going. Kept its eyes on its path, and paid no attention to the path ahead. Unlike all other ducks it flew backward and not forward. We seem to have some human beings today who belong to this breed. They are mightily concerned about their ancestry and their family record. They look backward to the place from whence they came and not forward to where they are going. As for me I had much rather know where I am going than from whence I came.

In the year 1882 Bob Ingersol was adressing a gathering of free-thinkers, and he grew eloquent as he described the church as a dying institution. He shouted out his infidelity by saying that there would be no churches in America in fifty more years as every one of them was dying from dry-rot. Dr. MaCabe, a noted Methodist preacher saw his statement in the papers and wired him, "All hail the power of Jesus name. A Christian church is being built in America every day of the year and soon we will be building two each day. The church will never die." When Bob Ingersol shouted out his infidelity we had fifteen million church members in America and today we have more than fifty million members. Ingersol died, but not the church.

Not many years ago there was an Infidel who was doing his best to upset the faith of God's children, and in the midst of his oration, he jumped up and down on the platform and shouted his defiance into the face of God by soying, "I dare you God, if there be such a being, to strike me down." He then waited a moment as if he expected something to happen, and then with a satanic grin on his face he continued, "You can now understand why I say there is no God. If there had been such a being in the Universe, his self respect would have caused him to accept my challenge." To me the unanswered defiance in that blatant infidel is proof sufficient that there is a God. One who has mercy. One who has pity, One who has forgiving grace. One who has patience. We have a God who refuses to answer man according to his folly. We have a God who is too good to reward us according to our merits.

THOMAS S. ("BUSTER") LAWSON

To My Friends and Constituents:

I appreciate deeply the confidence reposed in me by you in thrice electing me to Congress. I have tried diligently to be worthy thereof and believe I have succeeded. Proud of the record it has been my privilege to make for you and our District, I assure you of my continued best efforts and solicit a continuation of your friendship, your loyalty, and your support.

Having regarded it as my duty to remain on the scene of action during much of the campaign, it has been and still is necessary for me to lean more heavily on you than ever before. I am grateful indeed for your reaction to this necessity for which I sincerely thank you.

Our treacherous enemies did not adjourn this war to afford us time for the campaign, causing the foreign affairs of our Country to demand the constant vigilance and attention to those officials charged with the duty of safe-guarding our national interests. It has been my duty and pleasure to shoulder the responsibility of the seventh member of the twenty-five member Foreign Affairs Committee of the House... I shall continue to discharge this all-important duty regardless of my personal or political fortunes. I can naturally do so more efficiently, however, when it becomes unnecessary for me to divide my attention between this obligation and a campaign to preserve my valuable seniority for our district. Consequently, I solicit the active, diligent assistance of each of you in accomplishing my election in the first primary, permitting me thereafter to devote my undivided attention to these duties. I would much prefer to invest the expense of a "Run Off" campaign in War Savings Bonds, and am very confident that either of my opponents would profit by doing so.

Thank you, my friends, from the bottom of a very appreciative heart.

In Race For Commissioner Dist. One

To The Voters of Chilton County:

I am writing you this letter because there is many of you that I have not been able to see in person. I think I am qualified to serve you as County Commissioner for the First District. There has never been a Commissioner elected from beat 1 and not one man from Beat 1 has ever had a job on the road machines or county truck. This looks unfair to me and I can tell you truthfully that the citizens of Beat 1 want me elected as well as a large part of the citizens of the entire District. If you should hear that I am disqualified for any cause you can be sure it is false for I am in the race until the last vote is counted.

Thanking you for your support, I am,

Yours very truly,

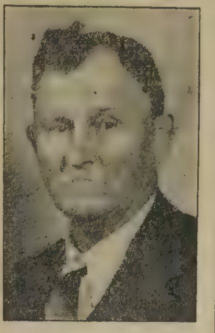
For Commissioner Second District



ARTHUR J. LECROY

In my race for Commissioner for the Second District of Chilton county I have tried to call on as many of the voters of the County as possible, and express to you in person my views pertaining to the County's better welfare. I made this same race four years ago—that being my first attempt in politics—and I believe I made many friends in the County then. From the encouragement given me by the voters in my present race, I feel confident of being nominated in the May 5th primary.

As stated previously, I believe our first aim should be to win this war we are now in.

We also know that living costs have climbed enormously in the last few months. In my contacts all over the county with the present laborers on the roads of the county, I find that they are very much underpaid. If nominated and elected I will endeavor to see that all the laborers on the roads of the county are paid a reasonable living wage for their work—believing in turn that the county should have an honest days work for a reasonable wage.

I also favor the Old Age pension. I believe in honest and fair dealings with everyone, and if elected I will endeavor to deal as honestly as I know how with the county's affairs

During the past few weeks I have tried to see all of you but it has been impossible. Just remember that if I didn't get to see you and ask you personally for your vote I am asking you for it now.

I will appreciate your vote and influence on May 5th if you believe in fair and honest dealings.

Respectfully,
ARTHUR J. LECROY.

CHAUNCEY SPARKS

Governor of Alabama on May 5th

. IT CAN BE DONE The political race for Governor of this State is just about over. It is conceded by those best informed that Judge Chauncey Sparks will be Alabama's next Governor. It is the opinion of most that this political race will be determined and over with the first primary vote on May 5th. This can very easily be true if YOU will be certain to go to the polls and vote on May 5th.

. IT SHOULD BE DONE With our country at war—with all the troubles and confusion caused by war conditions—with the necessity of unity of thought and action—with the demand upon each of us to exert our every effort to win this war—with the certain demand upon all of us to exercise economy that we may support the Federal Government with every penny that we have, and upon our State Government to function in a sound, practical, economic basis—WE MUST ELECT A MAN CAPABLE OF THIS LEADERSHIP, BASED ON HIS KNOWLEDGE OF GOVERNMENTAL AFFAIRS, HIS EXPERIENCE IN JUDICIAL AND LEGISLATIVE MATTERS, AND WHOSE RECORD PROVES HIS ABILITY AND SINCERITY OF PURPOSE. That man is JUDGE CHAUNCEY SPARKS.

. IT WILL BE DONE Each of us recognizes the truth of these statements. We know that this is not the time for old-fashioned "mud-slinging," belittling political campaigning. We know that this is not the time for any man to try to better his own political or economical position for selfish purposes. We know we must have unity of purpose and effort and there is no need for continuance of this campaign beyond May 5th. Judge Chauncey Sparks will be our next Governor. We recognize that Alabama needs the best leadership that is available, that we must have as Governor a man who can give us this leadership, and that Judge Chauncey Sparks is that man. Alabama cannot afford to make a mistake that would take four years or longer to correct.

Asks Reelection To The Same Office

RASCOE MADDOX

To the voters of Chilton County:

In this brief message I wish to express my appreciation to you for having elected me to the office I hold, for the expressions of confidence in my work as superintendent, and for the unsolicited words of encouragement given me in my race for reelection. I have been made very happy during the past few weeks by the kind things said to me by people from all parts of the county.

During the three and a half years I have served as your superintendent I have tried to deserve this confidence by always being fair and open in all me dealings with all the people. I have never once tried to do anything but what I thought was right. When the occasion demanded it I have stood firmly for the right as I saw it, but I have also always listened patiently to every suggestion and request and have tried to see the point of view of others. I have never played the dictator or tricky politician.

The condition of the county's school system has never been better. Since I became superintendent every teacher and every bus driver has been paid on time. All bills have been paid promptly the first of the month. For the first time in the history of Chilton County schools not one cent has had to be borrowed in two years to meet all bills and payrolls.

It has been a disappointment that my official duties and the many extra duties growing out of my cooperation with the war effort have kept me from doing much visiting among you. I hope that in the next few months I shall be able to call on most of you personally.

I hope I deserve your confidence and support. I have tried and shall continue to serve you and your children to the best of my ability.

Respectfully yours,

Big Jim's The Man

When Gov. Graves died, like thousands of other Graves supporters, I fell into the Sparks camp, believing him the best man for Governor. I didn't take time to look over the lesser statellites ,or those supposed to be the lesser, but after meeting Big Jim Folsom of North Alabama, hearing Judge Sparks endorse the very things he fought in the Alabama Legislature and hearing his publicity man lecture Carrollton voters for not supporting Sparks, and threaten to strike a boy who was paid to deliver Sherlock's handbills after the Sparks' speaking, I confess my error, repent of my sin, and apologize here for taking a stand and then retracting it.

I see in Big Jim Folsom a real possibility. He is young, clean as a "hound's tooth," honest, ambiitous capable, fearless and is making such strides in his campaign that he has stricken fear into the camps of his leading opponents. He started this fight alone and most of us never considered him in the running; but take my word, if he is in the second primary, and his friends say he will be, he will be the next Governor.

Big Jim is the type of man who can be approached by any of us, and not a high-hat politician who has no love nor sympathy for the masses. When he is Governor, any man can get an audience with him, and a sympathetic understanding. Just hear him tomorrow while he is in Pickens County and draw your own conclusions. When you see and hear him talk, shake his strong hand and look into his keen sympathetic eyes, you will understand and if you are honest with yourself, you will join with me and the other thousands of his admirers in electing him Governor of Alabama.— Jack Pratt, in Pickens County Herald.

Radio Address by Mrs. Williams Over WCOV

Radio Address by Mrs. Whittle Williams, WCOV, Montgomery, May 25th, 1942.

Ladies and Gentlemen:

Mr. Mark L. Tucker, Campaign Manager for Mr. Jim Folsom, candidate for Governor of Alabama, states that a political tidal wave from the Tennessee valley to the Gulf of Mexico is steadily flowing to that fine young man who is leading Alabama's progressive democracy in the present campaign and it now seems probable that he will be high man in the run off.

We wonder how many women will vote for Mr. Chauncey Sparks on May 5th. If it were left up to Mr. Sparks would any be able to vote for him or anybody else? He didn't want the women to have the privilege of voting—yet he asks them now —to vote for him.

In this fair state we want our young men to see visions and our old "to dream dreams—how are our old men to dream dreams in this world of mad haste unless he receives an old age pension?"

On the back of Mr. Folsom's card you read: I am for old age pensions—If you are old enough to feel the beginning of old age you will want to vote for that. There are two things we want as we grow old—calmness of mind and repose of spirit—the pressure of modern life calls for an intenseness of energy that affects the whole being. . . . just to know we can depend on receiving a few dollars each month when we are older and half that battle is won—Some think that would mean more tax—burdening us more—the young have the strength and don't mind paying for it.

A nine month school term. The fact that we do not have a nine month school term is embarrassing to every Alabamian and any other progressive state. That does not need to be discussed. Mr. Folsom's card says: I am for free school books—free school books for all grammar school students —and will make every effort to provide the same, says Mr. Folsom.

Mr. Folsom's card says: I am for better salaries for school teachers. . . School teachers . . . leaders in every community . . . those so close to our children. . . perhaps next to the parents in influencing your child—then we want the best, don't we?

I am for better working and living conditions for all working men and women. Some men we know personally work twelve and fourteen hours each day, even eating their cold lunch on the job. . . .Some businesses need to shorten their hours, some stores.

I am for submitting the liquor question to the voters of the state for solution . . . I am for full cooperation with the State Health Department. . . .

If every man in Alabama were like Chauncey Sparks and no males could be imported—in 100 years—how many people do you think would be living in Alabama to vote for anyone?

Why do we vote anyway? Why do you vote women? Don't de do it to be better taken care of? Then don't vote for Mr. Sparks—he votes against us every time. He just doesn't love us.

Women told us over the telephone "We are not voting for Mr. Sparks for Governor. He can't understand the harrassing problems of a parent but we don't know anything about Mr. Folsom." . . So we said "Send to Mr. Folsom's headquarters for some of our literature on a man who can understand parents problems."

It is said this state—Alabama holds all God ever promised man. Shame on its fair face does not elect a progressive man for governor on May 5.

Mrs. Whittle Williams.

Candidate For Office Of Sheriff of County

To the voters of Chilton County, Alabama:

In my campaign for the office of Sheriff of Chilton County I have tried to see as many of the voters as possible. My duties as Chief of Police of the City of Clanton has prevented me from making a thorough campaign as I would have liked to have made. I feel however, that I am known to the Democratic voters of this County and that my work as a peace officer is well known to you.

As this campaign draws to an end I wish to pledge the citizens of Chilton County that if I am nominated and elected Sheriff of Chilton county that I will do my best to give you capable and efficient service. That I will endeavor to strictly enforce all of the laws of this County during my term of office and will do my utmost to suppress "honkey tonks" and similiar places in this county, and I feel sure that I will have the cooperation of a great majority of citizens in enforcing the law in Chilton County.

I wish to thank the many voters of the County who have assisted me in my campaign and thank them for the many assurances of support that I have received.

J. A. NIVENS.

Letters To The Editor

Editor of Chilton County News:

I have just read a speech that United States Attorney Clyde Eastus of the Northern District of Texas, Feb. 22, 1942. I guess you have read it and know that it is a fine speech and will be of a great benefit to many people to do something to help win the war. We cannot realize how we would feel to loose our privilege, liberty and free speech. We see that there was haters of truth in the days of Jesus and the Apostles. And they are still here and mobs were here 1941 years ago, and are still here.

In 1936 some man said the Heiracy of Rome is bending every effort to seize and control America. He also said long after the powers of the Ancient Philestines was destroyed Jehovah caused the following prophecy to be recorded concerning the modern Philestines, the Roman Catholic Heirachy which now opposes those who serve God and to that organization God says at Isaiah 28:14-21 Hear the word of Jehovah you scornful men that rule and oppress my people. Because you have said we have made an authoritive declaration and arrangement with death and hell and that the overflowing scourge shall not harm us because we have made lies our refuge and under falsehood hid ourselves, behold I have sent forth Christ Jesus the great stone, the chief one of my organiaztion to separate and judge the nation. Judgment also will I lay to the time and righteousness to plumet and the hail of truth shall sweep away the refuge of lie and the waters shall overflow the hiding place. And your covenant with death shall be disannulled and your agreement with hell shall not stand. When the overflowing scourge (of Armageddon) shall pass through, then ye shall be trodden down by it. . for the Lord shall rise as in Mount Perazin he shall be wrath as in the valley of Gibeon that he may do his work his strange work and bring to pass His act, his strange act. At Perazim and Gibeon David who was a type of Christ Jesus led the fight against Philistines and completely defeated them. At Armageddon the Greater David Christ Jesus will lead the fight against modern Philistines and all their allies and will destroy them and none of them shall find a way to escape. Jeremiah 25:35-36 later on in his lectures he says' we ought to pray more and that Ludwig says that Hitler. government is destroying the Jews and that Catholics are buying the Jewish shops. This is further proof that Hitler and Rome stand together. That Roman aCtholic church is composed of but few men, there are millions that are called Catholics and whom the church itself designates as the Catholic population and they support the church.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR:

Dear Editor:

An intensified War Bond Sales Campaign is being launched throughout the United States on Friday, May 1st.

The people of America must more than double their investments in War Bonds and War Stamps.

To this end, the Treasury Department is establishing a monthly quota for every county in the United States.

Labor and management are being called upon to see that at least ten per cent of every payroll goes into Bonds and Stamps.

This is a gigantic task and must be supported by the cooperation of all media.

We are sending you, beginning immediately, suggested material about the campaign.

Your assistance in the past has been a great help and in order to achieve our goal we must have your continued and vigorous support.

Sincerely,

H. MORGENTHAU, Jr.

Secretary of the Treasury

Asks For Office of Tax Collector of County

JIM PARRISH

To The voters of Chilton County:

On next Tuesday the voters are to select their democratic nominees for our various offices. I am a candidate for the office of Tax Collector, and have as my opponents two of Chilton County's finest gentlemen.

Since the war for freedom, and our march to victory is predominant in the minds of our people at this time, we all have had to alter our regular routine, and for these reasons, I have not had sufficient tires to carry me to all of the places that I wanted to visit. I do however, want to express my deepest appreciation for the consideration that has been extended to me toward my successful campaign.

I am not running for this office on the weakness or demerits of my opponents. Neither am I engaged in or connected with any political group, that may now, or ever lower the standards of our party, by the purchase of votes. I have always felt that the buyer of votes is one of our very worst enemies.

When the voters of Chilton County elect me to the office of Tax Collector, I will be found on the job at all times, endeavoring to make you the best tax collector Chilton county has ever had.

I have attempted to run my campaign on a high level, which has met with the approval of a majority of the voters of Chilton County.

I desire to express my appreciation of the many courtesies shown me in this campaign by my friends and the assurances I have received from them of their support.

Respectfully yours,

JIM PARRISH.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Editor Chilton County News:

Please allow me to correct a rumor I have heard on Hoyt Freeman.

That he had not always been a Democrat, he has, I have known him from childhood, his father died when he was a young man and he has been loyal to his widowed mother and sister. He is a Baptist and is liberal in helping to support his church.

He is a handy man around sickness and at funerals. So I just wanted to correct the rumor of him not being a Democrat first, last and all the time. —A "True blue."—J. C. VEAZEY.

HARP AND HARMONY SINGING

Sunday, May 3rd, the Chilton County Harp and Harmony Singing Association will be in session at Cedar Grove M. E. Church one and a half miles Southwest of Thorsby. Singing will begin at 10:30 a. m. war time. It is expected that a number of visiting singers from other Counties will be present on this date. A short business session will be in order at 1:30 p. m., that of electing new officers for the ensuing year.

It is the plan of the Secretary that the young and middle aged people of the county see to it that your old folks have the privilege of attending this old-time singing. Generally speaking they love it as something we call a cherished childhood memory so let us all honor them by seeing that they have the privilege of going should they care.

Bring your picnic lunch for spreading at the noon hour. Remember the place—Cedar Grove and the time is all day May 3rd.

HOYT FREEMAN

HOYT FREEMAN WRITES VOTERS

Hoyt Freeman writes to the voters, and expresses the belief that he is well qualified to serve the people of Chilton County as their Commissioner.

I feel that it is only fair to the voters of Chilton County that they know something of my fitness, qualificiations and what I will advocate and do as their Commissioner.

I was born and reared in Chilton County, and have lived on a farm all of my life. I have worked some eight years on County and State roads. My experience is, that it is much cheaper to build roads in the summer months therefore, unless it is absolutely necessary, I will not tear up any roads during the winter or rainy season, but will continue to gravel all roads, so we may have an all weather road to every home in Chilton County.

I will be in favor of the men who work on our roads, receiving a fair pay for their work. I believe in aiding our schools as far as County funds will permit. I am a firm believer in and will work for the Old Age Living plan.

I have tried to see every voter in person but of course this was impossible, and am asking for your vote and in return will give you my best efforts in County affairs. Your vote on May 5, will be appreciated, I am

Sincerely yours,
HOYT FREEMAN.

Alabama Public Service Commission

DIVISION NO. 1

The work of the Alabama Public Service Commission has a very vital relation to the industrial, commercial and agricultural development of the state, and those who are elected to this Commission should be men who are capable of dealing with these problems, and, as far as possible, experienced in such work and who are known to be loyal to the public interests.

The Commission has attained national reputation as one of the most efficient and progressive State Commissions throughout the country.

The people throughout the State know Fitzhugh Lee is capable and experienced in dealing with these matters and they know he is loyal to the public interest.

During his term of office, the Commission has revised the rates of the transportation companies and public utilities, so as to give the public the benefit of many rate reductions. The record shows that the Commission is continuously making further reductions and will continue to lessen the cost of service to the consumer whenever this is possible. The record shows a saving to customers of $54,000,000 plus, due to reductions in electric, gas, water and telephone rates since he was elected.

UNITE for VICTORY with HAYSE TUCKER

HAYSE TUCKER

From every corner of the great Sixth District come reports of the swing to Tucker. Dissatisfaction with conditions has long been general; and the decision to make a change is now plain.

VOTERS WILL NOT ALLOW--

appeals to class prejudice, attempts to split the Sixth District into hostile segments, or hints and insinuations which are personal and unfair, to have effect. The record shows that Hayse Tucker represented all Alabama and legislated for schools, farms, labor, and good government for eight years in Montgomery. If it had wished, Tuscaloosa could not control or locally claim him; and Alabama named him as her own "most outstanding legislator".

UNITY is always the effect when big men are chosen. Hayse Tucker will serve every corner of the district with equal interest, fairness, and energy. He will act without prompting for agriculture, commerce, labor, education, and public welfare. Voters do not guess about this—it is the printed, published record of the man.

VOTERS ARE UNITING NOW

—under the Tucker banner. Signs of desperation in the opposition (wild claims, stories that appeal to prejudice, last-minute rumors) merely testify to the fact that his strength is recognized and that "dust in the eyes" is used where no point of attack can be found in the record.

Friends of Hayse Tucker in this final appeal say again what has been their slogan throughout, "Let the record name the man". Study of the facts leaves no doubt of Hayse Tucker's character or ability as written indelibly in the record. We, his friends working quietly by hundreds over this district, again deliberately and honestly certify him to the voters as the strongest available candidate.

ALL WAR PRODUCTION WORKERS FINGER PRINTED

Workers in Alabama's vital war production factories will soon join the ranks of civil service employees, members of the armed forces and numerous others in public life by having their fingerprints recorded and filed as future testimoinal of their participation in America's present conflict.

According to Colonel James R. Alfonte Fourth Corps Area Quartermaster, all employees of manufacturing plants in Alabama which are engaged in war production will be fingerprinted. This applies to every official and officer of the firm, as well as to the most menial employee.

Although it is mandatory that each employee be fingerprinted, Colonel Alfonte pointed out, the records will go into a permanent civilian file in Washington, D. C., as a lasting record that the person fingerprinted was doing his share during his country's battle for freedom.

Only employees ot those manufacturing plants actually engaged in war production will be fingerprinted, authorities pointed out. The work in many of these facilities is under the direction of the General Service Division of the Fourth Corps Area Quartermaster's office but the actual fingerprinting will be done by employees of the company who have been specially trained. All fingerprinting in these plants must be completed not later than June 1, 1942.

M. C. (JACK) HAYES

M. C. (Jack) Hayes, candidate for Tax Collector, Makes a Final Appeal to the Voters of Chilton County.

As the campaign is drawing to a close for the May 5 primary election, I want to take this opportunity to say a few words in behalf of my candidacy.

I have been unable to see all the voters but I trust that I may have the opportunity before May the 5th. It is needless for me to go into detail and give you a past history of myself and my people as we are natives of Chilton County.

I have always taken an active interest in the civic and public affairs of my county, have been a conscientious church member, and since leaving college and entering the business world have continued to keep the interest of all the schools at heart and have rendered what service I could when the need arose.

My business ability enables me to be well qualified for the office I am seeking.

If you elect me as your Tax Collector I will give the office my entire time. I assure you that the affairs of the office will be carried out in a manner that will be pleasing to you.

In conclusion, I would like to say that I have conducted a clean campaign and will continue to do so. To my friends and supporters I want to thank you for the cooperation I have received and I solicit the continuation of your support. A good record is better than campaign promises. Your vote and influence will be appreciated.

Sincerely your friend

All WPA Recreation Projects to be Devoted To War Service

With approximately 95 per cent of those employed on the WPA recreation program now engaged in war services, Miss Mary Weber, Alabama Director of WPA Community Service Programs, said today that normal WPA community recreation projects will have to be suspended for the duration of the war.

The only civilian recreation programs which WPA will be able to operate, she said, will be those requested by war agencies for war production centers where normal community facilities are unable to keep abreast of population increases

Direct service to the Army and Navy will take first place in the WPA recreation programs, Miss Weber said, and more than 200 WPA employee are now engaged in that work.

Recreational leadership for men in the armed forces is being provided by WPA on more than 200 military posts in the United States and in nearly 500 communities adjacent to military reservations.

On military posts, WPA recreation leaders work under the direction of Army and Navy special service officers. In communities adjacent to reservation WPA augments normal recreation facilities by staffing recreation centers an darranging special community activities, under the general sponsorship of the Office of Defense Health and Welfare. The facilities and often a paid director, are provided by the community.

Miss Weber suggested that communities cushion the effect of discontinuance of WPA civilian recreation activities by employing on a part-time or volunteer basis some of the workers who have been trained by WPA.

Now holding other jobs in their home communities, she pointed out, are many men and women who, at some time, have worked on WPA recreation projects and have been trained to supervise certain recreational activities. Although each worker may be able to spare only a few hours per week, sufficient numbers of persons have had this training that planned use of their volunteer or part-time services should enable most communities to carry on a reasonably adequate recreation program

To carry heavy wartime traffic at lowest cost, Alabama needs CONCRETE ROADS

Concrete is helping build vital strength and durability into the nation's roads and streets—where war requirements demand 365-day service without costly pavement failures.

Concrete's rugged strength is little affected by weather conditions. Its high skid-resistance, wet or dry, is a great safety factor. Concrete's moderate first cost, low maintenance and long life make it the real low cost pavement over the years for main roads.

This state can invest for the future as well as give maximum aid to the war effort by paving strategic roads with concrete.

Concrete was chosen for important new access and strategic highways in Alabama. Where main-traveled roads are to be improved, ask for this strong, economical type of pavement.

Dear Ben:

How's the ole editor getting along these days? Mother sends us the News every week and Reba and I read every word of it.

I got my first class of American cadets when I came back this time and I am certainly glad to have some one that can understand my southern drawl.

I have two good southern boys, one from Tennesse and one from Louisiana, and it so happened that both had had previous flying experience so they are really my star pupils. I also have a cadet from New Jersey and one from Chicago and both are doing fine. I had to wash out one of my cadets, a boy from Pittsburgh, because he could not relax. I surely did hate to wash him out because he was my first out of fifteen to eliminate.

I miss teaching the British boys very much and I think every instructor here will say that they are really a bunch of gentlemen. I think the American cadets learn faster at first but once the British boys catch on they improve steady and by the time they graduate they are plenty good.

We teach in regular army primary trainers. You have seen plenty of them as you pass Maxwell Field. I can't tell you how many planes we have here but there seem to be a lot more space on the ground than there is in the air. It really is a lot of fun flying here but you have to be awfully careful of other planes especially doing aerobatics. Our planes are not fast but are rugged. They really do take a beating during the last stages of training. We teach everything possible other than outside loops. It really is remarkable to see what a boy can do with a plane after seven weeks of training. They think nothing of flying upside down or any other way.

Reba is having to cook with boxing gloves on now—she has burned her hands so much all the WPA ointment has been used up.

I guess we (will be seeing you in about six weeks, so brush up on your Michigan.

Sincerely,
ALEX HAYES.

Candidate For Tax Collector Of County

A LETTER FROM TOM McKEE

To The Voters of Chilton County:

I became a democratic voter in 1905 and as much as my time and means would permit me to, I have given aid to the democratic principles.

In the beginning of this race the candidates had a meeting and had an honorable gentleman's agreement not to have anything to do with or get any absentee votes (except we could write letters to people who lived out of the county and ask them to vote for us.) I, realizing the value of harmony in the Democratic party gladly agreed to the above agreement and have complied with it 100 per cent.

When I was in office I tried to be fair to everyone without any consideration as to his politics or religion, as I think any public official should do. You folks know my record for being efficient, courteous, fair and accomodating and I am willing to risk your judgment as to whether or not you were satisfied with the way I conducted the office.

I have always been and am yet in favor of the Old Age Pension and anything that you people see that I can do to help in this cause call on me and I will gladly do it.

Most of you people in this county know that I am a farmer and I, like many other fathers, in this serious condition of war, have sacrificed the help of my boys, one in the Air Corps and two in defense work, all out of the State, which compelled me to give part of my time to the looking after the farm interest and did not allow me to see and visit with as many of you as I would have liked to and which I would have enjoyed doing, but I trust you will not think that I have neglected you or your interest and that you can and will go to the polls next Tuesday and vote for me with the absolute assurance that your interest will be looked after as I did in the past.

Respectfully yours,
T. L. McKEE.

Seeking Office Of Sheriff of County

A LETTER FOR J. R. HARDY

It is now less than a week until you people who exercise right and privilege as a citizen will be doing so for the purpose of selecting or nominating men to represent you after a general election in the following Fall in some office which is as much your office as any other tax payers of your state and county.

As I am sure most of you if not all have already learned to know the fact that I am a candidate for Sheriff again, subject to the action of the Democratic primary, I wish at this time to thank each of you whom I have been able to see during my canvassing period.

I am truly grateful to you for your disposition toward me and the time you gave me when I was with you.

To those of you whom I did not get to see, may I say that I shall always regret the same for I am sure the friendly contact would have been like those I did see, (a positive inspiration in the future.) I asked every one as I began my canvassing not to term my failure to see you as an act of carelessness or indifference, so I am asking you again.

I also wish to thank those of you who have volunteered your time and services to my interest as so many of you have.

It has been my hearts fondest desire that neither me nor any supporters of my interest, allow ourselves to become over enthusiastic and do or say anything that would hurt or offend any one, so if any one of you have been intruded on, "Please accept my humble apology."

May I urge you voters to avail yourselves of the privilege of voting in the May 5th primary and in the meantime if you have not investigated my past record as sheriff as well as my moral character, I shall be delighted to have you do so and then if you can "give" me your vote and influence, I shall always strive to prove myself worthy of the trust you have reposed in me.

Again I urge you to exercise your privilege of helping select those who are to represent your interest in all public offices in your County and State, it is yours, therefore don't sell it to no man. No price that would or could be paid you is worth the privilege that is yours to exercise according to the dictates of your own conscience.

It is an undisputed truth that I want to win the office I am asking for, still I had a thousand times rather be an honorable loser than to win under any circumstance les sthan moral honesty.

Respectfully,
J. R. HARDY.

FOLKS AND THINGS ABOUT TOWN

By BEN

This was taken from the "Lsitening Post" column in the Daily Leader, Fulton, Ky., and is worth your time to read. It will probably go down in newspaper history as the greatest tribute to the:

MEN OF BATAAN

Move over, Davy Crockett! Stand at attention, James Bowie. Draw your cavalry into line and send your ghostly trumpet calls through the valley of the Little Big Horn, George Custer! Come alive, ye who died at Valley Forge! Salute and cheer, all ye who have died in battles of forlorn hopes, or no hope at all, through all the years of this Republic!

Walk again your quarterdeck John Paul Jones, and review another band of sailors just as heroic as those bluejackets you once led into a small invasion of England! Stand with him, Perry and Farragut, for men of your breed are trampling along the glory road you and your men have walked! Stand and roar your cheers, Devil Dogs of other wars, for great-hearted Marines, too, are joining your company! A new battle cry has been given America! A new chapter of glory has been added to the great book which is America!

For today the Men of Bataan are moving in! By every tradition, by every belief, by every glorious standard of the Republic which we revere, these men deserve your salute and your cheers . By every standard those earlier men set up these Men of Bataan are worthy of every honor. Not all of them died, as they did in the Alamo or at the Little Big Horn—but every one was willing to die and every one gave all that he had for many a weary day. In the dust of rocky Bataan, hiding in the foxholes, concealed in the jungle, in hastily dug trenches, with the sea at their back and an implacable enemy in front these men wrote imperishable history which will be read by glowing eyes in centuries to come.

It was not a forlorn hope. It was a place of no hope at all. Those men when they swung into positions at Bataan, knew that their only hope for rescue was in overwhelming reinforcements in men and materials, and most of them knew there was no hope for this. Most of them knew they constituted merely a far outpost of the Republic which had been cut off by the fortunes of war, and knew that while the Nation wanted to send help there was no method by which it might be sent. Yet for three months or more Bataan was America just as surely as Kansas or Kentucky or Tennessee. In the jungles that American flag flew defiantly against the rising and overwhelming Japanese forces, and there was never a day when it was disgraced by weakness.

Some of those who come to you, Crockett and Bowie and Custer, in that Valhalla of slain warriors, will seem strange. Many will be familiar, as familiar as those who died with you so many years ago. But in the ranks of the slain you will se some strange faces, and you may not understand at first. Those familiar faces will soon set you right on the matter. They will tell you that while many of those who come down the corridors with them are brown-skinned and foreign looking they are nevertheless Americans. For one the shores of Bataan the men of the Philippines fought and died with the American boys and they fought just as well as did their whiter companions. They earned the right on Bataan to be called Americans—and they are Americans!

It was a bitter day for the United States when the news came of utter defeat of Bataan. All of us knew, certainly that defeat was the only climax of that glorious stand. None of us had any illusions on the matter. Yet, when the final news came it was stunning in its impact. It must have been that the gallant stand for the past three months had made us believe that perhaps that smal larmy might hold out and hold on until help could reach them. It was not to be. The Japanese began an all-out attack a week ago, and day after day and night after night swarmed against the small army in ever-increasing floods. Tanks hammered at ground troops that had only rifles and machine guns. Dive bombers roared overhead against an army that was completely grounded and had no air force whatever. Food became a pressing question; disease and utter exhaustion played their part in the defeat. The thin hope that lived in some hearts gradually died a few days ago when the news came that Bataan lines were being breached.

No one knows now what will be the fate of the forts in Manila bay. They have stood off savage air attacks for many days, and their food supplies may be low. Amunition may be running low. It seems more than probable that they will be forced into submission.

God grant that these defeats, these records of valor, may not be forgotten. Give us the strength to carry on. Give us the determination to make whatever sacrifices are needed in order to build and equip the forces which some day in the not-distant future will begin to roll back the Far East. To the slogan of "Remember Pearl Harbor," the Men of Bataan have added another clause—"Remember Bataan, and the Men who fought and died there."

Move over, all ye heroes of other wars! Make room for other heroes who also have died for freedom!

CORREGIDOR FALLS; JAPS FINALLY SECURE CONTROL OF MANILA BAY

More Than 6,500 Troops, Nurses Are Forced To Surrender

(From Birmingham Post)

General MacArthur's Headquarters, Australia, May 6.—Corregidor and its three sister fortresses, America's islet bastions in Manila Bay, surrendered [illegible] with a garrison of upwards of [illegible] American troops, sailors, ma- [illegible] and Army Nurses.

The regular garrisons, numbering more than 3,000, had been increased by 3,500 troops and nurses who had been evacuated to Corregidor from Bataan. This total had been reduced by an unknown number of casualties.

Firing ceased on Corregidor and the islands of Caballo, Fraile and Carabao this morning after Japanese shock troops stormed the North Beach of Corregidor, crossing the Boca Chico Channel from Bataan in invasion barges.

The little garrison, tired and at the end of its resources, could not withstand the attack which was backed up by a terrific bombardment from dive-bombing planes and heavy guns, and General Jonathan M. Wainwright asked for the Japanese terms of capitulation.

General Douglas MacArthur announced the end in a special communique at 4:15 p.m. today (1:15 a. m., Birmingham Time) from his Australia headquarters:

"General Jonathan M. Wainwright has surrendered Corregidor and the other fortified islands in Manila Harbor."

There had been a blazing climax of 27 days and nights in which the little garrison of American and Philipino defenders, including army nurses, stood up unflinching to an unceasing attack by Japanese dive-bombing planes and big guns.

Five Pounds Sugar Limit To Canners

Every person holding a War Ration Book can get a special allotment of not more than five pounds of sugar a year for home canning or preserving fresh fruits and vegetables for home consumption, the Offire of Price Administration announced today.

Application for more sugar for canning will have to be made to local rationing boards on a special form provided by the Office of Price Administration (OPA Form No. R-315) and will have to be presented by an adult member of the family or by an authorized agent. The maximum amount of sugar which each holder of a War Ration Book will be entitled to obtain will be five pounds.

For this purpose local boards will issue sugar purchase certificates, not stamps. The certificate will state the total amount of sugar the bearer may purchase.

SENIOR CLASS TO PRESENT PLAY

The Senior III Class of Chilton County High School will present on Friday evening, May 15th, at 8:00 o'clock, the most unusual play that has ever been presented in this town. In this out-of-the-ordinary play, called FALSE FRONTS, the audience sees how a group of characters speak their innermost thoughts, which are quite startling and funny at times. In FALSE FRONTS, the audience knows what is going to happen before it happens. But instead of destroying the interest this only adds to it, for everyone is eager to find out how the characters will react to the different situations.

Are you putting up a false front? Do you feel one way and act another? We all do, for it is true that the only things in life that we can really call our own are our thoughts. But what if we could hear people's thoughts? You can if you come to see the three-act play, FALSE FRONTS.

Those taking part in the production are:

Emma Bixby, Kathleen Armstrong; Clarence Bixby, Kenneth Scott; Jenny Williams, Florence Scroggins; Bob Hope, Frank Cox; Lefty Smith, Howard Heckert; Ruth Walker, Frances Smith; Jimmy Taggart, Lewis Eubanks; Eve Hardison, Jewell Moore; G. H. Barber, Cecil Smitherman; Sari Laritza, Nell Sessions; Henry Rhodes, A. J. McKinnon; Mimi Labrun, Pearl Henley; Narrator, Katherine Bryan.

FALSE FRONTS is under the direction of Miss Shirley Sneed, who has had much experience in play directing at Alabama College. You remember some of the cast in their last year's production, "Lena Rivers." All in all, the entire cast and production staff promise you the best play ever to be presented by C.C.H.S.

The tickets will go on sale next Monday. Don't wait until the night of the play to get your ticket. You may not be able to get in if you do. You will not want to miss a single second of FALSE FRONTS.

Special Services At Mountain Springs

There will be a special service at Mountain Springs Church Sunday morning at ten-thirty celebrating Mother's Day and Christian Family Week. Appropriate poems, stories scripture and a play reading of "That Little Democracy, The Home" will be presented. Special recognition will be given for the youngest mother, the oldest mother and the mother with the most of her children present. A sermon on the Christian Family will be preached by Miss Annie Campbell of Thorsby.

There will be an evening service at eight o'clock.

Everyone is invited to attend this service.

Know Your Neighbor

BRAZIL—"A WORLD IN ITSELF"

The Domain of Brazil, the only Portuguese speaking nation member of the sisterhood that comprises the Pan American Union, covers only a little less than half the total area of the South American continent.

Rudyard Kipling, seasoned traveller, wrote of it as "A world in itself." The proportions of the country are gigantic. The consequent variations in life, climate, topography, resources and products are in keeping. Brazil's frontiers are so far flung that they meet with those of seven of her nine sister republics in South America, and embrace a country larger than our continental United States; larger than all of Europe, excluding Russia.

Nearly half the population of South America makes home of Brazil. From the equatorial jungles of the basin of the majestic Amazon in the north, Brazilian territory, with an Atlantic coast line of 4300 miles, sweeps through pleasant and productive uplands far into the south temporate zone.

These central and souther nuplands are the heart of the Brazil of today. Here are the most fertile lands: the best grazing areas. From here comes the famous coffee, base of about three-fifths of the total value of the nation's exports. From here come the cotton, fruit and livestock, hides, wax, tobacco and other items, which, with rubber and nuts from the Amazon country, Brazil offers in exchange for her needs in machinery, tools, fuel, wheat, chemicals, automobiles and iron and steel products. Here, too, in a region of half a million square miles, less than a fifth of the country's area lives sixty per cent of a population of forty-four millions, seventy of every hundred at work in agriculture or stockraising.

Brazil is sending to the arsenals of democracy manganese for the manufacture of much needed steel; and oil from the castor bean essential to the lubrication of the high-speed engines of fighter, bombers and pursuit planes. The turn of world events promises to reinstate Brazil as one of the rubber centers of the world.

Rio de Janeiro, the capital, is a city of more than a million inhabitants. But there is no congestion even here. Famed as one of the most beautiful capitals of the world, a city of marble, palms and broad avenues, "Rio" is also center of commercial, social and cultural development; seat of a government that has given education high place in its activities.

The Brazilian constitution divides power between national and state authorities. The President is the supreme authority, charged with directing the policies and maintaining the welfare of the state. He initiates legislation, may nominate one candidate in elections to choose his successor, but by a two-thirds vote of a two-house parliament, can be overridden in his veto of legislation.

As in other countries new or old, Brazil's form of government represents a people's evolution. Unlike that of many of the young nations of the New World, however, from discovery and first colonization by the Portuguese Alvares Cabral at the turn into the Sixteenth Century, down through the rule of the Marquis of Pombal, "the great marquis," through independence and constitutional monarchy in the reigns of the Dom Pedros, father and son, to the coup d'etat of November 15, 1889, out of which came the federal republic, the romance of Brazil tells of change after change without violence or bloodshed.

The nation has been a growth, not an eruption. Its natural wealth has hardly been touched; its native genius hardly revealed. It's potentialities are far beyond present reckoning.

SMITH URGES SELECTEES AWAIT INDUCTION BEFORE DISPOSING PERSONAL AFFAIRS

Pointing out that the examination of registrants by local board physicians is merely a preliminary examination to eliminate the obviously unfit, General Ben M. Smith, State Director of Selective Service, today warned registrants that they should await actual induction into the Army before making any final disposition of financial and personal affairs.

"Every selectee," the Director said, "must undergo final physical examination at an Army Induction Station or reception center. The examination by local board physicians is merely preliminary to the Army test. No selectee, therefore, should assume that because he has passed the local board tests, or even because he has been ordered to an Army reception center for possible induction, that he will be accepted by the Army."

Registrants who are inducted will be given ample time to return to their homes to adjust their personal affairs within a few days after induction, Director Smith stated, pointing out that a liberalized policy regarding furloughs for newly inducted registrants has been announced by the War Department. He said:

"Local boards have been instructed to attach to the delivery list for each group of prospective inductees the names of those for whom furloughs are recommended, and the Selective Service System has been assured by the War Department that such furloughs will invariably be granted if recommended by the local board."

The furloughs for inducted registrants will begin not later than five days after induction, the Director said, and will not exceed ten days except that when an inductee lives at a considerable distance from the Army reception center, leave up to fiftten days may be granted.

"This new Army policy should prevent and undue hardship to selectees who are inducted," Director Smith asserted. "'In the past there were some cases of hardship under the present system of inducting forthwith selectees who pass their final physical examination at Army reception centers. Some men, expecting induction, had made final disposition of their personal affairs and then were rejected. Others were considerably inconvenienced after induction while awaiting leave to adjust pressing personal matters. Now, every prospective inductees can be assured that if he requires reasonable time to return to his home to dispose of his personal affairs, leave will be granted to him within a few days after his induction."

All local boards in Alabama have been advised to give full publicity to the policy now in effect, the Director said, and to inform their selectees not to release their possessions, or otherwise make final disposition of financial and personal affairs, before final action is taken by the Army Examining Board.

MORAL ECHOES

By Rev. D. W. Haskew, D. D.

Just before Socrates was called upon to drink the poisoned Hemlock, his friends stood about him, anxious to do something that would express their love and devotion. One asked of him, "Master, do you have any wishes as to where we shall bury you?" With a twinkle in his eye the great scholar replied. "Sir, if you will just wait a few hours, you will not be able to catch me to be buried anywhere." Socrates knew that he was not his body, and that no human hand could grasp his soul to bury it in any grave. Your body is just the house of clay in which you live, and when you are separated from the clay, there will be no grave in which you can be buried. Christ said, "He that believeth on me shall never die" The body dies, but the soul lives on forever.

When a member of theMoravian faith dies, one of their number will climb to the top of the church steeple and trumpet out the fact of the death to all who are in the village. It is not a doleful sound that goes echoing through the town. but a triumphant note. On hearing this announcement, the members of that spiritual faith will stand in awe and repeat to each other, "Listen, one of our saints has gone home." To them it is not an hour of sorrow, but an hour of triumph. Just another home sick traveler reaching the end of the journey and going home. When a mature saint is taken from our midst, why should we mourn It is not an hour of sorrow and defeat. It is an hour of triumph and victory. A saint reaching the end of the road and going home.

When Robert Browning was taking leave of the earth and of his loved ones, the light of another world flashed before his vision and he exclaimed, "Never say that I am dead; man is dead until his work is complete." We are told that our works do follow us. The most humble servant of God can set into motion an influence that will travel through ages, travel as long as time shall last Having touched one life, that life will influence two or three more. On goes that influence until it reaches the end of time. Then the logic of life is that man is immortal. We only have to remember the life and poems of Browning, to know that men live on in the work that they have done. God has put the judgment at the end of this world, so that our work will be done and our influence completed. Not until then can merits be awarded.

I sat down to a well filled table with a close friend. We were hungry and each of us had to make choice of the food that we would eat. My friend being on a diet, had to be very careful in his choice. In every phase of life we are called upon to make choice. Before us is set the good and the bad, light and darkness, life and death, truth and error. The game of choosing calls for a lot of common sense. One of the certainties of life is that all of us must choose. You would count that man on a strict diet to be very foolish, if he should choose to eat something that would poison his body, and yet he is no more foolish than the young man or the young woman, who selects a way of living that they know will ruin them forever. Be sensible and choose to do the thing that will make you well and strong in character and life.

The river Amazon and the chief tributary of the river Plate, rise within a few hundred yards of each other, and the natives often drag their boats across the narrow divide between the two rivers. For miles these two rivers run along parallel with each other and sometimes they seem inclined to run together, but after some distance a knoll rises between them, and they part, never to see each other again. That rising knoll comes between them and they flow apart and finally run into the great deep more than a thousand miles apart. A small knoll and rivers are sent in opposite direction. Often it is true that just a small influence will arise in a life and that influence will change the whole course of living. Not only the big things in life change the way of living, but sometimes it is the small things. Just a word and two lives drift apart. Beware of the small influences that rise to hide out the other one.

FARMERS URGED TO SAVE BURLAP BAGS

AUBURN, Ala.—Burlap bags, once plentiful about the farm, are now in about the same position as automobile tires, says P. O. Davis, director of the Alabama Extension Service, in encouraging farmers to conserve bags and hasten them back into trade channels. Suggestions on bag conservation follow:

1. Open bags by untying strings. Don't cut the bag.
2. Protect filled bags from rodents. (Rats and mice are bags' No. 1 enemy.)
3. Store filled bags in a dry, protected place. (This will protect both the bags and their contents.)
4. Remove acid-containing chemicals (fertilizer, etc.) from bags as soon as practicable. DO NOT place bags near oils, manure, or objectionable chemicals.
5. Empty all bags as soon as possible. (They'll last longer if emptied, beaten, and hung over a wire.)
6. If bags are wet, dry in sun to prevent mildew and rot.
7. Sell bags you will not need; let them do double duty.
8. Sort bags by fabric (cotton or burlap) and by size.
9. Bundle bags by condition:
   (a) Excellent condition; no repair necessary.
   (b) Patched bags; no repair necessary.
   (c) Bags which can be cleaned or repaired.
   (d) Torn or slashed bags not usable as containers.

CONTROL FOR VARIOUS GARDEN INSECTS GIVEN

Auburn, Ala.—If those pesky insects have begun eating on your vegetables you should start control measures at once The best insecticide for most garden insects is rotenone dust, according to the Alabama Experiment Station.

Bean insects can be controlled with a dust containing .75 per cent rotenone applied so that the under side of the leaves are covered. Applications should be made whenever inscts become numerous. The same dust will control cabbage insects also, when applied at the same rate as for beans.

Potato beetles and most other insects of Irish potatoes may be controlled by dusting with a talc or sulphur dust containing .75 per cent rotenone at the rate six pounds per acre per application.

Rotenone dust should not be wasted and should be stored in a dark dry place as the supply is likely to be scarce soon.

EARLY CULTIVATION OF PEANUTS IS IMPORTANT

Auburn, Ala.—Farmers planting peanuts should cultivate them frequently with weeders or harrows soon after planting to keep ahead of the grass, says J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist, Frequent cultivation cuts down on hoeing he says.

Some prefer to run these with the row for the first cultivation while others run them diagonally across rows in one direction for the first cultivation and alternate directions as cultivation proceeds. The method that will most effectively control the grass is the one to use.

Where soil becomes hard and more dirt is needed about plants it is advisable to run a furrow in the middles with scooter and scrape set flat. For weeders and harrows to be most effective in controlling grass, they should be used when a slight crust has formed and not when soil is too moist. The weeder and harrow can be used until plants begin to be injured or pegs begin to form. If these implements are not available, first cultivations can be done with small plows or gee whiz cultivators.

After pegs begin to form, the crop should be cultivated with small plows or sweeps or any implement that will kill grass and weeds and work some loose soil to the plants. One and two-horse cultivators with small plows and sweeps are excellent for this work.

Hoeing one or two times is usually necessary to remove grass and weeds in the row. Vines must not be disturbed after pegs begin to form and only middles should be cultivated after pods or nuts begin to form. When the crop is laid-by the rows should be on a slight bed and the middle low for drainage.

Behind the Men Behind the Guns

More than 1,000 Southern Bell employes now proudly wear the uniform of America's armed forces.

Behind them, ably doing their part, 26,300 intensively trained fellow telephone workers, efficiently serve their country at home. Not in uniform — but engaged in a task no less vital to the national war effort — constantly maintaining the efficiency of the far-flung communication lines of a country faced with its greatest emergency.

Nor have these loyal workers at home neglected the duty of every American. They have already bought $415,000 of war bonds, maturity value, and are subscribing over $117,000 every month for additional bonds—concrete evidence that these thousands of men and women are in every way "behind the men behind the guns."

Small Raft With 3 Fight Sharks and Storm; Beat Sea

Tell Greatest Tale of Men Against Sea That Has Come Out of War.

PEARL HARBOR. — Three sunburned sailors of Uncle Sam's Pacific fleet sat in an officers' lounge here and casually told the greatest story of men against the sea that has come out of this war.

These three men, armed at the last only with a pocket knife and provisioned with ingenuity alone, sailed 1,000 miles in a rubber life raft, 8 by 4 feet over all.

They lived for 34 days on two birds and a couple of fish they were able to catch, and drank rain water wrung from rags.

They drove off leopard sharks with their bare fists and went through one of the worst hurricanes the South Pacific has ever seen without even a stitch of clothing for protection, having lost them when the raft upset while they were bailing with them during the storm.

Finally they made land on a tiny island, and struggled to march erect so that if the Japs were on the island, they would not have to crawl to the enemy but would be shot down honorably like better warriors.

On Scouting Mission.

Spokesman for the trio was Aviation Chief Machinist's Mate Harold F. Dixon, 41 years old, of La Mesa, Calif. He was their captain on the long, hungry voyage. With him were Anthony J. Pastula, 24, aviation ordnance second class, of Youngstown, Ohio, and Gene D. Aldrich, 22, radio man third class, of Sikeston, Mo.

The three were on a 500-mile scouting mission January 16 in a bomber plane from a ship in an American naval force in the southwest Pacific. They flew the lonely wastes of their ocean patrol for several hours, then headed for home. But home was not there. In clouds and rain squalls, they had lost their mother ship.

Dixon set the plane down upon the water, but it sank quickly, the trio being unable to salvage any stores and barely being able to float the raft itself.

Then began the 34 days of men against the sea. Dixon recalled that one night Aldrich put his hand in the water. A shark grazed his teeth across four fingers of Aldrich's right hand, badly tearing the nail of his index finger.

Stabs Small Fish.

With a length of half-inch Manila [illegible], and a jacket, Dixon rigged a [illegible] anchor which he said gave the crew excellent control of their craft. For water, the men used their underclothing as sponges to soak up rain.

Aldrich, who had a pocket knife, one day stabbed a small fish, and the trio ate the liver, all the "innards" and some of the flesh.

One night an albatross landed on the stern of the raft and Aldrich shot it with a revolver they had managed to save.

One morning Aldrich stabbed a shark, the revolver having corroded into uselessness.

Dixon had read that shark livers store up vitamins, so they ate the liver with relish. "It was very tasty," Dixon said. In the shark's stomach were two sardines, which Dixon remarked must have been partly digested because they tasted as if they had been cooked. One day a tern-like bird lighted on the raft, was caught and devoured on the spot.

After finally reaching the island, the emaciated trio was cared for by natives until rescued by an American naval ship.

"How do you find the food in Honolulu?" Dixon was asked at conclusion of his tale.

"Pretty regularly," he replied.

Flying Doctor Can Land A 'Hospital' by 'Chute

SPOKANE.—A flying physician, ready to land or parachute to the scene of an airplane crash with folding operating table and surgical instruments, is a member of the Civil Air patrol in Spokane.

F. R. Schiller, C.A.P. transportation officer, said that two expert parachute men who learned their work fighting forest fires from the air in the Rockies are working with the doctor, who asked that his name be withheld.

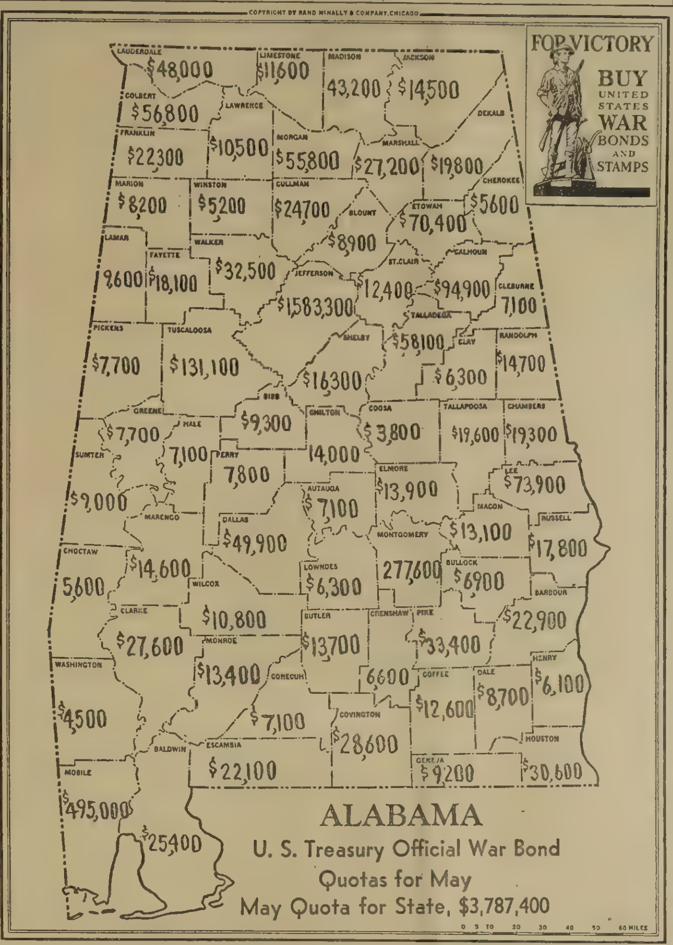
Dairying Proves Best Product for Farmers

WASHINGTON.—Milk, cream and butter brought more money to American farmers than any other products in 1941. According to the department of agriculture, dairy products made up 17 per cent of the cash farm income from the sale of all crops and livestock combined.

Ash Hauler Lucky; Truck Takes Fire Near Station

COLORADO SPRINGS.—The fire department here claims it has made the shortest run on record. An ash hauler's truck, belching smoke and afire from stem to stern, rolled up to the back door of the fire station. A driver rushed inside to summon the firemen to the rescue. They drove the big pumper half around the building, attached a hose at a nearby plug and soon had the flames extinguished.

Official U. S. Treasury War Bond Quotas For May



The above map of Alabama shows the War Bond quotas, by counties, for the month of May, 1942. Total War Bond quota for the State is $3,787,400. Every income earner in the State is expected to step-up War Bond purchases on a basis of ten per cent or more of income. This is necessary to help America's armed forces take the offensive against the Axis powers. The American voluntary method of War Bond purchases must be successful in reaching the quotas set by the Treasury Department for every county in the nation. The job of every American now is to stop spending and save dollars to help win the War.

This Week In National Defense

War Production Chairman Nelson, speaking in New York City, said the United Nations have outstripped the Axis in war production. Because of the accumulated reserves of the enemy however, "we have not yet won the battle of production" he said. Vice President Wallace said by July of this year the U. S. will be producing more war material than any other nation in the history of the world.

MANPOWER MOBILIZATION

Federal Security Administrator McNutt was made chairman of a nine-man war manpower commission set up by the President to "bring about the most effective mobilization and the maximum use of the nation's manpower." Mr. McNutt said the Commission will establish a labor priorities system to allocate manpower on a voluntary basis. If this system fails, he said he would ask for authority to assign men and women to specific jobs. He reported an additional 10 million workers will be needed in war production this year, many of whom will have to be obtained through recruiting of women, young people and retired workers.

FOREIGN RELATIONS

The White House reported lend-lease aid amounted to more than $3 billion by the end of March. War supplies sent to Russia were two and a half times as great as those sent in February.

ARMY SELECTIVE SERVICE

The War Department said organization of 32 new divisions this year is being carried out on schedule. The Department said the Army Medical Corps strength will be doubled to meet demands of the expanded Army. Physicians under 45 years and dentists under 35 will be eligible for commissions as first lieutenants. The Department also announced formation of a new combat force, the Tank Destroyer Command, which will begin training in Texas early this summer.

The Department said it will grant furloughs of 10 days to inductees after their processing at reception centers, if local boards recommend such action for men who need the time to clear up personal affairs. Selective Service Director Hershey said the supply of men classified as A-1 probably will be exhausted by the end of summer and the calling of men of 1-B classification probably will start in the fall.

NAVY AND AIR

The Navy Department said the Bureau of Yards and Docks will act as contracting agency for the Department for all construction accomplished by private agencies, including works subcontracted under a prime contractor. Two new destroyers were launched and a third was commissioned. The President directed Navy Secretary Knox to take over three plants of the Brewster Aeronautical Corporation in order to increase their production.

SHIPPING

The War Shipping Administration requisitioned all the remaining American-owned ocean-going vessels which had not been taken over by the Goverment prevously. Every detail of operation—cargoes, routes of travel and time of departure—for ocean-going vessels can now be specified by the WSA. The President authorized the Maritime Commission "to acquire, uses and dispose of" any real or personal property needed for the building of merchant ships. He also authorized the Commission to award medals to members of the Nation's Merchant Marine for distinguished conduct.

CIVILIAN SUPPLY

The WSB ordered production of medium and heavy trucks for civilian uses discontinued after existing quotas have been completed. The Board froze all stocks of new plumbing and heating equipment, with the exception of retail sales of $5 or less and orders bearing a preference rating of A-10 or higher.

PRODUCTION AND CONVERSION

The President told his press conference the War Production Program, launched in January, is working out extremely well. He said the announced goals might even be expanded. The steel plate shortage has retarded the shipbuilding program, he said, but on the whole there is no very great slowdown in ship production.

THE ARMED FORCES

The War Department said college students may enlist as privates in the Army Air Corps Reserve on a deferred basis and continue their education until required for Army training. The Army Air Corps requested the Civil Aeronautics Administration to supply 2,000 civilian flight instructors within the next 60 days. The CAA was allocated $2,000,000 by the Army to train holders of private licenses who do not have sufficient flying time to qualify as instructors. Candidates must be between 21 and 42 years of age.

CIVILIAN SUPPLY

The WPB reduced the number of sizes and models of storage batteries from about 75 to 15, and ruled purchasers must turn in to retailers a used battery in order to get a new replacement battery. The Board also curtailed new telephone installations. Only persons and organizations engaged in direct war work are certain of obtaining new telephone service, the Board said.

TRANSPORTATION

Defense Transportation Director, Eastman prohibited all special deliveries, beginning May 15, and limited to once daily to any one person deliveries of local carriers. He said present uniform business hours should be staggered, school hours changed, labor shifts rearranged and group riding instituted to effect steady use of mass transient facilities and to eliminate several hours overload.

ALIEN-HELD PATENTS

President Roosevelt instructed Alien Property Custodian Crowley to take over all patents directly or indirectly controlled by the enemy and to make them freely available for United Nations war purposes and national needs of the United States. These patents will not be returned to the enemy at the end of the war, the President said,

Gasoline Sales Far Off For March

The average daily consumption of gasoline in Alabama was 800,000 gallons a day, in round figures, during March, as against a daily average of 921,000 gallons last August, the State Revenue Department reported today.

The decline in pleasure motoring is believed reflected in the fact that only 24,276,072 gallons of gasoline were sold in Alabama in March, 1,454,142 gallons less than in January.

In the salvage for victory campaign, 300 tons of scrap iron have been gathered from Elmore County farms.

Sad news for Alabamians: Congress is considering limiting yearly salaries to $25,000.

As a cotton truck was progressing along the Anniston-Gadsden highway a wheel ran off, causing the truck to turn over and clog the highway with 20 bales of cotton.

High School Grads Are Now Eligible For Naval Aviation

A new plan of recruiting under which high school graduates may qualify to become aviation officers with the rank of Ensign in the U. S Naval Reserve or Second Lieutenant in the U. S. Marine Corps Reserve has been approved by the Navy Department.

It marks the first time the Navy has offered young men with only a secondary education the opportunity to apply for flight training leading to commissioned officers status.

Recruiting began in every section of the United States on Monday, April 27th, and candidates between their 18th and 27th birthdays who have graduated from high school may apply.

Recruiting officials said the new plan will NOT interfere in any way wth the Class V-1 program under which college students may enlist now to become aviation, deck or engineering officers and continue their education, at least until the end of the second calendar year.

Both the recruiting and training of the candidates will be carried out under Class V-5, heretofore limited to men with not less than two years of college credits.

Qualified candidates are to be sent to one of the new aviation induction centers—located in the southeast, at the Universities of Georgia and North Carolina, for three to four months of training devoted primarily to "toughening" them for their place in the Navy

Following this will come three months of primary flight training at a Naval Reserve aviation base. Successfully completing this second phase of their Navy education, the candidates will be sent to the great Naval air stations at either Pensacola, Florida or Corpus Christi, Texas, for approximately three months of advanced flight training.

Commissions await the candidates who successfully complete the course and win their "Navy Wings of Gold."

Throughout this entire training period, candidates will be paid n accordance wth their ratings. Aviation cadets are paid $75 per month plus subsistance and the uniforms. Upon completion of training and appointment as Ensigns in the Naval Reserve or Second Lieutenants in the U. S. Marine Corps Reserve, they will receive $205 a month plus allowances.

High school graduates desiring to enroll in Class V-5 may obtain additional information at any Navy Recruiting Station.

Character Tests Tell Whether You're Criminal

After 30 unpublicized years of research, California scientists now announce a revolutionary character test which will accurately tell whether you are a potential murderer, a future President or just a happily married breadwinner simply by measuring your bones, eyes and hair.

Not only will these new tests tell what career you should choose, they will also predict how many automobile accidents you will have, how good a driver you are, how honest you are and what kind of a husband or wife you should have.

A former judge and noted California attorney, Edward V. Jones, is the originator of the latest method of "X-raying" the human character by taking approximately 60 measurements of a person's physical features

Jones and his associates spent 30 years studying 10,000 persons, testing their new method on all types in all walks of life. They found there were certain "standard" measurements and, by combining these, they could accurately tell an individual's potentialities, faults and abilities

The test was originally designed for vocational guidance and to aid large companies in selecting suitable employees. It was soon enlarged to help social workers and other authorities—as well as the average man—in determining whether or not desirable children will result from proposed marriages.

So successful were the tests that Southern California police forces enlisted Jones' aid in detecting criminals. They found the new method had an uncanny knack of pointing the finger of guilt or innocence at suspects.

New Device May Prevent Planes From Being Lost

Although the number of plane crashes in this country have been few in comparison with the millions of miles flown by the ships that navigate the nation's airways, enough such mishaps have happened to justify serious thought.

One man who has done a lot of thinking about plane crack-ups is Frank B. Alexander of Rochester, Ind. Mr. Alexander recently announced that he had worked out a scheme to make it easier to locate fallen aircraft.

"Many deaths from airplane crashes," says Mr. Alexander, "would not have occurred if it had been possible to locate the wreckage quickly."

The gentleman from Indiana, remembering some of the planes that have fallen on mountain sides and in thick woods, believes he has worked out a scheme which will make it much easier for searching pilots to find what they are looking for.

Mr. Alexander's device is so simple that he is amazed that someone has not thought of it before—it is nothing more complex than a wide ribbon of bright red material which is carried in a box on the underside of a plane The ribbon is about half a mile long.

It is Mr. Alexander's notion that a pilot about to make a forced landing can release this ribbon and let it float out behind the plane as it speeds toward the ground.

Even if the ship cracks up on a barren mountainside or ploughs through trees before it finally comes to rest, the brilliant ribbon will leave a distinct trail, its inventor believes, which can easily be spotted from the air.

A LOOK AT THE BOOK
By DR. BOB JONES, JR.
BOB JONES COLLEGE

Jesus Christ, so kind to sinners and so tender in dealing with human weakness, lashed out in vigorous language of stern reproach against the Pharisees, "Ye are like unto whited sepulchres . . . full of dead men's bones" (Matthew 23:27).

Judged by one standard they were very righteous, but their standard was their own standard, and their righteousness was self-righteousness. They were careful about their outward observance of all the laws and ceremonies. They were careful to observe fasts and often prayed—in public—but all their righteousness was outward. Their religion was a religion of "don't's" and "do's." It was all on the surface. They vigorously contended for the faith and took pride in its championship, but in their own hearts was no spiritual life. Their souls were corrupt and full of rottenness; their religion was a shell. Without spirituality their religion was not inward life but a garment of practice, clothing the outward man.

The Pharisees are still with us. They were not peculiar to Israel. Christianity today, even the most conservative orthodox Christianity, is blighted by some who have inherited the worst traits of Israel's self-righteous sect. They are proud of their peculiarities and thankful that they are not like other men. They have a head knowledge of the Gospel and an outward practice of its righteousness in which they take great pride. Inwardly there is none of the abundant life of Christ, none of His passion for lost men, none of His love for sinners. They judge other men and women on the basis of the standards which they themselves have set up and their judgments are harsh and cruel and unchristlike.

The man who is born of God will manifest in his outward actions, in his daily life, the indwelling life which he possesses and his whole life will be warm and sweet. The outward practice will be right because the inward man is right, and through every relationship of his life will shine the light and warmth of God's Spirit which dwells within his heart. There will be none of the coldness and hardness and self-righteousness of the Pharisee. There will be in his life none of the coldness of marble monuments covering the corruption and death in the Pharisee's heart.

STATE SUGAR BOARD CAUTIONS CONSUMER

Alabamians made some mistakes during the sugar rationing registration, but Registrars and Rationing Boards in the 67 counties are making adjustments by working long and tedious hours to insure "within-the-law" operation of the OPA Rationing Order.

When the sugar "freeze" was lifted, it was reported that in one section of the State retail merchants sold sugar at random by removing as many as five stamps for the first period. The State Rationing Board advised that both the purchaser and the retailer in this case have created a bottleneck for the future flow of sugar in that section.

Under the law only one stamp (the No. 1 stamp in War Ration Book No. One) is valid until May 16. This stamp represents one pound of sugar. Stamp No. 2 will be valid, May 17-May 30.

It was explained that if there are two or more persons in a family they may purchase one pound of sugar for each stamp held by members of the family unit.

Sugar purchase certificates, it was revealed, have been issued in some cases to industrial users whose inventory exceeded the May-June quota and in these cases the adjustments to be made later will seriously handicap the holder of the certificate unless the sugar on hand is consumed as prescribed by law on a basis of fifty percent for meal purposes and seventy percent for others such as bottlers, bakers, etc.

Generally, the spirit of the people of Alabama has been cooperative about the Sugar Rationing Program, the State Rationing Board reported, but one negro maid declared "I ain't gonna let them get me by signing up."

Every person should obtain a War Ration Book the OPA declared.

REFUGE

Health of this community is fairly good at present.

Crowds were rather small at Sunday school and prayer services last week end.

We wish to remind everyone here that our all-day singing will be held at this place the third Sunday. That will be a week from next Sunday. All good singers and lovers of good singing are invited to attend this all-day singing, preaching and baptizing.

We are beginning our Sunday school at the 9:00 o'clock hour next Sunday, that being old time, on account of the Mother's Day singing at Walnut Creek church.

Let's everyone be on time.

The shortage of refined sugar has awakened many of our farmers to the possibilities and advantages of sugar-cane and sorghum syrup for home and farm use. This is one way the farmers plan to increase their families' food supply, and to provide a balanced diet.

2 Bones Weekly Enough For Canine, Says Expert

It is the accepted theory that bones are good for dogs. This is true, but with definite limitations. Too many bones are actually bad for a dog. It is not advisable giving a dog a bone that has been cooked. Cooked bones break easily into sharp splinters.

A dog can digest bones because of the large amount of hydrochloric acid in his stomach. However, if too many bones are given the animal, he is not able to digest them. Some pass into the intestines and puncture the walls or remain there, causing the dog serious illness.

The actual nourishment received from bones is rather small. One or two bones, at the most, a week should be sufficient for your pet. The benefit derived may best be described as that of a toothbrush. They do help keep the teeth and gums in good shape and afford exercise to the dog's jaws. In spite of these benefits, I do not recommend feeding bones regularly. If you are going to give your dog a bone, choose a large, uncooked knuckle bone, and under no circumstances give him poultry, pork, rabbit or cooked bones of any sort.

Chew Mashed Potatoes

Most people would guess that meat should be chewed most thoroughly. But meat is a protein and most of it is digested in the stomach. Chewing helps, but is not essential.

Bread, fruit and vegetables are carbo-hydrates—an important part of the digestion of them occurs in the mouth. If a mouthful of mashed potatoes were to be swallowed without being chewed, it would remain in the stomach for from one to two hours. The chief purpose of chewing mashed potatoes, as well as other carbohydrates, is to mix them with saliva, which contains an important starch-digesting enzyme—ptyalin. If such foods are not chewed thoroughly, they are dead weight in the stomach. To get all the benefit from food chew all of it thoroughly, but especially the breadstuffs, vegetables and fruits. Milk should be drunk slowly—if not, it forms large curds in the stomach, making digestion hard.

Ancient Stone Village Stands

According to some archeologists, Irish monks built a stone village in New Hampshire about 492 years before Columbus came over. Their dolmens and cromlechs are still standing on the hillside, beyond the village of North Salem, a few miles from the Massachusetts border.

These Irish monks are alleged to have fled from Viking raids, from Ireland to Iceland and, later, from Iceland to New Hampshire. The New Hampshire structures are similar to souterrains in Ireland, known to be ancient. Icelandic sagas mention the capture in a country called "Great Ireland" of two boys who spoke Irish and gave Irish names. And, further, the archeologists believe, these New Hampshire buildings are built in such a style that they could not have been made by Norse, Indians or Eskimos.

Laziness and Divorce

When a Yuman-Piman Indian squaw refused to grind corn on schedule or a brave declined to hunt, it was grounds for divorce. In fact, any sort of laziness was an excuse for severing marital ties among these Indians of the Southwestern United States and Northwestern Mexico. Too much artistic temperament was an unheard-of ground for a divorce in that too much temperament usually was discouraged by a bump on the head.

How Red Army Pools Its Ideas

Embassy in U. S. Gives Out Cable Describing a War Conference at Front.

WASHINGTON.—Writers with a knowledge of the English language have been assigned by the Russian army to cable to America first-hand stories of events at the front in the Russo-German war, it was disclosed when the press division of the Soviet embassy made public one such account. It was entitled "Conference at the Front." It follows:

Never before have there been conferences like these. Picture yourself in a birch grove or clump of pine trees weighted down with snow, with the sky lit up by the shining disc of the moon, and in that auditorium of nature's making many men, some leaning against tree trunks, others sitting on tree stumps, ammunition crates or ammunition carriages. They are armored against the bitter frost by sheepskin jackets, fur caps with earlaps and felt boots. The speakers often have to talk at the top of their voices to make themselves heard through the roar of artillery.

This is a Red army conference, one of many now going on in regiments immediately behind the front lines. The speakers are unit commanders, the rank and file and the regimental commanders themselves. They are weighing recent experiences gained on the battlefield and summing up what has been learned.

Tell Their Stories.

Months of fierce battles have taught the Russian soldier much. He has gone through the grim university of war and is now taking an extension course, so to speak. At these meetings representatives of all arms—infantry men, artillery men, fliers, tank fighters, cavalry men, signalers, sappers—tell their stories.

Many delegates have colorful tales to tell. Take Junior Sergeant Galyuskin, a sniper, for instance:

"During my first three days in this sector," he relates, "I bagged three Hitlerites. Then came a blizzard that nearly carried me under snowdrifts. But I stuck it out patiently, knowing that after the storm the Germans would begin clearing their trenches and leveling off their parapets. I got four more Germans after that."

Often the rank and file display a deep understanding of the tactical tasks of their company or battalion. One Vyazmin, who serves a trench mortar crew, says: "The fire of our trench mortar units is accurate, but in order to inflict heavier losses on the enemy observation unit it must be improved."

Take 'Em Alive.

Sergeant Smirnov, an experienced scout, tells of a unique method he employed to capture an enemy soldier alive. Tying a bunch of fir branches to the end of a long cord, the sergeant took cover at the roadside, holding the other end of the rope. As a German motorcyclist approached, the sergeant began pulling the bunch of branches across the highway. This threw the Fascist into confusion and he jammed on his brakes. The sergeant soon was taking his captive cyclist and vehicle to his commander.

Tank destroyers have acquired a splendid store of experience.

"At dawn we heard the roar of tank motors," says one of them. "Several Fascist tanks were approaching our trenches. Our gunfire sent some of the enemy tanks scurrying away, but two of them came right at my trench, one behind the other.

"The frozen earth was hard enough to prevent the trench from caving in. I decided to get at them from the rear. In an instant the treads of one were clattering right overhead. When the tank had gone a couple of meters beyond me, I got up and threw a bottle of combustible fuel. Bright flames enveloped the tank, and when it stopped something exploded inside the machine. The second Fascist tank swerved to one side and turned tail."

Australian Fuel Scarcity Spurs Harvest of Wood

MELBOURNE, AUSTRALIA.—A leading fuel merchant said that Melbourne and its suburbs faced the winter with only 2,000 of the 378,000 tons of fuel necessary for household needs. A mass meeting of fuel merchants in the state of Victoria was held to discuss the situation.

The merchants are determined to do everything possible to get wood from the forest to the stations before winter rains make mountain roads impassable.

The shortage has forced some concerns established more than 50 years to go out of business. The scarcity has been caused by the diversion of transport to military purposes.

Plenty of Chores to Do For Rancher-Candidate

SANTA ROSA, N. M.—It's not that Tom McGrath, Republican candidate for corporation commissioner in 1940, isn't sociable. He's just got chores to do.

In town for his first visit in months, he explained that shortage of sheep herders forced him to tend his own flocks. In his spare time he's been irrigating 100 acres of farmland himself.

His visit was brief.

'Open Sesame' and Farmer Gets Rain When Wanted

Missouri farmers who, like their brothers throughout the land, are forced in time of drouth to depend upon old-fashioned prayer or the expensive and unpredictable efforts of a professional rainmaker, envy the ability of H. F. Eisenreich of St. Louis to get rain for his crops all summer, any time he wants it.

Mr. Eisenreich carries on his agricultural activities in an old railway tunnel on the outskirts of the city. Measuring 478 feet in length, 15 feet in width and 40 feet in height, the tunnel has only an entrance and an exit. This fact, together with Mr. Eisenreich's working knowledge of some of the secrets of Mother Nature, forms the basis for his unique and successful experiment in mushroom culture

With this in mind, Eisenreich boarded up entrance and exit, thus maintaining a constant temperature inside without the use of costly heating or cooling devices. He had checked the tunnel temperature and found that the average winter reading was 50 degrees, and in summer closer to 60. So, when he wanted rain, he merely opened the door. In rushed the war summer air, met the cool tunnel air, condensed, and from the solid rock came the expected steady drizzle. Eisenreich's homemade "sprinkling system" was a success right from the start.

Now, his large mushroom crop is planted, watered, raised, harvested and sold at a neat profit, without its owner being dependent on outside weather conditions.

Convicts in State House Have Own Eating Signals

Shaking a knife at someone across the table is not considered impolite in the Iowa State penitentiary at Fort Madison. It merely means that the shaker wants the turnips.

Silence is enforced in the prison dining room but the men have signs that signal their needs.

Seated eight or nine at a long, narrow table, they pass their plates to the end, where waiters serve the food. The man on the end passes the filled plates back. He also signals the kind of food the waiters are bringing.

When the end man beats the table with his spoon, his comrades know that fruit or dessert is on the way.

The reason behind all these regulations for table etiquette is the ban on talking by prisoners when they are eating—and the guards keep a sharp eye on the boys when they are signaling their meal-time wants.

Science Saves Holly

If your sprig or wreath of holly held its leaves longer this Yule, credit it to science. If on the other hand, they dropped too soon, blame it on a "gas attack."

Dr. J. A. Milbrath, plant pathologist, and Henry Hartman, horticulturalist at Oregon State college, discovered that ethylene gas emanating from ripe fruit causes holly and similar plants to drop their leaves prematurely.

Unfortunately much of the western holly is shipped to eastern and midwestern markets in refrigerator cars which also contain ripe fruit. Result—the leaves come tumbling down before St. Nick's rendezvous.

Dr. Milbrath and Hartman decided to do their bit to preserve the holiday spirit. They developed a hormone spray which counteracts the ethylene and keeps holly green and fresh and well leafed. The treatment also preserves holly which has been exposed to ripe fruit, excess moisture and even to illuminating gas which contains ethylene.

Many Immune to Paralysis

There is less than one chance in 1,000 for a city resident to get infantile paralysis and the other 999 are immunized without knowing that they have picked up the infection, said Dr. Louis J. Wolf, city health officer.

"The past experience with outbreaks of poliomyelitis reveals that the greatest number of cases usually occur in the latter part of September and October, thereafter declining rapidly.

"The risk of the city dwellers in contracting this disease is certainly much less than one chance in 1,000. The virus is not spread by inanimate objects, but from person to person, probably chiefly healthy carriers and the 999 or more persons become immune in this way without ever showing any signs of symptoms of the process having taken place."

Farm Chemurgy

No longer are farm products raised only for consumption in their old familiar forms. Chemists report that 86 agricultural products supply 133 basic raw materials manufactured into 240 different products which have more than 400 uses! Translated freely, farm chemurgy means putting chemistry and related sciences to work in industry so as to benefit the farmer in particular and society in general.

In less than a decade this new approach to utilizing farm surpluses has changed the agricultural aspect of the South. Cotton has ceased to be the undisputed King. Soy beans and peanuts have become profitable crops; forest management achievements have convinced farmers that their pine forests can be treated as a reliable crop.

Lights of New York

by L. L. STEVENSON

Model building is excellent escape from the strain of war, according to Clark Pool, president of the New York Society of Model Engineers. As proof, Mr. Pool cites reports from heavily bombed areas of Great Britain which show that, despite difficulty in obtaining materials, model building not only continues, but in many instances models, especially those of railroads, are taken into bomb shelters. The New York society, the largest and oldest amateur model-making organization in the world, maintains in its Knickerbocker building headquarters at 42nd and Broadway, "the crossroads of the world," the country's largest model railroad layout. There are more than 5,000 feet of track, 3,000 feet of which are main line, together with switches, signals and every device necessary for modern railroading.

Almost every trade and profession is included in the membership of the New York society. There are janitors, painters, doctors, dentists, lawyers, business men, writers, engineers and others all drawn together by a common interest in models. Midget power boats, architectual, airplane, in fact all kinds of models are built by the hobbyists. Those interested in railroads form the largest group. The society's railroad layout is in operation only during the annual two-week show. It does not lie idle the rest of the time, however. Just as is the case with real railroads, work goes on continuously. That is, whenever society members can find free time from their occupations, which is generally during the evening hours.

Work on the present layout was begun 3½ years ago when the society, to obtain larger quarters, moved from the third floor to the basement of the Knickerbocker building. It will not be completed for from five to eight years. Even then it won't be finished as the present layout is only about 60 per cent of the complete plan. It takes eight men to operate the system. There are dispatchers, train orders, time tables as on regular railroads. Not only do society members keep abreast of the times, but also ahead of them. For instance, they were the first to use an intricate push button in and out interlock which at present, gets trains in and out of Grand Central Terminal.

The 1942 show of the society, which closed recently, was its 14th. It is the first in which foreign countries were not represented, that being due, of course, to the world war. In the past, models have come from as far away as Australia. Priorities have their effect on model building as some materials are essential. Nevertheless, the model builders are continuing with their hobby, Mr. Pool said, and probably will for the duration.

In preparation for a recital, Edna Phillips, harpist, took a vacation from her husband and two small children. In a tiny hotel over in the Pocono mountains, she practiced to her heart's content until one day she heard her landlady, a wizened old Pennsylvania Dutch type, explaining to a man inquiring about a room for a friend that she could give him one at a slightly reduced rate because "there's a lady next door who keeps peggin' away at a harp at all hours."

"Oh, my friend won't mind that," the man replied. "He's very nearly deaf."

Miss Phillips' annoyance changed to amusement, when her landlady shot back sharply, "Well, in that case, I'll have to charge full price."

New Zealand Uses Huts To Shelter Soldiers

WELLINGTON, N. Z.—New Zealand's army is now housed in portable huts instead of tents.

Large mobilizations of the militia and the national reserve, recruited from World war veterans, created major problems in accommodations. The portable hut is the army's answer to the problem of providing living quarters.

The huts have a floor 14 by 7 feet and hold four men. They are constructed of light timber on frames that fold flat for transport. Three complete huts can be carried on one truck.

Here's a Soldier Who Is Eager for Action

JEFFERSON BARRACKS, MO.—Pvt. Morgan Jin, 18, American-Chinese youth stationed at the air corps replacement training center here, explained that the "sneak attack" on Pearl Harbor along with his hatred of the Japanese for their repeated atrocities in China, had led to his enlistment in the army.

Fungi Plants Enrich Soil; Keep Human Race Alive

Dr. Bernard Dodge, a scientist, has given many years of his life to the study of fungi. He has taught at Columbia university, and at present is on the staff of the New York botanical gardens.

The name "fungus" came from the Latin language and means "mushroom." A mushroom is a fungus, but it is only one kind. Toadstools, molds and mildew also belong to the fungus family.

Fungi are plants with no green color in them, and they have no flowers. They grow on other plants as parasites, also on dead trees and about the bodies of dead animals. It is estimated that there are about 250,000 kinds of fungi. Some kinds are so small that they can be seen only with the help of a microscope.

"We wouldn't be here if it weren't for fungi," said Dr. Dodge. "When the human race and all animals and plants die out, there will be fungi here to take care of the last of them.

"Fungi attack dead plants and animals, and turn them into simple products which enrich the soil. The humus formed by fungi and bacteria is absolutely needed by the soil if things are to grow in it."

There is a bad side to the story of fungi. Many kinds damage plants and cause trouble to people. Black molds may grow on bread and spoil it.

If molds get into a bakery, they give much worry to the baker, and he may have to shut down his plant for days before he can get rid of them. They are not killed by dry heat 200 degrees above zero Fahrenheit. If kept in boiling water, however, they will die.

'Grapevine Telegraph' Originated in Civil War

News—it is a mysterious, motivating, expansive sort of thing.

Packed with all the pent-up characteristics of claustrophobia, it escapes every force that would confine it. Like the air, it takes in everything eventually.

Before the advent of printing and other fin de siecle methods of communication, news traveled the hard way—the word of mouth way.

It took longer, of course, to get places.

Get around, however, it did, and its assay of accuracy may have been just as high as that straining through today's channels

News, then, we always have had with us.

It outgalloped Attila's hordes, preceded Caesar's advances, eliminated at least the element of surprise from the impact of most coming events.

That news traveling by word of mouth should be called "the grapevine telegraph" simply is another instance of our flair for metaphor.

Coming into circulation during the Civil war, the phase was an allusion to the way the grapevine grows, how its tendrils likened to telegraph wires, reach out from tree to tree, eventually taking in a vast amount of territory.

Ice-Warning Indicator

Western Airlines recently began tests in winter storms over Montana of a Los Angeles-invented automatic ice-warning indicator that will tell the pilot instantly when ice starts forming on wings.

Protruding from the leading edge of a Western airliner will be a two-inch metal disc over the face of which will rotate slowly a metal "feeler." When the first microscopically thin film of ice forms between the disc and "feeler" an electric contact will be broken, and on a cockpit instrument an "icing" red-light warning will flash.

As ice grows and pushes the "feeler" away from the disc, the action will register on the cockpit instrument, registering the ice thickness exactly. At a given ice-thickness the device will start automatically the airliner's de-icing gear.

Ancient Wars Deadly, Too

Wars were just as deadly—even more deadly—in Hannibal's or Julius Caesar's time as today. But they were not so costly.

It has been estimated that the cost of killing an enemy soldier was 75 cents in Caesar's day; during the Thirty Years' war which ended in 1648 it had risen to $50; and in the American Civil war the expense was $5,000 a man.

But so vastly had the gentle art of wholesale slaughter changed in half a century that by the time of the first World war the cost of killing one man was $50,000. And experience during the first few months of the present conflict indicates that the governments involved have to lay down the staggering sum of $125,000 for each dead combatant carted off the field or buried on the spot.

Fly in Two Hours

Back in South Lowell, Mass., an airplane company is manufacturing a two-place cabin plane which operates on the same principles as an automobile and which, it is claimed, can be flown solo after two hours' instruction. Any automobile driver can become a competent pilot at the controls of the plane after 10 hours' instruction. The plane has been certified by the Civil Aeronautics authority as being "characteristically incapable of spinning."

—o—

This was a warm week, with the average temperature 6 degrees above normal. Refreshing showers were general over middle and northern sections and in some areas goodly amounts of moisture were received, especially in northern counties. The soil, however, is still in need of more moisture over the State as a whole.

Temperatures have been favorable for the growth of crops generally. Farmers continued to make good progress during the past week. Some reporters state that the soil is too dry for good germination of seed and that rains are needed to insure good stands. Crops which were planted soon after the heavy rains ceased are mostly up to good stands while those planted during the last two or three weeks are slow coming up. Planting is well advanced for this season of the year except in scattered localities. In some instances where the land has not been broken it has become to hard to plow.

Oats in most sections have headed out short and in some cases the heads are light, however where the crops were top dressed with nitrates they are reported fair

Pastures are fair to good but general rains are needed to insure the continuation of good grazing.

Gardens are reported fair, and commercial truck crops are from poor to fair. General rains are needed in the truck crop areas and if they come soon there should be very little ill effects from the present drought

Strawberries from the Castleberry and Garland areas are now being taken mostly by processers. Dry weather has affected the size and quality. Berries are moving into fresh markets from the Clanton and Cullman areas.

The condition of livestock on pastures continued to show improvement and the most of them are now fair to good.

The Vigil We Keep

We Americans are determined to win this war, on the land, on the sea, and in the air. We are also determined to win the peace. Can we?

To win the peace means that we must establish and maintain throughout the world tolerance and equal justice. We can do this only if we preserve at home those same basic rights.

Throughout the hard days to come we must not fall prey to doctrines of hate, persecution, and intolerance. Today America stands as the last citadel of freedom and liberty, which it must remain throughout this war.

This is the coming trial which democracy must face. During every war the temptation is great to relinquish basic rights. After our own American Revolution the Federalist political leaders under the administration of John Adams attempted to stifle the freedom of press and speech by passing the Alien and Sedition laws. The War of 1812 magnified the growing sectional differences in the young nation. During the Civil war, Secretary of War Stanton ripped to shreds the Tenth Amendment to the Constitution by arresting the entire Maryland Legislature to prevent the secession of that State. After the War Between the States, organizations like the Ku Klux Klan pitted religion against religion, color against color. After the first World War in 1919, unemployment and economic crisis set white against black, Protestant against Catholic, Christian against Jew

These prejudices and animosities are always present. War augments them and kindles the fire which destroys the work of centuries. War increases mans suspician of man, and ignites mans inhumanity to man.

These ingredients of hate are present in today's struggle: unemployment, a tremendous national debt, disillusioned youth, the shattered social strata of a nation at war.

These constituents of destruction are what we must zealously guard against day and night. We cannot allow the sacred rights of man to become lost in the abyss of war. We must not let America become fraught with the hatreds, the conflicts, and the bitterness which have destroyed in the rest of the world all that mankind holds dear.

We are fighting and dying to win this war. But having won it, can we wield great strength with wisdom, justice, and mercy? Can we be merciful and generous with each and with all the world? This will test us as a nation.

We can not betray the boy on the battlefield by becoming instruments of hate and persecution.

We Americans have another reason for guarding with all our power and spiritual strength our liberty and freedom during the hard years to come. Upon maintaining the American way of life depends the future of the entire world. When this war ends, the rest of humanity will look to America to lead it to an everlasting peace. From America will come the impetus for Europe, Africa, and Asia to build a system of government whereby all men may have equal justice. Only if America is free of any trace of hatred and intolerance, can she lead the world to fulfillment of the destiny of man.

This is our Herculean effort. It is the task of keeping a calm mind, a true sense of value, and an abiding tolerance for our fellow man during all the great battles we shall endure both at home and abroad.

The hour of American destiny has come. We must perpetrate the American way of life at home. We must establish and maintain everlasting peace in every corner of the world. For, upon our fulfilling this dual responsibility, depends not only our future but also the future of all mankind.

COTTON INSURANCE ON 171,235 FARMS

Auburn, Ala.—Incomplete reports of the 1942 cotton crop insurance program reveals that 171,235 farming units in 18 cotton growing states are now under protection of Federal all-risk crop insurance, the United States Department of Agriculture said today. This compares with 165,777 farming units protected by the wheat issurance program the first year of its operation.

Cumulative value of all farm products bought for Lend-Lease shipment and other distribution needs approximates $877,353,000 for the 12 1-2-month period ending March 31, 1942. Poultry, meat and dairy products comprised the largest groups of commodities bought—both in volume and dollar value.

Prison Houdini Asks Place With Paratroop Squad

Felon, Convicted 10 Times, Escaped 6 Times, Seeks Place in War.

LONDON.—The desire to be a war hero drove dour Stanley Hilton Thurston, 31 years old, native of Manchester, England, son of a construction man; engineer, ten times convicted, three times a prison breaker, to his most recent jail jumping exploit, which ended—as did the others—with his arrest.

Before conviction the other day on four new charges, Thurston cast aside his habitual reticence and secretiveness in an effort to explain his anti-social career.

He has actually escaped from custody a total of six times—three times from prisons, once from a home, and twice from policemen. Many other times he has tried to get away without success.

This Houdini of the underworld accomplished his latest escape March 25 of last year when he escaped from the famous—sometimes called infamous—Dartmoor prison, in lonely Devonshire. He was serving a sentence of five years penal servitude and five years preventive detention, passed on him in August, 1939, at Lewes.

The effect of the new sentence of seven years penal servitude is that he will spend seven years in a convict prison and then serve five years under preventive detention regulations, a total of 12 years.

Caught Climbing Pipe.

Thurston pleaded guilty in his preliminary hearing before the common sergeant, Cecil Whiteley, K. C., to two charges of housebreaking, one of receiving, and a charge of possessing housebreaking implements by night.

The court heard how he was recaptured at Kingston hill after a woman had sent a message to the police. He was then seen, bootless, climbing a stackpipe.

Detective Inspector Henry Stuttard mentioned that Thurston had nine previous convictions, and that while at large he had stolen jewelry and other property worth nearly $10,000.

In a plea for leniency Defense Attorney Hector Hughes, K. C., stressed the notion that Thurston very earnestly desired to reform.

His escapes from gaol, said counsel, were really attempts to escape from the errors of his early youth, which he bitterly repented.

His past, however, tracked him down every time he emerged into freedom.

Thurston's own story is told in letters written while he was at liberty and conversations he had with a friend.

Feels Like Caged Bird.

He told the friend while awaiting trial at Wandsworth: "No prison is supposed to be strong enough to hold me, but believe me, I feel here just like a budgerigar (parrot).

"Twenty-three hours out of 24 I am shut up alone in my cell. I cannot even see the sky, because the tiny window has been bunged up with wire.

"Every half hour I hear the clatter of a prison officer's boots, and the spy hole in my door is wrenched open. An eye stares in, and I can guess the observer is saying 'That's all right; he is still here.'

"Do not think I am complaining . . . but do you wonder that there is hardly a minute of the weary hours in which I do not think of freedom."

Posse Too Rough, Wife Of Warden Gets Fugitive

CANON CITY, COLO.—Mrs. Roy Best, motherly wife of the Colorado state prison warden, thought an armed posse might get too rough, so she set out alone and brought back an escaped convict.

Policemen were scouring the countryside for Harold Coulson, former houseboy at the warden's house, who fled the previous night. Coulson phoned Mrs. Best from a Canon City store and she drove there without notifying her husband or other prison officials. She took Coulson back to the penitentiary and calmly turned him over to surprised prison guards.

Who Says a Black Cat Doesn't Bring Bad Luck?

MILTON, MASS.—A cat—a black one—dashed in front of an automobile.

The car went out of control and cut off an electric light pole at the base; gasoline poured from a punctured tank; sparks flew from broken wires, the Boston Edison company was obliged to cut off electric current in one-third of the town for an hour.

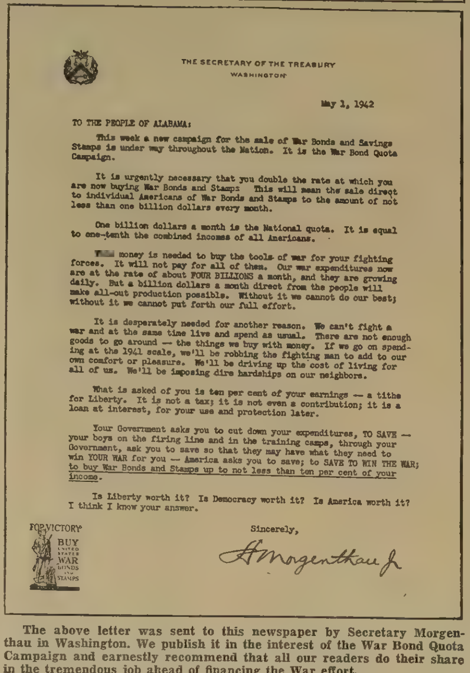
The cat escaped unscathed.

American Citizens Win Privileges in Britain

LONDON.—Great Britain recognized United States citizens' status as Allies by relaxing the midnight curfew for Americans in England and allowing them to buy maps, drive automobiles and enter protected areas without police permits.

These privileges formerly were denied under the law regulating activities of citizens of foreign countries whether enemy or neutral.

A MESSAGE FROM THE SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY



THE SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY
WASHINGTON

May 1, 1942

TO THE PEOPLE OF ALABAMA:

This week a new campaign for the sale of War Bonds and Savings Stamps is under way throughout the Nation. It is the War Bond Quota Campaign.

It is urgently necessary that you double the rate at which you are now buying War Bonds and Stamps. This will mean the sale direct to individual Americans of War Bonds and Stamps to the amount of not less than one billion dollars every month.

One billion dollars a month is the National quota. It is equal to one-tenth the combined incomes of all Americans.

This money is needed to buy the tools of war for your fighting forces. It will not pay for all of them. Our war expenditures now are at the rate of about FOUR BILLIONS a month, and they are growing daily. But a billion dollars a month direct from the people will make all-out production possible. Without it we cannot do our best; without it we cannot put forth our full effort.

It is desperately needed for another reason. We can't fight a war and at the same time live and spend as usual. There are not enough goods to go around — the things we buy with money. If we go on spending at the 1941 scale, we'll be robbing the fighting man to add to our own comfort or pleasure. We'll be driving up the cost of living for all of us. We'll be imposing dire hardships on our neighbors.

What is asked of you is ten per cent of your earnings — a tithe for Liberty. It is not a tax; it is not even a contribution; it is a loan at interest, for your use and protection later.

Your Government asks you to cut down your expenditures, TO SAVE — your boys on the firing line and in the training camps, through your Government, ask you to save so that they may have what they need to win YOUR WAR for you — America asks you to save; to SAVE TO WIN THE WAR; to buy War Bonds and Stamps up to not less than ten per cent of your income.

Is Liberty worth it? Is Democracy worth it? Is America worth it? I think I know your answer.

Sincerely,

H Morgenthau Jr

FOR VICTORY BUY UNITED STATES WAR BONDS AND STAMPS

BEST METHODS GIVEN FOR FURNITURE CARE

—o—

Furniture needs more than just dusting, say home economists of the Alabama Extension Service, Auburn. It needs oil occasionally to keep it from drying, cracking and warping, or the veneer from loosening. The dry air in many homes is as bad for furniture as it is for people.

A good oil bath to use once or twice a year on oiled or varnished furniture is a mixture of two-thirds boiled linseed oil and one-third turpentine. The oil feeds the wood, and the turpentine loosens the dirt and helps the oil to peentrate the wood. This polish removes the dull film and makes a checked surface less noticeable.

Apply the mixtures with a soft cloth; wipe off all excess polish with a clean cloth. To polish, rub the surface the way of the grain until the wood is thoroughly dry and the fingers leave no mark on the surface.

A good every day furniture cleaner and polisher that may be made at home at small expense is: one-half cup of powdered rottenstone, one-half cup of strong solution of oxalic acid, one-half cup of wood alcohol, and one-half cup of cold water to which has been added 1 tablespoon of sulphuric acid. These ingredients should be put into a quart bottle in the order listed.

SAVE YOUF SCRAP METAL

It doesn't take a lot of old scrap to make a machine gun.

Remember that, housewives, when you start putting that rubbish and all those old scrap materials in a pile this Spring.

Every little bit helps. Maybe you won't find all these items to make a machine gun in your home or garage, but surely you'll find some of them.

Did you know that enough metal to make one of those new .30-calibre machine guns can be obtained from such insignificant items as—

One pair of roller skates, two door hinges, one door lock, one old spade and one trash basket?

I hot water boiler could supply steel for 1 37 mm. gun.

1 five pound flatiron could supply iron for 4 hand grenades.

I woolen suit could supply wool for 2 army blankets.

I double blanket could sppply wool for 3 army blankets.

1 bed spring (60 pounds) could supply steel for 2 4-inch 105 mm. shells.

1 stove (250 pounds) could supply iron for 1 500 pound areal bomb.

10 pound window weights could supply po3,005bomrbynron ply iron for 1 3-inch 75 mm. shell.

100 old newspapers could supply fiber for 80 75-mm. shell containers.

25 feet of garden hose could supply rubber for 7 gas masks.

1 pound brass pipe could supply brass for 18 .30-calibre catridges.

1 pound of lead could supply lead for 68 30-caliber ball cartridges.

4 men's rubber overshoes could supply rubber for 1 pair army shoes.

So get in the scrap Help America win!

HARP AND HARMONY MINUTES

—o—

It's a thousand thanks to the good people of Cedar Grove Community for their kindness in providing a home for the Convention last Sunday. Surely no organized group of people could expect more of a community, than Cedar Grove has already has given to us.

The singing was from good to better. Due to the fact that there was annual singing in our adjoining counties we did not have so many visitors from other counties, but as we younger people could view the expressions of enjoyment and contentment of such good older people as Brother Gus Jackson, John Hayes, Jimmie Williams and Nattie Jones as the group would sing the old-sacred songs which have been so familiar to them for so many years, then we could easily understand why we loved such singing so much ourselves.

The audience was honored to hear a brief but very good sermon by the Rev. Snowden Hayes of Mobile. The officers for the ensuing year are:

Geo. Williams of Pletcher; Riley Scott of Lomax and Ira Crowe of Clanton.

Upon a request by depresentative from Center Hill Church, the convention voted to hold their next singing on September 6th at Center Hill Church.

As we again thank Cedar Grove for their many acts of kindness we wish to thank Center Hill for their invitation to meet with them.

The convention also wishes to thank Mr. M. C. Jackson and Mr. John Hayes for their untiring services as chairman and vice-Chairman for the past two years.

The secretary as usual failed to retain a list of the directors for the day, but he is telling you now that they were all good.

Youth Gets a Line On His Girl Friend

SEATTLE.—A 16-year-old boy was worried about his true love.

So, Police Capt. George Kimball explained, he tapped her home telephone with a portable set and asked a friend to call and ask her for a date.

Was she true? He never found out. The police found his connection first.

Pardon Lifer Who Fled 18 Years Ago

Went Back on Wife's Advice To Ease Conscience.

PARCHMAN, MISS.—A governor's pardon opened for Milton Savell, 42 years old, the penitentiary gates through which his conscience sent him a few weeks ago to serve out a life sentence.

Savell voluntarily ended 18 years of a free, happy and respected life as Jack Canon, tire factory worker in Detroit, when he surrendered to Gov. Paul Johnson. At the governor's suggestion he went alone to re-enter the state prison farm here.

Savell was admitted to the penitentiary 20 years ago sentenced to life imprisonment in the death of a youth from a neighboring county. He said he discharged his gun accidentally in a brawl, when he was struck over the head, and that an unfriendly jury convicted him.

Savell's conscience kept him from seizing one opportunity to win freedom soon after he was imprisoned. A model inmate, he became a trusty guard and saw one of his fellow-prisoners trying to escape. If he had shot him prison custom would have demanded that he be released.

"But I thought 'my God, I can't get out of here that way,'" he exclaimed, "so I called sharply to him instead and he crept back."

In 1924 Savell and another prisoner slipped away. Savell established himself in Detroit, married and reared three daughters. But he said he felt that he could never be at ease with a prison escape on his mind.

"The only difference between the way I'm living and being in prison is that I'm not behind stone walls," he explained.

So he told his wife his story. She agreed that he should give himself up, and went with him to the state capitol at Jackson.

The governor gave Savell a full pardon.

Keeper of Lighthouse Is Given Service Medal

MISCOU ISLAND, N. B.—Twenty-eight years of service as a lighthouse keeper on barren Miscou island, the northeastern tip of New Brunswick extending into the Gulf of St. Lawrence, have won the Imperial Service medal for John Alexander Ward.

The king granted Ward the medal in recognition of his "meritorious services" in keeping the light burning for nearly three decades to warn shipping of the presence of dangerous reefs. Ward, 70 years old, has lived on this island most of his life.

Blindly a Pedestrian Follows Seeing Eye Man

DENVER.—Farrington R. Carpenter, Colorado collector of revenue, poked absent-mindedly at a pebble with his walking stick, waiting for the traffic light to change. Finally an elderly man took his arm and said gently:

"It's all right now. The light's changed."

He led Carpenter across the street.

"I didn't have the heart to tell him I wasn't blind," Carpenter said, "so I just tapped off down the walk."

'Old Man of the River' Swims Only 73 Hours

BUENOS AIRES.—Pedro Candioti, 55 years old, known as Argentina's "old man of the river," failed in an attempt to break his own record of 81 hours of continuous swimming when he gave up after 73 hours 45 minutes.

He started from Rosari, Argentina's second largest city, on February 26 and was attempting to swim all the way to Buenos Aires, but was forced by exhaustion to emerge at suburban San Isidro.

Army-Minded Boys Are Now Taking to Cooking

COVINA, CALIF.—At last, the high school faculty knows why the cooking classes became so popular with the male students.

"I'm probably going into the army and I like to cook, so I might as well learn to do a good job of it and cook there," explained Football Captain Bill Bechtel, the 40th boy to enroll.

Plumbers Find What They're Searching For

SAN FRANCISCO.—Tony Lucchesi, 41 years old, a plumber, and his 17-year-old assistant, Clifford Hauchin, were hunting a gas leak yesterday. Their flashlight fell on the floor and went out. One of them lit a match to find the flashlight.

Emergency hospital attendants said their burns were extensive but not serious.

Leaps From Arms of Law—Into Police Car

VANCOUVER, B. C. — Frank Mukai's flying leap for freedom landed him in jail.

The 40-year-old Japanese was hailed by a constable for being outdoors in violation of the curfew. He made a running broad jump into a passing automobile.

The car turned out to be a police machine.

Ex-Senator Tom Heflin is now peaking at various points for the romotion of war bond sales.

Mother's Right to Child Is Supreme

Judge's Ruling Ends Bitter Adoption Battle.

EAST CAMBRIDGE, MASS.—In a decision which brought heartbreak to one woman and untold joy to another, Judge Arthur E. Breane ruled in Middlesex probate court that a mother's right to her child is supreme.

The ruling, ending a bitter adoption battle, means that little Celina Elizabeth Barrett, four, must leave the woman who has cared for her since infancy, Mrs Emily Pride, 40, of Belmont.

The petition of Mrs. Pride and her husband to adopt blonde and blue-eyed "Betty" was denied by Judge Breane on the ground that there had been no abandonment of the child by her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Barrett of Somerville.

Word of the ruling came with crushing effect to Mrs. Pride, her husband, John, a painter and paper-hanger, and Mrs. Pride's 18-year-old daughter by a previous marriage, Edith Hatch, who has been a big sister to little Betty since Betty was three weeks old.

The two women burst into tears while Pride attempted to comfort them, although obviously struggling to restrain his own emotions.

"How can I ever give her up. She is like my own baby to me now," sobbed Mrs. Pride bitterly.

A witness to that Prides' sorrow was Mrs. Barrett, standing a short distance away in the courthouse corridor with her sister, Mrs. Irene Price, of Boxboro, with whom she and little Betty will make their future home on an 80-acre farm.

"I am certainly overjoyed to know that I can have Betty with me and I know we'll be very happy," said Mrs. Barrett.

Egyptian Plague Likened To Modern Eruptions

New evidence corroborating the biblical story of the fall of Jericho has been disclosed by Dr. John Garstang of the University of Liverpool.

"There is no need," he said, "to quote the biblical account of this episode. The city is described in the Old Testament as protected by walls and having one gate. The walls fell in such a way that the Israelites (who were fresh from the desert) were able to enter the city almost everywhere; and the place later was destroyed by fire.

"Parts of the double brick rampart have been located. They show clear signs of the dislocations which are ascribed to earthquakes. It is obvious that the masonry had plunged into the face of the mound on which the city stood. Attackers would have met with no barrier other than the rough slope. The structures within the city show clear signs of earthquake and fire. Excavations located only one gate, and that opened toward the east."

Regarding other biblical stories, Dr. Garstang believes that the pillar of fire may have been a volcanic eruption, which often throws a column of fire to an altitude of 20 miles. The Egyptian plague, which turned the Nile into "blood" and destroyed the fish, finds support in modern volcanic eruptions which have turned water red and poisonous.

Oyster Big Business

From September to April oysters "R" in season. From September to April, men flock to oyster bars, housewives putter over oyster stew.

Supplying the national demand is an industry of some proportions, for oystering is no haphazard occupation. Unknown to many is the fact that oysters are as carefully planted and harvested as any garden delicacy.

In August of every year edible bivalves—to be used for breeding—are dumped on special ocean bottom beds along with tons of shells which give the young oysters a rough surface on which to adhere. It is only after a year in these special beds that they are removed to more favorable growing grounds.

Historic Trees Dead

Two elms, one the so-called Washington elm in Lexington and the other the old whipping post tree in Concord, N. H., died recently, the victims of old age.

The Lexington tree is believed to have been more than 300 years old. George Washington tied his horse to it when he dined in a Lexington tavern. The stump, which will be left standing, bears intact the spike to which the general tethered his mount.

Concord's famed elm was damaged in the 1938 hurricane and died subsequently. Its stump likewise will be retained to mark the spot where victims of the whipping post were flogged more than a century ago.

Plutocrat Hater, Hitler, Is Noticed As Being One

Nazi Chief Draws Greatest Private Income of Any Man in World.

LONDON.—Adolf Hitler, violent critic of the "plutocrats," draws the greatest private income in the world, according to the London Times.

Hitler is sole owner of Zentral Verlag, the great German publishing combine which has an annual turnover of about $280,000,000, employs more than 100,000 workers and shows a net profit of between $28,000,000 and $40,000,000.

No balance sheets are ever published; no auditor is ever allowed to examine the books. By terms of a contract arranged between Hitler and the director of the whole structure, Hitler has complete and absolute control over the company's income.

What he does with the money is a mystery, the Times declares. "It comes to him, not as the fuehrer, but as the head of a private concern. It is said in Germany that the Berchtesgaden house and estate are kept up out of this income, but even the whole paraphernalia of electric lifts and brightly lit tunnels cannot account for more than a small fraction of the great sum."

Started Control in 1921.

The Times reports that Hitler's control began in 1921 when the Zentral Verlag der NSDAP (National Socialist party) was registered as a company in the name of Hitler.

"At first its development was slow, but after Hitler took power, it grew quickly by the simple process of confiscating almost all competitors. In 1939 it took over the Jewish concerns of Mosse and Ullstein, two of the largest publishing houses.

"About the same time, it took over, again by confiscation, the famous Wulf News agency. Now known as the German News agency, this service has a complete monopoly in the German news field.

Owns Advertising Agencies.

"Zentral Verlag owns practically all of the advertising agencies. All the party books and periodicals also have to be published through Zentral Verlag—which means that it gets all the profits, not merely from compulsory sales of "Mein Kampf," but from the innumerable and lengthy books by Rosenberg, Goebbels and other Nazi leaders.

"In addition, almost all technical and professional periodicals in Germany are printed through the same channel—Hitler's Zentral Verlag.

"Its greatest business is in the publication of newspapers. It now owns two-thirds of all German newspapers outright in addition to drawing advertising revenue from 11 of the others."

'Help,' Written in Sand, Saves 2 Wrecked Crews

MELBOURNE. — Lieut. T. H. Moorer, an American naval aviator, was credited today with the rescue of two crews, that of his own seaplane and another from a ship, because he directed the writing of an appeal for help in the sand of a northern Australian beach.

Moorer and his men were shot down during a fight with nine Japanese planes. He set his flaming craft down on the water near a surface vessel he had been circling in an effort to identify it. The ship picked up the seaplane's crew, but a little later was set afire itself by the Japanese. Eventually the ship and plane crews succeeded in beaching the vessel.

Two days passed while the shipwrecked men searched vainly for food. Moorer supervised the writing of a huge message on the flat beach, which was soon spotted by an Australian plane. It circled, disappeared, and then came back to drop supplies.

The crews of both craft were finally picked up by an Australian navy ship which brought them to safety.

Girl Who Lost Leg Gets Her Bike, Rides It, Too

CHANUTE, KANSAS. — Delores Brand's parents promised her a bicycle for Christmas a couple of years ago.

Soon after a bone tumor necessitated amputation of her right leg at the hip. The 12-year-old girl got a wheel chair instead.

But Delores had other ideas. She used the wheel chair three days. Then she gritted her teeth and switched to crutches.

By July of the following year she was walking expertly with an artificial limb—and demanding that bike. Last Christmas, a year late, she received it.

Today, a courageous, triumphant girl of 12, she rides.

Judge Recalls a Thief Who Stole His Shoes

NEW YORK. — Magistrate Ambrose Haddock doesn't forget a face.

When a prisoner appeared before him on a voluntary charge of vagrancy, Magistrate Haddock studied his face and turned his mind back to childhood days.

"I sentence you to 30 days, 'Jigger' and you're lucky I don't give you an additional sentence for stealing my shoes 34 years ago."

HOUSTON.—"What did he do that was so cruel?" asked Judge Kenneth McCalla. "He just never would take a bath," was the woman's reply. "When I got after him he'd just go in the bathroom and splash some water around." Her 41-year-old husband didn't contest the divorce, Judge McCalla gave the decree.

Fake Hero Must Buy War Stamps

Sentence Fixed by Court for Attempted Arson.

SALEM, MASS.—Jailed since he set a fire in a Lynn building where he was a night watchman, William E. Holmes, 21, a special policeman and a former member of the national guard, gained his freedom when he promised Judge J. Arthur Baker he will purchase $5 worth of defense stamps every week until the United States is at peace again.

A suspended sentence of two years was imposed by Judge Baker when he pleaded guilty to attempted arson. Absent without leave from Camp Edwards at the time of his arrest, the youth was instructed by the court to "do something for your country" by buying defense stamps.

Holmes failed to return to his outfit, the 102d field artillery, after a furlough last October, the judge was informed, and army authorities recently informed Probation Officer Fred M. Barr here that they do not want him back in the ranks. The young man obtained a job as a night watchman for a notification service in Lynn while AWOL, it was brought out.

The former soldier set fire to a box in a Lynn lumber company's building the night of December 12, according to police, and extinguished the blaze himself to impress his superiors with his ability as a watchman, hoping he would receive an increase in pay.

No Rhyme or Reason for It, but It Really Works

FINDLAY, OHIO. — William D. Robinson of near-by Rudolph, Ohio, began to whittle with a purpose three years ago and now he's displaying his handiwork.

The gadget is a series of engine-like parts—60 of them—which cover about 20 square feet. The units, made entirely of wood and all hand-carved, are assembled in such a manner on one base that they run when the power is turned on from a small electric motor.

Robinson calls the gadget his "unfinished symphony" because it will never be completed. He intends to add wheels and more connecting rods until the energy, furnished by the small motor, gives out or his gadget outgrows his barn.

He estimates that there are 500 working parts in the gadget, including hand-carved cylinders, crankshafts, wrist-pins and pulleys.

Look Out Schickgruber; Catawbas on Warpath!

ROCK HILL, S. C.—The Catawba Indians, once a powerful nation, have declared war on the Axis.

Chief Robert Lee Harris said the tribe delayed its declaration long enough to "work up a good mad" before telling anybody about it.

Meanwhile, he said, just about every man of the tribe of fighting age has already enlisted in Uncle Sam's army.

The Catawbas, now living on a small reservation near here, fought with the palefaces in early wars with hostile Indians, in the Mexican war, the Civil war and World War No. 1.

The reservation has a population of a little over 200.

Tenth Life of Cat Is Saved for Tenth Time

BOSTON.—"Get the ladders, boys—it's Red Lily again."

That was the cry at the Animal Rescue league office.

COUNTY BUILDS STRIKING RECORD

Chilton County has had a part in building up the most striking record of improved living standards in the United States.

This fact was pointed out by Marvin Durbin, RR Supervisior for the Farm Security Administration, in connection with the report from Washington that Southern farmers in the "bottom third" income group led the nation in 1941 in the rate of increased food production.

Mr. Durbin displayed records of a nation wide survey showing that FSA supervision last year had increased their production of food at home one and one half times, and were ranked among the top four regions

The 1941 progress report of rural rehabilitation borrowers, released by the FSA office in Washington, shows that the typical FSA family in the nation has accomplished these things since coming on the program

1. Doubled the production of foods and other goods for family use;
2. Doubled the production of meat for home use.
3. Increased the fruits and vegetables preserved for family use by 158 quarts, or 114 percent.
4. Increased milk production for home use by 184 gallons, or 64 percent
5. Increased net cash income by $441, or 70 percent.

Farm Security borrowers in Chilton County have increased food production last year by:

1. Canning an average of 400 quarts per family, which was an increase of 2860 quarts
2. Raising 25,600 chickens, 9933 of which were kept for layers, producing 2399 dozen eggs a week
3. Increased production of meat for home use by 25,000 pounds.
4. Increased milk production for home use by 17,000 gallons.

FSA REPORTS 101 PER CENT INCREASE

According to Miss Clara Patton, Chilton County FSA Home Supervisor, FSA Southeastern region, composed of Alabama, Georgia, Florida and South Carolina showed that FSA borrowers had increased home use products 142 per cent as compared with 101 per cent for the nation as a whole. The average FSA farmer in these four states increased the amount of fruits and vegetables canned for home use by 178 quarts as compared to an increase of 158 qaurts for FSA borrowers all over the nation.

In 1941, the average family of 4.9 persons in the Rural Rehabilitation program of FSA in the four Southeastern States produced 61 qaurts of fruits and vegetables per person, or a quart per day for the family during the period of the year when fresh vegetables were not available. This year the goal set by home supervisors of the program is 100 quarts per person.

As a further departure from the traditional low-nutrition diet, these families stored five and one-half bushels of fruits and vegetables per person. They produced 100 pounds of meat and poultry, 96 gallons of milk, and 27 dozen eggs per person.

Summing up the report, Miss Patton said, "One of the most important results of seven years of the FSA program is that it has provided conclusive evidence that underfed, underemployed, low-income farm families can provide themselves with minimum adequate diets if given the opportun-

Head of Ground Forces a Hero

Lieut. Gen. McNair Credited As 'Trigger Man' of Modern Army.

WASHINGTON.—Lieut. Gen. Leslie J. McNair, a quiet, 58-year-old Minnesotan about whom the public knows little, has taken over command of the ground forces of the U. S. army.

He was chosen for the job when President Roosevelt recently streamlined the army's archaic administrative setup into three compact, co-ordinated divisions—ground force, air force and supply service. Lieut. Gen. Henry H. Arnold and Maj. Gen. Brehon B. Somervell have taken office as chiefs of the latter two units.

Designation of the sandy-haired McNair as head of the ground force under the new setup was regarded generally as a reward for the job he did as chief of staff of the army general headquarters which was set up after the outbreak of the European war to supervise building of the nation's land forces into a modern fighting organization.

'Trigger Man' in Program.

McNair is generally credited with being the "trigger man" in the army's modernization program. It was his duty to see that the record expansion program, including training and organization, was carried out; that selectees were fitted into the army, and that our overseas bases were properly equipped and manned.

Using his quiet, homespun and "few words" doctrine, he got the job done with a minimum of fanfare, to the great satisfaction of his superiors.

McNair eschews the capital social whirl and is a firm believer in plain living. This belief has contributed to a doctrine he has set up for all troops under his command—that they must have "iron in their blood" to withstand the rigors of modern warfare. He intensely dislikes grandstand and self-promoting tactics, and contends the individual must subordinate all to the service of his country.

A few days ago, McNair told a graduating class at the army's command and general staff school, Fort Leavenworth, Kan., that U. S. soldiers still need more training to be properly classed as "first line troops."

Need More Effectiveness.

"They are capable of fighting creditably, but with excessive losses, and with less than full effectiveness," he concluded.

This was regarded as a tip off that he means business in stressing his "iron in your blood" program for the 3,600,000 men who will be in the army by the end of 1942.

McNair was born in Verndale, Minn., and graduated from West Point. He served with the Funston expedition to Vera Cruz in 1914, and later in the border campaign against Pancho Villa. He is a field artillery officer.

During the First World war, he went to France with the A.E.F. and reached the temporary rank of brigadier general at the age of 35. He headed the command and general staff school until 1940, when he was made GHQ chief of staff. He was promoted to major general, and to lieutenant general in June, 1941.

McNair is married. He has one son, Maj. Douglas McNair, a field artillery officer like his dad, now at Killeen, Texas.

Says Synthetic Rubber Will Be Ready in 1944

CHICAGO.—John D. Beebe of the B. F. Goodrich company predicts that the manufacture of synthetic and reclaimed rubber will enable the industry to supply both defense and non-defense needs by 1944.

He told transit members at a forum of the American Transit association that within two years increases in the production of reclaimed and synthetic rubber should provide a supply of 850,000 long tons.

Beebe gave statistics of plane, truck and other defense production as an illustration of where most rubber supplies would be going and said that his company considered the transit industry's present rubber quota too low and was making every effort to have it raised.

Britain Plans to Reduce Clothing Ration June 1

LONDON.—A reduction of about one-fourth in Britain's clothes ration starting June 1—from 66 coupons a year to a rate slightly over 51—was announced.

The reduced ration would affect persons mainly in sedentary occupations and those living at home.

An order was expected prohibiting double-breasted suits and trouser cuffs and limiting the number of pockets in garments.

More Discoveries on Magnetism of Earth Told

Latest discoveries about the magnetism and electricity of the earth, in air, on land and sea, are revealed in a Carnegie institution's report issued here recently.

These developments in science were made during the year by the scientists of the famous institution's department of terrestrial magnetism, whose director and assistant-director, respectively, are Dr. John A. Fleming and Dr. O. H. Gish.

American scientists solved many riddles of earth's electric and magnetic machinery. The rays of the sun play a very important part in causing magnetic storms and other changes of magnetic and electrical nature.

But the sun's rays of various kinds, consisting of ultra-violet rays, perhaps X-rays, electrical particles moving swiftly like bullets, ordinary light rays, first bombard the atoms and molecules of the upper atmosphere.

Scientists devised a very ingenious method of learning what was going on in the upper atmosphere, when solar radiations bombarded its layers. A special searchlight apparatus was constructed and used.

Beams of ultra-violet rays and other types of lights were projected upwards, and the reflected radiations were caught and measured.

Thus the scientists were able to know how thick air was and what its temperature was, at any height.

Porcelain Mixture Kept Secret for Many Years

The history of the Royal Vienna porcelain factory dates from the time of the Emperor Charles VI of Austria, who caused a pottery to be built in Vienna under his patronage in 1718. Cladius Innocenz DuPasquier controlled the works from 1718 to 1744. Some of the workmen at the Meissen factory left to take employment at Vienna. Among them may be mentioned Hunger, who had been an enameler and gilder at Meissen, and Stenzel, who was a ceramist at the same factory.

DuPasquier had many difficulties to contend with and, the productions not being satisfactory, the works were closed at the end of the second year. Added to his other difficulties was a disagreement with Stenzel, who refused to give up the secret of the porcelain mixture at Meissen. DuPasquier endeavored by experiments to discover the porcelain mixture himself but was not successful. The factory finally was offered to the government in 1744. At this time the young Empress Maria Theresa decided to support the factory, which promised to give occupation and profit to her subjects and gain to the state. By 1760, under government control, the factory advanced to a perfection of art which subsequently was maintained.

Summer Wind

Although Egypt is nominally under British protection and the threat of axis invasion wanes under the thrust of the English forces in Libya, the soldiers of all nations will be lucky if they escape a battle on the hot, dry sands of the Egyptian desert.

One of the reasons little military action took place on the Libyan-Tobruk front, where the axis nations had cut off a British force, was the furious, acrid, summer wind called the Khamsin.

The Khamsin blows north across hundreds of miles of the parched, gritty desert where rain falls but once in 30 years. The wind is so strong it overturns trucks, sweeps away tents and reduces visibility to zero.

The impurity of the air, saturated with tiny, flinty sand grains, makes wounds fester and kills off men much quicker than a mechanized enemy.

Partial Blackout More Effective?

Partial blackout of a city, in which a deceptive pattern of lights is retained, would be a more effective protection against enemy air raids than a complete blackout, in the opinion of S. G. Hibben, Westinghouse wartime lighting engineer, at the nation's first mass meeting on air-raid defense held here.

Complete darkness would injure civilian morale, increase accidents, hamper production and impede movement of defense materials, Mr. Hibben said, adding that it is only important to darken military objectives, main highways and bridges.

If the city is not completely blacked out, fake airfields, bridges and other military objectives could be built in deserted areas with camouflaging lights.

First to Ride Horse

Horses were common all over Europe in the old Stone age. At the cave of Solutre, near Lyons, France, have been found tens of thousands of bones of horses which the few Stone age families, who lived in the cave, probably ate as food. That the horses were used for food, and not for riding, is almost certain. Most of the horse bones on this historic Stone age site are those of foals and young animals which could be most easily caught or killed. And — almost without exception — the bones have been cracked open to get at the bone marrow. But it was left for some farseeing and ingenious nomad of the Asiatic plains to be the first "cowboy" to mount a horse and ride it.

Farmers Urged To Aid Salvage Drive

Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the War Production Board, in a brief message broadcast over many Alabama radio stations recently, called on the farmers to collect all available scrap metal and rubber for donations or sale to war industries.

"A wealth of these materials lies scattered about the country, unused and going to waste", the WPB head said.

"The War Production Board has called upon the Department of Agriculture and the Work Project Administration to assist with this job. State Salvaging Committees of the War Producton Board were set up months ago, and through these and the War Boards of the Department of Agriculture, farmers have been urged to donate or sell their scrap to war industries. Already, thousands of tons of this material have been donated or sold by farmers in response to this Salvage For Victory Drive. But millions of tons of both metal and rubber scrap still remain unsalvaged. Much of it is on the farms, and farmers have found it difficult to arrange for its transportation to dealers." Mr. Nelson told his listeners.

Highway Patrol To Enforce 40 Mile Limit

The State Highway Patrol has started enforcement of the 40 mile per hour speed limit in earnest, following complaints from tire ration board members that many motorists are speeding along in defiance of President Roosevelt's rubber saving plea.

The state traffic death toll will be approximately 450 by Dec. 31, or 40 per cent under the 1941 toll, if observance of the 40 mile per hour speed limit becomes nearly universal, the State Department of Public Safety estimates.

Alabama's part in solving wartime traffic problems was reported by Gov. Dixon at Washington Thursday at a federal state conference on the elimination of trade and transportation barriers which might hinder the naton's war effort.

Milk Is Favorite Drink of Children

Youngsters Seem Interested In War Activities.

CHICAGO.—The average American boy and girl believe it will take the U. S. more than three years to win the war.

They own defense savings stamps and bonds.

They spend most of their money in dime stores—and most of it for candy.

Their favorite drink is milk.

Of all foreign countries, they'd like most to visit England when the war is over. The girls, however, have equal preference for Hawaii and Switzerland.

These are the results of the fourth national Reed poll of America's children, taken in schools, Sunday schools and in Y.M.C.A.'s the last week in January.

Asked how long it would take to win the war, children were more conservative than many adults. Thirty-one per cent of the boys and 33 per cent of the girls said "more than three years."

Twenty-nine per cent said two years and 21 per cent said three years. Only 14 per cent said less than two years.

Sixty-three per cent of boys and 54 per cent of girls polled owned savings stamps or bonds.

More girls than boys spend most of their money in dime stores—57 per cent compared to 44 per cent. Grocery stores came next.

Candy headed their list of purchases—36 per cent of boys and 34 per cent of girls spending their money for sweets. However, 25 per cent of girls spend their money on sundries, such as jewelry, while boys reported no purchases in this field.

Asked to name their favorite drink, 40 per cent of boys and 33 per cent of girls said milk. Neither group expressed much liking for just plain water.

Large Crowds Are Attending Revival

Services At Clanton Methodist End Sunday

The revival in the Methodist church will continue through Sunday night, May 17th. Attendance and interest are growing, every day. Dr. Ernest A. Childs is doing some very strong gospel preaching. The congregation is enjoying the messages.

Mr. Fred Bond, of Birmingham, is directing the song services and the Junior work in a very fine way. Everybody is invited to attend both morning and evening services—10:30 a.m. and 8:00 p.m.

Come and bring your friends. The church school will meet at the regular hour, 9:45 a.m. Sunday morning.

Have you missed any of the services being held at the Clanton Methodist church? You should hear Bro. Childs in all his soul-stirring sermons and Bro. Bond as he sings and directs the singing. He makes every one want to sing, and under his direction, some have sung this week who heretofore haven't been singing at all. Have you heard Bro. Casaday's joke that apparently some of the pews are reserved for spirits of absent ones who say, "I'm in church with you in spirit, though not physically?" Those spirits are being crowded out by the excellent attendance at the services.

The meeting, as planned, will last through Sunday night. Every one is cordially invited to attend all these services, 10:30 a.m. and 8:00 p.m. The children meet at 7:40 p.m. and with Bro. Bond at the church. They sing special numbers each evening service.

Postmasters To Meet At Montgomery

Chilton County will be well represented at the State Convention of Postmasters which will be held in Montgomery at the Whitley Hotel, Monday and Tuesday, May 18and 19, says Postmaster Gladys Deramus, of Verbena, who is County chairman of the association. The Whitley Hotel has made many reservations and is still receiving applications for more. National President Phillip J. Gallagher will be the principal speaker.

Feb. 16, Selectees To Be Called Soon

Selectees from among the men who registered for Selective Service on February 16, 1942, will be inducted into the Army next month, it is announced by National Headquarters, Selective Service System. They will be included in the June calls of every local board.

The February 16th registrants will be distributed proportionately with the Class 1-A registrants remaining from the first two registrations, Major Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, Director of Selective Service, told state Directors in an official communication advising them of a request from the War Department that February 16th selectees be included in the June call He said:

"If the first age group (men registered in October 1940 and in July 1941) has been exhausted, the call should be made only upon the second age group (Fbe. 16th 1942 registrants). If the first age group is not exhausted, the local board will call upon each group in proportion to the number of Class 1-A registrants remaining in each.

Permits Granted For Increased Loads

More than 1,000 permits have been granted for trucks to haul loads of defense materials in excess of Alabama's 30,000-ton statutory limit—in line with the Governors policy of full support to the nation's war program—the Advisory Committee on Defense Transportation announced today.

With all State Highway Department employes cooperating in the salvage-for-victory drive, more than 450 batteries, 1,300 old tires, 3,600 lbs. of old inner tubes and 680 tons of scrap metal have been salvaged by the department since Oct. 1.

Mrs. E. W. Burkhalter, Pickens County, received an income of $122.90 from 75 hens within a three month period.

Demand For Man-Power Growing

Many Selective Service registrants who have been deferred from military service solely because they have dependents will eventually be inducted unless they become engaged in activities essential to the Nation's war effort. Brig. Gen. Ben M. Smith, State Director of Selective Service, declared today.

"We are rapidly approaching the stage where everyone must be working or fighting to win the war," Director Smith asserted. War requirements—the demand for manpower by essential industries as well as the armed forces—will compel many local boards within the next several months to find selectees for their quotas from among registrants who have dependants.

Chilton County Auto Death Rate Below Annual Average

Chilton County is one of the 39 Alabama counties with a 1942 traffic death toll below the county's average traffic death rate for the first four months of the last three years.

So far this year automobile accidents have killed one person in Chilton County, compared with five traffic fatality victims, on an annual average, during all of 1939, 1940 and 1941.

The average state traffic toll in the last three years has been 676.

Rev. and Mrs. O. A. Davis Leave For Gadsden This Week

Rev. Oscar A. Davis and family leave this week for Gadsden, Ala., where Bro. Davis takes up his new duties at the First Baptist Church there. The Davises have been in Clanton for four years and it is with regrete that we see them go. The News wishes them well in their new work.

40 MILE AN HOUR FOR BUSSES

With "special emphasis on busses," Governor Dixon has instructed State Safety Director James F. Brawner to tighten up on enforcement of the life-saving, rubber-conserving 40 mile per hour speed limit.

Postoffice To Close Wednesday At Noon

Starting on Wednesday, May 20th the postoffice will close at noon but will remain open on Saturday afternoon throughout the summer. This is to conform with the other business houses in Clanton who have already started closing at noon Wednesday's.

Postmaster Lowe, however, wishes it understood that there will be a window open at the postoffice both Wednesday and Saturday afternoons for the citizens who care to buy a war saving stamp or bond.

Annual Dinner

The Rockford F. F. A. and F. H. A. clubs held their annual father-son, mother-daughter dinner at the home economics department building recently. There were 75 people present. This number included parents, members, teachers and visitors.

Centennial Celebration will be held at Providence Baptist Church, located in the southern part of Coosa County, a centennial celbration of the founding of that chur.

May Commandeer Speeding Autos

Washington—One bill, introduced by Senator Downey (D) California, would establish a $5,000,000,000 fund which would be used to build up a government stockpile of cars, tires and parts, by donation, purchase or requisitioning.

Another proposal, by Senator Reynolds (D) North Carolina, would fix a nationwide 40 mile-an-hour speed limit and authorize the government to commandeer all cars found traveling at a greater speed. The owners to be paid for their cars.

Gadsden police are warring on unnecessary noises—such as horn blowing.

Questionnaire For Occupational Service Mailed

The Local Boards have begun the mailing of occupational questionnaires. Those who need help in filling out these papers will be aided by an advisory board that will meet at the City Hall every day except Saturday to aid in this work. Any registrant who wants help is asked to please go to this board for information and not to the Local Draft Boards.

Members of the staff at the Draft Boards have been instructed not to assist registrants in filling out these questionnaires.

State Highway Patrol To Discuss Problems Wartime Police Work

Civilian protection from bombings, defense housing, wartime police work and war problems confronting the State Highway Patrol and the State Highway Department will be discussed at Montgomery today and Saturday (May, 15-16) at a meeting of the Alabama section of the American Society of Civil Engineers.

Prominent speakers from over the state will be presented to the gathering.

Mr. Eric Greenwood Presented In Recital

On May 3rd, at 4 o'clock, at the Methodist church, the Clanton Music Appreciation Club presented Mr. Eric Greenwood, of Chattanooga, in an organ recital. Mr. Greenwood began the study of music at an early age. He studied in England where he lived until the death of both his parents when he came to live with relatives in this country. Here he studied with private teachers, at Oberlin College and at the University of Chattanooga, where he is a Senior at the present time. The Club was pleased to be able to begin National Music Week with so delightful a program as Mr. Greenwood was able to render.

The Club was delighted with the reading of two poems by Mr. Rascoe Maddox.

24 HOUR LIMIT FOR TANK CARS

All tank cars containing asphalt or tar must be emptied within 24 hours after delivery, the War Production Board notified the State Highway Department today.

"The Department will cooperate 100 per cent with the WPB in helping to speed up war transportation by making these tank cars immediately available for their next routing," Director Pruett announced.

"Although none of our deliveries are ordered or scheduled for Saturdays or Sundays, tank cars occasionally do arrive for us over the weekend. Convict labor will be used, where necessary, to assure the quick unloading and release of these cars for wartime use.

"TOO MANY RELATIVES"

The senior class of Isabella announces that it is presenting it's play Friday night May 15th, 1942, at 9:00 o'clock in the school auditorium.

"Too Many Relatives" has been hailed everywhere that it has been shown so far, as a brilliant laugh hit. The senior players consider themselves fortunate in being able to get this play here at this early date. This play will bring shrieks of laughter from any audience. This is one of the most amusing plays to come along in a long, long time.

Don't fail to see Naomi Culp and Marion Headley play the parts of Aunt Ermintrude and Uncle Otto who are both hard of hearing. The complete cast for the play is:

Lions Club Sponsoring Navy Relief Fund

The Clanton Lions Club is sponsoring the Navy Relief Drive in Chilton County under the direction of J. T. King.

The slogan, "Protect the family of the man who is protecting your family," tells the whole story and little more can be said in regard to the work that they are doing.

Saturday, there will be several booths around the business district with girls soliciting funds for this worthy cause. Try to help them. These solicitations will be under the direction of Mrs. Dick Hayes.

Several New Pastors To Preach At First Baptist This Month

Clanton church goers are in for a treat for the balance of this month if variety means anything. Within a period of three weeks Clanton will enjoy the sermons of no less than six pastors in the Methodist and Baptist churches alone.

Following O. A. Davis at the Baptist church will be Rev. J. W. Fagin, pastor of the Pell City Baptist church, who will preach here on the 17th of May. On May 24th, the following Sunday, Mr. Roswell Owens, a returned Missionary from Palestine, will fill the pulpit, and on May 31st, Howard Dawkins, a student at the Baptist Seminary, will conduct services. Mr. Dawkins has had six years experience, but has spent the past two years in school.

Now with Dr. Casaday at the Methodist church and Dr. Childs, who is conducting the revival services there doing their part, Clanton is indeed fortunate in the services of these ministers.

First Paving Finished On The Jemison-To-Shelby Line

The first course of bituminous paving was completed Tuesday on the Jemison-to-Shelby County line revision of U. S. Highway 31, between Montgomery and Birmingham. (The finishing coat will be applied in about a month).

This revision eliminates a number of bad curves and forms a short-cut, reducing the route by two and a half miles. It shortens the distance between Montgomery and Birmingham from 102.2 miles to a fraction under 100 miles.

The paving crew which has been at work on the U.S. 31 short-cut, has been moved to the Shades Valley project, near Birmingham. There a three-and-one-half-mile connection is being made from State Road 91 (Florida Short Route) through the new cloverleaf on U.S. 31, to the Green Springs Road, the latter being an alternate entrance (or exit) route to Birmingham from U. S. 31. The Shades Valley cut-off will facilitate entrance to or egress from Birmingham for many defense workers as well as the general public and will eliminate for many through-bound drivers the necessity of traversing the traffic-crowded business section of Birmingham.

Virgil Bouldin In Runoff With Drennen

Associate Justice Virgil Bouldin, engaged in a runoff to retain his seat on the Alabama Supreme Court, issued a statement which appears in this issue as a political ad and in which he gave vigorious answer to the suggestion that he might avail himself of retirement privileges.

Pointing out that he was in excellent health, Judge Bouldin expressed his desire to continue his full measure of service to the state, calling attention to the fact that his retirement would mean that the people of the state would pay two salaries where only one is necessary.

Judge Bouldin led a field of four in the race for his seat, but lacked majority vote, with Jesse L. Drennen, of Birmingham, as runnerup.

Judge Bouldin is recognized by the Bench and Bar as one of the State's most distinguished jurists.

Four More USES Offices Opened

Announcement of the opening of four additional offices of the United States Employment Service of Alabama was made by C. F. Anderson, Director of Alabama.

The new offices, which are now in full operation, are located at Cullman, Greenville, Robertsdale and Winfield

Folsom Congratulates, Nominee Sparks

Honorable Chauncey Sparks:

You will be my governor and I will gladly do anything in my power to assist you in making your administration outstanding. You are at liberty to call on me and my friends. We will adjourn politics and unite behind our great President and you as governor and win the war. Best wishes."

Honorable Jim Folsom:

May I thank you for your telegram just received congratulating me upon the results of May Fifth Primary, and also express my cordial appreciation of your offer of assistance and your best wishes. May I extend to you my very best wishes for your future happiness. — CHAUNCEY SPARKS.

Jim Folsom Extends Thanks To Voters

To My Friends Everywhere in Alabama:

I wish to express here to each one of you, my heart-felt appreciation of your hearty and enthusiastic cooperation in piling up the wonderful vote that we did in so short a time. There is glory enough for us all. We fought a good fight, we kept the faith, we will continue to carry on.

JIM FOLSOM.

Civilian Defense Workers Paid Fine Compliment

Gene Gore, who is county chairman of the Civilian Defense, reports a fine compliment passed on the good work being done here. Mr. Jones, one of the leaders at Area Headquarters, was discussing the situation with Gene, when Gene asked him if there wasn't something new that we hadn't tried here that he could tell him about.

Said Mr. Jones, "You folks here go right on with what you are doing, we're taking lessons from Clanton. Clanton and Tuscaloosa rank highest in the entire area on Civilian Defense Work."

And while on the subject. The City garbage truck makes two rounds each week to pick up garbage. Earl Gore, who is in charge of the salvage-for-freedom drive, asks everyone to place any scrap that you may have by the side of your garbage can and the truck will pick it up at the same time they get your garbage each week.

High School Grads Urged To Join U. S. Marine Corps

With a number of young Chilton Countians already serving their country with the United States Marines the close of the current school year is likely to find many more enlisting as Leathernecks in Uncle Sam's toughest outfit.

More than a score of senior high students who will complete studies the latter part of this month have expressed a preference for the Marine Corps and plan to serve in that branch of the armed forces. Aside from the priviledge of fighting with an outfit rich in tradition and color, the Marine Corps offers untold educational opportunities and no volunteer need forsake higher education simply because of the emergency which has arisen.

An opportunity to become an expert in the field of radio, electrical engineerng, aviation mechanics and even clerical work is offered young men who enlist n the Marine Corps and courses of study are arranged so as not to conflct with other general duties. Upon completion of a recruit training period, new Leathernecks are afforded an opportunity to choose a line of their own liking and through study courses, many leading to ratings, are provided those who prove themselves capable.

Chances for advancement are brighter then ever in the Marine Corps and young men desiring to serve with the Devil Dogs are urged to contact their nearest recruiting office, Birmingham or Montgomery, for further particulars.

INZER WITHDRAWS ELLIS IS NOMINEE

L. Handy Ellis, of Columbiana, today was accredited as nominee for Lieutenant-Governor of Alabama, after the withdrawal from a run-off of J. C. Inzer, of Gadsden.

FSA Aids Farmer Debt Adjustment

Would Save Farmers From Displacement

In the effort to save farmers from the threat of displacement because of debt, the Farm Debt Adjustment Service of the Farm Security Administration has helped farmers in Chilton County in adjusting their debts within their ability to repay. This program will be continued, Marvin Durbin, FSA Supervisor said, to help as many established farmers as possible to keep up their operations in these days when every farm must produce all the food that it can.

"Efficiency of farm operations depends upon security, upon freedom from debt and worry", Mr. Durbin said. "To bring these things about is the function of the Farm Debt Adjustment service of FSA."

The program in this county is directed by a committee, whose members are: E. R. Piper, Jadie M. Culp, and Willie Hamilton. They review applications of farmers who are laboring under a heavy load of debts. Their job is to help the farmer consolidate these debts, obtain the agreement of creditors to place the repayment on a systematic basis, and arrange a plan of production that will make this repayment possible

The service is available not only for debt burdened farmers who are participants in the FSA program, but for others as well. It is available, however, only to those farmers burdened by debts beyond their capacity to repay readily

Examinations Of Pre-school Age Children Complete

Dr. Mary Walton, County Health Officer, has recently completed a program of health examinations for children who will enter school this Fall for the first time. Eight clinics were held in different parts of the county. Many of the parents rode the school buses in order to reach the clinics. Thirty-one children were examined at the Clanton Health Department at the clinic which included Clanton Grammar School, Concord, Baker and Mt. Pleasant. This was the largest attendance for the county. Maplesville ranked second in number with 28 children examined.

The examinations showed that 67 percent of the children had bad teeth and 68 percent had infected tonsils; 28 percent defective eyes and 32 percent nutritional defects.

The parents were urged to have all physical defects corrected before school begins this Fall. Many parents expressed their appreciation of the very thorough examination which each child received. The Health Department is doing a splendid job of national defense work by carrying on a program which will help to make for stronger and more healthy children.

Negro Death Rate More Favorable

In 1930 the general Negro death rate for Alabama was 15.2 per 1000 population, in 1940 it was only 14.1 per 1,000 population, or 7.2 per cent lower. The 1940 Negro typhoid death rate was 78.2 per cent less than the 1930 rate. The death rate showed a marked decrease in whooping cough, diphtheria, tuberculosis, malaria and pellagra.

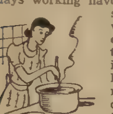
Broiled Lamb Chops Keep Your Kitchen Comfortably Cool
(See Recipes Below)

Kitchen Comfort



Spring Fever? Are the warm lazy days working havoc with your desire to cook, to work in the kitchen? Then dispel these lagging feelings with quickly put-together meals that cut down your work to a minimum and the use of your oven to practically nothing.

This is the season to make the most of your broiler and meats that are at their best when broiled. Broiler specialties are lamb chops (both shoulder and loin), steaks, thick ham slices, and young chickens. If you heat your oven very hot and also the pan in which you are broiling your meat before you put the meat into the oven, you will actually be cutting down the time you have your oven on. In this way you are way ahead on economy of heat and also in keeping your kitchen comfortably cool.

To cut down the time you spend in actual cooking, select foods that cook quickly or that can be cooked and served together. Our menu today is a good example of this: the lamb chops broil quickly and the lima beans brought to a boil and cooked quickly take only as much time as the lamb chops to cook until tender. Serve them on the same platter, too—they're pretty that way and you will have fewer serving dishes to wash.

The Refrigerator.

Your appreciation for your refrigerator or icebox undoubtedly zooms upward quite fast with the first appearance of warmer weather. Indeed, what could you possibly do without refrigeration that keeps fruits, vegetables, leftovers, meats, milk, butter, eggs and countless other products in perfect condition? In what other place could you possibly store away the salad to keep crisp and cool and the delectable desserts that must remain firm before serving?

Those reasons are enough to make you keep your refrigerator in the best of condition, but the recent limitation on making and selling refrigerators will certainly give you further reason to cherish it with the best possible care.

Keep the refrigerator away from the sun that comes into the kitchen. Keep it away from the stove, too, and give it enough space for good circulation of air at the back and top. Most refrigerators need a 2½-inch leeway at the back and 6 to 12 inches at the top.

Temperatures are important, so check them with a thermometer. Safest temperature is between 40 and 45 degrees Fahrenheit.

Cool hot foods before putting them into the refrigerator. Cover foods except those having thick skins. Moisture from uncovered foods collects on the freezing unit and you will have to defrost oftener.

Your refrigerator has a big job in keeping everything cool, as every piece of food requires just so much energy to cool. For this reason you should not overcrowd your refrigerator or stuff it full with bags, cartons and vegetable tops that also need energy to be cooled.

Defrosting.

This Week's Menu

*Broiled Shoulder Lamb Chops
Lima Beans in Tomatoes
Hashed Brown Potatoes
*Bran Sour Cream Muffins
Butter
*Wilted Lettuce Salad
*Frozen Prune Whip
Coffee Tea Milk
*Recipe Given.

Once a week or oftener in the summer if the weather is humid, defrost the refrigerator. This will help it keep the proper temperature. When you defrost, wash the inside of the box, the trays, etc., with a solution of 3 quarts of warm water and 1 tablespoon of soda. Wipe with a cloth wrung in clean, clear water and dry thoroughly before returning the food and trays to the box. In this way you give your refrigerator good care and prolong its service to you.

Broiled Shoulder Lamb Chops.

Have lamb shoulder chops boned and rolled and cut into slices about 1 inch thick. Thoroughly preheat broiling oven with regulator set for broiling. Place lamb chops on rack so that there is a distance of about 3 inches between top of chops and source of heat. If this distance must be less, reduce the temperature accordingly. When one side is nicely browned, season with salt and pepper, turn and finish cooking. This requires about 15 minutes. Serve with tomatoes which are stuffed with cooked lima beans and broiled.

Here are muffins that will act as a spring tonic with their rich-in-iron molasses and bran cereal that peps up even the most wilted spirits:

Bran Sour Cream Muffins.
(Makes 18 small muffins)

1 cup flour
1 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup sour cream
½ cup molasses
2 tablespoons water
1 egg, beaten
2 cups bran cereal

Sift together flour, soda and salt. Combine cream, molasses, water and egg. Stir into dry ingredients and add bran cereal. Fill well-greased muffin tins two-thirds full and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for 20 to 25 minutes.

Wilted lettuce makes a quick and easy salad combination. It is perfect with the broiled lamb chops because of the bacon flavoring which blends so well with them:

Wilted Lettuce.

4 slices bacon, cut in small pieces and fried brown
⅔ cup vinegar
⅓ cup water
1 teaspoon sugar

When bacon is browned, add other ingredients and heat to boiling point. Pour over lettuce. Sliced hard-cooked eggs and a little diced onion may be added to make the salad extra delicious.

Frozen Prune Whip.
(Serves 6)

1½ cups cooked prunes
½ cup granulated sugar for prunes
¼ teaspoon ground cloves
2 cups milk
⅓ cup granulated sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1 tablespoon plain gelatin
2 eggs
1 cup whipping cream

Cut prunes from pits in small pieces. Combine prunes with ½ cup sugar and spice and heat to dissolve sugar. Chill. Combine 1½ cups milk, salt, and ⅓ cup sugar and scald. Add flavoring and gelatin moistened in remaining ½ cup milk and stir to dissolve gelatin. Pour over beaten eggs, stirring briskly. Chill until thick. Whip cream stiff and fold into chilled gelatin mixture; add prune mixture. Pour into refrigerator tray, place in freezing unit and freeze. Stir once or twice during freezing process.

Have you a particular household or cooking problem on which you would like expert advice? Write to Miss Lynn Chambers at Western Newspaper Union, 210 South Desplaines Street, Chicago, Illinois, explaining your problem fully to her. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for your reply.

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Lynn Says:

Keep your kitchen well ventilated and you will drive away much of the feeling of fatigue that comes while you cook. Warm air usually rises so it is better to keep the windows open from the top to create better ventilation and avoid drafts.

Place an electric fan right above the stove so that it fans the warm air right out the windows, or combine a fan with a screen placed in the upper sash of one of the windows and adjust to fan the air in or out the room.

In some kitchens it is practicable to place a fan in the chimney flue provided for that purpose.

(Agriculture Engineer, New Jersey College of Agriculture, Rutgers University.)

Use poison bait, fumigate, set traps or keep a good rat dog—but be sure to do something to protect your farm from the rat menace.

Rats multiply so rapidly that frequent attention to the problem is necessary all the time, and especially now when farm efficiency is playing an important part in the nations Food for Freedom program.

Keep the farmstead free from all piles of waste material or supplies stacked in such a way as to offer shelter and feed for rats: This is the first and most urgent measure. Supplies should be kept in rat-proof buildings or in stacks located away from buildings. Waste should be removed or destroyed.

Leave No Holes or Cracks.

Repair foundations, floors and sills of buildings, leaving no holes or large cracks offering a start for gnawing. Foundations must be intact to a depth of two feet below ground level. Sheet metal or wire screen tacked over holes or cracks and to the edges of doors are a sure stop.

Wood walls are rat-proofed by covering with half-inch mesh wire screen to a height of four feet above the ground and placing a smooth strip of galvanized metal above the wire mesh.

Rats can burrow through decayed, crumbly concrete or even sound new concrete while it is still soft and moist. Everlasting diligence is required.

Suggestions on Plows

Before using a new plow, engineers suggest that the farmer measure the down suction and land suction of the share, and make a record of the measurements. Later, when the share needs sharpening, it can be given the same degree of suction.

A wobbly rolling colter increases draft and makes a ragged plowing job. Hence colter bearings should be adjusted snugly to run true and vertical but freely, replaced if badly worn. Generally colters are set to cut one-half to one inch wider than the share, and the width of two fingers above it.

Best position for the jointer on a plow is just far enough behind the colter hub to prevent dirt and trash wedging against it and low enough to cut a three-cornered ribbon of soil about 4 inches wide and usually not more than 2½ inches deep. Farm engineers say when a jointer is used without a rolling colter, its point should be set approximately over the point of the share, the same as when a disc jointer is used.

Normal Loss

Shell Eggs Shipped to Isle Getting There OK

Shell eggs, produced on United States farms, are getting to Great Britain with losses in transit amounting to no more than normal losses in domestic shipping, says G. T. Klein, extension poultryman at Massachusetts State college.

This was indicated by a recent report to the British house of commons by Major Lloyd-George, undersecretary to the minister of foods, in which he stated losses amount to no more than 5.3 per cent.

These losses, says Mr. Klein, are largely due to spoilage and breakage and compare favorably with normal losses in shell eggs shipped from producing areas to consumers throughout the United States.

This should be good news to the American poultryman who has wanted to know whether his eggs were reaching Great Britain without severe loss and in condition to be of use to the English people. Shipment of eggs under the Lend-Lease act has enabled the British government to increase allotments to stores and thus supply consumers with a greater number than they have had previously through the rationing system.

Farm Notes

Trailers and dormitories to be made available for temporary war housing by the Farm Security administration under a recent presidential allocation of $13,000,000 will provide 12,269 dwelling units for workers in 24 war-industry areas, the U. S. department of agriculture says. Housing facilities in these areas are expected to be ready for occupancy early in March.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON
(Consolidated Features—WNU Service.)

NEW YORK.—It will come hard to think of Gen. James H. Doolittle as the Jimmy Doolittle who used to be the bantamweight boxing champ of the Pacific coast. But there's no mistake. The newly elevated general, nominated by President Roosevelt, is none other than the weather-beaten, tanned, wrinkled, rumpled, bandy-legged roughhouse fighter and flier of a few years back. He has grown gray in the air, and much of his hair has been wafted out into the windstream, since the days when he first became known as a speed demon.

Top Boxer, Racer, Air Stunter—He's Now Gen. Doolittle

He won't be long in opening up his own fighting front, somewhere, somehow—judging by the way he did the same in a boxing match in which we once saw him.

His father, a carpenter and prospector of Alameda, Calif., took his family to Alaska and there young James bucked blizzards, mushed with sourdoughs and got generally case-hardened for his latter adventurous career. Back in the States, he enlisted in the army air service.

Outside loops were to him just like skipping the rope and he quickly became the army's crack stunt-flier and racing pilot, instructing rookies at San Diego. He studied at the army's technical school at Dayton, Ohio, and later enrolled at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

In 1925, he won the Schneider cup for the army, hitting a speed of 232 miles per hour. These exploits of his daredevil years qualified him for some hair-raising adventures in demonstrating American planes to foreign governments. In 1928, showing off fighting planes in Chile, he fell from a window ledge and broke both ankles. The next day, when a competing German pilot went aloft to give his plane a sales workout, Doolittle had himself lifted into the cockpit of his plane, with his broken ankles tied to a rudder bar. Then by clever and hazardous maneuvering he forced his rival to the ground, and tore off a few snap-rolls around the tall peaks of the Andes.

His stunt brought to the Curtiss company one of the largest contracts ever awarded to an American company.

BARNEY OLDFIELD, the automobile racing driver, pulled up in a race to change a tire. There was a bit of bungling on the job. His French mechanic spoke up: "Meester Oldfield what zis crew needs is esprit."

Esprit—The Thing That Slams Out Piers in Jig Time

"Go out and buy one!" bellowed Barney. "We gotta win this race."

It's like that in war. We can't buy the "esprit," although we are fanning up quite a lot of it. Somehow we've got to get the teamwork. In the meantime, there is observable in these parts a serial demonstration of fast double-play teamwork between management and labor, which is heartening.

We cite the George Rogers Construction Co., demon pier-builders, who recently finished a 700-foot pier and shipway in 43 working days—25 days, or more than 30 per cent, faster than any previous record for a job of this type. This company has been slamming out similar piers since 1869. It is crucially important war work, as on these piers, fighting ships are repaired or remodeled.

There's no involved incentive plan for employees. The workers are old-line shipbuilders who know what they are building for. George W. Rogers, grandson of the founder of the firm, and now its head, says of his workers: "At mass meetings of the various shifts on the job the men themselves have helped provide the driving force required to maintain the record-breaking schedule."

Mr. Rogers studied engineering at Cornell university, with no intention of ever being a "dock-walloper," as he calls his occupation. He went to Cornell and won his letters in basketball, football and track. When his father died, he took up the family business.

In the last war, he served in the navy as a deck officer on a battleship, and did convoy duty and saw action with submarines. With the outbreak of this war he tried to get back in the navy, but they offered him three stripes and a desk and he decided he would be more useful in kicking out piers in a hurry—which is an old family custom. He lives in Forest Hills, and has two daughters, one 19 years of age and the other 21. They are studying in one of the defense projects, learning to be motor mechanics, dismounting and assembling engines.

Famed Indian Scouts of Arizona Share Memory of Glorious Past

These famous Indian scouts stationed at Ft. Huachuca, Arizona, were originally mustered into army units shortly after the Civil war. The government no longer recruits these scouts as there are only seven left. When they retire and are discharged this once famous organization will be only a memory. Today the members of the detachment are performing valuable service as reservation range and fire guards. Many tales have been told of the bravery of Indian scouts attached to regular army units.

Corporal Jim Lane, U. S. army scout, second from right, shakes hands with John Rope (Black Larriet) retired U. S. army scout, who tells of the many battles in which he has fought.

Sgt. Sinew L. Riley typifies the eyes and ears of Indian scouts in this century.

WARNER Brothers' "Heroes Without Uniforms," a story of the American Merchant Marine, will be the first of a group of films telling us things that the government wants us to know. Lowell Mellet, co-ordinator of government films, recently submitted to industry leaders a list of 30 topics about which the government wishes the public to be informed. Originally it was planned to use his ideas as material for short subjects, but it now seems likely that some of them, at least, will be developed into feature-length pictures.

"Parachute Nurse" has what might be termed an All-Starlet cast, virtually an all-feminine one. When Charles Barton, the director, counted noses he found Marguerite Chapman, Shirley Patterson, Alma Carroll, and eight other beauty-contest winners.

Now it's Priscilla Lane who's having to learn card tricks. Jan Grippo, who tutored Veronica Lake for her sleight-of-hand role in "This Gun for Hire" is doing the same for Priscilla, for "Silver Queen," in which she plays opposite George Brent.

PRISCILLA LANE

Three of the cast of Columbia's "The Invaders" have signed rather unusual contracts. Glynis Johns, Eric Portman and Anton Walbrook have agreed to appear in Hollywood within three months after the war is ended; won't leave England till then.

When you see Paramount's "Wake Island" you'll see a setting that's absolutely authentic. The contracting firm which made the actual defense installations for the Wake Island marine garrison before the Japanese attack is in charge of construction at the Salton Sea location for the picture. It is recreating on the shores of the California island sea an exact duplication of the Pacific atoll establishment. John Farrow is directing "Wake Island," with a cast including Brian Donlevy, Robert Preston, Albert Dekker and Barbara Britton.

"Crossroads," the Hedy Lamarr-William Powell picture, brought up a slight dilemma at Metro. Powell, Basil Rathbone and Felix Bressart all had mustaches, and all were loath to part with them—but three was just too many for one film. Powell is a suave diplomat in the picture, Rathbone felt that a villain must have a mustache. Bressart couldn't bear to part with his. You'll have to see the picture to find out who lost out.

That's Ginger Rogers' mother whom you'll see as Ginger Rogers' mother in "The Major and the Minor"; she'll be making her screen debut. She had been a drama editor and a dramatic coach, she's been in charge of the younger players at RKO and this past year she's been installing a dairy at Ginger's 1,100-acre ranch in Oregon—but never before has she been an actress.

The famous musicians of the future may find themselves forming a "Those Who Were Helped by Major Bowes" association. For instance, take the Aquaviva brothers. Anthony, 17, a clarinetist, recently on the Major's program, said that if he won a prize he'd help his younger brother, Nicholas, to get the kind of tutoring he was getting. Anthony won $100, second prize. The Major suggested that he have Nicholas audition for the program. Nicholas, 14, won first prize. So Major Bowes, with the help of everybody who voted for the lads, helped them along.

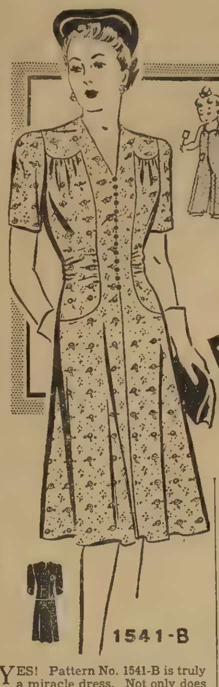
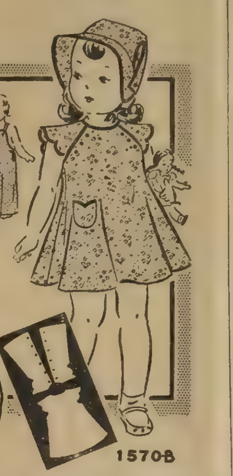
ODDS AND ENDS—Returning to the lot where she was an important star, Evelyn Brent reported to Paramount to play a role in "Wrecking Crew"; Richard Arlen, Jean Parker and Chester Morris co-star in it . . . Harry Sherman may reunite several famous western stars in "Buckskin Empire"—William S. Hart, Hoot Gibson, William Farnum, Jack Holt and Richard Dix . . . Vivian Leigh is being sought for the lead in "Frenchman's Creek" . . . William Warren is in London during an air raid in his new "Lone Wolf" comedy thriller; last time he was actually there was during a zeppelin raid during the last war.

PATTERNS

SEWING CIRCLE



1541-B



1570-B

YES! Pattern No. 1541-B is truly a miracle dress. Not only does it whisk away pounds, it improves and dignifies your posture, gives you a more slender figure and gracious poise.

A fresh, youthful feeling is gained by the cleverly shaped side pieces—forming smart shoulder yokes at the top, gathered at the waist for a flattering fit and dropping the skirt line—as well as the low vee neck. From the point of this neck to the hem is a long straight line which draws attention to your height rather than your width! Graceful sleeves which just cover the elbows are suggested for this frock when it is intended for more formal wear.

A glance at our picture tells you that here is a dress of distinction yet it can be made without any special effort and is just as effective in lovely soft cottons as it is in silk or rayon crepes.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1541-B is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. Size 38 requires, with short sleeves, 4½ yards 39-inch material.

Picturesque Play Set.

DON'T you find it fun to make your daughter's play clothes in cunning styles and pretty cottons? In Pattern No. 1570-B you'll find a play set for girls from 1 to 6 years old which has many practical features.

First comes a frock—delightfully cool with scalloped cap sleeves, a pert pocket, braid and button trimming and a button-down-the-back opening which makes it easy to get on and off. Second, there is an adorable bonnet to match, the crown of which buttons in place. The whole thing opens flat for ironing. Third is a pair of overalls—so sensible for play and so healthy, too, because in warm weather no top is needed and the wearer is exposed to a grand sun tan.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1570-B is designed for 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6 year sizes. Size 2 requires 3⅜ yards 32 or 35-inch material for ensemble, 3 yards bias braid for frock and bonnet.

by ✚ the AMERICAN RED CROSS

Two million volunteer Red Cross workers—a militant army of mercy.

GIVING a pint of blood for the army and navy is a new form of patriotism in which thousands of loyal Americans are now participating.

This blood, processed into lifesaving plasma for emergency transfusions, is collected from volunteer blood donors at 18 Red Cross Blood Donor centers.

The program was launched in February, 1941, following a request by the surgeons general of the army and navy that the Red Cross provide 15,000 pints of blood to be processed into dried plasma. This program has now been expanded at the request of the army and navy to the point where over one million donors will be required. Eighteen centers have been opened, and donations are pouring in at the rate of approximately 60,000 a month.

Giving blood is a simple process, requires but a few minutes time on the part of the donor, and has no after effects. The blood is shipped daily in refrigerated containers to the laboratories, where it is processed into dried plasma, a light, straw colored powder that can be kept indefinitely and transported easily.

Numerous cases have been reported where plasma saved the lives of American soldiers and sailors suffering from burns and traumatic shock, and Red Cross plasma has been distributed to our armed forces operating in the Atlantic and Pacific war theaters. However, thousands of additional donors are needed to supply the full requirements for the army and navy, and to provide plasma for any civilian emergencies which may result from enemy action in this country.

Red Cross Blood Donor centers are located in New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Buffalo, Rochester, N. Y., Indianapolis, Detroit, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, Boston, Milwaukee, Cleveland, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Chicago, Cincinnati, Brooklyn, and Washington, D. C.

NEW IDEAS

for Home-makers

WALL PAPER BORDER PASTED IN PLACE THEN SHELLACED
BOARDS ½" THICK AND 2" OVER GLASS ARE NAILED TO WINDOW FRAME
WHITE VOILE SASH CURTAINS WITH RED BINDINGS AND BLUE RINGS

THIS new style of framing windows with boards gaily decorated, started with the black-out drills. The boards prevent light from showing around the edges of dark shades. The style is especially attractive and practical for kitchen windows as the frame gives the effect of colorful draperies, yet may be washed with a damp cloth.

This window strikes a patriotic note with blue paint and a red, white and blue border. Clear untinted shellac is used. A blue shelf under the window has notches to hold knives and mixing spoons.

Wilkins Was at Winning Post and Knew It Not

Wilkins felt that he could never ask Valerie to become his wife because she was an angel, whereas he himself had many little weaknesses of which no angel would approve. Valerie, on the other hand, kept thinking it was about time he popped the question.

Then, one moonlight night, he spoke up.

"Valerie, w-will you-you m-marry me?" he stuttered, hardly daring to hope she had heard him.

"You bet!" she replied, briskly, already deciding on white satin and four bridesmaids.

"I know, darling. I know," he almost wept, "but if you'll only say 'Yes' I'll never back another horse as long as I live!"

Colorless lacquer can help you cut down a lot of cleaning on large ornate pieces of silver used only for decoration. Thoroughly clean, polish, wash and dry the silver, then cover it with a thin coat of lacquer. When the lacquer begins to wear off, remove all of it by rubbing with a cloth dipped in denatured alcohol. Wash in warm water and soapsuds and polish again, then repeat the lacquer treatment.

The pedagogues are having a hard time, just now convincing John Public that "background" is more important in the conduct of public affairs than brains.

Just keep your political eye on Jim Folsom, of Cullman. Any man who can start from scratch and pile up 73,306 votes in eight weeks time, will have to be reckoned with in future Alabama political campaigns.

It is becoming apparent every day that the so-called "merit system" is nothing more than a grandiose scheme on the part of the higher education political machine to make places for the holders of college degrees.

We fought a good fight, we kept the faith, and we will carry on, firm in the belief that Alabama's mass-mind will not permit the great progress made in behalf of human welfare and democracy, to slip back a third of a century, regardless of who is chosen to hold political office.

On top of setting out to whip Hitler and the Japs, our government has now thrown the weight of its influence into a fight to have people pay their bills and stay out of debt. Even though undertaken as a war measure with the urge of patriotic necessity behind it, the latter may prove the tougher job of the two.—The Montgomery Advertiser.

If our Government had thrown the weight of its influence into a fight to have people pay their bills and stay out of debt, in the first place, the whole world would not now be at war.

JIM FOLSOM'S CAMPAIGN

(The Montgomery Advertiser)

Jim Folsom has conceded the election of Judge Sparks. Folsom, who looked like a five or ten thousand vote candidate when he started, ended up with approximately 75,000 votes. His campaign, and the showing he made, was the type of thing which makes the balloting process interesting in a nation which still chooses officials by votes instead of guns.

The story of Folsom's "shoe string" campaign would make interesting reading if all the details of how it was organized and put over were put on paper. While Folsom is a young man, there was nothing amateurish about the way his organization was set up in the short space of a few weeks. It was a combination of youth and age. If Dave Birmingham would write the story of how it was done, the political science students would have a good scource to learn something of the practicalities of government to go along with the theories.

MORAL ECHOES

By Rev. D. W. Haskew, D. D.

Two men were serving in one of Wellington's campaigns and they were sent on a dangerous mission together. One of the men was trembling from head to foot and the other man observed his fright. He then rode back to Wellington and said, "Sir, I am riding with a coward." Wellington rebuked him saying, "Off Sir, to your duty, or the coward will have done the job before you get there." I have always admired the man who would do the job that he knew that he, should do, regardless of being afraid. The best way in the world to cure fear is to ride over it and do the thing of which you are afraid. If you tremble under the thought of teaching a Sunday school class, or leading in public prayer, then do both. You master by doing the thing that makes you to tremble.

When the brave old Romans, whom Ceasar led, invaded England, the first thing that they did on landing, was to set fire) to the ships that had brought them over. The citizenship of the British aisle were looking on from the hill tops, and they knew that they had come to conquor, or be conquored. The flare of the burning ships, reflected on the eagle banners caused the English to see the struggle that was ahead. The enemy had come and he had cut off all hope of retreat, and no wonder that they remained to fight for life such an indomitable spirit as was in the bosom of those old Roman soldiers, we too shall be able to master opposition and fight on to victory. The spirit of decision that will dare to die in order to win, is rarely ever defeated.

In following the invading armies of Japan I have been struck by their methods in all forward steps. They swept down through the Islands of the South, but at each advance the generals would leave their ships riding in safe waters, so that in case of a defeat, they would have them to fall back to and on them ride away to safety. Why do I know that Japan is ultimately going to be defeated? The answer is found in the way they are providing a way to escape.. To be sure the time is coming when they will need the way of escape. To provide for such an emergency is considered wise strategy in warfare, but it also carries the idea of defeatism. The man who is hard to defeat, is the one who burns the bridges behind him. Men, as well as armies, who have that outlook in warfare, are going to be hard to defeat.

One dark night the packet ship, "Stephen Whitney" struck a rock cliff on the Irish Coast. The front of the ship clung to the rock for a moment, and all the passengers who rushed to the bow and leaped off to the rock were saved. Many on board of that wounded ship hesitated and remained on deck, hoping no danger would befall them. Soon there was a returning wave and it swept every one of them from the deck and they were beaten to pieces on the rugged crags. If they had made the decision to leap to safety, they too would have been saved. It was a delay in action that sent them down to a watery grave. My sinner friend, are you debating the matter of leaping to the Rock of Ages for salvation and life? There is danger in every moment of delay.

95 Per Cent of 'Waste' Useful

72 Household Items Listed As Valuable to U. S. in Fighting Foe.

CHICAGO.—Uncle Sam, in his war-time role of junk collector, can use just about 95 per cent of the stuff people are throwing away.

Some field workers of the federal bureau of industrial conservation regard this estimate as conservative in the light of industry's enormous appetite for old rags, waste paper, old rubber and scrap metals.

In every state and almost every community they have begun campaigns to convince householders that they can contribute far more to the "salvage for victory" program than a stack of newspapers or the wad of tinfoil Junior has been saving since he was six.

They want last year's license plates and your old tableware. They'll be just as pleased to get a pair of worn-out galoshes or a second-hand bird cage. Grease from the kitchen is on the conservation list, and next it may be old bones.

Scrap Drives Successful.

Tin cans are about the only trash that the bureau hasn't been able to work into the program. They may find a use for them before the war's much older.

Slowly but steadily the campaigns are showing results. In Illinois, where State Salvage Director Nathaniel Leverone said the program had been especially successful, hundreds of persons are delivering grease to their butchers, razor blades to their barbers and empty toothpaste tubes to the corner drug stores.

A two-day drive conducted by the Daily Pantagraph, a Bloomington (Ill.) newspaper, brought in 2,427 sets of old automobile license plates. They weighed 1,820 pounds, and scrap dealers estimated that when the metal was put on the market it would release enough virgin steel to make 300 Garand rifles.

In the metal division, the campaigners put clothes hangers, pipe, wire fencing, garden tools, kiddie cars, garbage cans, fireplace equipment, sash weights, picture frames, drain pipes, buckets, casters and steel wool.

Sport Goods Can Help.

Rubber goods included gloves, car and bath mats, balls and other sporting goods, hose, and soles and heels.

General collection figures are hard to arrive at, but the Chicago salvage committee found out that, in a five-week period this year, collection of waste paper was up roughly 25 per cent to a total of 428,897 tons.

Another thing the conservation bureau's field workers are trying to put across is the uses to which all this salvaged material is put after it is reprocessed and returned to production.

Paper, for instance: Surveys have shown that practically all of the arms and supplies going to Britain, Russia and China are packed in waterproof paperboard boxes. Army ordnance plants alone use 30 tons of paper a month to pack shells.

There are hundreds of uses for scrap iron and steel in the manufacture of tanks, airplanes, naval vessels, guns and ammunition. Twenty per cent of our lead supply is derived from scrap. Copper goes into brass casings for artillery, anti-aircraft and anti-tank cartridges and shells. One variety of bomber now in production requires two miles of copper wire for each plane.

Army Will Forward Mail To Soldiers on Microfilm

WASHINGTON.—The army is setting up machinery to facilitate delivery of mail to soldiers at distant places by the use of microfilm.

In this process, letters to soldiers are opened and photographed on rolls of the film. The film will be sent by airplane, after which each letter will be enlarged and delivered to the recipient. This procedure is expected to save weeks over the old way of sending.

Secretary Stimson said that the army was handling 1,000,000 pieces of mail a day, requiring 1,000 soldiers in its own postal service.

How to Become Officer In One Easy (?) Lesson

CAMP WOLTERS, TEXAS.—Pvt. Walter Somers found it fun while it lasted.

A clerk at headquarters, Private Somers grabbed up a field jacket and went on an errand.

Several enlisted men saluted him smartly. He jokingly returned the salutes. When he entered an orderly room he was addressed as "Sir."

All was explained when he got back to his office and found he had accidentally picked up a jacket with the gold bars of a second lieutenant.

Britons Must Save Paper, Even Their Bus Tickets

LONDON.—The ministry of supply announced that it will be a "punishable offense" to destroy paper or cardboard, to throw envelopes, empty cigarette packages or even bus tickets into the street, or to burn them. All paper must be turned over to a collector or buyer, the ministry said.

Housewives, however, will be permitted to continue using twists of paper to light the kitchen fire.

Ex-Soldier Wins Job Back as Army Beckons

YOUNGSTOWN, OHIO. — Ex-Soldier Clarence Wire had $646 and his old job again, but he expected to return to the army within a month. Wire was assistant manager of a Youngstown theater when drafted a year ago. He was released in November because he was 29. Wire's employer didn't want him back. Federal Attorney Don Miller threatened to sue the theater under the draft act provisions. Wire recovered his job and $646 back pay.

Money in Circulation Is Up $20 Per Capita

WASHINGTON.—Do you have $20 more in your pocket than you had a year ago?

You would if all the money in circulation in the United States were divided equally among the nation's 134,000,000 men, women and children.

The treasury reported that $11,484,091,310—$85.67 per person—was in circulation February 28 compared with $8,780,868,377—$66.13 a person—a year ago.

Norse Woman Tells of Struggle to Get Food

LONDON. — A grim struggle against starvation is described by a Norwegian woman, Mrs. Gerde Hansen, who recently escaped from Vaaggö island with her husband and four children.

The family had an income of $80 a week, but even then was unable to buy sufficient food.

"A typical meal was usually dried cod, a potato each and thin fruit jelly," she said. "This cost 75 cents or more."

MT. AIRY, N. C.—A Hawaiian botanist has sent a loose-leaf copy of his life work to the public library here for safekeeping. The name of his work is "Flora Hawaiiensis, or the Newly Illustrated Flora of the Hawaiian Islands."

The librarian is puzzled why this little town of the Blue Ridge mountains was selected.

FOLKS AND THINGS ABOUT TOWN

By BEN

Well folks, you want to take a good look at the mug atop this column today, because you are looking at the editor, advertising man, linotype operator, makeup man, pressman and janitor.... last week green fields looked good to our operator and he decided to try his luck in distant places—in short. Ewart quit—This week John VanDeveer resigned after quiet a few years with us. However, we don't blame them, in fact we have encouraged them to get better places, a weekly newspaper can't pay the higher wages that can be earned in the big city shops and the chances of getting a place there now is mighty good ... so, Folks & Things wishes for the both of them, bon voyage and happy sailing, may they both have the best of luck in whatever occupation they may choose. It has been a pleasure working with them.

Wonder who the two ladies were who were doing the bicycle riding about town Friday afternoon... one of them had on a beautiful red cap and a red coat....could it be that our bicyclist of the fairer sex could have taken to fancy uniforms to do their cycling?

Now our ticket is complete. Let's all go to work right now and start electing Buck Roberts Tax Assessor; J. A. Nivens Sheriff; Jack Hayes Tax Collector; Buster Foshee Solicitor; G. C. Walker Representative; Howard Roper Commissioner; Hoyt Freeman Commissioner; and Ben Tucker your printer. Then everybody will be happy, including me. All differences should be forgotten. We are all working to the same goal. Any defeated candidate not big enough to take his licking should have stayed out of the race in the first place.

You know, we just been wondering about this coca cola situation. An ugly cuss like me can go into a store and ask for a coca cola and does he get a coca cola? He does not. The store keeper says very polite like, "I'm very sorry but we have just sold the last one." Then several minutes later you will be passing the same place and there inside you will see a beautiful lady leisurly sipping a coca cola. Now what we would like to know is, why doesn't Mr. Henderson do something...or if the beautiful lady's nickle that she paid for the drink spends any better than the one that we would gladly pay.

It's interesting ...no matter where you go now or in what kind of crowd theres always a soldier in uniform and a sailor in uniform...the wife and I were out the other night, with friends and we noticed it .... and another thing we noticed, that this thing that they call dancing now isn't really dancing, but w-o-r-k, and we should have used a capitol W.

Sunday was Mother's Day. Wonder if you remembered your mother? Well, just in case you forgot, it will sorta ease the old conscience if you will make a note right now that next month comes Father's Day ....so you can just give him twice as much.

Elsewhere in this issue of the News you will find a letter from Ray Enfinger. Ray left us several months ago and is now stationed in Colorado. He mentions in his letter that it is snowing out there and he would like very much to come South. Bet those yankees in Florida are wishing that they could go North....after all, we have learned that its just what a fellow gets used to, isn't it?

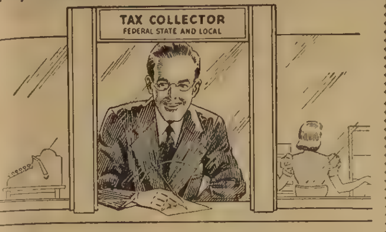
A niece from Birmingham, about six years old, visited us the week-end She was down here at the office Saturday afternoon and went out the back door to look around. There were a couple of mules tied out there and she proceeded to walk up to the business end of one of them and pull its tail. We doubt that she had ever seen a mule before and fortunately nothing happened....but did that mule miss a good chance...and did our heart stand still?

Alabama Beer Industry Pays $2,788,000 In Taxes Every Year



"I'd like to tell you where those tax dollars go.

"Last year almost $2,000,000 went to Uncle Sam. Alabama's share paid for the ABC Board's entire field force and left $824,000 over for state, county and city treasuries.

"Without this big tax check from Alabama's beer industry—all my other customers would have to dig a little deeper and pay a little more."

Depression Days

The L. & N. weathered the dark days of the Depression better than most American railroads. It completed its $3,000,000 bridge across the Ohio River at Henderson, Ky., on December 31, 1932, and helped construct the gigantic Cincinnati Union Terminal which was completed on March 31, 1933.

Free pick-up and delivery of less-than-carload freight was inaugurated in the early part of 1933, as were lower passenger fares and both of these innovations proved to be such decided successes that they have been retained to this day.

The daily-except-Sunday broadcast of The Pan-American over Station WSM was inaugurated on August 15, 1933, and has been heard by millions of listeners. It is now on the air at 4:03 p. m., C. S. W. T.

Only a modern and efficiently-operated railroad can provide the best service to the public. Pursuant to such a policy the L. & N., in 1933, began the abandonment of unproductive tracks and the dismantling of over 250 obsolete locomotives and 4,000 wooden freight cars and units of work equipment, much of which has been and is still being replaced by modern rolling stock.

Whitefoord R. Cole, the L. & N.'s 16th president, died on November 17, 1934, and James B. Hill, the present executive head, succeeded him on November 27, 1934. Under his leadership many changes have been made. During 1935, 1936 and 1937 nearly all of the L. & N.'s day coaches and dining cars were air-conditioned at a cost of over $1,000,000. Huge Family Rallies were inaugurated at principal points on the System. Out of these grew the present-day Safety-Friendly Service meetings of employes and their families, which constantly stress the value and importance of Safety and Friendly Service in the railroad's work. An employe suggestion system was also begun in January, 1937.

Today—all over America—the ring of steel wheels on steel rails is beating forth an inspiring tune of courageous endeavor. Neither wind nor rain, mighty mountains nor swollen rivers can stop the railroads as they go about their all-important task of carrying men and materiel in order that this country may achieve victory with a minimum loss of life and in the shortest possible time. The L. & N. Railroad is proud to do its part in the War effort.

Birmingham Hatter Gives All--Of Hats--For War Defense

Hitler and Hirohito will be mad as hatters when they find out about this.

Responding to the Governors appeal for renewed efforts in the salvage for victory campaign, a Birmingham hat cleaning company has notified Leon Gilbert, executive secretary of the Alabama Salvage Committee, that it has on hand 1,000 unclaimed felt hats which can be reclaimed and converted into munition packing material. WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

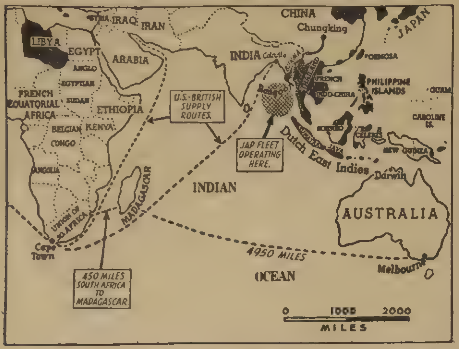
Increasing U. S. Air and Naval Power Demonstrated in Pacific Sea Battles; U. S. Wants Car Owners' 'Extra' Tires; OPA Decrees Gas Quota for East Coast

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)



The strategic importance of Madagascar to the two main supply arteries of the United Nations armies in the east are indicated by the above map. By capturing the key naval base of Diego Suarez, British Commandos supported by marines, infantry, air forces and naval units, assured protection of these vital supply lines.

MADAGASCAR:
40-Hour Triumph

A 40-hour epic of British Commandos' gallantry came to a victorious conclusion when the Diego Suarez naval base on the northern tip of Vichy-held Madagascar surrendered.

While French army outposts still held military control over the Madagascar hinterlands, the fall of the huge naval base assured the United Nations possession of the vital gateway to their eastern supply routes. Moreover, it was vindication of a new spirit of aggression which made the Japs "miss the bus."

Military authorities in both America and Britain pointed out that the successful attack marked a refreshing contrast to the fiasco at the key port of Dakar, Africa, a year ago.

It was revealed in London that the Commando attack on Madagascar, supported by marines, RAF forces and naval contingents, had been planned three months in advance.

PRESIDENT OF PERU:
Closer Latin Ties

Closer knitting of relations between Latin America and the United States was seen in the visit of President Manuel Prado of Peru to this country.

When Senor Prado arrived by clipper plane, it marked the first official visit in history, of a South American president to the United States.

Significance of this precedent-breaking official mission to the future of Pan-American resistance to Nazism was seen in the fact that Peru was the first South American country to break off relations with the Axis under the accord reached last January at the Rio de Janeiro conference. President Prado's Anti-dictator policy before the war was an important step in the virtual exclusion of Axis propaganda from Peru.

Under a recent decree, Peruvian armed forces now function under the direction of U. S. army and navy officers.

RUBBER:
U. S. Wants Tires

Robert P. Patterson, undersecretary of war, intimated that county fairs, football games and other public gatherings might have to be curtailed this year in the interest of rubber conservation, when he announced that the government planned to purchase extra tires from private car owners. By "extra" was meant more than five to a car, he said. Purchases will be on a voluntary basis.

At the same time the Office of Defense Transportation disclosed that it was drafting plans for "rationing" civilian travel by train, bus or airplane. Officials declared that "travel-as-usual" would be a thing of the past by the end of 1942. They expressed the belief that sharp curtailments of non - essential trips would be necessary before the end of the summer.

That requisitioning of civilian tires and cars would be undertaken if necessary was a view supported by a number of Washington officials.

In outlining his views on motor car use curtailment, Mr. Patterson said the prospects are that there will be sufficient rubber for the army, navy, war-workers and essential civilian supplies. He pointed out that there was a million tons of rubber "now rolling on the highways" and that it must be conserved.

Civilians who expect synthetic rubber plants to bring any relief this year are doomed to disappointment, it was declared. All such rubber is ear-marked for the nation's armed forces.

PACIFIC SEA BATTLES:
U. S. Shows Power

A crucial test of the United Nations' increasing strength in the Australian sector was given as Japanese sea and air might massed northeast of the key continent in a thrust, from New Britain, the Solomon Islands and the Loyuisade Archipelago.

Within a five-day span American warships and planes had taken a toll of 16 Japanese ships either sunk or badly damaged. Engagements were the heaviest since the battle of the Java sea.

Concentration of the Japanese naval forces in the Australian area was regarded as a threat to the steadily expanding U. S. communication lines in the South Pacific. Blocking of this threat meant that not only would Australia's position be more secure, but that the "springboard" for an ultimate United Nations' offensive against the Japs to recapture the East Indies and the Philippines would be further prepared.

Japan's strategic power in this area lay in its possession of the Solomon islands which form stepping stones along Australia's northeast flank starting from Rabaul on the island of New Britain and extending down to New Caledonia.

GAS RATIONING:
East Coast First

Eventual gasoline rationing for the entire United States loomed as a future possibility when the Office of Price Administration limited the sale of motor fuel in the Atlantic Seaboard area to two to six gallons weekly to "non-essential motorists."

The initial rationing applied to 10,000,000 motorists in 17 eastern states and the District of Columbia. Officials stressed the fact that sufficient gasoline would be provided for essential driving but not enough for extensive "pleasure" driving or other non-essential purposes.

The OPA's order included three types of ration cards: "A" for non-essential motorists; "B" for essential users such as defense workers, public service officials and others; and "X" providing for unlimited usage. This latter category included doctors, nurses and kindred professional people whose duties require rapid and extensive travel.

In the scale of gasoline usage, the "A" range was based on an average mileage estimated at 4.5 miles daily. The "B" range covered from 4.5 to 13 miles daily and the "X" for mileage far in excess of these averages.

LIVESTOCK SHOW:
War Casualty

Indicative of necessary war-time restrictions on the nation's transportation facilities, was the decision by its directors to cancel the International Livestock Exposition held annually in Chicago for the past 42 years.

The anticipated lack of transportation facilities to handle the livestock formerly shipped here from all sections of North America was cited as the principal reason for the cancellation.

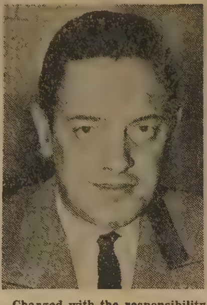
Traditionally the mecca for rural Americans of all ages in the week following Thanksgiving, the exposition recorded an all-time high attendance of 400,000 last year.

TRADE BARRIERS:
Ban Local Restrictions

Suspension of trade barriers between states which are adversely affecting war production was predicted following the close of a federal-state conference on war restrictions in Washington.

Particularly critical at present are state and local laws governing man power, construction and housing, the delegates were informed. Steps must be taken by state governments to relieve this situation, speakers declared.

Rent Ruler



Charged with the responsibility of setting up machinery to place ceilings on rents affecting more than 86,000,000 persons, Paul A. Orter, deputy administrator of the Office of Production Management, is directing the federal rent control program under the supervision of Price Administrator Leon Henderson. Landlords in affected areas have until June 28 to stabilize rents in line with OPA recommendations.

'BACKDOOR THRUST':
Japs Use Burma Road

Japan's "backdoor" invasion of China via the Burma road continued into Yunnan province despite U. S. army air attacks which knocked out 74 enemy planes in a single week.

Seriousness of the newest threat to China's resistance was seen in the decision of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek to take personal command of his armies. That Chiang could count on stout co-operation from his American allies was shown by the repeated attacks by big Yankee bombers from India on the Jap's main airdrome at Mingaladon north of Rangoon, Burma. This field was the main Nipponese base for the all-but-finished Burma campaign which had been extended to China.

The effectiveness of the American air offensive was illustrated by reports that each bomber was able to drop 250-pound explosives on the field in spite of heavy anti-aircraft fire.

CHARGE ACCOUNTS:
Time Buying Curbed

Every American who used a charge account or an installment purchasing plan to acquire the goods he uses in everyday living was affected by the Federal Reserve board's orders clamping the brakes on time-payment buying. The orders, tightening restrictions already in effect, were the latest move in President Roosevelt's attack on spiraling prices.

The Reserve board decreed:

1—A limit of 12 months in the period over which most consumer's goods could be purchased on installment plans.

2—Down payments of one-third cash on a majority of consumers' items. Exceptions were automobiles purchaseable over a 15-month period and furniture and pianos for which a down payment of only 20 per cent is required for purchase of over a 12-month period.

3—Payment of charge accounts in full by the 10th day of the calendar month after purchase. Failure to abide by this order would prevent the purchaser from buying on the account until he settled up.

4—The following additions to the list of goods on which regulations already apply: automobile batteries, tires, tubes and accessories; bedding, draperies, household electrical appliances; used furniture; athletic goods; household equipment; non-military clothing including shoes, hats and other haberdashery.

SPECIALISTS SOUGHT:
Also Allied Nationals

Two moves to increase the flexibility of the army were made when the war department announced the creation of the new army specialist corps and the selective service headquarters declared that nationals of all Allied nations will be able to join either this country's forces or those of their home nation.

Men with certain specialized skills will be recruited for the army specialist corps. They will replace those who are capable of going into active military service. In general, no men subject to the draft will be admitted into the new corps, according to the announcement. Those accepted may become officers ranging from lieutenants to "director generals."

In the move to recruit nationals of our allies, Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, selective service director, announced that reciprocal arrangements had already been worked out under which Canadians residing in this country might join either the Canadian or American forces. This agreement will be extended to other nations.

MISCELLANY:

Honolulu, Hawaii, first American area to suffer Axis aggression, proved again that its people are grimly determined to see the war effort through, by oversubscribing four times the Islands' May quota of $250,000 War Bond quota.

SOMEONE called Dick Bartell, now with the New York Giants, "a ball player's ball player." The irrepressible Bartell is something more than that. He is "everybody's ball player."

Born 35 years ago in Chicago, now in his 16th big league season, Bartell is still traveling at his top speed, as full of flame and smoke as he was ten years ago. If all ball players hustled up to the Bartell standard the game would pick up a much faster pace.

They've moved him around from Pittsburgh to Philadelphia to New York to Chicago to Detroit and back to New York again in this 16-season pilgrimage, but they haven't removed any of the old pep that packs his 148-pound system.

DICK BARTELL

The veteran Giant still spells aggressive with a capital A.

It's all quite simple when you talk to Bartell.

"I happen to love baseball," he says, "and I like to hustle. Once in a while I find the old legs are not what they used to be, but a short rest always takes care of that. It's the legs that get you, not the batting eye. Last year in my 15th season I still batted .303 in 104 games, a few points above my all-time average. I hope to beat .300 again this season with any luck.

Pastor's Two Records

Whatever morbid fate may attack Bob Pastor in his next start, probably against Joe Louis, you can still hand him two records.

No. 1—He deserves some brand of woodland chaplet for leading all ex-collegians in the heavyweight group. No other campus-educated dome has yet matched Pastor's place among the major leather chuckers. Ex-collegians have found few happy hunting grounds in the ring.

No. 2—A near record from the prophet's corner. Pastor informed your correspondent last summer that he would win at least ten straight fights and thereby get his third crack at Joe Louis—a somewhat strange ambition.

The rubbery heavyweight has more than kept his promise. A combination of gameness, smartness, speed and experience has lifted the ex-Violet more than once from near oblivion.

We are not quite sure, however, how smart a fellow is who spends most of his career trying to spend his evenings in the same pit with Joe Louis.

A Big Show

Paul V. McNutt, federal security administrator, has suggested a set of American Olympic games, with the 48 states in a hot scramble for supremacy.

This would be a home-grown, homemade show of unusual interest, loaded with arguments and intersectional debates. It would have to be something more than a state-for-state contest, where the job of handling California in track and field might be more than any other single state could handle. California, with Dean Cromwell and others handling unlimited talent, would have a decided margin. But this isn't the only angle that might be worked out.

First there could be a state by state ranking. Also, there could be an intersectional battle bringing East against West, or North against South. Or there could be other subdivisions—East, Midwest, Far West, and South.

The main McNutt idea has unlimited possibilities. It could be worked into a matter of state pride and sectional pride, on a par with any college football rivalry. And it would be a big lift for nation-wide interest in harder, keener training.

Here is an idea that should be worked out under proper direction without too much waste of time.

Night Club Patriot:

MacArthur wasn't the only hero on Bataan Peninsula, as this story, just arrived, reveals. In the early days of the campaign, MacArthur summoned an engineer and asked: "How long will it take to throw a bridge across this stream?"

"Three days," was the reply.

"Good," snapped MacArthur. "Have your draftsman make drawings right away."

Three days later, the General sent for the engineer and asked him how the bridge was coming.

"It's all ready," was the answer. "You can send your men across now, if you don't have to wait for them pictures. They ain't done yet!"

Meow! A catty actress visited the "Now, Voyager" set in H'wood and congratulated Ilka Chase on her recent book. "I enjoyed it," she said. "Who wrote it?"

In Moore's the other dinner-time Eddie Cantor, Lou Holtz and Chico Marx were wondering about Ben Bernie. "Are things all right?" one of us queried.

"Don't worry about Bernie," said an eavesdropper. "I happen to know that whether he works or not, he has an income of $22,000 a year."

"Is that enough—the way he bets?" asked Chico.

"Those who'll suffer," gagged a wag, "will be his relatives."

John Gunther, the commentator-war correspondent, was interviewing the head of a gov't bureau, who was complaining about the confusion, red tape, etc.

"I think," he said, "it is an insane asylum!"

"Oh, come now," Gunther ribbed, "that's a time-worn phrase."

"You don't understand," said the man. "This is the most different kind of an insane asylum. It is run by the inmates!"

America's Assembly Line.

America's assembly line is complete. It runs straight from the great heart of a free people to the hearts of their fearless fighters. The money streaming into our war bonds is already streaming out of the mouth of the cannon.

The capitals of the enemy are panicky. Dollar for dollar—wheel for wheel—and tank for tank—the enemy is losing the battle of the factories. Which means that man for man the enemy must give final account on his own battlefield.

He knows that more goes into a defense stamp than the 25 cents it costs. And that our men with their hammers are driving home more than rivets. The money pouring into the United States Treasury means Americans have no price on their liberty. Billions for defense means tanks against tyrants and bullets for bullies . . . American workingmen are too busy to look up, but the smoking chimneys of their factories mean the smoking ruins of Berlin and Tokyo.

The American armament program, which includes 185,000 fighting planes, was called "fantastic" by Hitler in a radio speech. This is to report that our plane production will be even greater than Hitler fears.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON & ROBERT ALLEN

Washington, D. C.

ALASKAN HIGHWAY

After all the hullabaloo about the vitally needed military highway to Alaska, it now looks as if it would take at least two years, perhaps nearer three years to build it. One trouble is there is still an argument about the route.

To date the army has picked a route by way of Edmonton, center of the prairie state of Alberta, which is longer than the route advocated by Alaskan territorial officials.

The Alaskan officials propose a short quick route straight up from the state of Washington to Prince George, then on to White Horse. Part of this—about 400 miles to Prince George—already is built. And if interned German, Italian and Japanese prisoners were put to work on the remaining link, it might be finished before winter.

However, both the army and the Canadian government favor the longer route via Edmonton. This would follow the chain of Canadian airports to Alaska. These airports are operated by the Canadian Pacific railroad, which may be one significant reason why the Canadians want a road to link them up.

The army originally picked this route because last summer some of its planes, en route to Alaska with green pilots, got lost and cracked up. So it was suggested that a highway linking the airports would serve as a guide to airmen. The army also favored this route in order to send gasoline and supplies by truck to air bases. The war may be just about over, however, before this interior highway is built.

JAPANESE PROPAGANDA

Inside intelligence information is that Japanese propaganda agents are now marshalling their forces for a concerted attack against the United States in Latin America, with Argentina, Brazil, and Chile as focal points.

Japan will resort to a number of typical Axis methods to sway neutral countries away from collaboration with the United States, including the Axis-worn tactics of making overtures and giving assurances that she has no imperialistic aims toward these countries. On the other hand, the Japanese will emphasize that the United States has been greedy in her international trade relations and has imperialistic designs on Central and South America.

In launching this propaganda attack Japan has instructed her agents to do everything possible to solicit the good-will of Spanish and Portuguese representatives in Latin American countries.

In addition to propaganda agents and diplomatic representatives, Japan has recruited agents in commercial firms throughout both Europe and the American countries to propagandize persons of Latin culture and Catholic faith. In this connection, plans have been made to go even so far as to try to exploit his holiness, the pope.

Already $50,000 has been forwarded to Japanese representatives in Chile to be used in attempting to bribe government officials.

One of the most audacious phases of the Japanese plan is the one that calls for an attempt to induce a revolution in the United States by co-operating with factional groups within the country, and creating dissension among the people by sniping at the Roosevelt administration.

ROOSEVELT FAMILY DINNERS

In the usher's office, just inside the front door, an old-fashioned call-board is hung, to indicate when guests are in or out. There is space for 20 names, but on a recent day it carried only the names of Mrs. Roosevelt, Harry Hopkins and Lorena Hickok, long-time friend of both the First Lady and Hopkins, who often stays at the White House. (The President's name is never entered on the board.)

A year ago it was possible to drive along Pennsylvania avenue, turn in at the White House gate, hand a calling card to the footman at the front door and eventually receive an invitation from Mrs. Roosevelt to come for tea.

Today, the gates are closed and heavily guarded. The two avenues flanking the White House are barred to traffic entirely. Never in 100 years has the White House been so heavily guarded. The teas and receptions are cancelled for the duration, and the normally democratic residence of the Chief Executive stands cold and aloof.

NAZI RACKETEERS

Hitler's semi-hysterical demand that his stooge Reichstag vote him more dictatorial powers—which it promptly did—was of particular interest to Intelligence authorities in the light of secret information concerning a recent scandal in high Nazi circles.

According to a confidential report it was discovered that a well-organized racket, protected by big-shot Nazis, was looting the food supplies of U-boats when at their home ports.

Sentinels of Health

Don't Neglect Them!

Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—life itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good heath is to endure.

When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all worn out.

Frequent, scanty or burning passages are sometimes further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance.

The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Use Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Are endorsed the country over. Insist on Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

WPA Calls For Intensified Effort To Train Older Workers

W. G. Henderson, Alabama Administrator of Work Projects, this week called upon all State Divisions for an intensified effort to train older workers to meet the requirements of war industry and to give all possible assistance in promoting their reemployment. The employment problem of many war veterans in this group was emphasized in the message.

Calling attention to the President's proclamation of this week as National Employment Week, Col. Henderson urged that vocational and auxiliary shop facilities be utilized fully in accomplishing the objective as outlined by the Administration.

"There were 495,000 men and 134,000 women 40 years of age or older on WPA a month ago," Col. Henderson said. "All of these are available for placement or training for placement in private industry. They have proved that they not only are employable but are capable of contributing greatly to the strength and productivity of the Nation by their accomplishments on WPA. Many of them lack the specialized skills now in demand, but have shown aptitude for other tasks that can be developed by proper training.

"Age itself should not be permitted to bar anyone from a job. Such artificial barriers must give way to the Nation's need for all who are able and capable of performing useful work. I am gratified by the progress of the WPA Training and Reemployment Program to date, but with nearly 500,000 on WPA and 3,600,000 unemployed in March, we must increase our efforts not only to meet war needs through the WPA program of construction and service but also to fit the individual workers for jobs of maximum usefulness, in private industry or wherever they are needed most".

A LETTER FROM PVT. RAY ENFINGER

Hello Ben:

Greetings from Colorado. I've been here in school for two weeks and what weather we'er having! It has been snowing today. The mountains are beautiful and we are surrounded by them. One gets a beautiful view of Pike's Peak although it is more than fifty miles away.

Hope that every thing is going good for you fellows—at times its tough for us. Surely hope that I can go South when I finish my clerical course.

There are several boys from Chilton County here, they are: William C. Gray; G. C. Weldon, Jr.; Ernest Williams and James R. Lowery.

We have passed through many places but none, to us, are like Clanton and Chilton County.

My best regards to your family and to the boys in the shop.

To The People Of Alabama:

It now appears necessary that I continue my campaign for reelection as Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of Alabama, which I shall do as vigorously as the duties of the office permit.

In the recent primary it was urged that I am eligible for retirement from the Supreme Court. My retirement would mean that the people of the state would pay two salaries where only one is necessary. I feel strongly that the people of the state who have generously provided retirement pay for judges did not desire that it be taken advantage of by Judges of the Supreme Court who are fully capable of performing their duties. Had I not been capable of performing my duties, I would not have announced. My health is of the best. I have never missed a day from my duties on the court by reason of illness. In this time of war we are all desirous of performing the full measure of service of which we are capable.

Eminent lawyers of this state urged me not to retire and did not run for this office because I am a candidate I assure the people of this state who have honored me with this office that if there should be in the future any reason why I should retire, I shall not hesitate to do so in order that my successor may be selected by you in an election which all candidates will feel free to enter.

I am deeply grateful to my loyal friends and supporters and shall appreciate their continued assistance in the campaign.

Officer J. A. Nivens Writes Voters

Editor, Chilton County News,
Clanton, Alabama
Dear Sir:

Please allow me some space in your newspaper this week in order that I may express myself to the voters of Chilton County.

Since it is next to impossible for me to see every one of you personally, I want to take this means of thanking you every one for your vote and influence in the recent primary in my behalf.

I still pledge to you my very best in the performance of my duties if I am elected to serve you as your sheriff.

I am quite aware of the fact that every voter did not support me, however I want those of you who did not see fit to aid me in my campaign to feel that I am your friend and that you will be granted the same favors and privileges by me and those assisting me in my work, if I am chosen as your shreff in November.

On my part there is absolutely no ill-will or hard-feelings, existing towards any one, or group and I reassure you that no special favors will be shown ANY PERSON over and above his, or her, social and lawful right. "All will be treated with the same courtesy by the entire force of my office if you see fit to elect me as your next sheriff." Assuring you again that I deeply appreciate your recent support and influence and that I will continue to appreciate your support in my behalf for the office of Sheriff, I am sincerely yours,

J. A. Nivens.

A Statement From Congessman Jarman

I am very grateful indeed for the overwhelming victory with which the people of our District have so kindly favored me. This demonstration of friendship and confidence is not only greatly appreciated, but will spur me on to even greater efforts to prove worthy of my friends by always making a record to which they may point with pride.

When a race is over it is water over the dam with me. I harbor no ill feeling whatever toward any one who voted or worked against me and want those who did so to realize that I am their Congressman just as I am the Congressman of those who actively supported me. You are all my constituents in one of the finest Congressional Districts in America.

As I return to the Nation's Capitol to devote my entire time to its representation, it will be but natural for me to hold my head a bit higher because of the pride I cannot fail to feel over this fine victory. I shall continue to place the interests of my Country and our boys who are fighting for it first and intend to devote the major portion of my time in the immediate future to measures looking toward the defeat of the treacherous Japs and Hitler.

In conclusion, may I express my very best wishes to every citizen of the Sixth District and thank you all sincerely from the bottom of a very appreciative heart.

Hoyt Freeman Thanks Voters Of County

I wish to express my sincere gratitude to my friends for the hearty support given me in the election on May 5th. When elected in the Fall I shall strive to do my duty fairly and impartially.

Your friend,

Jim Parrish Thanks Voters

We have been authorized by Jim Parrish, candidate for Tax Collector in May 5th primary, to thank his many friends and supporters for their effort in his behalf during the past campaign. In time, Mr. Parrish stated, that he intends to get around and thank personally all who worked and voted for him.

New Device Gives Motor Efficiency, Saves Fuel

Science will play a big part in our nation's defense and war plans. The scientific research foundation of California has been conducting experiments with a new discovery of the greatest speed ever attained mechanically, developing the astounding speed of over 150,000 r.p.m.

The foundation has been using this terrific speed to break down and atomize patho-genic micro-organisms that can only be seen with a very powerful microscopic lens. The findings of the research foundation have been very interesting to members of the medical profession. Its clinical results have been very satisfactory. It has long been known that the human body absorbs numerous forms of pathogenic type bacteria (disease-bearing bacteria) such as ash diphtheria, tuberculosis, influenza and we believe infantile paralysis. It was necessary in order to disintegrate chemicals, solutions and enzymes, that some method must be devised that would break up media into such a fine atomized state that it could be readily absorbed into the body through the lung tissue.

During these research experiments, it was discovered that the basic principle used to disintegrate the materials for medical use could be applied to the atomization of the hydro-carbon series of petroleum (fuels used in the internal combustion engine) the experimental results of the research foundation were astounding.

Coldest Spot on Earth Is Interior of Siberia

Without exception, the coldest place on earth is Werchojansk, in the interior of Siberia. The lowest temperature ever recorded was taken there on January 15, 1885—it was 90 degrees and a fraction below zero.

Werchojansk is in the latitude of the pole and is so cold that the earth is generally frozen to a depth of about 900 feet. In the warmest season it never completely thaws.

To illustrate just how cold it is in this part of Siberia in the winter, the inhabitants find it almost impossible to break through the ice with a pick as the implement rebounds with an incredible, not to say dangerous, impetus. When chopping green wood or a frozen tree, a shower of sparks continually flies from the axe. Dash a glass of water into the air and it is a crystal sheet of ice before it strikes the ground. Occasionally wild geese and other game birds are picked up dead in the fields of Werchojansk. In their flight across the country they frequently freeze to death high in the air and drop like a bomb to earth.

In the wintertime the people buy their milk frozen or by the "piece," it being allowed to freeze about a stick which makes a convenient handle with which to carry it like a giant popsicle. The milkman leaves one chunk or two as the case may be, at the homes of his customers who have their own troubles trying to melt it.

Washing Lisle Hosiery

The use of lisle and wool stockings is so new to many women that they are doubtful as to the best method of washing them. The same simple methods you employ for washing silk and nylon stockings apply to the fine new lisles. Plenty of velvet suds made with a pure milk soap in lukewarm water; careful rinsing in lukewarm water—and your colorful new lisles will always look as lovely and fresh as your other hosiery.

For knitted wool stockings use the same pure mild soap and the same washing method, but be careful not to rub the feet hard if you want them to fit comfortably. Rubbing causes shrinkage. Squeeze out the rinsing water by hand and dry by laying out flat in a warm dry place or by stretching on wooden stocking frames.

X-ray in Sinusitis

Patients who suffer chronic sinus trouble may often be cured or improved through X-ray treatments, Dr. Ivan M. Woolley of Portland, Ore., reported to the Radiological Society of America.

"In 11 years' experience," Dr. Woolley said, "no harmful results have been seen. Predictions that X-ray treatment might seriously complicate indicated surgical procedures have been proved false."

Dr. Woolley said published statistics revealed a general average of 33 per cent symptom-free, 41 per cent improved, and only 26 per cent unimproved "showing Roentgen therapy has a definite place in present-day treatment of chronic sinusitis".

Life Depends on Proteins

Proteins, known to the average person as the main constituents of such foodstuffs as meats, eggs, fish, cheese, are really of countless sorts, and all life depends on them.

Proteins are of two main kinds: Roundish and fiberlike. Silk, hair and such substances are fiberlike proteins, while the white of eggs, the constituents of the human blood are roundish proteins.

The present methods of transforming roundish proteins into fibrous ones are very drastic and not easily controlled.

Such proteins, derived from plants and animals, are widely used for production of plastics and synthetic "wool and silk" and so on.

Iwant to thank you for the splendid vote you gave me in the May 5th primary. I shall do all that I can do to assure victory in the general election and shall endeavor to merit the confidence you have expressed in my candidacy.

Since it is not possible for me to see all of those that voted for and supported me on May 5th, I take this method of thanking everyone.

My duties in the schoolroom were such that I did not have the opportunity to canvass but very little, therefore I am indebted to my friends for the splendid vote given me.

I shall strive at all times to be worthy of your friendship and confidence.

I thank Mr. Padgett for the clean friendly campaign he waged and his very cordial assurance of friendship and support in the general election. To those that supported him, I want to say that you supported a good man and I have nothing but the very best of frendly feeling toward you.

Don't cram more clothes into your washing machine than its rating calls for. Overloading it prevents it from doing the best job, and also puts a strain on the mechanism. No Time Limit On Sugar For Canning Says Jones

C. Fenn Jones stated Tuesday morning that as far as he had learned there was no ground for the report that this was the last week one could get their sugar for canning purposes. Mr. Jones said that so long as the applicant had his or her stamp book with them when making application and had not already been issued the certifcate for sugar for canning they were eligible for their quota.

This statement was released by Mr. Jones because of rumors lately that there had been a date set after which no sugar could be bought for canning purposes.

Welfare Department Gets New Head

Miss Catherine Matthews, of Ozark has replaced Mrs. Frances H. Jones as Chilton County Welfare Supervisor. Mrs. Jones has gone to the State Department at Montgomery.

REPORT FROM DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WELFARE

The war has increased, rather than lessened, the need among the 433 families in Chilton County who are now receiving assistance through the Department of Public Welfare, Miss Catherine Matthews, Director said today in releasing her monthly statistical report for the month of April.

Alhough $3,989.00 was spent during the month in assistance to these families, the grants averaged only $10.09, the director continued, adding that their value in terms of 1940 purchasing power would total about $7.03 according to a study of living costs and assistance grants recently completed by the State Welfare Department.

Since funds available to the agency have been too limited to raise the grants in proportion to the advances in the cost of living, Miss Matthews said, it is obvious that these disadvantaged people—the aged, the blind, those with dependent children, the crippled and otherwise handicapped—are experiencing additional hardships because the war has raised living costs At the same time the supply of surplus commodities available for distribution by the department has been reduced in supply and amount as a result of the war.

Not only are the people receiving assistance those whose handifaps make it impossible for them to work, but there are 38 additional families in this county who have applied for aid and been approved as eligible, but for whom no funds are now available to provide financial grants, the director indicated in her report. A majority, or 19 of this latter group are applicants for Aid to Dependent Children. the director said, pointing out that at present the only help on hand for this group is a few surplus commodities.

Chilton County Resident Dies In Explosion

G. H. Baker, 22, of 618 Goldwire Street, and J. D. Waites, of Decatur, were blown to pieces when a dynamite truck they occupied collided with another, carrying similar explosives, 11 miles north of Homestead, Fla., early Wednesday.

The occupants of the other truck, O. W. Cox, of Verbena, and Milton Smith, of Clanton, escaped. Cox was taken to the hospital at Homestead for observation but Smith escaped injury.

Both trucks belonged to the Baggett Transportation Company of Birmingham. They were carrying dynamite to Key West, Fla. The explosion, which was heard for miles and ripped a crater in the highway, making it impassable, tore both trucks to bits.

Both trucks were traveling in the same direction when one of them ran into the other. Cox said he was asleep in the rear truck at the time and that he and Smith got out and ran. The explosion then came from the front truck, destroying both vehicles, he told investigators at Homestead.

Baker is survived by the widow and a young son. He had worked for the Baggett Company for two years. Officials of the Baggett Company, withheld comment pending an investigation.

Bond And Stamp Sale Committees Named For Chilton County

Ten Per Cent Of Every Employee's Salary Is Asked To Aid In Winning This War

Editor Chilton County News,
Clanton, Ala.
Dear Sir

As I informed the people of the county some few weeks ago, I had been appointed Executive Chairman of the County Committee of the War Savings bonds and stamps program in Chilton County, and there is attached hereto a list of said committees and I wish you would please give publicity to this. The members of these several committees were selected for the representative groups throughout the county and from the several towns and communities in the county, and in consultation with the Honorary Chairman we have tried to select responsible people and members who would give this movement their very best effort

The government is informing us that the success of this movement, the sale of bonds and stamps throughout America will be the determining factor in the war, and particularly, as to the length of time this war will continue.

Each county in the United States is assessed a quota and Chilton County's quota for May, 1942, is $14,000, and we will be given a quota for each month thereafter. The government is expecting every wage earner, every man, woman or child with an income to invest ten per cent of this income in bonds and stamps each month, and this will be the primary purpose of each committee to contact as nearly as possible every person who comes within the influence of their group and encourage them to invest ten per cent of their income in bonds and stamps. I trust that no person designated as a member of a committee will refuse to serve and I might say at this point that there is no pay in this for any of us, not even office hire, or clerk hire or any office expenses are paid, but all of us are working free of charge to win this war.

I have literature in my office in the building opposite the court house in Clanton for the Chairman of each committee and I wish he would call around as early as convenient and secure this literature for his committee.

I am suggesting that where there are more than one to a committee that they meet and organize and make their plans immediately for contacting all who come within their group and urge upon everyone to buy bonds and stamps, as we want to put Chilton County over the top.

My office will be open at all times and I am receiving literature from day to day from the government and would be glad to furnish this to any member of the committee or to the public that will call.

Yours very truly
L. H. REYNOLDS,
Executive Chairman

No Waste Paper Wanted Says Buckelew

The last trip to Montgomery with the waste paper that was being gathered for national defense was not very profitable, according to Fred Buckelew who has been working with his Boy Scouts on this project.

There seems to be a surplus, says Mr. Buckelew and until further notice he says that he can not call for or send for your scrap paper as he has no place to store it and the warehouses in Montgomery have no place to store it.

At the same time Mr. Buckelew stated that he wished to thank all of the patriotic boys and girls, men and women in Clanton who has been aiding him in this work.

C. R. Glenn, Jr., of Camp Gordon, Ga., is at home on furlough.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Soviets Break Nazi Lines at Kharkov To Relieve Pressure on Kerch Front; U. S. Army Takes Over All Air Lines; Lower Wage Brackets Face Income Tax

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Pierre Laval's position grew more difficult as the United States in practical effect ceased to recognize Vichy control over Martinique and other French possessions in the Western hemisphere. Immobilization of French warships at Martinique followed conferences between American representatives and the resident French high commissioner. Above (center) is shown Laval with M. Cathala, (left) his minister of finance and M. Paul Marion, secretary of state.

RUSSIAN FRONT:
Nazis Seek Oil

With the rich oil fields of the Caucasus as the prize, Nazi and Russian Red army fighters locked forces in a combat which before the summer's end may determine the war's outcome.

Principal theater of the Nazis' newest conquest effort was the Kerch peninsula, gateway to the Soviet's farflung oil possessions.

While the Russians admitted that a German break into the Kerch defenses had caused a withdrawal to new positions, the Soviet communiques reported that the new line was being held in good order and that a heavy toll was being taken of the attackers.

Balancing this news was a report that Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's armies further north had broken through the first German defense lines around the industrial city of Kharkov and were preparing for an invasion of the city itself. Success of the Kharkov offense would mean that the German move toward the Caucasus would be forestalled.

Regarded as a grand dress rehearsal for the major Nazi spring offensive when drier ground permits greater movement, the present battles offered a test of the best arms which Axis and the United Nations could muster. German air concentrations were reported the heaviest of any used thus far in World War No. 2. Russian mechanical equipment included triple-turret American tanks and the latest design planes.

INCOME TAXES:
More Will Pay

Prospects that a single person making as little as $9.62 weekly and a childless married couple whose income is $23.08 a week or more will have to file income tax returns were seen in the action of the house ways and means committee in voting to lower the exemptions for married persons to $1,200 a year from the present $1,500 and for single persons to $500 from $750.

Allowances for children and other dependents would be left at $400.

More than 8,000,000 persons, it was estimated, would be added to the present fold of 17,000,000 Americans who file income tax returns.

Taxpayers could take comfort from the fact that the committee voted to retain the present 10 per cent earned income credit for earned income up to $14,000 a year. For example, a person earning $1,200 a year is permitted to deduct $120 from the amount which would otherwise be subject to the normal tax provision, provided his income is derived from wages or salaries.

MARTINIQUE:
Warships Immobilized

As French warships at Martinique were being immobilized, the United States came closer to its goal of completely neutralizing French possessions in the Caribbean sea.

While Vichy France had issued a note covering the situation, American representatives indicated they were "doing business" with Adm. Georges Robert, high commissioner of the French West Indies.

SHIP BUILDING:
Good News Ahead

"All around the clock, seven days a week" is the rate at which Uncle Sam's ship production machine is being utilized, it was disclosed by War Shipping Administrator Emory S. Land.

Good news for the future was held forth in the admiral's statement that the nation's shipyards will turn out 15,000,000 tons of new vessels annually after 1943 and will continue that pace "as long as necessary."

AIRLINERS:
Will Fly for U. S.

The war department's action in taking over the $100,000,000 commercial aviation industry emphasized again the United Nations' conviction that air power will be the determining factor in winning the war.

In a drastic order authorized by President Roosevelt, the army curtailed private aviation, requisitioned 55 of the nation's 250 palatial airliners for immediate military service and directed that 70 more be converted by the 17 airlines themselves into cargo carriers.

Virtual elimination of night flying was forecast in the new order. A change in air routes and the closing of many commercial airports for the war's duration was indicated.

Employees of the airlines including 2,200 pilots and 18,984 other personnel were given their choice of joining up with the air corps or the ferry command or remaining with war department-operated lines.

The war department's action followed the recent requisitioning of 83 airliners for service in the Near East and Far East.

AXIS SUBS:
Inland Attacks

When an Axis submarine slipped through the net of Canada's coastal defenses to torpedo and sink two ships in the St. Lawrence river, it marked the first time in history an enemy underseas craft had penetrated North America's inland waterways.

Increasing boldness of U-boat warfare all along the Atlantic seaboard was indicated by the sinking of seven additional United Nations' merchantmen in American waters. At the same time an enemy mine was discovered near the Florida coast.

Exact location of the U-boat attack in the St. Lawrence was not disclosed in the Canadian communique, nor were the names of the freighters sunk. That the same submarine was responsible for both sinkings was indicated by the fact that they both occurred "in the same general locality and at the same general time."

The St. Lawrence river is navigable to ocean-going vessels between its mouth and the city of Quebec, 500 miles upstream. The communique noted that both ships were sunk in the river and not in the gulf outside.

TIRES:
U. S. Wants Them

Jesse Jones, secretary of commerce, revealed that the Reconstruction Finance corporation had made available $150,000,000 for the purchase by the government of new and used tires and tubes now in the hands of consumers.

County tire ration boards of the Office of Price Administration and RFC agencies will be responsible for administering the plan, Mr. Jones declared. A voluntary system of tire purchasing will be tried out first. Should this fail, commandeering of civilian tires looked like the next step.

Coincident with the Jones announcement came a pessimistic report on the nation's rubber situation issued by the Office of Emergency Management. This report entitled "The Truth About Rubber" stated that U. S. production of synthetic rubber this year "may reach 28,000 tons," and "cannot be expected to be much more than 350,000 tons" in 1943.

Only by "slapping the Japs back in their islands" will the American people regain all the rubber they need, and return to prewar use, the report concludes

PETTICOAT ARMY:
To Serve Overseas

Enlistment of 150,000 American women between the ages of 21 and 44 for non-combatant service with the regular army anywhere in the world was authorized when the senate passed a bill creating the women's auxiliary army corps. The house had previously approved the measure.

The corps will be uniformed. Pay in the ranks will be $21 the first four months and $30 from then on. Members of the corps must be in good health, unimpeachable character and have no dependents. A WAAC company, according to present plans, will comprise 250 women and four officers.

It was intimated that the first task of the corps would be in the aircraft warning services. Some of the duties would include jobs as clerks, teletype operators, switchboard, telegraph or telephone operators and messengers.

Duties in other branches of the service would include pharmacists, dieticians, hostesses, laboratory assistants, laundry workers and stewardesses.

GAS WARFARE:
Fresh Warning

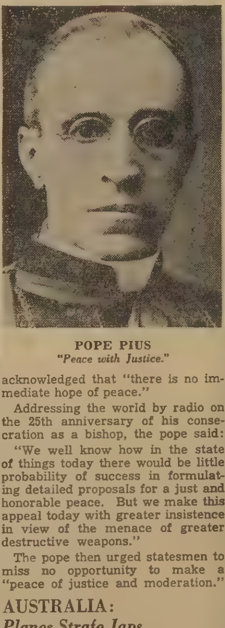
Following Prime Minister Churchill's warning to the Axis on gas warfare came a further assertion that Britain was better equipped than Germany for this type of combat.

A report by the chemical expert of the ministry of economic warfare pointed out that gasproof shelter accommodations were available for only 40 per cent of the population of big German cities. Nazi precautions have concentrated on large-scale shelters rather than on individual protection, as in Britain. Only a portion of the German people own gas masks, the report stated, while in Britain all the people possess them.

The British expert declared that Italy's situation is even worse than Germany's.

POPE PIUS:
Pleads for Peace

The voice of Pope Pius was raised in an appeal to the world's leaders to conclude a peace "on principles of justice and moderation, even if it does not seem to correspond to aspirations." The pontiff, however, acknowledged that "there is no immediate hope of peace."



POPE PIUS
"Peace with Justice."

Addressing the world by radio on the 25th anniversary of his consecration as a bishop, the pope said:

"We well know how in the state of things today there would be little probability of success in formulating detailed proposals for a just and honorable peace. But we make this appeal today with greater insistence in view of the menace of greater destructive weapons."

The pope then urged statesmen to miss no opportunity to make a "peace of justice and moderation."

AUSTRALIA:
Planes Strafe Japs

New Allied blows against Amboina, former Dutch naval base, and Rabaul, New Britain, gave strength to warnings by United Nations leaders that the battle of the Coral sea has not brought an end to the peril facing Australia. The assaults upon Japanese bases to the north were intended as at least partial insurance against all-out invasion.

Warships and transports were reported at these bases, waiting the arrival of sea-borne plane reenforcements before moving into the Coral sea area for a rendezvous with the invasion ships scattered by recent American sea victories.

Harassing air attacks by Allied bombers on both the east and west flanks of the Jap invasion bases sank and damaged enemy merchantmen, set fire to docks and destroyed planes in Jap-held airdromes.

New York: Uncle Sam is searching for scenic pictures taken abroad by amateurs, according to the Amateur Cinema league, which announced that it had been authorized to distribute through camera dealers and clubs 60,000 questionnaires throughout the nation, requesting that all personally made motion pictures and transparencies be made available to the government.

ALVA BRADLEY was practically the only man in the recent Derby day crowd at Churchill Downs who wasn't talking or thinking about the Derby winner. Mr. Bradley was thinking and talking only about the Cleveland Indians.

You can't blame him for that. Mr. Bradley is president of that astonishing ball club.

It may be remembered in the past that the same Alva Bradley has had more than his share of baseball sorrow. The Oscar Vitt episode was the starter. That was the year Cleveland blew a pennant it should have won by a dozen games. Then Bob Feller's departure into the service was no great help, and the boss had to gamble on a 24-year-old manager, who had no Feller around.

Naturally Mr. Bradley was not looking on the 1942 campaign through any rose-tinted glasses. He was all prepared for the worst. For him there were no "bluebirds over the white cliffs of Dover," or Cleveland. Then the incredible suddenly happened as the Indians took to the warpath.

About Boudreau

"We had full faith in Lou Boudreau from the start," Mr. Bradley said. "I'll admit none of us looked for any such early surge. But Lou worked like six horses this spring and his men worked with him. He had not only their respect but also their friendship.

ALVA BRADLEY

"Boudreau hasn't been out of college long and he brought the old college spirit back to our club. He refused to let Bob Feller's loss get him down in any way. The other pitchers knew they had to take up the slack.

"At this point I'd like to say that none of us are claiming any pennant. The main idea is to hustle all the way and win all the games we can. They say we are playing far beyond our real strength. That's something for time to tell."

The Big Change

It was easy enough to see in the Indians' training camp at Clearwater, Fla., that Boudreau had done a high-class job in the way of switching Cleveland's mental attitude. There were no longer any troublemakers around. There were no soreheads.

Boudreau set up an informal clubroom where the bunch could get together to read, loaf or play cards. Out on the field they were all hustling, none harder than the young manager whose attractive personality was no small help.

Even that far back Boudreau said, "I don't know where we'll finish, but I can promise you we'll have a team trying hard every second of every game."

No one could figure then, with Feller absent, that the ex-Illini star was to get the pitching his team has gotten in the first starting weeks. Nor quite the heavy hitting. But Boudreau and his team have at least shown what a new spirit can do to a squad.

Looking Ahead

It will take another month to get the truer picture of the two pennant races. Despite the present club standings, the Brooklyn Dodgers and the New York Yankees are still the two teams to beat. Late in May last spring the Yankees were seven games out. They picked up 26 games on the Indians from that point on.

Before the season Leo Durocher figured that Dodger power would be more than Cardinal pitching could meet. Leo had no great respect for the St. Louis attack, which so far hasn't been on the devastating side. But the Cards are still a better hitting team than their present markings indicate. And they still have all the pitching any team needs.

The Cincinnati Reds got away slowly this spring and they haven't been flaming balls of fire so far. But they also have better pitching than they have shown—and a better ball club, once it moves into its normal stride.

If any outside team is to crowd out one of the top three, rated by form, it should be Frank Frisch and his Pirates. They can hit their share, and if the pitching holds up they will be a threatening factor.

The main test doesn't come until the athlete has been baked out in five or six weeks of summer sun.

"WHAT can I do?" Now that we are at war, that is the question that every woman is asking herself. For those women who want to do a real job where they are urgently needed, there is the Volunteer Nurse's Aide Corps of the American Red Cross. One hundred thousand Nurse's Aides will help relieve the acute nursing shortage at home, according to Mrs. Walter Lippmann, who is the volunteer director of this Red cross service. Trained nurses are daily being called for service with our armed forces. Local hospitals and health agencies are understaffed and overworked. Women who volunteer as Nurse's Aides will help safeguard the health of their communities.

A Volunteer Nurse's Aide performs many routine hospital duties and relieves the trained nurse for more technical work. She bathes and feeds patients, makes beds, takes temperature and pulses, assists in keeping records, does unsterile bandaging and attends to many details essential to a patient's comfort. She always works under the supervision of a graduate nurse.

Eligible for enrollment are American citizens or friendly aliens, between 18 and 50 years of age, with the equivalent of a high school education and in good health. A Nurse's Aide must complete an 80-hour intensive training course; 35 hours of class room instruction and 45 hours of supervised practice on hospital wards. She also agrees to serve 150 hours per year without pay in hospitals, prenatal, industrial or other clinics and public health agencies. The standard first aid course is a requisite for the first year of service and the Nurse's Aide may be assigned to Emergency Medical Field Units set up by Civilian Defense, to speed to the aid of civilians, wounded in air raids or disasters.

More than 12,000 Volunteer Nurse's Aides are in training or already trained, but many more are needed. It is too late when the bombs fall or an epidemic strikes. Prepare now and help safeguard the nation's health. Contact your local Red Cross chapter for information as to nearest training facilities available.

The Washington MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON & ROBERT ALLEN

Washington, D. C.

RRs VS. SHIPS

It hasn't made headlines, but a battle royal has been raging between WPB Czar Donald Nelson and Transportation Czar Joe Eastman over the freezing of steel for the construction of railroad cars.

With less and less shipping moving along the coast, and more and more traffic by rail, the question is one of the most important facing the country.

What happened was that the War Production board froze all construction materials already on hand in railroad construction shops. The intention was to transfer these materials for use in building other types of cars.

However, Joe Eastman claims that these materials, chiefly steel, already had been bought and cut out for certain cars, in certain shapes, so the order merely will make the materials go unused, with car shops closing down.

Already, Eastman argues, certain plants of Pullman Standard are idle, at a time when all plants should be used to capacity.

Meanwhile railroads are groaning with traffic. Sugar is now being hauled by rail as much as possible from Florida to avoid submarines. Oil is clogged up in the producing fields for lack of railroad transportation. And with the sinkings of several Chilean ore ships, more iron ore has to be hauled from interior U. S. iron mines.

In view of all this, Eastman complains bitterly that Nelson won't release the steel and let the car foundries do the job.

INFLUENCING EUROPEAN LABOR

Here is one inside reason why Roosevelt leans toward labor. Basically, the President always has been pro-labor, and continues to be, even though he has become fed up with some labor activities in the past year.

But in addition, U. S. war strategists are convinced that the chief hope of revolution in Europe comes from labor. And most of the psychological warfare strategy being devised here is aimed at influencing labor in Germany, Czechoslovakia, Austria and the occupied countries.

Although not generally known, the nucleus of the old Social Democratic party which tried to create a real republic in Germany is still intact. When Hitler came into power, they moved to Czechoslovakia. After the Sudetenland seizure, they moved to Paris. After the downfall of Paris, they moved to the U. S. A.

Fifty Social Democrats from the old Reichstag are now in this country co-operating with U. S. officials.

Furthermore, it is labor in the European occupied countries which is able to assemble or make radios. German labor listens to the radio far more than other classes. Some labor groups even have published very small "underground" newspapers on hand presses and these are distributed by hand.

German labor resents the long hours in munitions factories, the small pay and the lack of food, more than any other group. Also labor is about the only group which was not taken over completely by Hitler. The Communists, his chief opponents, now have long been underground, but secretly active.

To European labor Roosevelt always has been one of the world's greatest leaders. And one thought in the minds of war strategists is to show Europe that the rights of labor here will not be thrown completely overboard during war.

WALLACE'S FAVORITES

The men who came to Washington with Henry Wallace in the early days of the New Deal realize now that they picked a winning horse. Almost to a man, they have moved up to important posts in the government.

Claude Wickard was head of the corn-hog section in Wallace's AAA. Now he is secretary of agriculture.

Milo Perkins was a lowly assistant to Wallace, holding down a desk in the outer office. Today, he runs the Board of Economic Warfare, as important as a cabinet post.

Paul Appleby was an assistant in the inner office. Now he is undersecretary of agriculture at $10,000 a year.

Chester Davis was head of the AAA. Now he is director of the Federal Reserve bank in St. Louis.

R. M. ("Spike") Evans was an aide to Wallace; now head of AAA.

Sam Bledsoe, Roy Hendrickson, and Whitney Tharin were newsmen covering agriculture. Bledsoe is now an assistant to the secretary.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Secretary of War Stimson is held in the warmest personal esteem by army commanders. Hard-working and open-minded, he never meddles in military operations and backs up his subordinates 100 per cent. Stimson is always at his desk by 8 a. m., and rarely leaves until evening, when he always takes home with him a big bundle of papers that he works over after dinner.

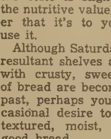
Keep on Your Toes With Enriched Bread!
(See Recipes Below)

Bread 'n Butter

Bread is one of our oldest and best-liked foods. But bread, like many of our other foods, has changed considerably during the last two years. You haven't noticed? Well, it's been enriched and fortified with the B-vitamins, often called morale builders because of the fine things they do for your system, digestion and disposition.

Iron, the magic helper that peps up your system by making hard-working red blood cells, has also been added to bread along with vitamin B.



But not just bread has these new, essential elements. Flour that you use for your own baking has been fortified with the B - vitamins and iron. There isn't much difference in enriched flour or bread and in ordinary bread or flour, except in some cases where the color is slightly creamy. But the nutritive value is so much greater that it's to your advantage to use it.

Although Saturday baking and the resultant shelves and pantries filled with crusty, sweet-smelling loaves of bread are becoming things of the past, perhaps you still feel the occasional desire to turn out a silky textured, moist, delicious loaf of good bread.

Rhythmical kneading is the secret of good bread. Rock the dough under the palms of the hands in three-quarter time until it gets the satin-like sheen.

4 teaspoons salt
2 tablespoons shortening
2 cups water
1 cake yeast
¼ cup lukewarm water
12 cups sifted flour (about)

Scald milk. Add sugar, salt, shortening and water. Cool to lukewarm. Add yeast which has been softened in ¼ cup lukewarm water. Add flour gradually, mixing it in thoroughly. When dough is stiff, turn out on a lightly floured board and knead until satiny and smooth. Shape into smooth ball and place in a greased pan. Cover and let rise in a warm place (80-85 degrees F.) until doubled in bulk. When light, divide into four equal portions. Roll each portion into a smooth ball. Cover well and let rise 10 to 15 minutes. Mold into loaves. For a twisted loaf, roll dough under hand to 2 rolls about 2 inches thick and longer than the length of the pan. Twist the 2 rolls around each other and place in greased pans. Let rise until doubled in bulk. Bake in a moderately hot (400-425-degree) oven 40 to 45 minutes.

A nutritious coffee cake that is a tried and true sugar skimper adds zest to breakfasts. Made with either of the two dried fruit fillings given here, it is delightful:

Sweet Yeast Dough.
(Makes 2 12-inch rings or 3½ dozen rolls)

2 cakes yeast
¼ cup lukewarm water
1 cup milk
¼ cup butter or margarine

Add enough flour to make a soft dough. Turn out on a lightly floured board and knead until satiny. Place in a greased bowl, cover and let rise until doubled in bulk. When light, punch down. Shape into tea ring rolls filling with fig or apricot filling. Bake in a moderate (375-degree) oven 25 to 30 minutes for coffee cake. 20 to 25 minutes for rolls.

Apricot or Prune Filling.

Do you have a yen for old-fashioned, oven-baked chicken swimming in a thick, creamy sauce? Well, here's a recipe for you that you can fix early in the morning and put in your refrigerator until cooking time. You may use broilers, frying hens, stewing hens or roasters, but the cooking time varies with the age of the chicken. Broilers take about a half an hour to cook while stewing hens take about two hours.

Oven-Baked Chicken.

1 roasting chicken cut up
Milk
Flour
Salt and pepper
½ cup butter or fat for frying
1 tablespoon onion, chopped fine
½ pound mushrooms
2 cups hot, rich milk

Dip chicken in milk and seasoned crumbs and flour and fry in skillet until a golden brown. Fry mushrooms in butter until brown (about 2 or 3 minutes). Sprinkle chopped onion over top of chicken arranged in casserole. Pour hot milk over top and bake in a moderate (350-degree) oven until chicken is tender. Serve garnished with chopped parsley and a dash of paprika.

Dramatize the Salad.

Salad greens and fresh fruits occupy an important place in our diets in the spring, and a good salad is a distinctive part of any menu.

Our salad today features citrus fruits and strawberries which are a spring symphony themselves tossed on a bed of greens—watercress, romaine and leaf lettuce are perfect. A light french dressing will bring out the hidden flavors in the greens and fruits:

French Dressing.

3 tablespoons catsup
1 tablespoon vinegar
¼ cup lemon juice
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon white pepper
2 teaspoons sugar
1 cup salad oil
1 onion, sliced
½ teaspoon paprika

Combine ingredients in order given and shake well in jar before serving.

Lynn Says:

Good things come in little packages. This little saying applies perfectly to the concentrated foods like dried fruits—prunes, apricots, figs, apples, pears, raisins and peaches.

Now more than ever before you'll want to use more of them because they can solve your sweet tooth problem, in addition to acting as important blood builders and keeping your body in good working condition because of their important vitamin and mineral values.

You can appreciate why they do all this for you when you realize that to make one pound of the dried fruit it takes several pounds of fresh fruit. For example, prunes require three pounds of fresh fruit to make one pound dried; raisins, four pounds fresh fruit, apples, six to nine pounds fresh fruit, pears and figs both require three pounds of fresh fruit, while apricots and peaches five and one-half pounds of the fresh to make the dried product.

Walter Winchell

Rattlesnake Rattle

Axis diplomats have started the groundwork for a peace offensive. Their peace conditions will be flatly rejected by our Commander-in-Chief.

There is no other course—because there is no such thing as conditional freedom. A peace offer from a dictator is what a rattle is to a rattlesnake.

The American war policy is both clear and final. We will only return to peace when Hitler can never again return to war. Once we were lulled into false security—but we shall never be swindled out of victory. We shall never lose with a pen what our men have gained by the sword. America remembers Pearl Harbor—and she is determined that Tokyo will never forget. The only Americans who will ever go to Munich will be flying bombers made in Detroit.

Our fleet stands between us and Hitler's war—but our graves stand between us and Hitler's peace. We have learned Europe's lesson—there is no such thing as an honorable treaty with a dishonorable government. The American people will make peace some day—but only a peace that will explain to Colin Kelly's son why his father died.

Things I Never Knew
And Still Don't Know:

That the Japs consider four an unlucky number, just as we feel about thirteen over here. (Sho' nuff—the American eagle unloaded his first batch of eggs on Nippon in April, which is the fourth month of the year!) . . . That a new official edict in England prohibits those rows of X's, representing kisses, at the bottom of letters, because spies can use them as a code . . . How we overlooked this for our Literary Lace dep't: Alimony—the high cost of leaving.

That the word coined by the R. A. Fliers for those propaganda pamphlets they drop on enemy territory is "Bomphlets" . . . That the Chinese regard cockroaches as symbols of wealth. (Their logic being that a family must be pretty poor, if they can't afford to feed a few cockroaches) . . . That the British Medical Journal offers this tip for prevention of colds: Throw your head back and let a few drops of pure medicinal cod liver oil slide into your throat through each nostril. (I'd rather have a cold.)

Whether you know that ice cream manufacturers have concocted a "victory sundae," which is made of red, white and blue ice cream. The plan is to charge 25 cents and give the customer a 10 cent defense stamp as a rebate . . That Mrs. Chip Robert, wife of the secretary of the Democratic Committee, recently gave a Washington luncheon for some femme friends. One of the women invited, phoned and asked: "What shall I wear to your luncheon?" . . . To which Mrs. Robert replied: "Come in an open throat and a back suitable for knifing!"

Whether it will depress you to learn that you have only one chance in 20,000 to be questioned in a Gallup poll. (That's the capitalistic system for you) . . . That in Australia there are lizards that bark . . . Whether, after all these years, Jimmy Cagney won't finally win the Academy Award for his Geo. M. Cohan portrayal in "Yankee Doodle Dandy," the film dandy . . . That the recruiting slogan of the Marine Corps at Amarillo, Texas, is: "Join the Marines and see Tokyo."

Whether you know that cats are employed by the U. S. Government with the Post Office Department footing the bill for their keep. (Their job is to keep rats and mice from making a meal of the mail) . . . That on a highway in Venezuela there's a monument to a wrecked automobile with the inscription: "Slowly one goes far" . That the tag of Ann Sheridan's oomphlicker, "Juke Girl," is the funniest fun. Annie says to Ronald Reagan: "Let' settle down on a farm and raise tomatoes" . . . Reagan, ogling her chassis, retorts: "Who's interested in raising tomatoes?"

That if you feel cold in bed because you haven't enough blankets, just cover your head with a scarf, and your whole body, feet and all, will warm up in a jiffy. (In these days that alone is worth the price you paid for the paper!) . . . That when Louis XIV was King of France, for a nominal fee people could come to the palace and watch him eat. (That must have been scads of fun!)

Whether you know that in ancient Gaul there were laws making it taboo to get too stout. (If a guy got stouter than the law permitted he was fined) . . . That a psychologist has figured out that a person who lives seventy years has spent 2,100 hours looking in mirrors. (Who, me?) . . . That the latest wrinkle is a cosmetic for women to put on their teeth, like nail polish, to give them that toothpaste-ad smile . . . That in China the nicest gift you can give a man on his 41st and 51st birthdays is chow-mein. (Because it's a symbol of longevity there).

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Only half the quantity of sugar will be required to sweeten stewed fruits if sugar is added after fruit is cooked.

* * *

As dried fruit is usually soaked before cooking, save the soaking water to cook the fruit in, thereby saving much of the food value of the fruit.

* * *

If one-half level teaspoon of baking powder is added to every four eggs used in making a souffle, it will not fall after it has been removed from the oven.

* * *

Small pieces of toilet soap that accumulate in the bathroom should not be thrown away. Add water enough to cover them and put on stove until dissolved. This makes an excellent soft soap.

Keep butter covered in the refrigerator lest it pick up flavors from other foods. Also keep butter in the coldest part of the refrigerator. Eggs should be stored in the refrigerator but they do not need the coldest spot.

The No. 1 problem confronting every individual living within the borders of Uncle Sam's domain, is how to win this war in the quickest and most effective way.

If any greater calamity than the war we are fighting could come to these United States, it would be to elect Wendell L. Willkie president to succeed Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

The issuing of Government X-cards may be a good thing after all. It could be the signal to start "rationing" congressmen and senators. There are possibilities in the gas "tempest."

Atticus Mullins is the bets political analyst in the state, and we want him to tell us how it was that, according to the State Democratic Executive Committee's "count (?)" approximately 50,000 more votes were cast for Governor, in the May 5th primary, than for Lieutenant Governor and the other State offices?

Oil pipe lines is again being considered by the president. If the building of the proposed pipe lines had started two years ago there would not now be a shortage of gasoline and oil along the Atlantic Seaboard. Too much "studying" and "considering" and too little "do", for which the agents and representatives of powerful interests in Washington are to blame.

Another Democratic youngster we must keep our eye on, in Alabama politics, is "Jimmy"—J. H. Faulkner, of Baldwin County He was chosen democratic nominee for the Legislature and elected a member of the State Democratic Executive Committee from the Second District on the same ballot. Our prediction is: He is going to make one of Alabama's leading future statesmen.

SUPPORT JUDGE BOULDIN

Judge Virgil Bouldin of Jackson county, member of the supreme court of Alabama for a number of years past, takes high ground in his race for re-election. Judge Bouldin is eligible to retire on salary under the terms of the Alabama judicial retirement bill, but he holds that as long as he is able to serve the state with vigor he should not retire and thus put Alabama to the additional expense of another judge's salary. He states to the voters that he is able and willing to do the work of a supreme court judge and he will remain in the run-off contest.

The Democrat bespeaks the earnest consideration of the people of Limestone for this distinguished citizen of the Tennessee Valley and worthy son of High Jackson.—Limestone Democrat.

Chilton County News gives its full endorsement to the candidacy of Judge Bouldin and predicts a political landslide given him by Alabamians for past faithful and efficient services.—Mark L. Tucker.

CLEAN ELECTIONS

Quite a lot has been said about the recent election, and especially about certain boxes in the county having a lot of floating voters, and a lot of vote buying.

Nothing corrupts elections more than a large number who would sell their vote for a paltry dollar or two. It makes good men hesitate to offer for office, feeling if they make a campaign and come up to the day before election feeling they have a comfortable margin, and then during the night have this wiped away.

That reason is why people say politics is rotten. There is another primary coming in the next four weeks in Fayette County, and good citizens should watch and catch those who would corrupt the vote, thereby assuring a clean election and the will of the people selected.

This newspaper is not accusing anybody, but is merely trying to make our people conscious of this great democracy we have. Our boys are fighting to maintain it, but if it is corrupted then it is no better than some of those European governments we are trying to place in purgatory.

Vote a clean ticket, resent the insult offered to buy your vote: vote your convictions, and help us to have representative government.—Fayette County Times.

MORAL ECHOES

By Rev. D. W. Haskew, D. D.

A legend of the middle ages tells of a citizen who was arrested by a baron, and thrust into a dark dungeon. The jailor carried a key that was a foot long and turned what the prisoner thought to be a large lock. For 20 years this keeper would come down each day and open the door and thrust in a loaf of bread and a jug of water, turn the lock and go away. After 20 years of confinement the prisoner grew desperate and determined to over-power the keeper and make his escape. Before commiting his intended act of, "Knocking Out" his keeper, the prisoner examined the lock and door and found that it was not locked at all. The legend states that at any time during the 20 years this prisoner could have walked out a free man for the door had never been locked. In the mind of the prisoner the door was locked and he remained in bondage. The most of us are living in some kind of a prison house, and we think that we can not escape. There is the cell of ignorance, fear and want, and we do not try to make our escape from these. Just an effort on our part might bring release.

Napoleon had an idea that a man was to be judged by the size of his nose. If he had a large nose it was a sure sign that he had a strong character and that he was trustworthy. When his officers came to him seeking the promotion of certain men, the little General never failed to ask "And what about his nose." When one of his men was killed in battle Napoleon always sought a man with a big nose to take his place. It is said that Napoleon was tremendously frightened when he saw the picture of Wellington, for he had on his face a nose that looked more like a handle than it did a nose. When the idol of France met this big nosed man in battle, he was defeated. Napoleon's idea is consoling to some of us, and if it were correct, it would be great if we had more men and women with a big nose. Any way it pays to watch the big nosed man.

One day Henry Ward Beecher went before Lincoln with a hand full of testimonials for a certain man, seeking for him an appointment at the hands of the president. Mr. Lincoln sat back in his chair and asked, "From whom come your testimonials?" Beecher and their names and then the president asked for only one letter that he might read. It was from a prominent judge. A fan who stood before the public without a spot on his character. The letter was read and Mr. Lincoln said to the Brooklyn pastor, "Sir, that is enough and an appointment was made. Tell me not that there is no virtue in a name. Had it ever occured to you that the merit of an endorsement by you is determined to a large extent by what you are yourself. If the sinner of a testimonial has a good name himself, his endorsement carries weight. A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches.

A friend visited Michael Angelo while he was working on one of his statues. To the visitor the work of art seemed complete and he admired it beyond measure. Three months later this same friend came into the work shop of the great sculptor and seeing no new work of art, he asked of him, " Have you been idle since I saw you?" "By no means" replied the sculptor, "I have been retouching this part, and polishing that; I have softened this feature, and brough out that muscle; I have given more expression to this lip, and more energy to this limb." "Well, well," said the friend, "Just wasting your time on trifles." "It may be so," replied Angelo, "But recollect my friend, that trifles make perfection, and perfection is no trifle." It is not the big things that count the most. It is the doing of what we call, "the rifles" that adds the touch of perfection.

Marine Corp In Need Of Fighting Men

The United States Marine Corps is in urgent need of fighting men.

Faced with probably the greatest task ever to confront this united nation, Uncle Sam's Leathernecks need more men and inasmuch as all Marines are volunteers it is to young America that the Marine Corps must turn. The call is a plea, more or less, for additional fighting forces.

The Marine Corps needs more men, men who can be trained as fighters to meet Axis forces in this titanic struggle to free the world and preserve American tradition of democracy. Already labeled as a tough, hell-for-leather outfit and remembered for the gallant battles its men waged at Balleau Wake Island and Bataan, the U. S. U. S. Marine Corps is issuing a plea for more volunteers who'll be whipped into fighting shape and in time, who'll be given an opportunity to write more chapters to an already valiant history.

Today there are thousands of leather necks waging a hectic fight on wide fronts but they need reenforcements. There is a greater demand than ever before for fighting men, young Americans willing to take a stand beside those already fighting for their country's freedom. The Marine Corps offers dozens of opportunities to those who enlist, opportunities to serve in a specialized field, no less, as radio operators, electrical engineers, aviation mechanics, pilots, ground men in the Marine Air Corps and special weapons groups.

If you are between the ages of 17 and 33, then consider the United States Marine Corps as your choice of the nation's armed forces.

Marine Corps recruiting stations in Alabama are located at Tuscaloosa, Mobile, Montgomery, Gadsden, Dothan, and Birmingham.

WPA Urges Workers To Accept Training

Further emphasizing the need for trained workers in war industries, Col. W. G. Henderson, WPA Administrator for Alabama, this week sent out an urgent call to all WPA project employee to fit themselves as rapidly as possible for jobs in plants engaged in war production.

Superintendents of WPA projects throughout Alabama received a notice from the State Administrator to be read to all workers, calling their attention to the opportunity being offered by the WPA vocational training project for defense workers.

"I am confident that every WPA worker wants to do everything possible to help win the war", Col. Henderson wrote. "and I am urging you now to enroll in the training program."

The notice also listed the courses being offered as welding, machine operators, sheetmetal workers, marine blacksmiths, patternmakers, molders, draftsmen, ship carpenters, and several others. Close to 3,000 WPA workers have already enrolled for training and over half this number are now doing their part on the home front as well as earning good wages.

WPA workers were urged to write E. A. Greve, Director, WPA Division of Training and Reemployment, 902 First National Bank Building, Montgomery, for detailed information.

FOLKS AND THINGS ABOUT TOWN

By BEN

Several months ago there lived in Birmingham three young men who were very close friends....in fact, they were much closer than most young fellows. Then, one night they made an agreement between themselves, it was, that no matter what happened in the years to come, that what one had, would be the others. That, remember, was a matter of months ago. Today, one is dead. Another is a member of the United States Air Corp and the other doesn't know exactly where he will be or what he will be doing this time next month.

"A fool there was, and he hitched his star,
Even as You and I.
To a battered old flivver, all mud and tar.
We called it a joke that had gone too far,
But the fool called it his motor car,
Even as You and I.

What happened to this Wednesday afternoon closing? Reports coming to us are that some of the store managers got notice from headquarters—no soap ....Chas Wade flew to Mississippi last Saturday afternoon and got "Doodle" Gore and brought him home for the week-end ....Farmer Seale, former sports writer on the Birmingham Post, and now Sgt. Farmer Seale, United States Marine Corps, was in to see us last week ....Edmund Blair editor of the Pell City News was also a caller .... this fellow Buckalew, who is Navy Recruiting Officer and comes down each Tuesday and holds forth at the local draft board office is a nice fellow. He says that if he is talking to a prospect who would rather get in some other branch of the service than the Navy, he signs them for that branch. Here's a tip to Farmer Seale, next time you are down this way just leave some of your blanks with us and we will see that Buckalew gets them.

Reese Baker has an interesting hobby. Its making list of presidents since Washington and the year they took office and the year they left office. He makes these suitable for framing, in fact he made and framed 22 last week. When Reese got to 1933, the first year of the Roosevelt administration, he stopped ...guess he didn't like so much repetition.

This idea of Earl Gore's about picking up loose scrap is a good one. All Earl asks is that you pile your scrap near your garbage can and when the City truck comes after your garbage they will pick up the scrap at the same time. This scrap includes, any kind of metal and also old rubber. Do your bit by saving what you have and placing it where these men can get it.

He left Sunday for New Orleans to sign up and stuff. . .when we hear more about it we will tell you more about it . . . according to an exchange, we notice in mens fashions that due to taxes and the like, there will be little change in mens' pockets next year ....a colored boy was in this week to join the Navy, and had been living here with kin folks since last July. When asked what kin the people were he was living with he couldn't tell us. Neither could he tell us how old his mother was or the age of the closest kin. When we asked him how old the man was that he lived with, he answered, "I don't know how old, but he's old." All that boy knew was that he wanted to join the navy.

We think that Mr. Dave Cohen, down at Parisian, was taking a crack at us the other afternoon ....we were discussing being able to sleep in the daytime—which we can't— and Mr. Cohen made the statement that he guessed that he could sleep in the daytime, he often went to sleep on the job ...that is where he hit us right between the eyes. Seldom does a day go by, but that in one way or another we feel that we have been caught napping.

For three years or more now, we have been receiving a card through the mail each month informing us that Mr. Thomas McAdams will be with us a certain date. and he has yet to make his appearance . . . we don't get it ....Reports come from the Navy Recruiting Station in Birfingham this week that more Chilton County boys have "joined up" this week. They are: Donald Roberts, Clanton; Lawrence Duffey, Mt. Creek; Hoyt Taylor, Clanton.

FARMERS URGED PLANT PEANUTS

By P. H. Smith, County Agent

Farmers in Chilton County who have been asked to grow peanuts may be wondering why the government has asked for the largest possible acreage for oil this year. The answer is that the Nation may be faced with a serious shortage of vegetable oils by the end of the year unless we in this country can raise domestic production of these oils by more than a billion pounds, says Mr. P. H. Smith, County Agent.

Here, according to Mr. Smith, are some of the reasons why we need vast stores of vegetable oils:

First, our imports of oils from the Far East, such as coconut, tung, palm and perilla oil, have been cut off as a result of the war with Japan.

Second, we must have at least 10 times as much peanut oil as we had last year for making soaps, cooking fats, oleomagarine and other products by our fighting forces and civilian workers. In an emergency, it can be substituted for other oils that are used in making explosives, antifreeze, medicine, and many other vital products. From 12,000 pounds of peanuts 3,000 pounds of soap and enough nitroglycerine to fire a 16-inch gun on a battleship. (One blast from a 16-inch gun could do lots of damage to a boatload of Japs.)

Third, in March, farmers indicated that they intended to plant an increase of only about 66 per cent in peanut acreages—a long way short of the goal of 155 per cent. Since then, however, farmers have been given more information about the need for peanuts because of the war, seed have been made available at local delivery points at raasonable prices, and the War Production Board has approved manufacture of additional peanut pickers for use in harvesting the 1942 crop.

We need five acres of peanuts for every two we had last year, which is the same as saying, we need only two Japs for every five we had last year.

Chilton County farmers haye been asked to plant 8,000 acres of peanuts for oil. Present indications are that not more than 3,000. acres will be planted. This acreage will be planted by about 20 per cent of the farmers. Stated another way, present indications are that four out of every five farmers in Chilton County will not plant any oil peanuts to help in the war effort.

Seed peanuts for oil purposes are still available and it is still not too late to plant them.

Farmers Increase Egg Production

Small farmers in the Southeast have increased their egg production in the past year from a negligible amount, sold or traded by the dozen to "rolling stores" or local merchants, to a major farm enterprise producing 500 thousand dozen weekly.

This was a report today by Marvin Durbin, Chilton County supervisor for the Farm Security Administration, who told what this county is doing in this accomplishment of changing the outlook and farm practices, varying the sources of income, for so many farmers of the region.

It is estimated, Mr. Durbin said that 56,000 small farmers cooperating with the Farm Security program in Alabama, Georgia, South Carolina and Florida, are now getting an average of more than 800 thousand eggs daily from chickens raised in the Food for Defense program initiated last Spring. At an average of 23 cents a dozen, he pointed out, this means $15,000 value in food for home use and in cash sales for these small farmers daily—income they never possessed before.

It is planned to increase this production even further. 35,000 chicks have been delivered to farmers cooperating with the Farm Security Administration in Chilton county.

When pullets from the flocks come into production in 1943, according to Durbin, FSA borrowers should sell 2,019 dozen eggs a week. At 25 cents a dozen, this will mean a supplementary cash income of $503.75 for these farmers. In addition, probably 8,750 fryers and broilers will be culled from the flocks this year and sold for around $2,625.00, the supervisor said.

"The 350 Farm Security families cooperating with the Food for Defense program in this county last year are now getting an average of 10 dozen eggs a week from their flocks," Mr. Durbin pointed out.

Probably 35 per cent of these eggs are kept for home use to improve the farm diet, and 65 per cent marketed.

The poultry program Farm Security borrowers are carrying out does not only mean added income and improved diets for Chilton County borrowers, but also necessary food for our army and war workers, and for lend-lease shipments to our allies, Mr. Durbin said.

New Skin Graft

A new method of skin grafting which for the first time makes it possible to graft skin on an entire thigh or a large part of the back or other parts of the body was reported recently in the Journal of the American Medical Association. The new method, termed "blanket graft," was described by its originators, Drs. H. O. McPheeters and Harvey Nelson of Minneapolis, who pointed out that ordinarily it has been rare for physicians to graft more than a two-inch wide piece of skin at a time. Under the new method, they claimed, a graft was prepared with a total area of 176 square inches.

Commodity War Boom

With food ranking equally in importance as a vital war material with the stuff of which planes, tanks and guns are made, little wonder that America is witnessing a great boom in commodities. Commodity exchanges, principally those in New York and Chicago, are hectic spots these days. The following series of photos give you an idea of how business is done on the exchanges, where the lift of a trader's eyebrow may mean another penny more on your pound of drip-grind, or an extra dollar on the suit you're going to buy.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON
Associated Newspapers—WNU Features.

NEW YORK.—Possibly there will be a touch of Sweden's "middle way" in Paul V. McNutt's new man power commission which is recruiting skill and brawn for war production. An unlooked for appointment on the board is 36-year-old Wendell Lund, Michigan-born son of Swedish immigrants, representing the Labor Production division of the WPB, succeeding Sidney Hillman in this capacity.

Man-Power Board Appointee Rose to Heights on Pluck

Mr. Lund emerges as a new and powerful figure in the war-labor lineup. Impressive in physical bulk and with a record of achievement to match—a record quite remarkable for his years.

Citizens of Swedish birth or ancestry have been cheering for their Wendell Lund for quite a few years and picking him as the most likely to succeed in the domain of useful public service. He is the son of Dr. C. A. Lund, Lutheran minister of Escanaba, Mich., president of the Augustana synod of Lutheran churches.

Wendell Lund won the Michigan state high school oratorical contest and was graduated at head of his class, at the age of 16. Getting through Augustana college, he worked as a laborer in a flooring mill and foreman in a railroad tie yard. On Saturday nights, he worked in a store and earned $5 a week editing college publications. Again he was graduated at the top of his class. He took his master's degree at Columbia university and snatched a doctor's degree from Princeton in a brief two years.

In 1934 he was co-operating with the department of the interior in conservation work and in reshaping the depressed economy of the Monongahela valley.

In 1935, he organized and directed a section of the division of subsistence homesteads, engaged in a wide range of similar governmental projects and worked a night shift in which he took a law degree from Georgetown university, in 1937. In January, 1941, Governor Van Wagoner of Michigan made him secretary of the state administrative board at a time when corruption had been prevalent in the $22,000,000 state purchasing budget. He cleaned that up nicely and was appointed executive secretary of the Michigan unemployment compensation commission. This job was a stepping stone to his new post in which getting the right man in the right job is as important as getting the right shell in the right gun.

THAT air power will bring some drastic changes both in every day living and in fighting, or primarily survival techniques, is the theme of Maj. Alexander P. de Seversky's new book, "Victory Through Air Power." It is a book which would stir even a wooden Indian out of any undue complacency about the shape of things to come. His argument that we will live in the future only by bigger and better airplanes may be refuted only by experts, considering the major's professional standing as an aviation engineer, builder and inventor.

Our Only Safety Is In Better Planes, Seversky Believes

Flying for Czarist Russia, he got only a wooden leg out of the First World war and thinks we will be lucky to come off as well in this one, unless we wake up. Arriving here, in 1918, he acquired a $5,000,000 airplane factory and a beautiful wife, the former Evelyn Oliphant of New York.

Dog-fighting the Germans, his ship was dropped to the Baltic. One of his own bombs exploded. Regaining consciousness, clinging to a wing, he made a tourniquet of his trouser leg. He had swooned again when a Russian destroyer picked him up, his leg blown away. In Washington, he became consulting engineer for the United States air service, building amphibian planes, a master of stunt flying with a dead motor. He has filled out an illustrious career as a designer and builder of planes. He is no armchair air strategist.

A FRIEND who recently traversed North Africa and the Near East told this writer he found everywhere diligent and curious British Intelligence officers but none of the USA. He thought we ought to be picking up more gossip in those parts. Reports accumulate as to the increasing efficiency of the British secret service. They tag Maj. Gen. Hastings Lionel Ismay as the man providentially at hand to guide and stimulate these efforts. He is credited with much swift legerdemain in getting at enemy secrets.

Horse Is Important Source of War Power

Tips Are Given for Better Care of Helpful Animal

By J. L. EDMONDS
(Professor of Horse Husbandry, University of Illinois College of Agriculture.)

With horses being a more important source of farm power than in many years, here are some tips on making the horse a more reliable and cheaper source of farm power.

1. Use a variety of feeds to fill all the requirements of a ration—nutrients of the proper amount and proportions, bulk enough for safety in digestion and a high degree of palatability.

2. Feed according to individual needs. Horses probably vary more than other farm stock in individual feed requirements.

Courtesy U. S. Department of Agriculture.

This span of Maryland horses is working the same as ever. But their value to the owner, and the nation, has increased considerably.

3. Feed according to the job. Failure to adjust feed to the work being done causes the waste of much feed and occasionlly results in the loss of good horses.

4. Use only feeds of good quality. Horses may safely eat considerable quantities of cheap, coarse, rough feed if it is wholesome.

5. Be punctual about feeding times. The horse is a creature of habit and shows his appreciation of punctuality, regularity and cleanliness in feeding by increased thrift.

6. Home-grown rations are usually cheapest. Very satisfactory rations may be composed entirely or almost entirely of home-grown feeds.

7. The weight of the horse and the presence or lack of thrift and spirit are tests of the adequateness of a ration. Horses at severe work usually do not need more than a pound of hay daily for each 100 pounds they weigh, but the grain ration should be approximately 1¼ pounds daily for each 100 pounds weight.

8. Frequent watering and regular salting are very essential in hot weather.

9. Parasites of the digestive tract are best treated by an experienced veterinarian. Many farm colts and horses are too heavily parasitized to respond to good care.

10. Start horses to work gradually while the weather is still cool. Be a good horseman. Groom horses regularly.

11. Trim and level feet regularly. This may be done with regulation horseshoer's tools.

Hints on Farm Buildings

Farm buildings supported on wood posts frequently settle because of decay or the work of termites. Uneven settlement often is the cause of damage to wood framing.

To prevent uneven settling of farm buildings supported on wood posts, engineers of the U. S. department of agriculture suggest that the posts be treated against rot and insects and set on masonry footings—either stone slabs or concrete—below the frost line. Posts used in repair of buildings should also be treated and set on masonry.

In jacking up a plastered farm building that has settled unevenly, engineers of the U. S. department of agriculture suggest that the jacking be very gradual and uniform to prevent the walls from cracking.

Building foundations that slope with a hillside are likely to shift, say engineers of the U. S. department of agriculture. Movement can be stopped by under-pinning so that the new footings are horizontal, like steps. These should extend below the frost line.

Increase of Dairy Cows

The number of dairy cows in Ohio and in the United States increased 3 per cent in 1941, and the number of dairy calves and heifers was the largest on record. The increase in cow numbers in 1942 probably will exceed the 1941 increase.

Cheap garden, field, or lawn seeds usually are the most expensive that can be purchased. Low germination weed contamination, and dirt are the three chief factors that make some seed sell for less.

Collection Time

By DOROTHY DOUGLAS
(McClure Syndicate—WNU Service.)

ANNE rushed out to post the afternoon letters from the little suburban shop in which she worked. She had stuffed the letters into her bag and as she reached the letter box on the corner she pulled out the bulky lot and pushed them through the opening.

Then, as she turned away, she gasped and searched her bag.

Yes, she had tossed in the most private letter she had received that morning—the one in which the manager of the shop in which she was employed, had proposed to her.

It was unthinkable that John Barnes' lovely letter should be handed about the post office for every postman in the village to read.

"Whatever shall I do?" Anne asked herself desperately, and decided first that she had better marry him so that he would not have to bear the title of "rejected suitor" among the village teasers. Anyway, Anne had about decided that question in her own mind. She was very fond of John, and after all he was an exceptionally good match for any girl.

Then, all of a sudden she realized that she might go to the post office and ask one of the postmen to get her letter for her. Surely that would be quite simple.

Anne went straight around to that government building and was soon discussing her case with a decidedly pleasant young man.

"I'll tell you the only thing we can do," he told her, and Anne liked his smile, "since we must not open the letter box until collection time—perhaps you could be there at 7:45 this evening and the postman will then get your letter for you."

"Oh!" said Anne with a lovely blush, "it is very good of you. I wouldn't have wanted my letter lost—it's a—very—"

The young man didn't exactly like the emotion Anne displayed regarding her letter. It looked almost as if her love affairs were a settled thing. No girl would act like that over a mere letter even if it were an intimate epistle. No—it must be a love letter.

"I understand," laughed Elswood, "and since you must have it back—you shall most certainly have it. You just pop along to the letter box at 7:45. The collector will get it for you."

Anne hesitated.

"You will tell him—so I won't have to explain again?" she questioned.

"Yes," said Elswood, "I'll tell him that a very lovely young lady is in a very distressed condition because she had dropped into the letter box a—well a note from a maiden aunt."

Anne looked up and caught the twinkle in his eyes and a quick blush rewarded him.

"Well, you wouldn't want the love letters you had written to the girl you were going to marry read by everyone in the town!" she snapped back at him.

"I don't write love letters and I'm not going to marry any girl, at least—"

Anne smiled and from the kind of smile it was Elswood knew she had found out what she wanted to know. It rather pleased him that she was desirous of knowing whether or not he was "booked up," as it were.

"Well—" Anne had wickedness in her eyes now, "perhaps, if the post office is able to restore my love letter—we will invite the entire staff to the wedding," and with that she fled back to the lace counter of John Barnes' store.

"There's one you won't get to your wedding, little lady," Elswood told that vanishing form, "unless he's the man who says, 'I will.'"

And that evening, just when the sun was sinking in glorious splendor behind the great hills that hugged the outer rim of the town, Anne waited, beside the post box. Instead of thinking of John Barnes, she was seeing again the laughing face of the young man who was to get her letter back for her, and the more she thought of him the less inclined she felt to answer that letter in the affirmative.

Then in the near distance she saw the collecting postman approaching and for a second she didn't quite realize that he was the young man about whom her thoughts were centered.

Anne was possessed by a great desire to run away—why, she didn't exactly know. But she stood her ground, and in another moment Elswood had raised his cap to her.

"Just in time," he greeted her with a laugh. "You are more than anxious to get that letter back. I suppose you want to put it along with red roses and other treasured mementos."

Anne smiled. That peevishness meant a whole lot to her.

She glanced at her watch. "It's collection time," she reminded him.

Elswood gave himself the pleasure of a long look into Anne's eyes and what he saw there made him more willing to unlock the letter box.

A few minutes later John Barnes' love letter was restored to its recipient, and in another second, with a soft little smile, Anne tore it into a thousand pieces—"that's that," she said.

It may be caused by disorder of kidney function that permits poisonous waste to accumulate. For truly many people feel tired, weak and miserable when the kidneys fail to remove excess acids and other waste matter from the blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling. Sometimes frequent and scanty urination with smarting and burning is another sign that something is wrong with the kidneys or bladder.

In a recent radio speech Churchill warned Hitler that if Germany used gas against Russia the RAF would use it against Germany. Apropos of all this, inventor W. The gas, known as "Lewisite," will be a revelation to Hitler—if he asks for it.

Star Dust

STAGE SCREEN RADIO

By VIRGINIA VALE

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

HEDY LAMARR started her career as William Powell's screen wife with expert advice from Myrna Loy, who's so often been "Mrs. Thin Man." Here's her note. "Dear Hedy: Just remember, when Bill starts emoting, you stop breathing—but he'll always give you the best side of the camera. If he hasn't had time for breakfast, keep out of his sight. If possible, have the director call you after lunch. On the other hand, working with Bill means you're home in time for dinner. Do learn to tie ties; Bill can't. Neither does he like noise on the set. He just laughs if you blow your lines, but don't you laugh if he blows his. Good luck—from an ex-wife."

The March of Time breaks all its own precedents to bring us first-hand knowledge of India, now that U. S. soldiers are fighting at her very frontiers. Two pictures will be released, "India in Crisis," covering the political and social background of the Indian question, presents the viewpoints of the various dissenting groups. The second installment is "India at War."

Frederic March is one of the few actors who always knows what he'll be doing six months hence. If he's in Hollywood, he knows he'll be on Broadway; he does one play a season there. If he's in New York, he knows he'll be in Hollywood, making a picture.

FREDERIC MARCH

A midget clad in a chimpanzee's suit works with Bob Hope and Bing Crosby in "Road to Morocco." Naturally, when the comedians recognized friends among a group of studio visitors, they turned the "chimpanzee" loose on them. He screeched, grabbed them, ran amok; they fled for their lives, while Hope and Crosby sat back, looking a little too innocent.

Herbert Wilcox recently returned from making "They Flew Alone," in London; it's the story of Amy Mollison's life, starring Anna Neagle and Robert Newton. And what snags he ran into! He wanted Newton to play James Mollison—Newton was serving on a minesweeper. An appeal to the government got his release. Electric power at the studio was limited. All timber in the sets had to be used over and over. It took seven months to make the picture, but Mr. Wilcox feels that the very difficulties helped to give it an unusual quality of reality.

Did you like "Here Comes Mr. Jordan"? Then you ought to like Metro's "Three Guys Named Joe"—a tale of three happy-go-lucky pilots who perish while fighting in the Pacific, only to return in a series of post-mortal adventures and "adopt" the crew of another plane, and guide them in battle. Sounds a bit like some of those hilarious "Topper" films.

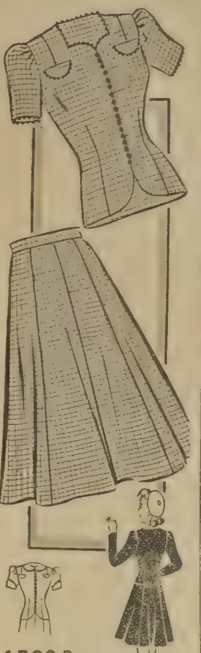
It has been years, and it seems like forever, since first there was talk of making a picture of Rudyard Kipling's "Kim." Metro has owned the screen rights for a good while, and is settling down to work now, with Mickey Rooney to play the title role, after he finishes "A Yank at Eton."

As a boy Joel McCrea used to play around a haunted house on a hill top. Some years ago, when Anne Harding was looking for a hill to build on, he recommended the one on which that house had stood. She built there, later sold the house; now it belongs to Rudy Vallee—but he didn't know the site was haunted until told by McCrea, who's working with him and Claudette Colbert in "The Palm Beach Story."

ODDS AND ENDS—RKO is preparing its own picture of the merchant marine—"The Navy Comes Through," starring Pat O'Brien, Randolph Scott and Jackie Cooper . . . Greer Garson's become a basketball fan; she bought uniforms for the team of the 78th anti-aircraft artillery unit . . . Spencer Tracy gave his stand-in, Jerry Schumacher, a gold-tipped rabbit's foot when Schumacher joined the parachute troops; the rest of the "Tortilla Flat" company gave him a huge pillow—"for soft landings" . . . "Wonder Baby Corey," after drawing $17.50 weekly unemployment insurance for some time, is now back at work, in "The Lone Wolf in Scotland Yard."

PATTERNS

SEWING CIRCLE



1560-B

THERE are few fashions which do quite as much for the figure as the dress which looks like a suit, an appealing version of which is presented in Pattern No. 1560-B. In this style you get a smooth fitting top which whittles the waist, trimly outlines the feminine curves of the bosom and controls a slim effect through the hips. You will like the neat detailing too, in the low cool neckline edged with ric-rac, the row of tiny buttons for the front closing and the prettily shaped pocket flaps. The skirt has panels, for slender fitting through the hips and across the back.

If a touch of white near your face is especially flattering you can finish the top with a round white collar—it would be most effective if the frock were dotted swiss—or gingham of a tiny check.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1560-B is designed for sizes 10, 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Corresponding bust measurements 28, 30, 32, 34, 36 and 38. Size 12 (30), with short sleeves requires 3¾ yard, 35-inch material. Contrast collar and cuffs, ⅝ yard 2 yards ric-rac for trim.

If we wish to be free: if we wish to preserve inviolate those inestimable privileges for which we have been so long contending; if we mean not basely to abandon the noble struggle in which we have been so long engaged, and which we have pledged ourselves never to abandon until the glorious object of our contest shall be obtained—we must fight! WPA Workers Help In Salvage Drive

The drive to gather scrap rubber and metal from Alabama's farms is getting under way in earnest, it was announced today by Leon Gilbert, executive secretary of the Alabama Salvage Committee.

A staff of WPA workers assisting in the salvage-for-victory vampaign is mailing out questionaire cards to more than 200,000 rural boxholders in the state, asking how much scrap rubber and metal each recipient can collect. With each card are a sheet of instructions and a letter from Donald Nelson, chairman of the War Production Board, pointing out: "That old copper tubing lying in the barn may become part of a shell that will blow up a Jap cruiser."

Board To Study Pay Increase To Teachers

The State Board of Education will meet at an early date to study details of Governor Dixon's plan for granting a 25 per cent salary increase to Alabama school teachers. Speedy action is expected. The governor some weeks ago announced that the necessary funds are available.

Machinery already is available for an immediate 10 per cent raise, effective in September, and board of education members are at work on a study of the financial procedure to be used in granting the additional 15 per cent raise.

J. E. Faulkner Puts On One-Man Campaign

Unsung hero of the salvage-for-victory drive is J. E. Faulkner, of Sterrett, rural mail carrier.

Mr. Faulkner, although near the retirement age, has started a one-man campaign to collect scrap. Hauling salvage material daily as he covers his 51-mile route, he has collected a ton of waste rubber and nearly 600 pounds of scrap metal which his friends have contributed for American war factories.

When his scrap pile is sold, Mr. Faulkner plans to send a check for the proceeds to the U. S. Treasury.

Mobile Carpenters and Joiners (Local No. 89) has purchased $10,000 worth of war bonds. They previously bought $50,000 worth of defense securities.

SAFE AND SANE

We are regaining confidence. From the muddle of opinions and defeatism after Pearl Harbor, Americans are now begining to feel, once again, the overwhelming belief in our ultimate victory.

We were, to be sure, quite upset over our unpreparedness. The Japs awoke us to the fact that we were not ready for total warfare. We must thank them for that. They also proved to us that we couldn't win this war without the effort of us all. More Significantly, they showed us, however, that we must still have the American spirit of getting down to a task, doing it efficiently, and doing it well.

Those months of doubt, of speculation, which followed the unforgivable castrophe at Pearl Harbor, are now historic facts; but the victories of today are a vindictation of the democratic form of Government. While we—the public—argued and wrangled—while we begged, asked, demanded relief for Singapore and the Phillipines—there were men in Washington who were getting the nation ready. As Britain under Churchill fought with all her courage after Dunkerque, so America prepared with all her productive capacity after Pearl Harbor.

The result is the beginning of the new phase of the war. Gone is the phase in which the Japanese with overwhelming numbers, would fight Americans. The foes will now be on more nearly equal terms.

We have been getting renewed confidence from that fact, and also from the recent reports we have heard: bombing raids on Tokyo, British possession of New Caledonia and Madagascar, and the recent Battle of the Coral Sea. All these are outstanding examples of the superiority of our forces. They show, moreover, that we are beginning to do a good job at home. By buying our war bonds and stamps, by accepting sugar rationing, by curtailing gasoline consumption, and by a million other small duties, we are beginning to realize this is a war of us all. The man in the factory is getting faith in his machine. He is reading about places where the airplane he helped build, the tank he helped construct is winning a battle. He will be more willing to work harder, to sacrifice, to win this war. For if effort is what is required to win it, he is determined that that effort shall be forthcoming.

We listen to the Army Hour on Sunday afternoon. We follow over the ether the trip of a bomber from California to Detroit to Montreal, to New Foundland to somewhere in Britain. We realize the exactness and the precision with which our effort is being carried out. We beg to respect those who are in authority. We admire the Herculean job they have done in a short time

We begin to feel that we had better quit talking, and get down to work too. Our idle chatter can do very little real good;it may encumber the war effort.

For once in our life, if we look carefully at what is going on around us, we feel that the American spirit is being revived-that it is alive and active Everywhere we see the flag, everytime we hear or see the red, white and blue we know that the kind of America our forefathers fought and died for is worth our fighting and dying for, also.

We know this because our proud proud boasts about America's invincibility are now requiring our all-out effort to back them up. And the very fact that we are backing them up, gives us the confidence to go forth, to meet de[illegible] if come they must, but above all, to win the final and total victory.

We have the means and the spirit for victory. There is only one danger. We must remain calm and sane. There must be confidence, but there must not be overconfidence. The danger of becoming too sure can lead us back to a state of defeat.

But as long as we remember that we have a job to do, and as long as we work assidiously on it, there can be no reason for not having an unyielding, an undying, faith in the justice and the triumph of the battle which is ours.

Staked Vines Give Better Tomatoes

Stake tomatoes or let them sprawl? That is the question home demonstration club women and 4-H club girls growing Victory gardens want answered.

"A summary of results of various experiments with pruning and staking tomatoes shows that pruning and staking gives earlier tomatoes, better tomatoes, but fewer tomatoes," answers Dr. C. L. Isbell, professor of horticulture at the Alabama Experiment Station.

In come sections of the State, particularly in South Alabama, tomatoes on unstaked vines will decay just as they start ripening. In some sections of the State, particularly in South Alabama, tomatoes on unstaked vines will decay just as they start ripening. One inexpensive but effective way of keeping the tomatoes off the ground is to cut small limby bushes and pile them in the middle of the tomato row and train the vines to run up on the bush. This will give good ventilation and keep the timatoes off the ground.

Pruned and staked tomatoes get more sunshine, are richer in vitamin C, ripen earlier and remain cleaner

FOLKS AND THINGS ABOUT TOWN

By BEN

Our good friend W. W. Wingard has returned from the Veterans Hospital at Montgomery and is seen about the streets again. Mr. W. W., is walking with a cane but looks mighty good and we'er certainly glad to see him back.

Received word from the Eighth Naval District at New Orleans this week of two more Chilton County boys entering the service and getting their commissions. They are Morgan Reynolds and Milton Higgins. Both have been commissioned ensigns in the United States Naval Reserve.

And too, word comes to us of J. R. McKinney, Jr., of Stanton. His mother received word from him last week—he has arrived in Austrailia safe.

By-the-way, we have some large glossy photographs of two Chilton County boys here on our desk that some mother, sister, father or brother would be mighty proud of .... one is of "Ted" Jones of Coopers, who seems to have gathered unto himself a good deal of publicity as a boxer since he joined the 204th Quartermaster Battalion .... the other is of John T. Speaks who is at the Marine Corps Basic School at Indian Gap, Pa. We will be more than glad to give these photographs to any member of the family who might be interested in calling by the office for them.

These Higgins have gone to war in a big way. Lt. Jack Higgins was at home for a few days on furlough this week ... Guy, Higgins, a brother, is in the Navy and is somewhere in the Pacific ... Milton Higgins, we have just told you about in another paragraph. . . . and John Higgins has returned from New Orleans, where he has passed his examination and has made formal application to the U. S. Navy Department. Erle Ellis is at home on furlough for the first time since leaving for the Navy .... which reminds us, we saw him on the street the other day talking to Hoyt Taylor, who is soon leaving for the Navy ... guess Erle was giving Hoyt the low-down on what,, when, where and why. And Melvin Weil, who received his wings recently, was home this week.

J. T. King is due a vote of thanks from the populace for the time and work he is putting in on the Navy Relief Fund collections and also the Bond and Stamp sales ....he has a most appropriate window display at Elmore's in behalf of the Bond drive. We believe King was the first in town to supply all of his sales girls with war saving stamps and require each salesgirl, when making change to ask if the customer would prefer stamps or cash.

We understand along with everything else, ice is being frozen .... Jimmie Bell has bought a wagon for his boy's pony. Some of these mornings we expect to see Jimmie driving down the street in it, on his way to work .... the things we know, and could tell, and don't .... Guess you heard the one about the Doctor mailing his patient a bill and asking: "Will you please send me the amount of your bill, it will be appreciated." To which the patient wrote: "The amount is $14. You'er welcome." ...

Another former Chilton County News employee takes his place at the helm of one of Alabama's weekly newspapers. John VanDerveer, Jr. has gone to Abbeville where he will take over this week as Editor and manager of the Abbeville Herald.

M. D. Foshee was promoted to corporal the first of May. He is stationed at Albuquerque, New Mexico, in the 271 School Squadron.

Maurice Wyatt is working in Mobile. Maurice leaving Clanton deprived us of one of our best known sign painters. He says he likes it fine there ... Mr. Stewart at Hill's, tells the best one yet, since the sugar rationing. The other day a negro man came in and wanted to get his sugar. (You know, the granulated kind.) Well, he gave Mr. Stewart his order, and when he got his sugar and Mr. Stewart had taken out the stamps the negro started out of the store. He was immediately apprehended and asked for the price of the sugar, to which he replied, "Boss I thought those stamps paid for this sugar." ....Mr. B. W. Ware, Virginia's father, has been called to Washington, D. C., where he will take a six or eight weeks course as a Red Cross Instructor. He is leaving Meridian, Miss., today. That is where the family has been living for the past several months.

Dates Announced For Boy Scout Camp

The summer camp dates of the Montgomery Area Council, Clanton District being an active part, have been announced by Field Executive Charles B. McKee who is in the District part of this week.

Long Hard War Says President

It still looks like a long hard war, President Roosevelt told reporters in an apparent effort to discourage a widespread, recently arisen expectation that victory might be won with comparative speed and ease, after all.

The chief executive cautioned the public alike against extremes of optimism or pessimism growing out of reports of piece-meal war activities. The difficulty, he said, was a public inclination to overstate the effect of both isolated victories and defeats.

Move Offices

Offices of the State Defense Council, at Montgomery, have been moved from 102 Church Street, to the Bell Building, to make room for operations of the state offices of Price Administration at the former address.

Keep 5 Lamps Burning Throughout The War

Retiring Moderator, Dr. Hubert Booth Smith, of the Presbyterian Church, in the United States of America, in the keynote address at the opening of the 154th general assembly in Milwaukee, urged church leaders to marshal all of their forces to keep the five "lamps" burning throughout the war and afterwards. These he described as:

(1) Truth in a world of falsehood and confusion; (2) brotherhood in a world of selfish nationalism; (3) righteousness in a world of brute force; (4) Christian zeal in a world indifferent to spiritual values; (5) regeneration as a preparation for reconstruction.

The Christian Church, he said, should be the one great institution in the modern world "which does not lose its head and succumb to the hysteria so prevalent around it."

Judge Virgil Bouldin Should Be Re-Elected

There stands for reelection in the Democratic Primary next Tuesday, June 2nd, Judge Virgil Bouldin for Associate Justice of the Supreme Court. This is a run off election in which Judge Bouldin is opposed by Mr. J. L. Drennen of Birmingham, Mr. Drennen having been the runner up in the first primary, but failing to poll by some 14,000 votes as many as Judge Bouldin. Usually the electorate do not sufficiently concern and inform themselves upon candidates for our Appellate Courts. This is the highest court of our state and certainly should be graced by the highest type of man, as well as the ablest jurist and we sincerely submit that you have both of these in the person of Judge Bouldin.

Mr. Drennen is making as his chief argument against the relection of Judge Bouldin, that he is now eligible for retirement upon a salary of $4,000.00 per year; the law providing that a Judge of the Supreme Court reaching the age of 70 years, and having served fifteen years on the court, may retire, and thus as Mr. Drennen argues,, the way would be opened for another man to serve on the court and draw the salary, and Judge Bouldin would not suffer but a small reduction of salary. We see two well grounded defenses to this argument of Mr. Drennen. In the first place, Judge Bouldin is to be commended for refusing to retire on a pension, and thus put the State of Alabama to the expense of paying for an extra Judge. We think that in these perilous times that any man should be commended for trying to save the tax payers every little bit possible and this is exactly what Judge Bouldin has done, that is, a saving to you of $4,000.00 each year, or $24,000.00 for the six year term, in the event he is elected, but if Mr. Drennen should defeat him, it will cost you for the first term, $24,000.00.

In the second place, Judge Bouldin is seventy-five years of age and Mr. Drennen is sixty-seven years of age, and Mr. Drennen has had no judicial experience whatever. Judge Bouldin has been elected three consecutive times as Associate Justice and it would be almost an impossibility for Mr. Drennen, assuming that he lived to a ripe old age, to equal Judge Bouldin in judicial attainment and quality. Judge Bouldin is active health and mind and has not missed a day off the Supreme Court through sickness. It appears to this newspaper that it would be bad business for Alabama to defeat Judge Bouldin, under these circumstances, and to inflict upon the tax payers of Alabama two salaries where only one is necessary. Alabama should next Tuesday endorse by a landslide vote this patriotic stand of Judge Bouldin, as well as an honest and capable Judge.

A Kittenbunny

Miss Mary Oswell Dowling has a black and white cat which shows decided bunny characteristics and is a real curiosity. Its tail is bobbed in rabbit fashion, its forbeaws are of the rabbit variety and its favorite poise is to sit hunched up on its hind quarters in bunny style. It is reported that the cat-rabbit is fond of a diet of grass and herbs, along with its carnivorous proclivities, which adds to its oddity. The unusual hybred was raised from a kittenbunny by Miss Mary Oswell and attracts much attention. It is of mature age now.—Elber Clipper.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

RAF Reich Blitz Forecast of Invasion; Hoover Urges Greater Power for FDR; Soviets Push Ahead on Kharkov Front; U. S. Outlines Pay Deduction Tax Plan

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

DOOLITTLE:
Secrets Well Kept

Three questions remained unanswered when President Roosevelt pinned the Congressional Medal of Honor on the breast of Brigadier General Doolittle in an unheralded White House ceremony commemorating the recent history-making American bombers' raid on the Japanese mainland.

Where did daredevil Jimmy Doolittle's squadron take off from? Where did the Yank fliers land after they bombed Tokyo and sowed a whirlwind of fire, death and destruction in their wake? By what route did Doolittle reach Washington?

While the mystery remained a well-kept secret, Doolittle, who had won international renown as a peacetime speed flier before his latest exploit made him America's No. 1 hero, revealed some significant facts.

The Yanks outflew and outfought Japanese planes and retired without losing a single plane. They "hedgehopped" over Tokyo low enough to see a ball game in progress. Yankee bombers played havoc with vital Japanese industrial areas 40 miles long and 5 to 20 miles wide. They scored direct hits on a battleship or cruiser under construction near Tokyo and scattered incendiary bombs over airplane factories in Nagoya.

In extending Doolittle the nation's thanks, President Roosevelt announced the award of 79 Distinguished Service Crosses for the 79 volunteers—pilots, machine gunners, bombardiers and radiomen—who participated in the raid.

Speaking over the radio following his decoration, General Doolittle declared that the April raid over Tokyo was only the beginning of many more.

HOOVER URGES:
More Power for FDR

Former President Herbert Hoover urged that President Roosevelt be given additional "dictatorial economic powers" as a means of winning the total war.

"There must be no hesitation in giving them to President Roosevelt and upholding him in them," Mr. Hoover said in an address before the 26th assembly of the National Industrial Conference board.

Economic dictatorship, however, must not encroach on civil liberties, he declared. "From a philosophical viewpoint," he said he would like to see the "sixth columnists given a little more liberty."

"Criticism of the conduct of the war is necessary if we are to win the war," he added. "We want the war conducted right . . . Democracy can correct mistakes only through public exposure and opposition to them."

Mr. Hoover did not define specifically the new dictatorial powers he advocated for President Roosevelt. He said, however, "We must start our thinking with a cold, hard fact; that the economic measures to win total war are just plain Fascist economics."

STEEL WORKERS:
To Be 'Missionaries'

As his conflict with John L. Lewis for control of millions of American workers tightened, Philip Murray, president of the CIO, urged delegates who attended the Steel Workers' Organizing committee convention at Cleveland, Ohio, to become "missionaries of national unity."

"I do not want internal strife in this union nor in the CIO," Murray said. "Men's minds must rise above internal bickering when the nation is embroiled in a world war.

INVASION PRELUDE:
RAF Blitzes Reich

While Royal Air force bombers blasted war factories and chemical plants in Germany and blitzed Nazi submarine bases in France and enemy airdromes in Holland, the Churchill government announced that the RAF's heavy air offensive was a prelude to an ultimate invasion of continental Europe.

Sir Stafford Cripps, lord privy seal and government spokesman in commons said:

"These bombings are, in our view, of material assistance to Russian resistance and the best way in which we can give assistance until such time as we are able to make a carefully planned attack on the continent of Europe, which we intend to do."

The accelerated tempo of Britain's air offensive was seen in the performance of one detachment of bombers which unloaded 40,000 fire bombs over the city of Mannheim in southwest Germany, second largest inland port of Germany and the site of a number of important chemical, armament and engineering factories.

NEW TAX PLAN:
Collect at Source

To help Americans pay heavy income taxes that would affect millions of workers in the small-income group for the first time and to combat inflation, the treasury department outlined to the House ways and means committee a "collection-at-source" program.

Under the new plan, employers would withhold on behalf of the government part of the pay of single workers making more than $11 a week and childless married persons making more than $26. The amount deducted would be used as a credit against income taxes.

Increased individual income surtaxes ranging from 12 per cent on the first $2,000 to 80 per cent on taxable earnings exceeding $200,000 yearly were written into the pending war revenue bill.

The ways and means committee's plan did not incorporate President Roosevelt's suggestion that no American's income should exceed $25,000 a year after payment of all taxes.

REDS VS. NAZIS:
Soviets Still Ahead

Stubborn battles on which the decision of World War II appeared to hinge still persisted on the Kharkov and Kerch fronts.

On the Kharkov front the Russian armies under Marshal Timoshenko continued their advances in the face of stiffened German resistance and sharp counterattacks. On the Kerch front, the Russians denied Nazi claims of a clean sweep to the gateway of the precious Caucasus oil fields.

That the Red army was keeping alive its offensive in the Kharkov sector at a swiftly rising cost to the Nazis in men, heavy weapons and supplies was indicated by the latest war bulletins.

"On one sector near Kharkov," said a report, "our troops annihilated 1,650 German officers and men and destroyed 27 tanks, an ammunition dump and a gasoline dump. Booty captured included 37 guns, 57 mortars, 10,000 shells, 40,000 rounds of ammunition, three wireless stations and other material."

In commenting on the situation on the Kerch peninsula in the Crimea, a communique said Russian forces were barring the way to the Caucasus in a way that resembled the long American defense of the Bataan peninsula in the Philippines.

NAZI FOOD RATIONS:
To Be Smaller

MARSHAL GOERING
"It's a hard war."

Following stories of conditions in Axis countries by diplomats and newspaper men released from internment in Germany and Italy came an announcement by Reich Marshal Herman Goering, war time Nazi economic commissioner, that "a temporary reduction in the food rations" of Germany would be necessary because of an unfavorable crop outlook.

Addressing 137 war workers assembled at the chancellery in Berlin to be awarded service crosses for the first time in history, Goering said:

"Three extremely hard winters are behind us. The elements have not been kind to us. Last year's harvest was bad. Now, however much we enjoy the warm sun, we are longing for rain to bring what the farmer needs."

Goering termed the present war "the hardest Germany has had to fight."

"The winter campaign has been terrible. The Fuehrer suffered deeply for his troops, but he knew he must not yield. There was no question of giving up our front positions because behind us there was only a heap of ruins." .

EARLIER VICTORY?:
Maybe, Says Hull

Secretary of State Cordell Hull's cautious indication that increase of United Nations striking power might bring victory sooner than was formerly expected, brought comfort to many an American family and generated new optimism over the war effort in official Washington.

Mr. Hull had been asked at a press conference whether developments in recent weeks on the home and foreign fronts encouraged him to believe in an early victory. In reply he pointed out that the powers and facilities of the United States have been developing on a more and more massive scale, not only for offensive-defensive operations, but for outright offensive war.

Making no effort to disguise the fact that he was increasingly impressed by America's growing power, the white-haired secretary suggested it was only natural that calculations as to the duration of the war should be made in the light of this fact.

Observers pointed out that a number of factors re-enforced Secretary Hull's views. Among these were the steady rise in armed personnel, unprecedented increases in production from factory production lines, growing air and naval strength and the uninterrupted flow of men and materials abroad.

GAS RATIONING:
Looms for All U. S.

Restriction of gasoline consumption by the 20,000,000 car owners outside the East and the Pacific Northwest to a point where pleasure driving would be almost completely banned before the end of the summer was predicted as a result of conferences between Defense Transportation Director Joseph B. Eastman and Price Administrator Leon Henderson.

New emphasis to the seriousness of the nation's rubber shortage was lent by Mr. Eastman's disclosure that the United States may not have a sufficient supply of synthetic rubber "in short of three years and perhaps not then."

Disclosure of impending steps toward universal gas limitation followed an indication by President Roosevelt that rationing might be extended to other parts of the country outside the East and the Pacific Northwest where it is already operative.

MISCELLANY:

Australia: Gen. Douglas MacArthur, who is an engineer himself, and Brig. Gen. Hugh Casey, his chief engineer in the Philippines, were made honorary members of the Australian Institute of Engineers.

New York: Pan-American clipper service across the Atlantic entered its fourth year. Behind it was a record of carrying 18,647 passengers.

The Washington MERRY-GO-ROUND

by DREW PEARSON & ROBERT ALLEN

Washington, D. C.

WON'T BE LONG NOW

Macon Reed, ex-Washington newsman, now a private in the army, has this to say about the new military machines which Uncle Sam is so swiftly whipping into shape:

"How is it to be in the army? There is a breath-taking exhilaration in swinging across a parade ground and seeing and feeling the other columns moving in the effortless, smooth, free march step of the American army—marching, marching, marching to heaven knows where. At such a moment, and only at such a moment, one gets a flash perception of the true strength of America, a boundless sweep of irresistible power—and I chuckle to myself and think 'What is everybody in Washington in such a fret and worry about?' Mandalay? Lashio? Trifles, boys, mere trifles. We heard the news of their fall with a yawn and got on with our work. Just wait till we get started. It won't be long now!"

WHAT HAPPENS AFTER THE WAR?

At six one morning, Henry Wallace woke up and began thinking about the speech he was going to make in New York. Ideas kept tumbling into his mind. Quietly, so as not to disturb Mrs. Wallace, he reached for the dictaphone and began speaking into it.

He dictated to the length of one cylinder, Mrs. Wallace still slept.

Next morning, he woke again at six, and did the same thing. On the third morning, he woke at 3:30. This time, he dictated the remainder of the speech, which ran to 3,000 words. Mrs. Wallace slept on.

The vice president still had two weeks to spare before the speaking engagement, but the thoughts had been simmering in his mind, and he wanted to get them down. He wanted to say—not in words hurriedly thrown together on the way to New York—what he felt about fighting the war to a finish, then making a peace that will stick.

People's Revolution.

The general applause to that speech is still reverberating in Washington. Because it was one of the most important speeches of the war. Titled, "The Price of Free World Victory," it was a forecast of world freedom after victory.

Wallace has turned out more words than any other member of the Roosevelt family, including the President. But none of his words have been more significant than this speech before the Free World association in which he said: "Everywhere the common people are on the march."

It included words of dire warning to Hitler, and also words full of meaning to the future of imperialists, such as: "No nation will have the God-given right to exploit other nations" . . . "The march of freedom of the past 150 years has been a long-drawn-out people's revolution."

But especially significant were the words: "Those who write the peace must think of the whole world. There can be no privileged peoples."

ENEMY ALIENS

Some significant things are going on behind-the-scenes in the justice department. With the savageness of a commando attack, Attorney General Biddle has now launched an offensive against all enemy agents in the U. S. A., has given the green light to Big G-Man Hoover to move wherever he wants.

This came after Biddle had been prodded by the White House for dawdling. Now, however, he has gathered large dossiers of sensational and incontestable evidence, and it looks as if several U. S. Fascists would end up behind the bars.

Biggest problem Biddle now faces is German and Italian nationals along the Atlantic seaboard. Army brasshats have been demanding that everyone born in Germany or Italy and still unnaturalized be moved west of the Allegheny mountains. However, this would mean a mass trek numbering perhaps a million. And along the Pacific coast, even the movement of 100,000 Japanese proved a terrific headache.

Therefore Biddle is working on the policy of picking out the dangerous groups among Germans and Italians, but leaving those whose loyalty seems OK. Many of them are oldsters who left Europe before the days of dictators. Many even have sons in the U. S. army. However, the job of sorting the loyal from the disloyal is going to be one of the toughest jobs the justice department ever faced.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

U. S. farmers are doing so well that government credit agencies report taking in more money in mortgage payments than they are lending out. Also, many farmers are building up reserve funds against debts in the post-war period.

The marine corps has quietly abandoned its high-powered drive to recruit star athletes. Reason: Many of them didn't measure up to the high physical standards required of marines; had flat feet, bad knees, enlarged hearts.

Sportlight

by GRANTLAND RICE

NANA WNU SERVICE

THIS 1942 season has already opened a new war between umpires, managers and ball players—especially in the National league.

You can gamble that the umpires are right 95 per cent of the time.

Grantland Rice

Here's one set reason: No man sitting on the bench, and this includes Leo Durocher and Frank Frisch, is in position to call a pitched ball within a foot of where it travels. Their angle of vision is all out of gear and focus.

In our wondering career we have watched the making of over 3,000,000 feet of sports pictures, to discover how much the right and wrong angles meant. This goes for a ball game, a horse race, and a stance in golf. It goes for any game. If the camera is set at the wrong angle, only by a few feet, the picture will tell an untrue story. The same is true of the human eye. Or the inhuman eye.

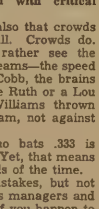
At a race track, if you are not dead set on the finish line you can easily disagree by a half length or even a length with the testimony of the camera which is aimed directly at the wire. Every horseman knows that.

Same in Baseball

Trained umpires are supposed to be in the correct spots for a correct decision. They can make mistakes, being only human.

Managers and ball players on the bench are not in the right spot to call any decision correctly. If the bench were the right place, then umpires would be sitting on the bench and not standing around on the ball field.

Using two examples, Messrs. Durocher and Frisch know this. They may be many things, but they are not dumb. Most of the loudest squawkers would make poor umpires, even if parked in the proper places. These fiery fellows too often think ahead of themselves.



Leo Durocher

You'll find that most of the umpirical explosions are used largely in behalf of the old alibi. They are employed to cover up mistakes or defeats in connection with critical crowds.

There is a belief also that crowds like scrappy baseball. Crowds do. But crowds would rather see the battle between two teams—the speed and brains of a Ty Cobb, the brains and power of a Babe Ruth or a Lou Gehrig or a Ted Williams thrown against the other team, not against the umpires.

A ball player who bats .333 is above the average. Yet, that means he is a flop two-thirds of the time.

Umpires make mistakes, but not as many mistakes as managers and ball players make—if you happen to look at the daily box scores.

The greatest pitcher that ever lived—Walter Johnson, never had an argument with an umpire. He was concentrating on the main job—pitching—not on some umpire's decision. Among a few other pretty fair country pitchers in this respect I might include Christy Mathewson, Cy Young, Grover Cleveland Alexander, Ed Walsh, Mordecai Brown.

I've never seen a great pitcher who was an umpire fighter. No one is great enough to split his concentration—to look out first for the alibi.

The Ball Players Pick

Ball players know what can happen between June and October. They are not the best guessers in the world—but who is? In talking over the two big league campaigns with managers and veterans—we'll leave the younger fellows out—this is the way they figure the two races:

American League—The Yankees chased by the Red Sox and the Indians.

National League—Another red-hot all-summer stretch run between Dodgers and the Cardinals.

This was a majority vote, by a wide margin, from the dozen or more respected opinions sought.

No one expects Lou Boudreau's Indians to hold the dizzy pace they offered the league through the first few weeks. The material, minus Bobby Feller, isn't that good. But Boudreau has turned in a great job so far. So has Joe Cronin.

Yankees, Dodgers and Cardinals began the season with the better teams—much better teams. They were the headline entries.

I still think either Dodgers or Cardinals will meet the Yankees in the next World series—providing, of course, there is a next world series.

But through the remainder of the race it seems to me managers and ball players will show more common sense in concentrating their attack on rival teams, and not on umpires who are seldom responsible for the mistakes managers and ball players make.

Desert Warriors of U. S.

This series of pictures shows some of the training routine of coast artillery anti-aircraft units somewhere in the Mojave desert of California, with sidelights on the daily lives of our boys as they prepare to meet all comers on better than even terms.

Picture Parade

Leaving their base camp, this anti-aircraft regiment (top) pulls out across the desert to the anti-aircraft firing range. Lower photo shows the soldiers, after a rigorous day of drilling in the windswept 100-degree temperature of the desert, filing past the kitchen for the evening meal.

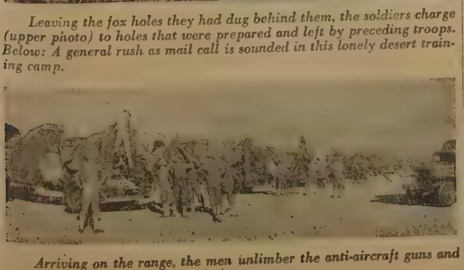
Private Lloyd Lammers of Fort Worth, Tex., uses his mess kit to dig a fox hole in the shale and sand.

Private Ben Haddock of San Diego, Calif., tucks himself neatly in his foxhole to read a letter from the girl friend. Right: PFC Roy Falls all of 5 feet tall, trys to convince Pvt. Maurice Whaley, 6 ft. 4, that all men are created equal.

Leaving the fox holes they had dug behind them, the soldiers charge (upper photo) to holes that were prepared and left by preceding troops. Below: A general rush as mail call is sounded in this lonely desert training camp.



Arriving on the range, the men unlimber the anti-aircraft guns and prepare to set them up for the day's maneuver.

Farm Acreage Yield Increase Is Needed

Conservation of Soil Must Still Be Practiced

Greater emphasis on increasing yields to the acre to meet wartime production goals is urged by the wartime committee on conservation at the New York state college of agriculture.

This is recommended in place of expanding tilled land acreage "which should be the last resort," the committee said. Other recommendations include:

Any necessary expansion of acreage for clean-tilled crops should be first on land least subject to soil and water losses.

All agricultural leaders and workers should encourage and help farmers to plant all sloping land on the contour.

Greater use should be made of existing demonstration farms in connection with small community meetings and to show results of various crop practices.

Efforts should be made to have all new sloping orchards and vineyards planted on the contour.

A rough, trashy tillage type of cultivation should be encouraged in sod orchards which will be broken as a source of nitrogen.

Farmers should be encouraged to practice conservation to prevent a recurrence of the tremendous waste of soil resources that occurred in World War I.

The committee making these recommendations consists of agronomists, economists, pomologists, agricultural engineers, and soil conservationists at the college.

AGRICULTURE IN INDUSTRY

By FLORENCE C. WEED

(This is one of a series of articles showing how farm products are finding an important market in industry.)

Sugar Beets

Napoleon might be called the father of the sugar beet industry since he fostered the research by which chemists learned how to extract sugar from beets. In our western states, it is an important cash crop, valued at 63 million dollars annually.

The chief product is refined beet sugar which competes with cane sugar. This infant beet sugar industry has received some government protection through the Sugar Act of 1937 which requires that 23 per cent of our national requirement of sugar shall be the beet sugar variety.

By-products of the industry have not been widely developed. Wet beet pulp from the factories is converted into animal feed and the green beet tops are fed to livestock.

Beet molasses is not palatable as cane molasses is, so it is subjected to the "Steffen process" which recovers a great part of the sugar with the aid of finely ground lime. Molasses which has not been treated, is sold for cattle feed and for the manufacture of yeast and alcohol. Experiments are soon to be made to find ways of utilizing beet pulp as a base in fermentation industries and as a source of pectin and some other acids.

The main beet-producing states in order of their importance are Colorado, California, Nebraska, Michigan, Utah, Wyoming and Montana. Midwest states which have some beet-growing sections are Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa and North and South Dakota.

About 80 factories are being operated to produce the 1,500,000 tons of beet sugar used in this country.

Roof Laying Faults

Faults in laying metal roofs and use of improper paints to protect them after being laid will cause trouble or unnecessary expense later on farm buildings.

Many metal roofs on farm buildings are laid over slats. G. R. Shier, specialist in agricultural engineering, Ohio State university, says that only corrugated metal has enough stiffness to be laid over slats without courting trouble. Other metal roofing should be placed over solid sheathing.

All types of metal roofing should be nailed every eight inches along the side lap even when the spacing of the sheets makes it necessary to insert short strips to provide places for nailing. It is almost impossible to lay metal roofs which will not leak on nearly flat-topped sheds attached to barns.

Tree Tobacco Insecticide

The possibility that tree tobacco, now a worthless weed in the arid sections of Mexico and southwestern United States, may become a valuable cash crop is seen by United States scientists who have extracted from it anabasine, a valuable insecticide. The product was not discovered in the tree-tobacco plant until 1935, although it had been produced synthetically and found in an Asiatic plant six years earlier than the first test in the U. S.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

Consolidated Features—WNU Features.

NEW YORK.—A veteran watchman of sea lanes assumes command of the vast South Pacific area for the Allied Nations, just at a time when Japan's southward lunge makes transport possibly the crucial issue of the Pacific war.

Admiral Ghormley 'Never Leaves a Loose End About'

For his success in keeping men and goods moving across the Atlantic in the World war, Vice Admiral Robert Lee Ghormley was rewarded with the Distinguished Service medal.

At 58, he takes on a far-flung area of land and sea, including many vital bases, fighting not only for sea-way for the U.S.A. but for New Zealand, Australia and the Free French. His command covers all land, sea and air forces of the four nations. He will be responsible to Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, commander in chief of the United States Pacific fleet.

Admiral Ghormley is known to navy officers as "thoroughly dependable," rather than picturesque or showy. One of his shipmates of the first World war, recently said to this writer:

"He is a good tactician, and a hard plugger, with a patient mastery of detail. He's always wide awake and if he were a hockey player he'd be a crack goal keeper. He had a tough, lonesome job, guarding overseas transport in the first World war, and carried it through perfectly, with big results and little glory. He keeps his mind strictly on his work."

Admiral Ghormley was born in Portland, Ore., and took an academic degree at the University of Idaho. He was graduated from Annapolis in 1906. He commanded the Nicaraguan naval operations and his decorations include the Nicaraguan Campaign badge and the Victory medal.

He was made assistant chief of naval operations in 1936 and held that post until relieved of this duty on August 9, 1940, when he was sent to London as a special naval observer for the American embassy. On April 22, 1942, he was ordered to Auckland to organize joint naval operations with New Zealand. He became a vice admiral on September 20, 1941.

INDUSTRY and government, it would appear, have been keen competitors for the services of Mrs. Anna Rosenberg. Industry, for the moment, is in the lead, paying her $22,500 a year, while the government gets a cut of only $13,500 in her hectic working year. She keeps them both at arm's length and attends to the most deserving.

Dexterously She Juggles Federal And Private Jobs

She weighs in at 112 pounds, deskside. She comes through a hard working day with all the frills and ruffles of her exiguous person still fresh and in place.

The house appropriations committee lights up Mrs. Rosenberg's manifold activities and jobs in exploring doubles in federal jobs, along with private employment. As regional director for the social security board, she receives $7,500 a year and her salary as a consultant on the staff of Nelson Rockefeller, coordinator of American affairs, nets her $6,000 a year.

In 1914, the girl from Budapest, here with her parents at the age of 14, settled a strike. In the Wadleigh high school, which she attended, students struck against compulsory military training. She called a student meeting and made an impassioned speech which ended the strike and got her considerable newspaper attention. She was Anna Lederer then. When we entered the war, she left high school to sell Liberty bonds and Thrift stamps. In 1919, she married Julius Rosenberg, now a rug merchant.

Even then she was plagued by demands for her services. She studied practical politics with Belle Moskowitz, political ally and mentor of Alfred E. Smith. This association led to fund-raising and organizing work for philanthropies, widening into a broad field of trouble-shooting in industrial and social welfare issues.

"Yes, Phil, John was on the phone a few minutes ago and he said you were a so-and-so. He is, too? Listen, I'll get up a nice little dinner and get you two together."

That is a fair sample of her work-a-day telephone talk. She has worked almost entirely in the no-man's land between the warring forces of industry and labor, and between one or both and government. She is a wisp of a woman, a five-foot three brunette to give exact specifications, always nicely tailored, with a penchant for plenty of feminine fixings.

Walter Winchell

Hitler's Scheme

From indisputable diplomatic sources your reporter learns that the Nazis hope to win, with their fifth and sixth columns, what they could not win on the battlefields. If the Russian campaign fails, Hitler is to be deposed—and the German General Staff will pose as the savior of the world from Bolshevism. There is only one rub—Hitler is planning it all to save himself from the allied armies and the armies of Germany.

The only thing Hitler has to offer the civilized world is his death. The only people more double crossed than the conquered are the appeasers. The only people more brutally treated than captured civilians are the German industrialists, who gave Hitler his first money.

Hitler believes he can bribe American business men with their own bank deposits and the American people with the deeds to their own homes. The American answer will be with American scrap-iron—not on Nazi scraps of paper. Hitler's offer will be seventh heaven for the sixth column. But American business will not be fooled by Hitler's profits in dollars. The United States Constitution has paid too many dividends in peace and dignity. MacArthur, Stilwell, O'Hare, Wheless and Bulkeley are building a firm foundation for peace—with a wall for Hitler's back.

Scrambled Eggs:

The picture of wrecked Rotterdam, in the Times mag, is something the United Nations must remember to bring to the treaty table. It's a convicter. An unarmed town, destroyed to show how tough the Nazzys are. And a good argument for a deal that will keep them from ever getting tough again . . . Washington correspondents have a phrase for colleagues who will square social obligations by plugging their hosts' angle in their sheets: "They can be bought for a canape."

Lots of Congressmen would be jumpier than they already are if they knew their letters were being shown around. These are the soreheads who are being goody-goody in public but as Bund-loving as ever in private. It's the old racket of trading their faces for a few votes . . . It's going to be very interesting to see what the dailies, that have been warning there won't be any elections, will do about sponsoring candidates. They have a choice of admitting they have been lying or skipping all mention of the balloting. Which isn't a very smart limb to get yourself out on, Bud.

Archibald MacLeish, in an interview, discussed his hecklers, who have grown since he took over the Office of Facts and Figures. "The criticism most often expressed against me," he said, "is the fact that I am a poet. Not that I am a bad poet. Simply to call a man a poet is, apparently, to throw a bad egg at him" . . . He might have been answering a small-timer, who columned a crud about winning the war with poetry, "sock 'em with a sonnet." That's the crackerbarrel style of satire, the easiest kind to write. It appeals to the dopes by ridiculing education — very small time.

An editorial writer keeps repeating that we should win the war as quickly as possible, because peace is better than war . . . Do you have to have brains to figure that out? . . . How come nobody ever gives medals to critics for going to so many dull shows all season? This one was so dull both the Critics Circle and Pulitzer Committee agreed no show was worth a prize . . . This gives you an idea how temporary fame is. If DiMaggio doesn't get a hit one day—they boo him . . . Whatever happened to those people who said they had proof Hitler was dead? . . . Here's one to make you dizzier: "Blithe Spirit," the play, is barred from Army camps. Too risgay, they said . . . So what happens? . . . "Blithe Spirit" gives a performance for—you'd never guess . . . West Pointers!

Italy has celebrated the sixth anniversary of its empire—which has ceased to exist. A lost people clinging to a lost dream . . . It takes great men to look big in defeat. Willkie, who missed the Presidency, and O'Dwyer, who ran second for mayor, are still good men for those offices . . . Did you hear why that New Yorker writer was rejected for military service? The doctors found out he had a brain murmur.

Sad to read about Graham McNamee's death. He pioneered a lot of things on the networks. He was the first to get all het up about his subject. He had the kind of pipes that could convey excitement, as too many of his mockers haven't. He also was one of the few laughing m. c.'s who got away with it. The usual giggling feeder is an ear torturer. The straight man who laughed at the act's sallies never hit the big time. He was a sensation at Loew's Wichita but never played the Palace.

Gems of Thought

IF THERE be a man that labors not, or a woman who does not occupy herself with spinning, some one in the empire will suffer with hunger or cold.—Chinese Proverb.

I believe in democracy because it releases the energies of every human being.—Woodrow Wilson.

In this broad world of ours,
Amid the measureless grossness and the slag,
Enclosed and safe within its central heart,
Nestles the seed perfection.
—WALT WHITMAN.

No good Book, or good thing of any sort, shows its best face at first.—Carlyle.

All This, We Find, Was According to Orders

Out for a drive in her pony-cart, an elderly lady managed to get involved in some army maneuvers. As she approached a bridge a sentry stopped her.

"Sorry, madam," he said; "you can't cross this bridge. It's just been destroyed."

The old lady peered at it through her spectacles.

"It looks all right to me," she murmured. Then, as another soldier came along, she asked:

"Excuse me, but can you tell me what's wrong with this bridge?"

The soldier shook his head.

"Don't ask me, lady," he replied; "I've been dead two days."

Impressible Man

Every man, however obscure, however far removed from the general recognition, is one of a group of men impressible for good, and impressible for evil, and it is in the nature of things that he can not really improve himself without in some degree improving other men. —Charles Dickens.

We don't want to stop your paper. What do you want us to do?

If the battles at the front could be won half as easy as they are in the daily paper headlines, we would really be getting along with this war.

One of the very best ways in the world to help win this war is for everybody to pay what they owe, just as soon as they can, and stay out of debt for the duration.

There is some talk of an extra session of the Alabama Legislature in the Fall to relieve the school teachers; but we don't hear any mention of relief for our Old-Age Pension friends. How come?

There is no such thing as a "necessary evil." Everything as originally created is Infinitely good. Man, when he interferes with Nature, through error creates what we call "evil.' Then in order to excuse his error, or palliate his conscience, he calls it "necessary evil" and lets it go at that.

ATTICUS SAYS HE DON'T KNOW—

Our good friend Mark Tucker, editor of the Chilton County News and lately campaign manager for Jim Folsom for Governor, is worried about something In his issue of the paper this week Mark writes:

"Atticus Mullin is the best political analyst in the State and we want him to tell us how it was that, according to the State Democratic Executive Committee's 'count?' approximately 50,000 more votes were cast for Governor in the May 5, primary than for Lieutenant Governor and the other State offices."

In the first place we make a bow for Mark's extravagant praise of our analytical ability. It is undeserved. In the second place we dont know why the Governor's race attracted so many more voters than other races, but we have an idea. The Governor's race was the only one where there was any heat turned on. Every four years there are more votes for Governor than for any other State office. It is natural. Why there were more in proportion this year than in other years we don't know.—Atticus Mullin's Passing Throng, In Montgomery Advertiser.

Following is the vote for candidates for Governor, Lieutenant Governor and Commissioner of Agriculture in the May 5th Primary, as certified by a sub committee of the State Democratic Executive Committee, to Secretary of State, John Brandon:

For Governor:—Broyles, 2,157; Carwile, 4,745; Folsom, 73,306; Sherlock, 53,448; Sparks, 145,798. A total vote of 279,254.

For Lieutenant Governor:—Brooks, 21,774; Ellis, 107,835; Inzer, 89,911; Pruett, 19,196. A total vote of 238,716. 40,538 votes less than that given the candidates for Governor.

For Commissioner of Agriculture and Industries:—Guy, 73,558; Pool, 155,524. A total vote of 229,082. 50,172 fewer votes than that cast for candidates for Governor.

The campaigns for Lieutenant Governor and Commissioner of Agriculture and Industries, were as spirited, and fought just as hard as that for the Governorship.

Do your own thinking. Like Atticus, we don't know.

WILL THERE BE PEACE AFTER WAR?

A peace predicated on Capitolism would mean the enslavement of millions on millions of people throughout the whole world by a mere handful of monied men located in the stratgetic money capitols of the world, who, for unnumbered generations to come, would dictate all industrial, commercial and social activities. We must not forget that just a few years ago right here in this God blessed land of plenty, where we had more than enough for everybody, that millions of people were constantly on the verge of starvation because Capitolism had prevented an equitable distribution of the necessities and luxuries of life.

We must also not forget that soon there will be a political campaign started for president of the United States and that there will be at least one, maybe two candidates who will be backed to the limit by the super-capitolists of the world. They will be clothed in "sheep's clothing," but they will call it "Democracy," in order to deceive the unwary.

Any peace plan which does not only carry but insure financial economic freedom for all the peoples of the earth, will not be a peace at all, but will be only another armistice. The big question to be settled at the next peace conference will not be political pholosophies and ideologies, but the question will be stripped of all the diplomatic frills and subterfuges, and will be presented in plain but unmistakable language: Will the Have-Nots be willing to carry the colossal load placed upon their economic backs by the Haves?

Canners Are Warned Against Saccharin

A warning to home-makers against the use of saccharin as a substitute for sugar in canning and preserving fruits has been issued by W. D. Salmon, nutritionist of the Alabama Experiment Station.

Saccharin, a white crystalline derivative of coal tar, is 300 times as sweet as sugar, but it is not a carbohydrate and possesses no food value, and should not be used except by doctor's prescription.

The Experiment Station nutritionist also pointed out that most state food laws prohibit use of saccharin in food products because it is considered unsafe for general use.

SUPREME COURT OF ALABAMA

An able, active, vigorous and experienced lawyer, endorsed by substantially all the lawyers of Jefferson County, including John M. Breckenridge and Menza B. Grace, who, as candidates for this office in the May 5th primary, polled more than 61,000 votes.

His opponent, Judge Bouldin, will be in his 83rd year before the next term expires—much older now than the oldest Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, and is eligible to retire now on an ample retirement pay. A majority of the voters of Alabama recently voted to retire Judge Bouldin.

Elect Drennen and keep seven able, active members on our Supreme Court.

Refreshments for the Class of '42!
(See Recipes Below.)

Commencement Time

There's a last-minute flurry of hair brushing and straightening of ties as Jane and Billy get ready for their graduation exercises. Yes, this is really the year the children are getting through with school. It's hard to believe, isn't it? It seems like just yesterday that they started school!

Your role is that of sitting back and beaming at their accomplishments, but, just as important, providing the children with a party and refreshments after commencement.

Simplest way of taking care of refreshments is setting up a table in the porch or dining room. Then fill this with assorted breads and cold cuts, add a few relishes for good measure, and you have the makings of a successful party. The informality of this setting will please the children, and at the same time relieve you of extra serving. Let the children help themselves and take their own time about it, for there will be plenty of conversation to go with refreshment time.

Provide white, whole wheat and rye bread so there will be variety from which to choose. It's smart to have this already sliced for the youngsters and it looks better on the table.

The meat platter provides an attractive assortment of sandwich filler. Arrange in clockwise fashion, the following: chicken pattie, cooked tongue, meat loaf and liverwurst. You can let the imagination of your guests run freely with making their own sandwiches, but in case they run out of ideas, you might suggest some of these:

Chicken pattie and boiled ham with sweet pickle relish and lettuce on whole wheat bread.

Meat loaf with tomato ketchup on white bread.

Liverwurst and chicken loaf on whole wheat bread.

Tongue and sliced cucumbers with horseradish and mustard on rye bread.

Balance the sandwich spread with a salad of some kind. If the youngsters are boys, they will go for slices of tomato on lettuce. For girls or a mixed group, a molded fruit salad will be tops:

Pineapple Carrot Salad Ring.
(Serves 6 to 8)

1 package lemon gelatin
1 cup water
1 cup pineapple juice
1 cup sliced pineapple
4 to 5 grated carrots (raw)
Lettuce or endive
Mayonnaise or french dressing

Heat water and pour over gelatin. Add cold pineapple juice and set aside to cool. Add grated carrot and pineapple cut in tidbits. Place in individual molds or a large ring mold which has been rinsed in cold water. Let jell, then turn out on a bed of crisp lettuce or endive, and serve with dressing. If a large mold is used, the outside may be garnished with fruit such as sliced oranges, pineapple, and apricots.

Platter of Assorted Cold Cuts
Assorted Bread *Fruit Dreams
*Honey Lemonade
*Chocolate Covered Sugarless Cake
*Recipes Given

No party is complete without confections of some kind because there are moments when you actually want to nibble on something sweet. Here is a recipe featuring dried fruits noted for their high sugar content. They're easy to fix and full of taste.

Fruit Dreams.
(Makes 60 squares)

1 14-ounce package pitted dates
¼ pound nutmeats
¼ pound figs
¼ pound apricots
1 teaspoon grated orange rind
1 tablespoon orange juice

Put dates, nutmeats, figs and apricots through the meat grinder. Knead orange rind and juice into the mixture. Roll with a rolling pin into a square sheet ¼ inch thick. Cut in squares and dip into powdered sugar.

If your sugar ration does not extend to making cool drinks with sugar, here is a lemonade made with honey. To make a really "partified" drink, add a scoop of lemon, orange, raspberry or pineapple sherbet for the lemonade. Use carbonated water instead of plain and garnish with berries or fresh cherries.

Honey Lemonade.
(Makes 1 serving)

1 lemon
1 to 3 tablespoons honey
1 cup water

Extract the juice from the lemon and add the honey. To this add cold water and ice to chill. Serve this in individual glasses with a slice of lemon on the rim of each glass. Or, if you prefer using a punch bowl, set the drink in that (increasing the recipe to take care of as many people as you are having), and let blobs of sherbet float on top of the lemonade.

Cake 'n' ice cream have high rating among the younger set, so for this occasion I would suggest the following cake:

Chocolate Covered Sugarless Cake.

2¼ cups sifted cake flour
2¼ teaspoons double-acting baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup butter or other shortening
2 teaspoons grated orange rind
1 cup light corn syrup
2 eggs, unbeaten
½ cup milk
1½ teaspoons vanilla

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt and sift together three times. Cream shortening with orange rind; add syrup gradually, beating well after each addition. Add ¼ of the flour and beat until smooth and well blended. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each. Add remaining flour in thirds, alternately with milk in halves, beating well after each addition. For best results, beat cake very well after at each stage of mixing. Add vanilla. Bake in two greased 8-inch pans in a moderate (375-degree) oven 30 minutes or until done. Cover with:

Chocolate Chip Frosting.

Place cake layers on a baking sheet, having one layer top side down. Cover tops with semi-sweet chocolate chips, using 2 packages. Heat in a moderate (350-degree) oven 6 minutes or until chips are just softened. (The cake may be frosted while warm. Heat only 3 minutes.) Remove from oven. Spread softened chips over bottom layer, letting chocolate run down sides. Arrange top layer and spread as before. Then spread sides evenly.

Have you a particular household or cooking problem on which you would like expert advice? Write to Miss Lynn Chambers at Western Newspaper Union, 210 South Desplaines Street, Chicago, Illinois, explaining your problem fully to her. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for your reply.

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Lynn Says:

Did you know that it is perfectly proper to wash the American Flag? Of course, you know it is disrespectful to display a badly soiled one, but perhaps you were a bit worried about trying to wash it.

A recent survey made by professional laundries reveals that flags made of woolen material should be washed and rinsed as other woolens: squeeze the flag through rich suds whipped up with a mild soap and warm, softened water of not more than 100 degrees Fahrenheit. Rinse in two or three changes of lukewarm, soft water.

Cotton flags should be rubbed lightly, but only lukewarm soft water should be used for the suds. Both wool and cotton flags should be air-dried.

Textile experts at professional laundries also point out that flags raised outdoors naturally deteriorate more quickly than those displayed indoors. If a flag launders well, its service period is increased with frequent washing.

PARAMOUNT'S "Wake Island" ran into unexpected trouble the other day. Some 150 Filipinos, engaged to portray invading Nipponese troops, were to charge a machine gun nest manned by Robert Preston and William Bendix. "Half of you fall dead," they were told. When the smoke cleared all 150 were stretched corpse-like on the ground. The scene was shot again, after the same instructions were given. Same result. They'd play Japanese soldiers only if they could play dead ones, so Director John Farrow had to give in.

Five years ago Tim Whelan, of RKO Radio, saw a Spanish picture in Seville, and began looking for a dark-eyed young actress who appeared in it. He finally found her; she's Mapy Cortes, of Puerto Rico, and will appear in an important role in his new musical.

Marguerite Chapman was a member of the Navy Blues Sextette before Columbia upped her into the big time last January. Now another member of it, Lorraine Gettman, steps out. Re-christened Leslie Brooks, she's been given a long-term contract by the company, as the result of her outstanding work in a supporting role in "Talk of the Town," co-starring Jean Arthur, Cary Grant and Ronald Colman.

The route that led Jack Trent into the movies is a curious one. Formerly a Montana schoolteacher, he became Shirley Temple's bodyguard, and wound up as an actor; you'll see him in "Silver Queen," the 1870 drama starring Priscilla Lane and George Brent.

No one has viewed C. B. DeMille's "Reap the Wild Wind" with more interest than did Rear Admiral William D. Leahy, U. S. ambassador to France. The Technicolor sea saga, starring Ray Milland, John Wayne and Paulette Goddard, deals with America's fight to wipe out a nest of pirate wreckers in the Florida keys years ago. Leahy wrote DeMille that he "got the last of those wreckers" back in the year 1905.

Ransom Sherman finally has discovered the haunt where Dix Davis, 13-year-old who plays "Stanley," the bellhop, spends the half hour before broadcast time. It's the Shirley Temple studio, across the hall—he just stands there and worships from afar.

Ann Miller's been saying that she was 18 ever since she was 12. Tall for her age, she did it then to keep the prize—two weeks' work as a stage attraction—at the Orpheum theater. At 14 she danced—and fibbed—her way into a night club engagement in San Francisco. That year RKO signed her up, then Columbia borrowed her; at 16, and still saying she was 18—she landed on Broadway. RKO again, Columbia again — then Paramount, for "True to the Army." On April 12 of this year she celebrated her 19th birthday, on the "Priorities of 1942" set.

Now that the "Are You a Missing Heir" radio program has restored its millionth dollar to rightful legatees, you'd think the program executives would sit back and relax, but —there are still 77 million unclaimed dollars buried in probate court records as a goal for the program to shoot at.

ODDS AND ENDS—The goofy soundman who used to heckle Jack Benny on the Sunday night broadcasts has joined the army air corps . . . Ed Murrow and William L. Shirer, news commentators, first met at a Paris cafe . . . Now that Ronald Colman has finished "The Talk of the Town" he can shave, for the first time in months . . . Rosalind Russell's been signed to make "Stand By to Die" for RKO—a story of a woman flier working for the government in Japanese-held islands of the Pacific . . . Madeleine Carroll reserved 14 front row seats for her army and navy boy escorts at her latest broadcast in New York.

Twins Painting

The Leibovitz sisters of Philadelphia, identical twins and both artists, sometimes produce "joint pictures," says Collier's. Freda, the right-handed twin, paints one side of the canvas while Ida, who is left-handed, does the other side. When the painting is finished, it appears, even to experts, to be the work of a single artist.

PREPAREDNESS
by the AMERICAN RED CROSS

When disaster strikes, the Red Cross is first in and last out.

VOLUNTEER Special Services of the American Red Cross have been geared to meet war requirements and war priorities.

Although a shortage of materials has cut down production work, women who have sewed and knitted for the Red Cross will be glad to know that, under an agreement with the War Production board, a certain amount of wool and yard goods will be available for Red Cross workers, according to Mrs. Dwight Davis, national director of this Red Cross program.

The Red Cross Motor corps has been active since the early days of the First World war, but since last year its work has tripled. Many of the 6,576 members, on account of tire priorities, are restricting the personal use of their cars so that their motor corps work may be continued. Motor corps volunteers drive the ambulances which provide transportation for hospitals and Red Cross chapters, and hold themselves ready for service in any kind of emergency. Besides their basic training in motor mechanics and advanced first aid, many members are now studying map reading, stretcher drills, and convoy and ambulance blackout driving in co-operation with their local police and fire departments.

A new canteen aide corps has recently been formed in preparation for wartime emergencies, when feeding of large groups of people such as evacuees or disaster victims may have to be hastily organized.

The other general wartime volunteer services of the Red Cross include home service to the families of the men in the forces, the hospital and recreation corps which brings cheer to the sick and wounded, and the staff assistance corps, which provides volunteers for all kinds of office work in hospitals, clinics and Red Cross chapter and to man information desks and register disaster victims.

The problem of what to send a service man has been solved by the men themselves. Tobacco tops the list of gifts service men prefer from the folks back home, according to numerous surveys. If you have a friend or relative in the armed forces—Army, Navy, Marines, or Coast Guard—who smokes a pipe, or rolls-his-own, a pound of his favorite tobacco is very much in order. A big favorite with many service men is Prince Albert, the world's largest-selling smoking tobacco. Local dealers now are featuring Prince Albert in the pound can for the men in the service.—Adv.

ANOTHER STATEMENT BY JUDGE VIRGIL BOULDIN

First, I express my deep appreciation for your loyal support in giving me a plurality in the recent primary of 14,048, and a lead in 51 of the 67 counties in the State.

Two reasons are presented against my reelection to the Supreme Court of Alabama: First, my age, and second, that the industrial section of the state should have more representation on the Court.

As to age, Mr. Drennen is 67 years of age. His age has bearing upon the issue being advanced in that he would reach retirement age after serving less than 3 years, though he would not be eligible for retirement pay for lack of the requisite term of service. I am 75 years of age, am in the best of health, and have never missed a day from my duties on the Court by reason of illness.

My long experience on the Court has, I respectfully submit, better qualified me to serve you as a judge than when I first became a member of the Court. Under such circumstances I would not feel justified in retiring and thus causing the people of the State to pay two salaries where only one is necessary. No justice of the Supreme Court of the United States has taken advantage of the Federal retirement Act at my age or earlier.

As to the second reason. Mr. Justice Foster, appointed by Governor Graves, (and now an Associate Justice) is a resident of Jefferson County. I share with the entire State intense pride in the growth and prosperity of the Great industrial district of Alabama.

"Equal Justice Under Law" is the great end of the judiciary. To this end I am giving my best and, if reelected, will continue so to do.

This war belongs to all of us—to fight, to finance, to finish! As the President has said: "We are all in it—all the way. Every man, woman, and child is a partner in the most tremendous undertaking of our American history." Your part is clear—to put every dime and dollar you can possibly spare into uniform—to buy U. S. Savings Bonds and Stamps regularly—so that our boys will have the guns and planes and tanks they need to put the enemy on the run. Take part of your change in U. S. Turn Stamps into Bonds as fast as you can, that is the American way—the volunteer way—to preserve our freedom and safeguard your home, your family, and your future. Remember that you can start buying U. S. Savings Bonds for as low as $18.75 (for the $25.00 Bond) and Savings Stamps for as little as 10 cents.

TALKING BONDS AND STAMP SALES ORDER OF THE DAY

We had a [illegible] City Hall [illegible] Every one of our [illegible] represented [illegible] our people [illegible] 10 per cent [illegible] of business in our county agreed that no business of any kind will be transacted from 9 o'clock to 9:30 o'clock A. M., and everybody will talk the sale of bonds and stamps We hope that every business in the County and every kind of work will stop and give thirty minutes to this important drive

Our Government has estimated that if we will loan 10 per cent of our income that it will be sufficient to pay the expenses of this War. It seems to me that it will be a lot better for the people to loan the Government 10 per cent of their income with interest than to have to be taxed to pay the expenses of this war Our Government is taking the young men of this country and putting them on the battle field to defend our rights and liberties and the small amount that we are asked to loan the government is nothing compared to what we are expecting and what we are asking our boys to do, and I am sure there is not a man or woman in Chilton County that want these boys put on the battle front without the very best equipment of the implements of war, and if we do not help in this matter voluntarily, I feel like we would all want the government to tax us to get the money to take care of these boys.

Ask yourselves the question, "Have I done all that I can to help win this war?" None of us expect the United States to lose the war and I hate to even think of us being defeated, but what do you think would be the result if we were defeated?

Every child in Chilton County has an opportunity to help in this great struggle, they can buy stamps from ten cents up. I repeat, if every individual will do their part there will be no special burden on anybody.

Hoping for the very best of success I am

Respectfully,
L. H. REYNOLDS,
Executive Chairman

We May Soon Be Riding On Alabama Pine Rosin Tires

The gum of the southern pine can be converted into synthetic rubber of high quality—suitable for automobile tires and retreading of worn natural rubber casings—for less than 32 cents a pound, says Gustave Webber, a Miami industrial chemist.

The chemist, who also is an architect and a mechanical and electrical engineer, said that a plant capable of producing 9 to 12 tons of synthetic rubber latex—isoprene—every 24 hrs., could be erected within 90 days at a cost of only $200,000, and suggested that five such plants be erected in the naval stores areas of the south—Georgia, Alabama, North Florida, South Carolina and perhaps Louisana and Texas.

"I have offered my entire process and formula, the result of years of research, to the Federal government for the duration of the emergency, without compensation to me," he told the United Press. "I ask only that the rights be returned to me when the war is over."

All-Day Singing At Pleasant Hill

There will be an all-day singing at this place next Sunday, June 7th. We are expecting several outstanding composers and singers with us on that day. Come and bring your new books. All books will be used. Come in the morning and spend the day with us if possible for we cannot have and all-day singing in the afternoon. All singers and lovers of music are invited. Come let us sing praises unto the Lord together.

The Defense of American Freedom is our First Consideration

DEMOCRACY VS. PRIVATE ENTERPRISE

Dr. Ernest J. Ebberling, professor of economics at Vanderbilt, "let the cat out of the bag," at a Rotary luncheon in Birmingham last week when he told the Rotarians that he believed "that the preservation of the system of private enterprise is the real thing for which the United States is fighting."

That is exactly what the British Tories, want. But, judging by past history "private enterprise" as a dominating influence in government affairs has not always been in the interest of democratic principles—but have rather operated in the interest of the Special Privilege class, instead of the greatest good to the greatest number.

If Dr. Ebberling is correct in his belief, then the end of the war is a long way off. Uncontrolled activities of a gold-greedy few engaged in private enterprise produced World War No. 1. Failure to control the gold-greedy few engaged in private enterprise after the armistice, produced the war we are in now; and if control of government is placed back into the hands of uncontrolled private enterprise, after fighting ceases in the present war, it will be a long, long time bafore liberty, plenty, and peace returns to bless mankind, throughout the world.

Under Secretary of State Sumner T. Welles, in his Memorial Day speech at Washington is quoted as saying, "If this war is in fact a war for the liberation of peoples, it must assure the soverign quality of peoples throughout the world ... Our victory must bring in its train the liberation of all peoples."

Private enterprise alone, and uncontrolled, will not do this.

Civilization seems to be fast developing into a mass super-gullibility complex. Like the lady who refused to buy a cape jasamine for a nickle, because it was plebean, but paid a dime for a gardenia—if you get what we mean.

The two major activities that are now fast destroying the world's resources are all-out production, and all-out destruction of production.

By no sort of mathmatical calculation can one figure out that destruction faster than production is increasing the wealth of the world.

Money lying idle in the State Treasury is not doing anyone any good—not even the tax payers who placed it there

The strange noises you hear coming down from Birmingham is only the war-rent-hogs grunting.

SWEET GUM INDUSTRY

A few days ago the Journal called attention to the fact that collecting and selling sweet gum was becoming a paying industry in Southwest Alabama. The Clarke County Democrat brings this additional information on the subject:

"The Journal's report is correct. Many people in the counties named have gone into the production of storax, or sweet gum, on an extensive scale. Good samples of the gum sell locally for $1.25 a pound and some operators have orchards of several thousands of trees and do a gross annual business of two to three thousand dollars.

"Sweet gum has attained considerable value as timber in recent years but this applies chiefly to swamp timber, upland sweet gum having little value as timber. It is this upland gum which is being worked in the main and operators contend that with the present high price of storax it is more profitable to 'bleed' the trees than to sell them for timber, anyway."—Alabama Journal

AS HON. C. B. COX SEES THE POLITICAL SITUATION

To My Friends and Voters of Chilton County:

I feel that it would be right to let my friends know just how I look at our present political situation in Chilton County.

It is not neccessary for me to tell you that I was greatly pleased at the showing made by the Democrats in Chilton County over the showing made by the Republicans in the Primary on May 5th. I am unable to see just how the Republicans will be able to elect a man on their ticket this fall.

It is true that I have many friends, who have in the past voted the Republican ticket, they did this, many of them because their fathers and their grand fathers voted the Republican ticket, but in my judgement the time has come when Chilton County should be in the Democratic column with the rest of the Counties of the State, so that our influence can go out beyond the bounds of Chilton County. We can't hope to get much recognition from the Administration at Montgomery by the election of Republican officials up here and for the good of our County and the people of our county let us all go to the polls in November and vote the Democratic ticket.

FOLKS AND THINGS ABOUT TOWN

By BEN

We are flattered, or embarrased or something .... the other morning we were in a hurry and when driving out of the parking place behind the office we went just a little bit too far before stopping when we got to the highway. There was a beautiful young lady there, and she could hardly pass with us blocking her way, so she definitely told us that she did not wish to be picked up ....now lady, who ever you were, we absolutely were not trying to 'take you for a ride', we were merely stopping to prevent getting our block knocked off by some passing motorist when we drove onto the highway. Honest.

Bill Inzer is back ... Bill has been in Chicago for the past four weeks learning how to make and handle explosives. The way he talks about it, makes it sound mighty interesting, he's in love with his work He was telling us lots that happened while he was in Chicago ... you know, the regular routine, burlesque, sightseeing and everything. Course, we don't think that he told ALL, especially about the burlesque part of it. Bill said that he, along with the others, made up a pot and bought them a radio for their barracks—that was the first day they got there. The day they left they rolled high-dice for it .... Bill came home with a new radio.

You've heard about "Off again, on again," well that's Clyde Mims. Clyde had a mighty good proposition 'on the fire' and was seriously considering closing out his Grocery Store. So, Mr. Mims proceeds to advertise the fact that he would sell out all of his stock ... and what happens? Just about half the town comes to Clyde's store and demand that he "about face" and do some more serious considering and remain with his store .... So now Johnigan is onigin.

Marvin Ellison, from Camp Clabourne, La., was here for a few days this week-end: Marvin had so much to do and so many folks to see and what with all the courting he was behind on, and such a short time to do it all in, until he was just like the proverbable. "blind dog in a meat house,"—didn't know which way to go next. He's looking mighty well and from outward appearances the army agrees with him. Marvin told this one on himself. He was promoted not many days ago to Corporal. Now the first thing anybody does of course when they get a promotion is to celebrate. Marvin did. He got back to camp exactly thirty minutes late ... Now Marvin ain't a Corporal any more.

Dame Rumor has it that Luther Bean has been made Assistant Postmaster at the local postoffice ..... Luther has been there a long time and deserves the promotion, that is if 'the Dame' knows what she is talking about, and we wish him well and our heartiest congratulations.

We also hear that Jodie Connell is seriously ill at his home. We'er sorry. Joe, who is employed at the Union Banner is a good worker and a fine fellow. We wish for Joe a quick recovery.

Two Hurt In Auto Accident At Refuge

Two fine services were held here Sunday and Sunday night. Rather large crowds attending both services The pastor, Rev. M. Lockhart delivered a wonderful sermon Sunday night.

An accident occured here Sunday morning when cars driven by Hubert Mims and John Cagle were in collision Milford Mims and Eugene Mims brothers of the driver of one of the cars were badly hurt. We hope for them a speedy recovery.

Miss Myrtice Johnson and Miss Wilma Easterling were Sunday dinner guests of Miss Willie Joan Mims.

Rev. Paul Oden will preach here next Sunday morning and Sunday night. He will be showing his pictures of "The Life of Christ" Sunday night.

The Happy Speer Family of Montgomery will be at the Homecoming at Refuge the 3rd Sunday in June. We extend to each and everyone a special invitation to be here on that day.

If you have not heard this fine group of gospel singers, here is your chance to hear them.

Mrs. Bettie Forster, for 28 years postmistress at Thomasville has retired. She served 41 years in that post office.

Chil-Co FSA Women Start Annual Canning

Chilton County Farm women participating in the Farm Security Administration program have begun their annual canning of fruits and vegetables, according to Miss Clara Patton, FSA County home management supervisor.

The Canning goal for 1942 is 175,000 quarts for the 350 families participating in the FSA program in this county. This is an increase of 111,877 quarts over last year's all-time record of 74,123 quarts, and is evidence of Chilton County farm wives' response to the Nation's appeal for more food. Canned fruits and vegetables already lining pantry shelves of these families include english peas, turnip greens and strawberries.

"FSA housewives are helping in the country's wartime food need by putting up large supplies of food," said Miss Patton.

Besides the estimated 35,000 quarts of fruits and vegetables that will be canned by families cooperating with the FSA program this year, increased emphasis will be put on dehydrated foods.

Discussing drying as a method of food preservation, Miss Patton pointed out that it is one of the most economical ways of preserving foods, and one which can be carried out with a minimum of equipment. Drying will play an increasingly important part in the food preservation-program of FSA families, she said.

Wartime restrictions on sugar and canning equipment are bringing home to farm women the necessity of changing their food preservation programs this year.

Chilton County housewives participating in the FSA program are also learning to economize on the sugar used for canning.

"Canning strawberries and dew berries is already well under way in the county and FSA homemakers have been very successful in substituting honey or syrup for half the sugar needed to can the berries," Miss Patton said.

Farm women participating in the program are also conserving sugar by canning berries unsweetened and by using three parts of sugar to four of berries, instead of the usual equal parts, she pointed out.

Farmers Are Prosperous

The farmer in Alabama , Florida Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi or in Tennessee is enjoying his greatest degree of prosperity since World War I.

This is the conclusion published Friday in The Monthly Review of the Federal Reserve Bank, of Atlanta, for April as it reported an expanding market for farm products from the five states comprising the Sixth Federal Reserve District

A Grave Problem

We recently heard of a man who had two graves dug for him and yet he is still above ground. The reason is that when the man died it was decided to bury him in one town. Some relatives objected and they decided to bury him in another town and ordered a grave dug for him there. And then for some reason, all decided not to bury him in a grave at all, but his remains were placed in a vault above the ground. —Greene County Democrat.

In an effort to increase production of war materials and to assist Alabama industries facing a shutdown, if not given help, a War Production clinic will be held at the Thomas Jefferson Hotel in Birmingham on June 11.

BELL HARDWARE SELLS DEFENSE STAMPS AT THEIR CASH REGISTER

PRINCIPAL FOODS NEEDED RAISED BY OUR FARMERS

The small farmer in the Southeast is proving himself to be an important figure in the nations war effort

This was the point of a report today by Marvin Durbin, County supervisor of the FSA, who said that records compiled in Washington show that of all the increases of principal foods required by the Department of Agriculture, low-income farmers participating in the FSA program in the South will produce 26.5 per cent of the increased milk required from all Southern farms, 23.5 percent of the egg increase, 42.4 per cent of the increased pork products, and 7.1 per cent of the extra peanuts to be raised.

In Chilton County, Mr. Durbin said, the 1942 farm plans of FSA borrowers show that they will increase their fenced gardens by 100 acres, their egg production by 52,000 dozen, their acres in food crops by 1800. This increase will be in wheat, sorghum and cane, gardens, rice, and edible soy beans.

"Food production by Farm Security participants really went into high gear last spring when the 'Food for Defense' program started," Mr. Durbin said. "It was stimulated by loans from FSA totalling $4,610,000 in the four states of Alabama, Georgia, South Carolina and Florida. In this county the total of 'Food for Defense' loans was $28,500.

"Now, "Food for Defense' has become 'Food for Freedom' In 1942, with the war increasing the Nation's needs and with experience gained and new incentives given, the record of production will be increased. Production goals, which were something extra in 1941, have been written into the 1942 plans of SFA borrowers, as a permanent expansion.

"President Roosevelt has asked Congress to increase by $150,000,000 the amount of loans to be made available through the Farm Security Administration for increased food production in the United States. This fact should be proof that the Nation is looking to the small farmer as an important source of food production, and that the work of Farm Security borrowers is recognized as effective.

"The small farmer is winning his place in the sun. Of course, he must prove his right to this place by proper planning and accomplishments, but those that I know in Chilton County don't have much doubt that they can do it."

IT'S THE LAW!!

TO SAVE PRECIOUS RUBBER FOR THE WAR EFFORT, THE DIRECTOR OF DEFENSE TRANSPORTATION ISSUED A GENERAL ORDER TO SERVICE INDUSTRIES WHICH SAYS:

1 ☞ We cannot make more than one stop at each customer's residence in any one day.
THIS MEANS . . . . to pick up your laundry, your bundle must be ready and available when we call.
To deliver your laundry, we must make collections at the time of delivery.
If these rules are not complied with, we must postpone the delivery or pickup of your laundry until the following day.

2 ☞ We cannot give any special delivery service.
THIS MEANS . . . . any requests, other than our regular delivery service, cannot be granted.

3 ☞ We must reduce our truck mileage 25 per cent each month below what it was the same month last year.
THIS MEANS . . . . we must re-schedule our delivery service in each territory.

We've already asked your cooperation to help us save trucks and tires, in anticipation of the passage of this delivery curtailment ruling. But now that it has become a Government order, we must comply with it.

The inconvenience caused by this order will mean a sacrifice to both of us. But we feel that it is a small sacrifice, because it will enable us to continue serving you, and at the same time help our nation in its effort to win the war.

Chilton County Going Over Top In Bond Drive

Canvassers Finding 100 Percent Cooperation From All Contacted

According to Judge L. H. Reynolds, Chilton County will go one hundred per cent in the Drive this week to sell more War Bonds and Stamps.

Three hundred canvassers in Chilton County are working day and night to complete their work by Saturday, the day that all workers are to make their report to the County Chairman and turn in their pledges.

In turn the local chairman will make his report to M. R. Clements at Birmingham on Tuesday the 16th.

Judge Reynolds stated Thursday morning that never before had the citizens or the workers shown such enthusiasm as in this drive to help their Government win this war. Besides complimenting the workers and the county highly he especially mentioned the good work of Pat Smith, County Agent and stated that his help had been invaluable.

In May this county had a quota of $14,000 and went well over that amount. This month the quota is $22,000 and according to Chairman Reynolds we will again go over the goal set for us. "When you buy War Bonds you are not giving anything to anybody. You are making the best and most patriotic investment in the world One that is guaranteed—both principal and interest—by all the resources of the United States Government", Mr. Reynolds stated.

When the Minute Men come to see you, if you haven't been contacted yet, be ready to pledge as much as you possibly can out of your income. Remember Sign The Pledge—and Pledge Plenty.

P. O. DAVIS CALLS FOR SPEED IN SYNTHETIC RUBBER PRODUCTION

Speed in the production of synthetic rubber was urged Thursday by P. O. Davis, Extension director, in a communication to Aabama Senators and Congressmen, pointing out that:

"There is undue delay, or quibbling, over minor matters. We have several feasible ways to make sythetic rubber and priorities have been granted on plant production materials. So why not move rapidly, and in a big way? I do not know who is responsible but I do ask you to urge speed. Rubber is vital to us in many ways every day."

After adding that synthetic rubber can be made from almost any starch or sugar compound, which includes wheat, corn, potatoes (sweet and Irish), sugar beets, grain sorghums, and other products, he urged that these plants be located near the source of raw materials. It is his feeling that after the war when the farm surplus will again rise, synthetic rubber will be a way to consume big volumes of products from American farms.

Roy Acuff Smokey Mountain Boys And Girls Are Coming

Roy Acuff, leader of the Smokey Mountain Boys and Girls and his show will be shown in Clanton Tuesday night, June 23.

One of the big tent shows seating 3000 persons is to come to Clanton Tuesday night, June 23rd, it is announfed by the advance agent of Roy Acuff and his Smokey Mountain Boys and Girls. This show will be given one night only and will be held at the water-works lot.

This group of entertainers forms one of the big attractions on the "Grand Ole Opry" heard each Saturday night over Station WSM Nashville, Tenn.

Roy Acuff, leader of the Smokey Mountain Boys, the son of a circuit judge, was born near Knoxville, Tenn., In the early days of his schooling, Roy hardly spent two terms in the same town. This gave him one of his most admirable traits—that of being able to make friends wherever he goes. Roy has always been a leader. When the teams in baseball chose up, Roy was always one of the captains.

When in high school in Union county, Roy's baseball playing was better than average; in fact so much so that big league scouts were making overtures, and had it not been for a twenty-five dollar fiddle he might now be setting new league records. It happened like this: Roy had two loves—music ~~and baseball.~~ When the offers were made to get into big league baseball, the family thought he was too young and appealed to his love of music with a real factory made, $25. violin. The temptation was too great, and Roy turned down the offers flat.

And Roy has done plenty with that violin His first radio career started some ten years ago over Station KNOX in Knoxville, and ever since then he has been going strong. Some six years ago, Roy came to WSM and the Grand Ole Opry and has been there ever since.

At Local Draft Board Every Tuesday

OSCAR BUCKALEW

Chief Petty Officer Oscar Buckalew, traveling Navy Recruiting Officer from Birmingham, will be in Clanton, Ala. at the Draft board regularly every Tuesday hereafter.

Mr. Buckalew invites all men who desire to serve their country to come in and have a talk with him and learn what the Navy has to offer.

Mr. Buckalew is well qualified to talk about the Navy. He has been an active member for 23 years. He was born and reared in Mississippi and enlisted in the Navy in 1919. Since that time he has served on nearly every type ship in many lands.

Still a young man, as you can see by the photo above, Mr. Buckalew became eligible for retirement three years ago with a pension for life of more than one hundred dollars a month. But because of the National Emergency and the present war he has continued in the Navy.

During a recent debate in Congress over the pending pay bill remarks were made about the financial soundness of the Navy as a career for enlisted men.

A Chief Petty Officer with 30 years service, the debaters brought out, would be paid $246.50 a month, broken down as follows: Base pay, $138.00; longevity pay, $69; rental allowance $34.50; commuted rations, $15. And in all probability he would hold a paid-up Government life insurance policy of a maximum value of $10,000 payable to his dependants.

$50 A MONTH PAY BILL IS ENACTED

WASHINGTON, June 10 (AP via Montgomery Advertiser) — A $50-a-month service pay bill won final House approval after an unsuccessful last-monute attempt to have it sent to conference for a third time.

Only perfunctory Senate action tolation to the White House. The Senate already has gone on record as favoring the $50 minimum, an increase of $8 monthly from the amount voted aerlier by that body. The Army minimum is now $21 a month.

The 363 to 0 vote followed a spirited fight over a provision to increase the retirement pay of approximately 120 first World War officers, retired under Section 24B of the National Defense Act.

Effective with June pay checks, the legislation provides for pay and allowance increases for the Army, the Navy, the Marine Corps, the Coast Guard and Geodetic Survey, the Public Health Service and nurses.

Lightning set fire to the W. L. Paul gin, near the junction of the Tallassee-Birmingham highway. The plant was almost completely destroyed.

Scouts To Aid In Collecting Old Scrap Iron

The Scouts will be around to see you either Friday of this week or Saturday. They are doing their all to help out in the gathering of your scrap metals.

Scoutmaster Fred Buckelew is leaving with the Clanton Troupe Thursday afternoon for a one-night camp and will return Friday to put his boys to work for their Uncle Sam.

All that they are going to ask is that you put any old metal scrap close to your garbage can so that the City Truck can pick it up on their regular rounds and turn it in to the proper channels so that it might become war material to fight the Axis with.

It seems that old rubber tires has hit the same level with old paper and magazines—you can't get enought of them on a truck to pay for your trouble or your gas in getting them to market.

Let's consentrate on metal, anything will be picked up. Old pots and pans, anything that is iron, aluminum, copper, zinc or tin. The money real zed from this junk is brought back home and deposited with Dr. Walton who in turn passes it on to Superintendent Rasco Maddox, who is treasurer of the Crippled Children's Clinic. it goes to aid them and besides helping the Government you are also helping your own Crippled Children's Clinic.

Earl Gore, chairman of the Salvage Committee, reports to date that he has delivered 3,245 pounds of scrap iron and 33 old automobile tires.

Other high school students who have perfect attendance records for this year are: Sara Nell Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Jones, Maplesville, Alabama, Rt. 1; Sara Nell Mahan, daughter of Mr and Mrs. S. W. Mahan Maplesville, Alabama, Rt. 1; Louise Sims, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. Y. Wooden Ships That Pack a Punch

When steel became scarce, New England builders of fishing trawlers went back to wood. They convinced the navy they could build swift, useful auxiliary ships of wood. Today Uncle Sam's one-ton featherweight mosquito fleet—unarmored and made of plywood—is something to be reckoned with. They have sunk transports and warships, and it was a mosquito boat that got General MacArthur out of Bataan.

Dutch 'Quisling' Is a Pint Flask Of Pure Poison

NEW YORK.—Anton Adrian Mussert is the little man who gets the poison ivy garland as the Netherlands Quisling. There has been keen competition between Mussert, Himmler's man, and Ross von Tonningen, a protege of Goering, for the above supreme dishonor. Late dispatches indicate that Mussert has definitely won.

Clinical historians will, as they examine Mussert's career, find a classical pattern of the origins and inducements of Quislingism. The scrubby little boy of the lovely village of Werkendan in south Holland was a short-ender in everything he tried, and in addition to that had a gift for getting himself disliked by his schoolmates. Furthermore, he suffered from a delusion that he was a reincarnation of his great-grandfather Reus Mussert. Reus was a giant who smacked everybody down for miles around and became a sort of Paul Bunyan in the Low Countries. Little Anton made many miscalculations in trying to be like Reus. He became like Horace's "even-tempered man"—always mad.

His aunt paid for his education in civil engineering at the University of Delft. His wife wanted to be a grand lady, perhaps co-ruler with him of a subjugated Holland, and she and the aunt were always fanning up his frustrated power mania. He did well enough in the university but when he finished they filed him away in a grubby little civil service job.

A little dash of printer's ink lanced the boil of his suppressed hatreds, and headed him toward his great betrayal. In 1929, there was a row on between Holland and Belgium over a joint canal project, and, tearing loose with some wild invective, he hit the headlines. He formed a new political party, patterned on Mussolini and Fascism, and began recruiting the less literate section of the country in public yelling matches against "decadent parliamentarianism" and "capitalistic plutocracy." Hitler sent him an "atta boy" message and there was the beginning of a beautiful friendship.

His domineering aunt made him divorce his wife and marry her. Then she caught him philandering with his pretty stenographer and jerked him out of the management of the new party. Holland was vastly amused by the tough-talking little dictator being owned and operated by his wife, but underestimated his gifts as a germ-carrier—until he helped let the Nazis in.

When We Reap, We Find Another Has Done Sowing

JOHN MASEFIELD'S cargoes of "pigiron and old tin trays" are apt to take wings before this war is over. A friend of this writer, a designer of aircraft, just told us about great air freighters coming through soon, built quickly and stoutly of plywood, capable of long flights with a heavy load, and with production costs so low in manpower and materials that quantity production will be swift and easy. It wouldn't take many of them to do the work of a fair-sized ship, said my friend, taking into account their greater speed. He is lit up with the idea that here is the answer to the submarine problem, and he says it is, right now, a lot more than a blueprint.

Back in March, 1932, Walter H. Beech resigned as vice president of the Curtiss-Wright corporation, to design and build commercial planes. He has had some tough going, but his decade of chance-taking in the commercial free-for-all, has blossomed into a whale of a plant at Wichita, Kan., making wooden planes, trainer planes to be sure, but right in line with coming air argosies of plywood and pre-fabricated mahogany. The side of a plane is slammed together and attached to the fuselage in only a few minutes. The plant business, in dollar accounting, has risen 4,000 per cent in the last 18 months. All fears of a financial forced landing are past.

Mr. Beech has never hesitated to take a sharp turn off the main road. He resigned from the army air corps, in 1921, eager to try out some new ideas, and organized the Swallow Aeroplane company. Then came his Travel Air Manufacturing company, building the famous "Mystery S" in which Capt. Frank Hawks outflew the crack army ships. His Beech Aircraft corporation turned out the plane which won the Macfadden Trophy race from St. Louis to Miami last January. He is always experimenting, with the sky as his laboratory.

HENDERSON'S WARNING

Price Administrator Leon Henderson told the house ways and means committee a lot more during his secret testimony than he afterwards disclosed to newsmen. Here are some items which weren't made public:

Henderson predicted that if the current levels of earnings are maintained, the total national income this year will approximate 117 billion dollars, or 25 billions more than in 1941.

On the other hand, due to the enormous war production demands, the supply of consumer goods will be 26 per cent less than last year.

This wide disparity between purchasing power and available consumer goods, Henderson warned, is the great inflationary "explosive" factor. With a lot more money in people's pockets than supplies on which to spend it, a competitive situation develops that may set off a catastrophic price runaway unless drastically controlled.

17-Billion Excess.

Illustrating this problem, Henderson pointed out that about 31 billions of the estimated 117-billion national income will be absorbed by taxes and savings, leaving 86 billions in spendable money. However, there will be only 69 billions of consumer commodities.

This 17-billion excess, he declared, is what must be kept in check in order to prevent it from setting in motion an inflationary spiral that would smash the nation's economic system.

Tough as this problem is, Henderson predicted that the situation will be even worse in 1943. He estimated that by next year purchasing power will be three times greater than in 1932 while the supply of consumer goods will be only the same as in that year, the pit of the depression.

The price administrator told the committee that the only way disastrous inflation can be averted is by the most stringent government controls.

He said he fully realized that such measures as rationing and price ceilings might cause bootlegging and "blackmarkets." But he expressed the belief that patriotic public opinion would powerfully militate against such lawbreaking.

"In England," Henderson pointed out, "bootlegging of food and other scarce commodities is causing so much public resentment that many are demanding that those who buy or sell on the 'black market' be taken out and shot."

BIG BUSINESS MIRACLES

No one ever would have suspected it, but Harold Ickes, the New Deal's most violent baiter of big business, has been performing some quiet miracles in obtaining big business co-operation.

Not only is he now on good terms with the moguls of the oil industry, including such bitter political opponents as Joe and Howard Pew, leaders of Pennsylvania Republicanism, but he has also been getting co-operation from the railroads and trucking companies.

This is one of the few good things that has come out of the war

Ever since trucks began hauling freight, the feud between them and the railroads has been the toughest problem faced by the Interstate Commerce commission.

But now Petroleum Co-ordinator Ickes has persuaded the ancient rivals to make a friendly division of the tremendous oil transportation business whereby the railroads withdrew from short hauls, and turn business over to trucks, thus releasing tank cars for the longer and more economic hauls.

For instance, a railroad tank car, with a capacity of 8,000 gallons, operating between Whiting, Ind., and the west side of Chicago, requires six days to make the "turn around." But a tank truck, capacity 7,500 gallons, can do the same "turn around" in five hours.

Thus, one tank truck, working 24 hours, (and all such equipment is on a 24-hour basis) would relieve the equivalent of 16 or 20 tank cars. These cars, in turn, are being placed on the longer hauls from the Gulf to the East coast.

Result of such economies and overtime operations is that railroads which normally move practically no oil to the East coast, are now moving 650,000 barrels a day. Tankers (ships) normally supply 95 per cent of the East coast requirement, but with the withdrawal of tankers, tank cars are being rushed into the breach.

Soil Building Measures Help Seedings

Tests Over Eight Years Show Interesting Results

By J. F. DAVIS
Research Assistant
Department of Soil Science, Michigan State College.

How soil building measures improve not only the yield but the quality of seedings and small grains was demonstrated by an experiment carried on by the soil science department of Michigan State college.

The program covered an eight-year period and included crop rotation, the use of commercial fertilizer and a green manure crop plowed under. The rotation—corn, oats, wheat and alfalfa for two years, with sweet clover plowed down once in eight years—is typical for a large number of farms in north-central United States.

For every dollar spent for fertilizer a return of $3.60 was realized, according to a tabulation of the results. In the experiment, 150 pounds of 4-16-4 fertilizer per acre applied to the oats and 250 pounds of 4-16-4 on wheat, seeded to alfalfa, resulted in an increase of 4.9 bushels of oats, 8.1 bushels of wheat and 1 ton of alfalfa hay.

That all the advantages gained from the use of fertilizers cannot be measured in increased yields alone was shown by the fact that a distinct improvement in quality was recorded, with plumper kernels and less shrunken grains. From the particular land devoted to this experiment the farmer exhibits grain samples, and when selecting his show samples he invariably discards grain from unfertilized plots.

Fertilizer applications proved more effective in some years than others. The average oats increase due to fertilizer was 4.9 bushels per acre. However, in 1936 this increase was 9.8 bushels and in 1940 it was 8.9 bushels. The wheat yield showed corresponding variations. In 1938 the increase in yield due to fertilizer was 18 bushels per acre; in 1939, 10.1; in 1940, 19.9; and in 1941, 4.3 bushels. Wheat grown on unfertilized plots was invariably of inferior quality to wheat produced on fertilized plots. Moreover, the lower the yield on unfertilized plots, the poorer the quality of grain.

In another series of tests the 1940 alfalfa yield was more than doubled by fertilizing the preceding barley crop. A plot fertilized with 200 pounds of 0-20-0 and eight loads of manure per acre applied on the barley, yielded 2.11 tons of alfalfa on the first cutting. The yield of plots receiving no fertilizer was .98 tons, and on plots on which manure alone was applied the yield was 1.65 tons.

AGRICULTURE IN INDUSTRY

By FLORENCE C. WEED

(This is one of a series of articles showing how farm products are finding an important market in industry.)

Oil Plants

To find out whether oil plants might be profitably grown in this country, the National Farm Chemurgic Council has distributed seeds for test plantings. Farmers from Maine to California have tested the seeds and reported their results which are often favorable. With disturbed world conditions, imports may be still further curtailed and there may be a need for domestic oil to supplant the foreign supply.

Sunflower seed finds a ready market for birdseed and poultry feed mixtures. Our domestic supply of about 7,000,000 pounds is grown in Illinois, Missouri and California. It is an old crop which the Indians on the east shore of Lake Huron raised for their needs. They used stalks for cloth, leaves for fodder, flowers for yellow dye.

Since 1936, a small amount of rapeseed oil has been crushed each year in this country. It is used as a lubricant, mixed with minerals, and finds a place in the manufacture of rubber substitutes.

Safflower has been investigated as a possible oilseed crop for the northern states. It is a quick drying oil and can be used in the manufacture of paints, varnishes and enamels. In India, the blossoms are used for saffron dye and the oil is used for light.

The Perilla plant grows best in the cotton belt, especially in southern Virginia. It is difficult to handle, however, because the seeds burst from their pods when ripe.

Agricultural Notes

We in the Farm Security administration started out to relieve the economic plight of disadvantaged farm people. We learned certain fundamentals—that you build an economically sound life not on credit or even the land itself. You build it on the people.—C. B. Baldwin, FSA administrator, U. PREPAREDNESS by ✚ the AMERICAN RED CROSS

MATERIAL assistance to service men's dependents by the 3,700 chapters of the American Red Cross has increased more than six-fold in the past few months, officials announced today.

Families or dependents of men in the armed forces are urged to keep in close touch with their Red Cross chapters so that existing problems may be handled promptly and others arising from war conditions may be prevented.

When war was declared wholesale cancellation of applications for discharges from the army on the grounds of dependency upset families' plans for the immediate future. Likewise, the transfer of troops from one station to another, and orders for departure from the country, left many unsettled problems. These sudden shifts created an unprecedented increase of work for the chapters.

However, with its resources generously contributed by the American people, the Red Cross is enabled to relieve immediate hardships of the service men's families and to help them plan adjustments to wartime conditions.

Officials stress the fact that this service to dependents is a legal and moral obligation of the Red Cross derived from its congressional charter.

Young wives and children left stranded far from home; parents who are hard-pushed to make ends meet; younger brothers and sisters in need of food or clothing—these are just a few of the thousands of situations which are being taken care of by local Red Cross home service workers.

If a service man is reported killed, wounded or missing the Red Cross will obtain information through its communication facilities. The men of the armed forces are likewise served by the thousand or more field workers on duty at all major military and naval stations at home and abroad.

Facts About Flies

One pair of flies can multiply to 335,923,200,000,000 flies in 10 weeks, if all their offspring live, according to Alan Devoe in Reader's Digest. In writing about "Our Enemy the Fly," Devoe says that a fly egg hatches in 24 hours, the larva becomes an adult fly in less than 10 days. Thereafter at 10-day intervals, for 8 to 10 weeks, the female fly lays 100 eggs. The total for nine generations of a single pair thus amounts to trillions of offspring.

"We must fight continuously against adult flies that get into our houses, wielding old-fashioned swatter, spraying, using fly-paper," says Devoe.

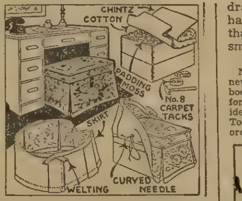
NEW IDEAS for Home-makers

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS



A STOOL often looks better in front of a desk or telephone stand than a chair with a high back. A substantial wooden box may make the foundation, and if well padded and smartly covered will be as attractive as anything that you could buy.

Before shopping for materials check over things on hand. Moss, horse hair and even feathers from discarded upholstered pieces may be sewn in a cheese cloth bag and washed before using again. Worn draperies and bedspreads usually have unfaded good pieces in them that may be used for covering a small piece like this.

Casualty—1,000 miles from the enemy

ALMOST as fatal as a bullet or a shell is the breakdown in the spirit of a sailor or a soldier.

Our men have the finest spirit in the world. But it must be maintained in the American way.

They must not be made to feel that they are mere automatons, fighting machines, as the armed forces of the dictators have been made to feel.

Life in our navy and army is hard. Discipline is tough. It must be. But there also must be moments when the sailor or soldier is treated as Mr. Somebody-or-other.

That's where the USO comes in. For the USO is the banding together of six great agencies to serve one great purpose—to see that our boys in the camps and naval stations have a place to go, to turn to, a "home away from home."

The duties of the USO have more than doubled during the year. Its field of operations has enlarged to include almost the entire face of the globe.

To carry on its all-important work, it needs funds. It needs your contribution. No matter how small you make that contribution, it needs it. Now.

You are beset by requests for help on all sides. By all means, try to meet those requests. But among them, don't neglect the USO.

Send your contribution to your local USO committee, or to USO, National Headquarters, Empire State Building, New York.

Give to the USO

CHILTON COUNTY NEWS

Entered in the Postoffice at Clanton, Alabama, as second-class matter under the Act of Congress of March, 1897

MARK L. TUCKER, Owner and Publisher
R. M. TUCKER, Managing Editor

The Defense of American Freedom is our First Consideration

STOP THE FIRES SAVE THE TIMBER

A survey of opinions on forest fires and what to do during the war to protect little timber is to be made in Chilton County with the help of newspapers, and farmers who will serve on committees. The enquiry is to be made for the Southern States Forest Fire Commission with headquarters at Double Springs, Alabama.

The county taxpayers lost about $100,000 during the past six months from woods fires, and what can be done is the question before the citizens of the County. Can motorized protection be secured thru state and federal cooperation? Can farmers be organized to fight fires locally and cooperate in keeping fires out of his neighbors land? Can Highway Patrolmen and law enforcing authorities help apprehend motorists who throw cigar butts along the road and set the woods afire?

On the other hand, is all this doomed to failure and must something else be tried? For instance, will it do to put on a campaign early in January of next year for everyone to burn when leaves and needles are damp so that destruction wont be so terrible

Every farmer in Chilton County who will write a letter to the News giving an opinion of what can be done that will actually work, will be helping his neighbors by changing up the custom of the past 50 years, and which is threatening some land owners with bankruptcy.

Send your letter to the News at once for consideration by the Commission and the authorities in charge of the plans in Chilton.

We confidently expect the war to continue as long as any "pickins" can be found in the pockets of the taxpayers

"We have a good laboratory right here in our own country of mixed races to learn that every citizen has equal rights regardless of the color of his skin, his race or his nationality." —Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt.

There is no such thing as "armed" peace. There never has been and never will be. The nation or individual—being human or made up of humans who possesses the most "arms" will sooner or later become a "bully" and use the "arms" to gain selfish advantage over his weaker neighbor. The person who is wholly unselfish does not believe in "arming" of any kind.

RICH COOSA VALLEY SHOULD BE DEVELOPED

Coosa Valley, an erea varying from 25 to 40 miles in width extending on both sides of the river from the Georgia state line, Cherokee County in a generally southern direction to Central Alabama, is rich in soil, iron ore, coal, timber and other natural resources. Talladega Mountain, southern end of the Blue Ridge, with vast deposits of iron ore, extends almost its entire distance along the eastern side of the valley, and Lookout Mountain bounds it on the west and between the river and the mountain ranges is one of Alabama's richest coal fields

Limestone shale exists almost throughout its distance and the famous Talladega marble quarry lies well within its border to the east.

All or parts of nine counties are embraced within its area. These are Cherokee, Calhoun, Etowah, Cleburne, St. Claire, Talladega, Shelby, Coosa, and Chilton.

In addition to coal, iron ore, limestone shale, marble and timber of various kinds these other naturel resources exist in portions of the valley. Aluminum ore, lead ore, sulphur, gold, building stone, barite, manganese ore, paving stone, slate, millstone, emery stone, ochre, tripoli, or polishing sands, and others.

Springs with health giving waters, once popular summer resorts, are in St. Claire, Coosa, Calhoun, Shelby, and Talladega Counties.

Many of these natural resources reported by geologists to be in quality and quanity that would justify comfercial development and if the proposed improvement of Coosa River for navigation and power development are made would provide traffic for boats and customers for the power developer. A survey made a few years ago disclosed enough potential tonnage available for boats on the Coosa River to make their operations profitable.—Birmingham News Age-Herald.

The next two years will determine whether or not Congress is the servant of the people—taking its orders from Democracy in action; or, whether or not it is the servant of Autocracy—the money-special-privileged favored few

WHEN GAS IS RATIONED HERE-HERE ARE SOME DON'TS TO REMEMBER

Gasoline now is being rationed in 17 Eastern States. Rationing hasn't hit Alabama yet, but it may be something to contend with in the near future. Here are some suggestions intended to conserve gasoline and rubber, start practicing them.

Don't ride alone. Pool your car with your neighbor. Pick up pedestrians going to or near your place of work.

Don't drive aimlessly. Cut down on Sunday driving. Walk if your destination is in walking distance.

Don't speed. Keep your speedoweter at 40 miles an hour or below. Drive slowly, carefully and courteously.

Don't neglect your engine. Have it checked periodically to guard against waste.

Don't use improper oil. A heavy oil in summer and a lighter oil in winter make your motor run more efficiently.

Don't overlook your carburetor and ignition. If they are adjusted properly you will get more out of your engine with less fuel.

Don't grab for your hand choke. Your motor will generally start without it except on the coldest mornings.

Don't linger in first or second gear If you get in high quickly you will save gas.

Don't drive with dirty spark plugs. Have them cleaned every 5 000 miles. check and adjust the distributor points at the same time.

Don't put up with a slipping clutch. Have it repaired quickly and conserve engine power.

Don't forget your air cleaner. Have it cleaned every 5,000 miles.

Don't let your battery run down. A well-checked battery means easier starting and less choking.

Don't throw away gas. See that the attendant doesn't overflow your tank when filling.

Don't over—or under—inflate your tires. Proper air pressure means economical consumption.

Don't park in the sun. Gas evaporates under the sun's rays.

Every piece of cotton cloth should be used, and the thrifty housewife can make them into quilts which may be needed before the war is over. There won't be many new comforters, blankets and sheets, and in addition to taking care of what you have, add a new quilt for cover.

"It is our responsibility to see that by no form of trick or chicanery is any one taxpayer to escape his just share and thus to throw unjust burdens on others."—Henry Morgenthau.

MORAL ECHOES

By Rev. D. W. Haskew, D. D.

While Napoleon was travelling through Switzerland the multitude gave great applause. Those who witnessed the demonstration thought that the General would be happy over the demonstration and said to him, "It must be delightful to be greeted with such enthusiasm." "Bah" replied Napoleon, "This same unthinking crowd, under a slight change in circumstances, would follow me to my scaffold." That very thing took place in the life of the Man of Galilee. The crowd followed him shouting His praises as He entered Jerusalem, but only a few days later they shouted, "Crucify, Crucify Him.' Emotional support will shift like a forest fire under the atmosphere changes. Public enthusiasm can not be trusted.

When Woodrow Wilson went to Europe to sit at the peace table, he was received with super human enthusiasm. After sitting there with his comrades, working for a peace that would make a better world, Mr. Wilson saw that his popularity was on the wane. On leaving Europe he came back to America to find that the heart of his native land had turned from him. He was lifted high on the wave of public enthusiasm and he fell low into the valley of rejection. He was a man who thought and whose thoughts entwined themselves around a great principle, and the public could not follow him. Broken in body wind and spirit, Wilson died of a heart hurt that would not heal. It is a fact that a man who circles a principle, may be popular today and on a cross tomorrow.

The great German people have been swept off their feet by enthusiasm. Hitler was an enthusiast and he leaped upon a wave of hate and shouted, and raged and wept, until the German's gathered about him. Under his enthusiasm, higher and higher went the wave of hate until he dared to strike a fatal blow at the rest of the world. To be sure that wave of enthusiasm is high today, but that wave is just about ready to crash under him. A like wave crashed under the old Kiser in the first world war, and as sure as there is a God in the heavens, this wave of enthusiasm is going to crush under Hitler. Hitler is riding a wave that is foreign to justice, truth and right and this wave can not roll through the centuries. He is going to come down in disgrace and with the reproach of all the world foaming about his fall.

One rainy morning my car stuck on a newly worked road. The road crew came to help me and one of the men took his place at the wheel, while I took my place at the rear of the car as one of the pushers. The signal was given and the rear wheels started spinning in the mud. Mud in large lumps spattered my new suit from head to foot. I started wiping it off when a lady standing near said to me. "Doctor, dont do that. Wait until it dries and it will come off easily." That was good advice. When a person flings insults over you, do not make the mistake of trying to make matters understood then. To try to right an insult when it is fresh is like trying to wipe mud from your clothes. A quarrel is produced. Have patience and when all the hurt of the insult has dried out, then you will be able to rub the mud clean.

I had a barometer at my front door this little thing seemed almost like some of my church members. In fact it seemed to have the same kind of religion that some of my members had. When the atmosphere was clear, the sun was shining and the heat was normal, the little figures would come out into the open as if they were going to church. When all was bright, then they would come out to play. On the other hand, when the weather was bad and a storm was threatening, the figures would hide back in the enclosure as if to get away from the open. How like church wembers the figures on my barometer acted. When we have a beautiful Easter or a Sabbath morning, the folks will crowd out to church, but just let it be threatening, a little cold or damp, and the church members hide themselves at home. Church members, like the figures of a barometer, are governed by weather conditions. Beware of being a barometer church member.

And speaking of Flag Day, refinds us . .. hundreds of families throughout the County have boys in the service of their Country, but we bet not one of them know what oath they take when they enter the service. Just to show here it is: "I .... do solemnly swear that I will bear true faith and allegiance to the United States of America, that I will serve them honorably and faithfully against all their enemies whomsoever, and that I will obey the orders of the President of the United States and the orders of the officers appointed over me according to the rules and articles of war."

This was reported: Friday afternoon on the southbound train rode a small boy...we'd say about five or six. When the train came to a tunnel the small one was heard to remark, "They didn't give any air-raid signal before that black-out did they?".... who says America isn't war conscious?

On Caring For The Sheep Flock

To increase the income from the average sheep flock the followng suggestons offered by W. H. Gregory, extenson livestock specialist, should be followed.

1. Sheep should be drenched every four weeks during the grazing season. One of the first drenches should consist of phenothiazine which controls nodular worms in addition to ordinary stomach worms.

2. Lambs should be marketed when they weigh from 75 to 80 pounds.

3. Rams should be handled according to one of the following methods. First, turning the ram in with the ewes and letting him remain with them during the entire breeding season. Second, turn the ram in with the ewes at nights and take the ewes out in the mornings. Third, put the ewes into a lot or pen and turn the ram in just long enough to serve any of the ewes that may be in heat.

4. Dry ewes should be placed on fresh green pastures and feed them liberally with grain to make them put on weight and get in the best physical condition is called flushing

Food Leaflet Issued

With Alabama farmers directing their operations toward production for war needs, the development of good pastures and efficient pasture management assume greater importance than ever before, says J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist.

For practical guidance of farmers, the U. S. Department of Agriculture has issued a new publication, "Pastures to hold and Enrich the Soil" -- Farmers' Bulletin No. 1900, a free copy of which may be obtained from the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Teachers To Get Another Pay Increase

Local boards in many Alabama counties will have the option of raising teacher's pay by the average of an additional 12 per cent, over and above the 12 per cent raise already provided, a study of the program adopted by the State Board of Education revealed today.

An average pay raise approximately the first half of the 25 per cent recommended by Governor Dixon is mandatory upon all public schools. Funds for this will be provided from the $1,500,000 general fund surplus already appropriated by the legislature for school use ond alloted last week by the state board to teacher's salaries.

The second installment in the projected 25 per cent raise will become available to many school boards when the next Legislature, which may be called into special session in November, approves the remainder of the board's program.

Besides recommending that a substantial share of the anticipated $8,700,000 surplus in the special educational trust fund be held in reserve against lean reserve years expected during the Sparks administration, the board petitioned the Legislature to appropriate $2,541,000 yearly to increase public school terms to eight months.

Because approximately half of Alabama's counties now are operating their schools for an average term of not less than eight months, a large portion of the $2,541,000 recommended appropriation will be available to local school boards for further increases in teacher's salaries.

Watch Your Tire

Alabama's Agricultural Conservation Committee has taken steps to cut down on farf woods fires which cost the state many thousands of dollars annually.

W. B. Crawley, Pike County farmerand chairman of the Committee, said the group had ruled that any person who sets fire to the lands of another person or permits fire to escape from his farm to the forest lands of another person would have his payments, to which he is entitled under the 1942 AAA program, withheld, or if he has been paid, a refund would be required.

$200,000 IN CASH LOST

An AP Washington report says $200,000 in cash was lost when five U. S. warships were sunk in enemy actions.

P. O. Davis, extension director, has called upon his Extension employees, including all State and county workers, to purchase all war bonds and stamps possible every month during the remainder of the war.

FARMERS . . .

Make every market-day BOND DAY!

For our fighting men, for our country's future and for freedom we must meet and beat our county War Bond quota and keep on doing it.

Pick up your War Bonds and Stamps on your second stop in town . . . right after you've sold your eggs, milk, poultry, stock or grain. No investment is too small and no investment is too large . . . the important thing is to buy every time you sell!

Farm Fires Costly

Farm fires cost the Nation about $100,000,000 annually, but even more important in wartime is the loss in agricultural production when hard-to-replace farm machinery, livestock, and stored feedstuffs, go up in smoke. In addition to fire loss on farms, another $125,000,000 is lost by fires in rural communities yearly.

Any Time Is Best Time To Get Boll Weevil

The early bird may get the worm, but farmers who dust their cotton with calcium arsenate any time during the day will "get" just as many boll weevils and just as good cotton yields as farmers who apply this insecticide early in the morning, says W. A. Ruffin, extension entomologist.

For years cotton farmers have followed the general practice of dusting calcium arsenate while the plants are damp with dew, either very early in the morning or late in the after noon. However, recently completed tests conducted over a [illegible]-year period by entomologists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture show that midday dust applications of [illegible] on dry plants are just as effective in controlling boll weevils and increasing cotton yields.

SERVING Vital WAR NEEDS

A great public servant—your telephone — is successfully carrying its added responsibilities as it performs its many vital wartime duties.

Few who daily use the telephone on a peacetime basis realize its extreme importance in time of war.

Today, in the area served by Southern Bell, war activities are moving at a tempo never before equalled. Throughout these nine Southeastern States, many new military and naval training camps, new and enlarged Navy and Marine shipyards, Air Force training and flying fields, and the huge plants employed in war production, are teeming with all-out activity. All rely on the dependability and efficiency of the telephone, as national and civilian agencies relay the urgent messages of a Nation at war.

The telephone is the means of activating quick control of vast numbers of men and units of equipment, as well as for instantaneous communication on a war front stretching around the world.

Thus it is that the telephone, long recognized as a great American convenience, is now vital to the successful conduct of the war, and Southern Bell is proudly doing its part in meeting our Government's every telephone communication need.

Jap Air Thrust at Alaska and Midway Seen as Reprisal for Doolittle Raid; U. S. Declares War on Balkan Nations; RAF Smashes Reich War Industries

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

The harbor and town of Dutch Harbor, Alaska, U. S. naval base raided by Japanese bombers, is shown above. The air and naval base which threatens Japan's northern flank and forms a "springboard" for eventual offensives against Nippon is around the point to the left.

ALASKA FRONT:
Japan Strikes

As had been expected ever since General Doolittle's spectacular air raid on Japan last April, Japanese warplanes struck at the American base at Dutch Harbor, Alaska. The first two attacks occurred within six hours of each other.

The fact that fighter planes accompanied the bombers on their raids indicated that the Japs came from aircraft carriers, since the nearest enemy island is 1,400 miles away—far beyond the range of fighter craft.

Significance of the Jap attack on the most formidable American bastion in the Aleutian islands is that Alaska and the Aleutian archipelago lie across Japan's exposed northern flank. They offer an effective "spring-board" for eventual offensives against Nippon.

By neutralizing Alaska and knocking out American air bases, Japan would protect its flank, delay indefinitely the possibility of American invasion via this route and shut off communications and supply lines to Russia in the event of a Nipponese attack on Siberia.

Midway Island

When Jap task forces undertook an attack on Midway island, nearest American base to Japan, 24 hours after the Dutch Harbor assault, the growing power of American air and naval strength manifested itself.

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander of the Pacific fleet, announced that his forces had damaged a battleship and an aircraft carrier and exacted a heavy toll of attacking planes.

BALKAN FOES:
U. S. Acts

President Roosevelt asked for and obtained a declaration of war by congress on the three Nazi-stooge governments of Bulgaria, Hungary and Rumania.

On the home front this newest war move meant a general round-up of enemy aliens of these nations and a freezing of their funds.

On the European front it was calculated to produce a two-fold effect. It would underline closer American collaboration with Russia which long has desired such an action and contribute hearteningly to the Soviet's morale. It would serve notice on Hitler's three Balkan allies that they could not escape the consequences of their association with him. Few, however, expected America's war effort against the three new enemies to go beyond speeding up shipments of essential materials to Russia.

WAR WEAPONS:
Army Has Plenty

Expanding power of Uncle Sam's army was disclosed in a report of Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson, who revealed that the army has all the weapons it can send abroad under present shipping conditions and enough to arm every soldier in the United States.

Mr. Patterson said the army today requires twice as many light arms per 1,000 men as it did before the extensive use of parachute troops.

SALVAGE PROGRAM:
Patch and Pray

Greater civilian co-operation with the salvage program to speed up the flow of scrap metals and rubber loomed as William L. Batt, chairman of the requirement committee of the War Production board, warned that industry must get ready to "patch and pray."

Mr. Batt disclosed that many essential war materials are now short and declared that "our civilian economy is fast going on a minimum subsistence standard."

RAIDS ON REICH:
RAF Sows Havoc

As air raid after air raid by the RAF wrought destruction in the heart of German war producing areas, the pattern of this newest offensive became increasingly clear; smash the industrial plants that produce materials for Hitler's armies; dislocate the railways that carry these products to his forces in Russia; shake the Nazi civilian morale.

How well these objectives were succeeding was indicated by British communiques. A damaging raid on Cologne was followed by two crippling blows at Essen in the Ruhr valley, concentration point for half of Germany's heavy war industries. Bremen, the Reich's second largest port, was next on the schedule.

In the first Essen raid, 1,036 British planes converged over the Krupp munitions works, showering down 3,000 tons of explosives and incendiaries. The second installment, in the nature of a mop-up was designed to slow down Nazi repair efforts.

While German propaganda continued to minimize the extent of the raids, the outlook was undeniably gloomy.

But the Reich itself was not the only target of the British planes. In one 12-hour daylight period, the RAF hurled more than 1,000 planes in relays over northern France, fanning the flames of revolt among French patriots.

WAR BONDS:
More Sales Needed

"Do I really need what I am going to buy? Can't I do without it? Won't it wait until after the war?"

Americans were urged by Secretary of the Treasury Henry L. Morgenthau to ask themselves these questions before making any purchases. The point of the secretary's plea was that the buying of war bonds transcends any other purchase.

"Any man or woman who chooses this time to go on a buying spree is committing an act of sabotage against our war effort," Mr. Morgenthau said in a nationwide radio address.

Unnecessary spending, he added, drains money from the defense program, creates greater price pressure and encourages inflation. More and more purchases of war bonds, he said, are the antidote.

NAVY BILL:
Billions for Ships

Two facts of prime significance to the future conduct of the war stood out in the provisions included in the new $10,452,000,000 naval expansion program over which congress deliberated as a means of giving the United States the largest navy in the world.

These facts were: 1. The emphasis on the construction of aircraft carriers; and 2. The absence of battleships from the proposed naval building program.

The program clearly emphasized the United Nations high command's belief that aircraft and fast, lighter ships equipped to fight submarines will be a determining factor in winning the war.

The naval building program, introduced by Chairman Carl Vinson of the house naval committee, would provide $8,300,000,000 for more than 500 new fighting ships over and above the current two-ocean navy plan. It would include many aircraft carriers, cruisers, destroyers and convoy escort ships specially equipped to fight submarines.

Representative Vinson reported that 100 new warships will join the fleet during the remaining seven months of this year. He predicted that the two-ocean navy program would be completed in 24 months.

WHEAT STORAGE:
Wickard Gets Bins

The answer to a question that has troubled Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard for weeks past came from the War Production board in the form of a "Yes."

The "Yes" was that he can have a large supply of lumber and wire nails to build bins on thousands of farms for storage of 200 million bushels of excess wheat.

With grain elevators already pressed for storage space and transportation facilities straining under a war-time peak, the problem of what to do with surplus wheat was becoming serious. With an estimated new crop of 811 million bushels added to a 639 million bushel carryover, the United States would have 1,441,000,000 bushels this summer.

Domestic consumption and immediate shipments abroad would take 721 million bushels. Of the 718 million bushels remaining, storage space would be available for 500 million bushels. The remaining 218 million bushels would have to be stored in farm bins built with lumber and nails.

GASOLINE:
Permanent Rations

From Washington came the announcement that a permanent gasoline rationing system had been devised by the Office of Price Administration for the East coast that would entitle motorists to an average of 2,880 miles of travel annually, or about 55 miles weekly.

It was indicated that the system would become effective on July 15. Observers were of the opinion that the new plan might serve as a model for nation-wide gasoline rationing when that measure is deemed essential to conserve rubber tires.

The new plan would eliminate the controversial "X" cards entitling their holders to unlimited quantities of gasoline.

LABOR FRONT:
Lewis Denounced

Accusing his former close friend and associate John L. Lewis, head of the mine workers of being "Hell bent on creating national confusion and national disunity," Phillip Murray, CIO president, sponsored a resolution declaring that Lewis is "attempting to sabotage the defense program and spread the spirit of defeatism."

Murray charged that Lewis proposed to him that they go before the CIO convention, in Detroit last fall and fight President Roosevelt's foreign policies. He said he rejected the proposal as "treasonable."

The CIO blast followed by only a few hours a pledge from Mr. Lewis of his full support of the war effort and flat rejection of criticism that his policies are inimical to victory.

'HANGMAN'S' END:
Czechs Pay Price

REINHARD HEYDRICH
"Butcher of Moravia."

Reprisal measures which followed the wounding of Reinhard ("The Hangman") Heydrich in Prague, by a Czech patriot, increased in swiftness and severity when the news of the death of this sadistic executioner became public. The shooting of hundreds of Czechs suspected by the Nazis of complicity in the plot to rid the world of Heydrich was reported.

Ironically enough, the "butcher of Moravia" died in much the same manner as hundreds of unfortunate hostages he had ordered shot in France, Holland, Belgium, Norway, Poland and other countries during his hated career.

Hard-bitten Heydrich earned the soubriquet of "Der Henker" or hangman of the Nazi regime by reason of his ruthless application of repressive measures—usually the firing squad or the gallows—against those who dared challenge Hitler's rule.

The successful attack on this Nazi leader emphasized again the smoldering spirit of unrest in German-occupied countries—a spirit ready to flame high when Reich reverses make possible organized uprisings.

MISCELLANY:

BERNE.—German beer drinkers will find their favorite brew less potable from now on, according to Nazi announcements. Hereafter, no beer may be manufactured from malt, the basic ingredient for food in tablet form needed by the Reich's fighting forces on the Russian front. The "no malt" order followed the announcement that dining cars would no longer be operated.

WHO was the toughest piece of rawhide that ever came to the ring?

Grantland Rice

The recent death of Chuck Wiggins brings this argument into the spotlight. For Commander Gene Tunney says Chuck Wiggins was the roughest piece of human rawhide he ever met in a ring—and Chuck picked Harry Greb.

It might be mentioned that Tunney places Greb a close second to the unbreakable Chuck in the way of toughness—not as a fighter. Greb was the fellow Tunney always placed on top as the best man, pound for pound, he ever met.

Commander Tunney is now helping dynamic Stan Griffis in the Navy Relief drive. We were talking about Wiggins (almost nationally), and about Harry Greb.

"I'll give you two examples," Gene said, "which bring in both men. On my way to my first Dempsey fight I met Chuck Wiggins. At the time I was working on a right uppercut to the body. I was still raw with this punch. As Wiggins came in I happened to hit him low punches on two occasions. Each time the referee warned me. Wiggins could have dropped and claimed a foul either time, and would have been awarded the fight.

"But when the referee warned me, Wiggins turned to him with a snarl. 'Leave us alone,' he said, 'Tunney didn't hit me low. It was a fair punch.' Naturally that stopped the referee.

The Gamest Fighter

"About the fifth round," Tunney continued, "I whipped in with a right body uppercut and I used all I had. Chuck had come in fast and the punch landed low—way below the belt. Again the referee warned me and once again Wiggins told him to get away, that the punch was belt high.

"But as we moved into a clinch Wiggins whispered, 'Say, Gene, keep 'em up a little. That last one hurt.'

"That was Chuck Wiggins, the gamest, toughest man I ever fought. He could have claimed the fight three times against me that night, and gotten away with it. But not Chuck."

"Wiggins always said Greb was the toughest man he ever fought," I suggested to Tunney.

"I can't say he was wrong," Gene said with a grin. "I'll tell you something about Greb, too."

"The last time I met Harry he was blind in one eye. Maybe the other wasn't any too good, but he was still something to handle. In one round as Greb came charging in I nailed him with a full right to the body. I could feel my glove against his spine. I saw his mouth fly open and his eyes start rolling. I stepped back to let Greb fall. I knew this was a knockout punch.

"The next thing I knew Harry had me on the ropes trying to hammer my head off. I felt for a few seconds that I was in a cage with a wild tiger. I had to finish the round protecting myself. That was Harry Greb."

The Making of Tunney

Commander Tunney will tell you that his battles with Chuck Wiggins and Harry Greb were the two main factors in getting him ready for the first Dempsey fight.

Tunney won't admit that he thinks both Wiggins and Greb were even tougher than Dempsey, but that's how he feels down in his heart. I don't mean harder punchers. Neither was a killing puncher. But I mean rough, tough, to-hell-with-the-rules, anything goes.

In getting ready for Dempsey I'll say for Tunney that he never picked the rose-patched or the violet-bordered road. When he selected Chuck Wiggins, Harry Greb and Rubberman Risko he elected to walk through a garden of thorns and poison ivy. Anyone who could wade through this trio, especially the Greb part, even though he was half blind, was about ready to walk into a cage and grab the raw meat away from a Bengal tiger.

Tunney still rates Greb the greatest fighter he ever met. So does everyone else who ever met Greb, especially the bigger fellows who were his meat. Or you might ask Mickey Walker, on the smaller side, and about as good and as tough as they happened to come along.

The ring knows a far longer list of great fighting men under 150 pounds than over that mark—Jimmy Wilde, Joe Gans, Kid Lavigne, Joe Walcott, Benny Leonard, Owen Moran, Frank Erne, Terry McGovern, Driscoll, Welsh, Attell, Nelson, Wolgast, on and on.

And how many fighters, pound for pound, ever could match Harry Greb, Stanley Ketchell, Sam Langford, or Jack Blackburn?

Greb at 160 almost murdered such heavyweights as Gene Tunney, Tom Gibbons, Jack Dillon and others from 190 to 200 pounds.

Wedding Receptions

After the "I do's" have been said, and you have remembered to wear something borrowed, something blue, and something new, besides throwing your bouquet to some lucky bridesmaid, you are ready for the reception.

The reception is among the more elaborate forms of entertaining, but because of our wartime status, this year's event will undoubtedly be more simple. Simplicity, however, does not imply lack of charm or graciousness, indeed, it often enhances it the more.

White is the color for brides, so use your linens or damask on the wedding table. Flowers may be white calla lilies in crystal or silver centerpiece, or other delicate pastel flowers used with plenty of white to carry out the theme. Have your candles, white, too, as the occasion is somewhat formal.

At most weddings the trend is to have other refreshments besides the traditional white cake cut by the bride and the necessary assistance by the groom! If you are baking the cake at home—and it will be good if you do—plan to have a small pastry tube for the frills and decorations with celluloid or paper figures of the groom and bride as a decoration.

Chicken, because of its bland flavor and general adaptability, is the answer to your refreshment problem. Chicken in a molded egg ring makes the table a picture, and your guests can easily serve themselves:

Chicken in Molded Egg Ring.
(Serves 8)

2 tablespoons unflavored gelatin
½ cup boiling water
½ cup cold water
1½ cups mayonnaise
4 tablespoons lemon juice
½ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon grated onion
½ green pepper chopped
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
12 hard-cooked eggs
1 recipe of chicken salad

Soften gelatin in cold water for 5 minutes and dissolve in boiling water. Cool. Add mayonnaise, lemon juice, salt, onion, green pepper, parsley, and 10 eggs, chopped. Cover bottom of mold with one inch of the mixture. Slice remaining eggs and arrange slices around side of mold. Add remaining mixture and chill until firm. Unmold on lettuce, fill center with chicken salad and garnish with salted almonds and tomato wedges. Serve with mayonnaise or french dressing.

Chicken Salad.

2 cups cooked, diced chicken
French dressing
½ cup diced celery
½ teaspoon onion juice
⅛ cup shredded, toasted almonds

Marinate chicken in french dressing for an hour. Drain. Add remaining ingredients with just enough salad dressing to moisten. Season with salt and pepper to taste. Chill well.

Make the reception a really memorable occasion by serving a beautiful Bride's salad, all fruity and creamy with the Egg Mold. Here's how to do it:

Bride's Salad.
(Serves 8)

1 large can pears
1 large can white cherries
½ pound almonds
1 large can sliced pineapple
½ pound marshmallows

Drain and cut fruits. Chop nuts and cut marshmallows with a wet scissors. Make the following cooked dressing:

Yolks of four eggs
Juice of one lemon
⅓ cup evaporated milk
¼ teaspoon mustard

Combine all ingredients and let cook over hot water until the mixture thickens. Cool. Fold in 2 cups whipped cream. Combine with fruit (well drained), add nuts and fold in marshmallows. Place in a mold, in the refrigerator overnight. Serve surrounded with endive or lettuce.

Now, the cake for the reception! This is a light butter cake, delicately flavored as befits the occasion:

Bride's Cake.

3¾ cups sifted cake flour
1½ teaspoons double acting baking powder
1¾ cups butter
2 cups sugar
1¼ cups egg whites, unbeaten
½ teaspoon vanilla
¼ teaspoon almond extract

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, and sift together three times. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually. Cream together until light and fluffy. Add egg whites, ¼ cup at a time, beating three minutes after each addition. Add flour, a small amount at a time, beating well after each addition. Add flavoring and beat vigorously. Turn into a 10-inch tube pan which has been greased and lined on the bottom, sides and around the tube with heavy, waxed paper. Bake in a slow (275-degree) oven 1 hour; then increase the heat slightly to 300 degrees, and bake 50 minutes longer, or until done. Insert favors, if desired, wrapping each in waxed paper, and pressing into small slits in the cake. Spread ornamental butter frosting smoothly on top and sides of cake. Decorate with simple borders and rosettes of the frosting, and trim with silver dragees. Serve on silver tray or platter with delicate sprays of fern, cosmos, or bridal wreath. Place special bridal favors on top of cake; or, tie small wedding bells or other favors to white ribbons and intertwine through sprays.

Ornamental Butter Frosting.

4 tablespoons butter
5 cups sifted confectioners sugar
2 egg whites, unbeaten
2 tablespoons cream (about)
1½ teaspoons vanilla
¼ teaspoon salt

Cream butter; add part of sugar gradually, beating well after each addition. Add remaining sugar alternately with egg whites, then with cream, until of right consistency to spread. Beat after each addition until smooth. Add vanilla and salt. Spread cake. Make rosettes and borders with frosting forced through the pastry tube. Makes enough frosting to cover the above cake and to use for decorating.

Lynn Says:

Here's help to solve your gift problems for the bride: Linen minimums include the following: 8 sheets, 6 pillowcases, 2 pairs blankets, 2 wool coverlets, 2 bathmats, 8 bath towels, 8 face cloths and 12 linen hand towels.

For the dining room, the bride will need 2 dinner sets with 6 to 8 napkins, 3 breakfast or luncheon sets, 6 to 8 extra dinner napkins, 12 tea napkins, and 2 hot plate mats.

If possible, the bride should have a set of 6 in each of the following pieces of china. If she expects to set up housekeeping on a larger scale, this list may be expanded to 8 or 12 pieces. China set includes: salad plates, soup plates, cups and saucers, dinner plates, sauce dishes, bread-and-butter plates. For serving dishes the following are "musts": 1 large platter (for meat and vegetables), 1 covered dish, 2 open vegetable dishes, tea and coffee pots, and sugar and creamers.

Little Stories About Well-Known People:

Pearson and Allen like to tell this story about F. D. R. . . . When he was a young lawyer he was retained to handle a difficult civil case. The rival attorney was an effective jury pleader and he completely outshone his youthful rival in the argument to the jury. However, he made one fatal mistake. He orated for several hours. As he thundered on, Roosevelt noticed the jury wasn't paying much attention. So when his turn came he rose and said: "Gentlemen, you have heard the evidence. You also have listened to my distinguished colleague, a brilliant orator. If you believe him and disbelieve the evidence, you will decide in his favor. That's all I have to say."

The jury was out only five minutes and brought in a verdict for F. D. R.'s client.

This is the reason for the H. L. that goes before Mencken's name. As a youth he had a little printing business and used to print cards with his name on for advertising purposes. But his father smashed all his black letter lower case "r's"—so he had to print his name H. L. Mencken—instead of Henry L., and that's the way it has remained

Years ago in Wisconsin, a young man was chopping wood and accidentally hit himself in the foot with the axe. He moaned and groaned and his face was contorted in pain while his shoe was slowly being removed—so the wound could be treated. However, when the shoe was taken off it was revealed that he wasn't even scratched. One of the onlookers commented that he had a wonderful imagination and would make a great actor.

His name—Alfred Lunt.

When the piano Beethoven composed his music on was exhibited in a European museum, visitors were given the thrill of sitting down and playing it. Everybody took advantage of that honor—except Paderewski. When the museum guard asked him why he didn't sit down and play, he replied: "I do not feel worthy enough to touch it."

Henry Clay, the eminent statesman, knew how to say the right thing at the right time. A pretty young thing once reproached him for failing to remember her name . . . But Clay was equal to the occasion, replying gallantly: "I didn't recall your name, because when we last met I was sure your beauty and talent would soon compel you to change it."

This is one of the best squelches we have ever come across. A friend once told Voltaire: "It is good of you to say such pleasant things about an enemy when he always says such nasty things about you."

To which Voltaire replied: "Perhaps we are both mistaken."

When Marshal Foch visited America he went to see the Grand Canyon. As he stood looking down into the depths of the amazing natural wonder, reporters all around him waited breathlessly for a comment that would go down in history. After a few minutes of dramatic silence, the Marshal observed: "What a beautiful place to drop one's mother-in-law!"

Among other things, Oliver Wendell Holmes was a doctor, but he wasn't very successful in that profession. Seems that people were a bit doubtful about the flippant medico who posted this sign above his shingle: "Small fevers gratefully received."

Among the better tales about Calvin Coolidge's brevity is this: A reporter was interviewing him. "Do you wish to say anything about prohibition?" he asked.

"No."

"About the farm bloc?"

"No."

"About the World Court?'

"No."

The reporter turned to go. "By the way," said Coolidge, "don't quote me."

Albert Einstein once had the misfortune to be a guest at a very dull party. Throughout the evening yawns ran wild . . . At the end of the affair, the host remarked sympathetically to him: "I'm afraid you were terribly bored" . . Einstein smiled and replied: "No. On occasions like this I retire to the back of my mind, and there I am happy."

For the last five months of her life Marie Dressler's illness let her be up for a few days, then down again—getting worse all the time. Each week, no matter how busy he was, Louis B. Mayer used to take a brief case full of scenarios to her home. Her illness was never mentioned. Mayer merely discussed stories and plans for the future, exactly as if she were still working. Right through the last week of her life, Miss Dressler remained cheerful and happy because of Mayer's thoughtfulness.

That Nagging Backache
May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action
Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.
You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.
Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

ON THE OFFENSIVE

Wars are won by attacking, not by sitting in a fort!

And today America is taking the offensive against the Axis with hard-fighting, non-stoppable men and materials!

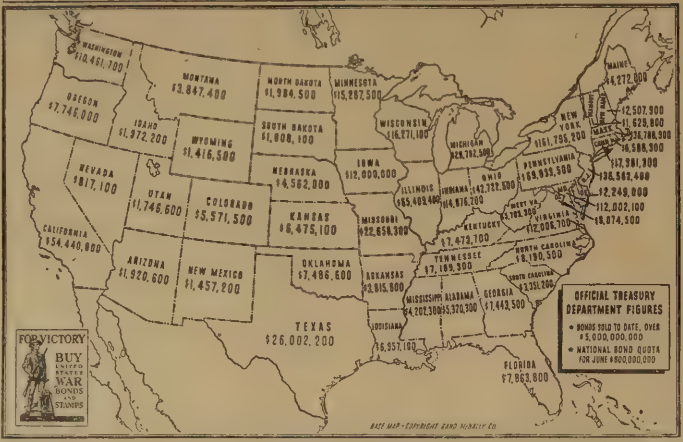
We're taking the offensive, too, against the enemy at home—the inflationary 6th column that blows prices sky high.

You can help in both fights by saving at least 10% of your money in U. S. War Bonds every pay day. Attack the Axis with your dollars today.

You can start with as little as a 10c War Stamp and you can get a $25.00 War Bond (maturity value) for only $18.75—at your local post office, bank or other convenient sales agency.

U. S. Treasury Department

Official U. S. Treasury War Bond Quotas for June



The above map of the country shows the War Bond Quota by states for the month of June totalling $800,000,000. Everybody every pay day is expected to invest at least ten per cent of his income in War Bonds to aid in financing America's offensive against the Axis powers. The ultimate quota for the nation will be on a basis of one billion dollars per month effective in July. This sum is necessary to provide for all-out production of planes, guns, ships and munitions adequate to arm our fighting men with the tools necessary to win the war.

Study Soil Conservation

As this war goes on soil conservation becomes not only a sounder farm policy but a war necessity. There is only one way to make the land produce continuously over a number of years and that is to carry out farm practices which will save and enrich the soil

In making these statements, A. W. Jones, State AAA administrator, urged each farmer to consider all possible conservation practices which could be followed on his farm. Summer and winter legumes, terracing, perennials, and pastures all play a necessary part in raising more food and feed needed.

The Agricultural Adjustment Agency has had as one of its main objectives for nearly ten years conserving and enriching the soil. If farmers will follow their farm plan as set up last fall thay will be able to contribute much more to the war effort, Jones added.

Peanut Cultivation

As one peanut grower to another W. B. Crawley, successful Pike County farmer and chairman of the State Agricultural Conservation Committee, says there is no "bugaboo" about cultivating peanuts.

"There seems to be a feeling among some farmers who are growing peanuts for the first time, that cultivating peanuts presents a big problem, but I think that this is something that can be handled by every farmer. Peanuts can be successfully cultivated with plow tools found on practically every Alabama farm. Weeders are fine things to have but 50 per cent of the farmers in the peanut area work out their peanuts with tools other than weeders.

'There are a few simple points farmers should remember in cultivating peanuts:

"(1) If no weeder is available use a single plow or one- or two-horse cultivator with scratcher or small sweep attachments.

"(2) Clean cultivation of peanuts is very important -- even more necessary than clean cultivation of cotton. Grass cuts down on yield to a great extent by taking moisture and plant food from peanuts.

"(3) Cultivate peanuts shallow and after each rain. It is desirable to cross-harrow. Cultivate Spanish peanuts until good growth is obtained and 'runner' peanuts until 'pegs' are formed.

"(4) If grass or weeds make it necessary go through peanuts with a hoe.

Three coins -two quarters and a five cent piece-were recieved by the USO in Birmingham. And these three coins were the most precious of any given to help the men in uniform of World War II.

The woman who brought them explained:

"A friend of mine has kept these coins since the first World War. They were taken from the pockets of her son who was lost in France. She has wanted to do something with the money, but could never decide just what. Birmingham News.

Invert sugar syrup is 30 per cent sweeter than sugar, and is good for sweetening fruits in baking and making ice cream, according to dairy research [illegible]. The syrup is easily made by mixing one pound of sugar and seven ounces of water, then adding 1-4 teaspoon of tartaric acid, covering and boiling the mixture for 30 minutes. BOND DRIVE CH'M THANKS WORKERS

L. H Reynolds, Chairman of the War Bond and Stamp drive in Chilton County, let it be known Tuesday morning that Chilton County citizens had answered the call of their country and with their help the Drive had been a big success.

In conversation with the writer Judge Reynolds said: "The people are to be congratulated. The War Bond Drive, from present indications was a declaration of confidence by the people in their Government and in their country. I wish to thank all of the fine workers who helped so wonderfully in this work and within the next week will have my full report complete and will publish it in the county papers.

The deadline for county reports was delayed because of the bad weather encountered during the campaign.

Reports from the State office showed, from preliminary tabulations, that Alabama has gone over the top again in this drive, however, the figures to date are far from being complete.

Only $22 would be deducted from the soldier's monthly paycheck, with the rest provided by the government. Slightly lower payments are provided for parents, and brothers and sisters. Full Steam Ahead In Salvage Drive!

SCRAP METAL in quantity was the yield when a Montgomery junk yard started cutting up an abandoned locomotive, proving that no piece of metal is too small or too large for the salvage-for-victory campaigners. Under orders from Governor Dixon, the drive is now being concentrated on scrap rubber, field of the most acute shortage. Above, a negro defense worker slices away part of the locomotive boiler with an acetylene torch. (State of Alabama News Bureau Photo).

WHY WE HAVE SO MANY FLIES

The question is frequently asked, why do we have so many flies? The answer is, we do not have a united effort to do away with breeding places like numerous cow stalls, mule barns, chicken houses and unprotected garbage furnishes ideal breeding places for the fly. The female fly starts laying eggs in these spots at the age of 2 and a half to twenty days. She lays 120 to 150 eggs at one batch and will lay from two to four batches. These eggs hatch in 24 hours into larvae or maggots. In 8 days the life cycle is complete, giving an average of 375 flies from one female fly. As a rule the adult fly will not travel any great distance from the site of breeding so it may be seen that the fly menace may be close at hand. It is to the interest of each community to work toward the elimination of fly breeding places as the most positive means of fly control.

Canners Get New Fruit Jars Thru FSA

Chilton County farm women cooperating with the Farm Security Administration are busy this month planning how they will fill all the new jars they have just received according to Miss Clara Patton, FSA county Home Management Supervisor.

During the past two weeks the 350 Farm Security families of Chilton County have received 2392 dozen fruit jars. They have also bought 6176 dozen caps and lids.

Each home maker was proud of every jar she received because she realizes the importance of doing more canning this year than ever before. The canning season has already begun with the housewife putting up berries, English peas, turnip greens, squash, beets, carrots, and beans.

Money From Scrap Rubber To Go To Civilian Defense

The greatest collection of scrap rubber in the entire history of the State was announced by Tom Bragg chairman of the State Salvage Committee

County Salvage Committees are at work in all of Alabama's 67 counties, Mr. Bragg said

All scrap rubber [illegible] from citizens during the campaign, which started Monday of this week and ends June 30, will be turned [illegible] at filling stations.

Filling stations will pay for reclaimable rubber at the rate of a penny a pound

Oil companies which serve the filling stations will collect the rubber and take it to central concentration points.

The excess resulting from the difference between $20 a short ton paid to the citizen, and the price paid by the Government to oil companies will [illegible] ties, such as the USO.

In Clanton only one service station has reported serving in this drive and W. E. Huddleston, operator, reports he has bought more than 6,000 pounds

Funds for the Chilton County Civilian Defense Council can be realized from the sale of scrap rubber to be collected in the intensified drive requested by President Roosevelt and Governor Dixon, it was pointed out in a letter received here from Leon Gilbert, executive secretary of the Alabama Salvage Committee

The scrap rubber collection drive will culminate in a number of July 4 celebrations in cities all over the state. Many county salvage committees are sponsoring Salvage-for Victory balls at which "Miss Victory" queens will be crowned, the winner to be selected in each case by the club or group collecting the most scrap rubber in the particular community

Air raid wardens are being asked to assist in organizing collections.

Since the value in dollars and cents of the scrap rubber that will be collected from the great majority of the people is small, "Mr Gilbert wrote all county chairmen, "it is suggested that the proceeds from the entire collection be used for your County Civilian Defense Council and that the people be appealed to to give their old rubber. If they do not want to do that, urge them to sell it"

SALVAGE-FOR-VICTORY BALLS FOR WORKERS

Many county salvage committees are planning salvage-for-victory balls to climax the rubber collection drive requested by President Roosevelt and Governor Dixon

State Highway Patrol Makes Annual Report

Traffic accidents on Alabama's streets and highways have killed 6,111 persons and injured at least 140,000 during the past 10 years, the State Departmnt of Public Safety said today in its annual report to Governor Frank M. Dixon.

Alabama is one of the five remaining states whose efforts to reduce traffic deaths and injuries and promote safer travel are seriously handicapped by absence of legislation requiring drivers to report accidents," Major James F. Brawner, director of the department, wrote in his report.

"The state's annual toll of death and destruction can be reduced considerably when complete facts are available. Reporting of these facts by drivers involved in accidents will permit the authorities to carry on a successful program of accident prevention. Such a program, based on facts, cannot fail to make Alabama a safer and more pleasant place to drive and walk --and live."

The report makes detailed studies of the known causes and conditions surrounding 3,623 traffic accidents investigated during 1941 by the State Highway Patrol, involving 6,145 drivers.

"The patrol investigated 560 of the 743 deaths occurring in the entire state in 1941," the report said. "The 183, or 25 per cent, not investigated but for which merely death notices were received, represent those occurring within the limits of communities and some in rural areas which did not come to the attention of the patrol."

The 3,628 accidents investigated are estimated by the National Safety Council to represent only 10 per cent of the actual number of traffic accidents which occurred in the state last year.

Cooking for Two

Now that the honeymoon is over, the serious business of housekeeping begins. Most brides manage well with the general cleaning routines, but marketing and cooking presents some problems.

No bride need feel alarmed, however, about cooking or marketing for two, for it is often just as much of a problem to market and feed two people as it is a dozen. To help out this year's bride, I've formulated a few rules by which she can start guiding her culinary adventures.

First, the marketing. How, exactly does one use the food dollar? It's done by fifths: one-fifth of the money should go for purchasing fruits and vegetables; the next fifth for milk and cheese, and the bride should remember to provide a pint of milk for her brand new husband and herself, every day, in drinking or cooking. Another fifth goes for meat, eggs and fish, and still another fifth provides the bread and cereals. The last fifth is used for purchasing fats like butter or enriched margarine, sugars and accessories.

The above yardstick will help the bride plan her well-balanced meals. Purchasing fruits, vegetables, milk, butter and cheese will be simple if she follows the guide.

The wise bride will buy carefully, planning menus in advance so there will be no waste and all leftovers will be used in menus.

Before she markets, she makes a list, looks through the advertisements to decide where she can get the most for her money. After making sure her list is complete, she goes to the grocers to do her buying. In this way she does not have to make too many trips and she can save her own time and that of her grocer. She knows there is a premium on time in wartime.

The bride also deplores waste, especially in buying meats. To aid her in making out the meat list for two, I have made out the following:

Beef:
- 2 club steaks
- 2 cube steaks
- 1 T-Bone steak
- 2 rib steaks
- 1 pound round steak (for swiss steak)
- 2 pounds pot roast
- 1 flank steak (for stuffing)
- 1 pound ground beef (for loaf)
- ½ pound ground beef (for patties and casseroles)
- ½ pound liver
- 4 large frankfurters

Pork:
- 2 chops (butterfly, loin or shoulder)
- 1½ pounds spareribs
- 4 to 6 slices thin Canadian bacon
- ¾ pound ham slice
- 2 pounds fresh loin roast
- 2 pounds smoked butt (boned)
- ½ pound bulk sausage or links
- ½ pound bacon
- ¾ pound tenderloin

Veal:
- 2 pounds rolled rump roast
- 2 loin chops
- ½ to ¾ pound steaks or cutlets
- 2 rib or kidney chops
- 1 sirloin steak
- 1½ pounds riblets
- 1 pound breast or neck meat for stews
- ½ pound liver

Lamb:
- 2 shoulder, loin, or rib chops
- 2 lamb patties
- 2½ pounds shoulder roast
- Small leg roast
- 2 lamb shanks
- 1½ pounds riblets
- ½ pounds cut up lamb for curry or casserole

Poultry:

One broiler usually serves two people. It is very often possible to buy certain pieces of fowl, especially chicken, and you can decide how much of each piece according to your appetite. For frying, a 3-pound chicken is just about right.

SPECIAL TODAY
CHUCK
ROAST

A simple dish for one of the bride's first dinners is this Swedish meat loaf. It's simple as first grade spelling to make, and certain to please the brand new husband. If there is some left over, the loaf is very delicious served cold in sandwiches or sliced with potato salad:

Swedish Meat Loaf.
(Serves 2)
⅔ cup twice-ground beef
⅓ cup twice-ground pork
¼ cup grated potato
1 tablespoon grated onion
3 tablespoons milk
Salt and pepper

Mix meat thoroughly, add onion, potato, milk and salt and pepper. Blend thoroughly, and shape into loaf. Place in a buttered loaf pan and bake ¾ of an hour in a moderate (350-degree) oven. Baste at 15-minute intervals. To make gravy (after loaf has baked) take 2 tablespoons of the drippings, blend with 2 tablespoons flour, ½ teaspoon salt, a few grains of pepper, and then mix in slowly 1 cup of milk.

Asparagus.

Take ⅔ of a pound of asparagus, clean, add 2½ cups boiling water with ¾ teaspoon salt. Boil uncovered, 15 minutes, drain, and serve with melted butter.

Fruit Plate.

Make a circle of orange slices on a large individual platter. In the center of the wreath, place a lettuce cup, fill with avocado balls, a devilled egg and watercress.

Use halved strawberries for one fruit mound at the side of the plate, raspberries and blackberries for the second berry patch, with a cluster of cherries for further variety.

Select easy-to-peel Valencia oranges for slicing purposes.

Bride's Biscuits are exquisitely simple to make if you use this recipe:

Bride's Biscuits.
(Makes 18 Biscuits)
2 cups enriched, sifted flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
2 to 4 tablespoons shortening
⅔ to ¾ cup milk
2 tablespoons softened butter or margarine

Sift dry ingredients together, cut in shortening. Add milk to form a soft mixture. Turn on lightly floured board and knead ½ minute. Pat out to ½ inch thickness. Spread with 1 tablespoon butter. Fold over and spread top with remaining butter. Cut with a 2-inch cutter. Bake on a baking sheet in a hot (450-degree) oven 10 to 12 minutes.

Why get hot and bothered over your cooking and household problems when you can get expert advice on them? Write, explaining your problem to Miss Lynn Chambers, Western Newspaper Union, 210 South Desplaines Street, Chicago, Illinois. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for your reply.

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Lynn Says:

Here are the rules by which to substitute honey and corn syrup for sugar in your recipes.

In using honey, substitute ¾ to 1 cup of honey for each cup of granulated sugar, but reduce the liquid in the recipe ¼ cup for each cup of honey used.

In using corn syrup, substitute 2 cups of corn syrup for each cup of granulated sugar. Reduce the liquid in the recipe by one-fourth.

If you wish to substitute corn syrup for only part of the sugar you may substitute 1 cup of corn syrup for each ½ cup of sugar and reduce your liquid one-eighth.

Because of the difference in flavors of substitute products, be prepared to have a slight change of flavor in the food you prepare with them.

Honey cakes and cookies, if allowed to ripen, will have better flavor.

War Also Brings Livestock Diseases

U. S. Veterinarians Mobilize for Action

(Special to Western Newspaper Union.)

Will American farmers, in this war, be able to keep down the livestock plagues which have cut so seriously into the nation's food production in some of our former wars?

Will we be able to deliver the millions of tons of food needed to help win the war for ourselves and our allies?

These questions are causing serious concern to farm and livestock leaders this spring, and definite steps are already being taken to throw every possible safeguard around the nation's livestock production machinery during this critical 1942.

One of the most important steps in this direction is being taken this month with the mobilizing of the entire veterinary profession from coast to coast, under preparedness committees named by the various state veterinary medical associations.

Another step is the inspection service now being maintained at all important ports of entry into the United States. Every animal brought in from a foreign country is given a thorough examination by government veterinarians to make sure that foreign livestock plagues are not brought in to threaten our home herds.

Civil War Epidemic.

That serious outbreaks of livestock disease could wreck certain phases of our food producing effort is evidenced by the history of some of America's former wars. During the Civil war, for example, our cattle population was virtually wiped out in some sections by Texas fever. Cattle in other areas were devastated by outbreaks of pleuropneumonia. Large sections of the swine belt experienced severe outbreaks of hog cholera. As a result, meat supplies for our armies were strictly limited, and "hard tack and sow belly" became a by-word among soldiers of the Civil war.

With livestock disease controls broken down, Europe's great food producing regions are being swept today by severe outbreaks, which are adding their share to starvation conditions in the war-torn regions.

"America is the most healthful country in the world for livestock and we intend to keep it so despite the stress of war conditions," Dr. H. W. Jakeman, president of the American Veterinary Medical association, said this week in reporting upon the wartime program of the veterinary profession.

Steps by which farmers can cooperate in the campaign against preventable livestock disease include:

Raising pigs on clean ground, to avoid infection by disease germs lurking in old hog lots.

Calfhood vaccination to prevent Bang's disease losses. Inspection, aggregation, and treatment of dairy cattle for mastitis.

Immunization of horses against encephalomyelitis before the insect and mosquito season.

Isolation of newly purchased livestock from the home herd for a safe period to avoid spreading diseases.

Prompt diagnosis by a qualified veterinarian at the first signs of livestock illness.

Ready and Able

Agriculture today is in many ways better organized to meet the increased production of farm products which we need to feed our armies and those of the United Nations. Yet care should be exercised to see that soil resources are not depleted for the sake of possible temporary gains. Also that the fertility resources of the soil are not wasted.

Avoid plowing land with slopes of 25 per cent or better; practice contour or strip cropping; plant cover crops for soil protection; these are just a few of the practices suggested. Farmers could do well to consult their county agricultural agents for help on preventing erosion and the depletion of soil elements.

ALFALFA BREEDERS 'GOIN' TO TOWN' WITH NEW STRAINS

Alfalfa breeders are "going to town"—literally—with some of the promising new strains that yield well and are resistant to disease and weather injury. This is because a vacant lot in a town is likely to be the best place available to increase small quantities of seed with reasonable assurance of protecting it from contamination by unimproved alfalfas that will effect the new strains.

STAGE SCREEN RADIO

By VIRGINIA VALE
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

THE Bennetts of Broadway and Hollywood — Richard and his daughters, Constance, Joan and Barbara — have never appeared together on either stage or screen. But thanks to Joan's sense of humor they'll do it vicariously in Columbia's "The Wife Takes a Flyer." An old family picture album figures prominently in the script. With the consent of the director, Richard Wallace, Joan filled it with the oldest and funniest photographs of her father and sisters that she could find—and the glamorous Bennetts will appear as a group of sturdy Dutch country folk. Joan's the only one to appear personally; she co-stars with Franchot Tone.

Edmund O'Brien has left RKO Radio, where he's been for the last two years. Universal has bought his contract, and assigned him to the role opposite Deanna Durbin in "Forever Yours." He'll play an American volunteer flier with the Chinese army.

Ann Sheridan, whom Paramount discovered as a Texas kindergarten teacher in 1933, will return to that studio to play Texas Guinan, famous night club owner of Broadway in the roaring Twenties, who greeted patrons with "Hullo, sucker!" She wanted the role, Paramount wanted her for it, Warner Bros. wanted Fred MacMurray for "Princess O'Rourke," so a bit of swapping went on; now everybody's happy.

It isn't often that you can see a government official flitting about the screen in a woman's nightgown, that's several sizes too large for him; but you'll be able to in "They All Kissed the Bride" unless changes are made. The actor's Melvyn Douglas, occupying an important post with the Office of Civilian Defense. He wrote Director Alexander Hall asking that the scene be deleted, but it's part of the plot.

Cecil B. DeMille, when he assembled, edited and produced "Land of Liberty" for the movie industry, reserved the right to designate one war charity to receive $5,000 of the receipts. He recently gave it to the Queen Wilhelmina Fund for Dutch war relief. Appropriate, as he's a descendant of a family that emigrated from Holland in 1658.

In broadcast parlance, a shot in the arm is any new situation devised by a script writer to put new life into a serial. "Valiant Lady" got one recently, but it happened also to be a shot in the heart; Joan Blaine, widowed one week, met a young millionaire the next!

Dorothy Lamour is going back to 1900 when she begins work in "Galveston," a spectacular production which will have its climax in the Galveston flood. Two of her films, "Beyond the Blue Horizon" and "Road to Morocco," with Hope and Crosby, await release.

Success story: Five years ago writer - director - producer Charles Martin paid Martha Scott $20 for playing a small role on one of his "Five Star Final" programs. Later, he gave her more opportunity and more pay. She made good on the stage and on the screen—and when she appeared recently on the CBS Playhouse in his version of "Bachelor Mother" her check was for $2,000.

Here's a bathtub scene that not even DeMille ever thought of. It's in "Cairo." Jeanette MacDonald takes a bubble bath, Ethel Waters is her maid, and they sing "Figaro" from the "Barber of Seville"—Miss Waters jiving, Miss MacDonald going operatic.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON
Consolidated Features—WNU Features.

NEW YORK. — After the first World war, the war department picked Brig. Gen. Hanson E. Ely, as he was then, to "read, mark, learn and inwardly digest" our war experience. This he did, as president of the army war college, and his documented and formulated findings of what our army learned in this short, preliminary bout have been worked into our military heritage and are now being used in the main event.

'One Who Can Digest Failures And Successes'

Major General Ely rates any casual, off-hand optimist when he says we're doing all right in this war, that we're getting plenty of fighting tools, and that officers and men have what it takes. One feels a bit offside if he gets too much this way or that, but in this corner we can't help being bucked up when any one of General Ely's professional detachment says we're coming through. He is 75 years old, having retired from active duty in November, 1931, when he reached the statutory retirement age. He didn't "shoulder his crutch and tell how battles were won." He continued as an instructor in the war college in Washington, lecturing on "the psychology of the battlefield." And it is interesting to find an old - timer hoping instead of croaking, and telling how much better they used to do things in his day.

He is a huge man, supercharged with physical and mental energy, and hit his later years with a tremendous momentum. They call him "Ely of Cantigny." That goes back to 1918, when he commanded and led the 28th infantry when it captured Cantigny in one of our most brilliantly executed victories of the war. This and other such exploits brought him the Distinguished Service Cross, the Distinguished Service medal and five awards of the Croix de Guerre.

He was born in Independence, Iowa, and, after his graduation from West Point, taught military science at the University of Iowa. He was in the Philippines, fighting and hacking his way through the jungles with Gen. Frederick Funston, from 1898 to 1904, back again in 1907, to remain five years and make the first complete map of the Philippines. He is one of the nation's leading authorities on tactics and battle leadership—with a mind flexible enough to turn from tactics to the improvisations of strategy, if that is what is needed.

A LEAN and academic but tough bachelor of the science of education, in the army after winning scholastic laurels, is in command of our new parachute force, poised in Ireland for a leap to the mainland. He is Brig. Gen. William C. Lee, Colonel Lee until a few weeks ago, a native of North Carolina, born with an insatiable desire both to get and to impart information. He was an early special pleader and experimenter in parachute jumping, as well as mechanized preparedness in general.

Here's a Scientist Busy Conditioning Our Sky Hoppers

The parachute army numbers about 8,000 men and one wonders how lads not long out of a classroom or a soft job on the ground, with no practice war for a workout, will take to this ultra-modern rough-and-tumble of sky and land.

General Lee figured all that. He formulated the science of physical, sensory emotional conditioning of human raw material, with a view to reducing nerve and reflex variables to a calculable minimum. To do this, he wanted to know more about communicating precise knowledge, so he knocked off from active service and, in 1936, after 19 years in the army, took his degree in the science of education, at the University of North Carolina. He works the theory of plastic endowment, the conditioning reflex, and the transmission of the social heritage into teaching rookies to take a dive, pull the rip-cord at the right split-second, unlimber their guns and score passing marks thereafter.

General Lee was born in 1895 and entered the army from the University of North Carolina in 1917. An incurable bookworm, but always craving action, he wolfed all available army courses, including the officers course of the infantry school, the full table d'hote of the tank school, from which he was graduated in 1930, the general staff school, and then back to Chapel Hill for coaching in telling what he knew. He was appointed to his present command last March "to formulate tactical and training doctrine for airborne troops."

EVERY kind of cotton goods from dainty chintz to bold plaid gingham is being used for bedspreads. Most of these materials are about 36 inches wide and you will need 11½ yards for a bed 54 inches wide. See diagrams for cutting dimensions.

Cut the center portions first; then the 18-inch side sections for the pillow cover; then the 10-inch strips for the pillow cover and spread. This leaves a 26-inch-wide strip for the side ruffles of the spread. If you make your own seam welting, cover cord with bias strips basted, as at A, and stitched with the cording foot, as at B.

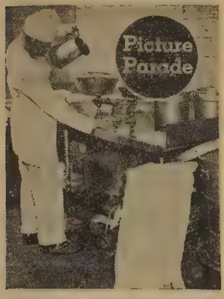
Baking Bread for Our Doughboys

Keeping pace with the rapid expansion of the army, the Fourth Corps Area School for Bakers and Cooks, whose parent organization is at Fort Benning, Ga., has grown from one school with a personnel of 16 to eight schools located throughout the Fourth Corps area, and with an especially selected personnel of 212 enlisted men. The function of these schools is to train selected officers and enlisted men in the theory and practice of cooking, baking, nutrition and mess management, as well as the use of equipment.



Private William Claycomb of Blairsville, Pa., weighs the ingredients for bread.

The next step in bread-making is to dump a bag of flour into the mechanical mixer.

Private Sofness of Boston, left, cuts the mixed dough as it comes from the mechanical mixer. Private Glick of New York operates the mixer.

Private J. R. Bowers of Henrietta, Okla., removes the mixed dough from the trough to the bench where it will be kneaded. He seems to like his job.

After the dough has set for 24 hours to rise, it is placed on this workbench where it is kneaded, weighed and placed into the pans for immediate baking.

In the picture above, Private A. G. Hodges of Galax, Va., (right) pulls the bread from the baking ovens, while Private Joseph Adams of Rochester, N. Y., removes the baked bread. Right: Dumping the hot bread.

NANA WNU service

PRECISELY 22 years ago the Gray Eagle led Cleveland to her last pennant—her only pennant in some 50 years and more.

The Gray Eagle is better known as Tris Speaker—one of the great outfielders, one of the great ball players, of all baseball time. The Gray Eagle was the flying hawk who prevented Ty Cobb from leading the American league 13 consecutive seasons. This makes Tris half-eagle and half-hawk—especially ball hawk.

Tris Speaker

"I'd like to tell you something about this kid Lou Boudreau," Tris said.

"Not a bad manager," we suggested.

"Not a bad manager," the Eagle almost screamed. "If he has the chance to keep going—I'm talking about the war now—he'll be one of the best that baseball ever knew.

"Here's a 24-year-old kid who is smart, game, crafty, forceful, respected and admired by every man on his club—and a corking ball player on the side.

"But the war is far more important than Boudreau or baseball. No one knows what will happen a little later on. I'm just trying to tell you what Boudreau might have been in normal times."

How It Happened

"When Alva Bradley, president of the Cleveland club, was looking around for a new manager," Speaker continued, "he asked me about three or four possibilities. They were all good men.

> "But I asked Alva, 'Why go away from your own club?'
> " 'Who would that be?' Mr. Bradley asked.
>
> " 'A kid named Boudreau,' I said. 'How can you find a better man?'

" 'Lou's only 24,' Bradley said.

" 'If he were 21 I'd still like him. In a year or two he'll be one of the best in baseball. Take him and give him a chance.'

"At that time we were not at war. I figured then that Boudreau would need a year or two, or maybe three, to pick up the answers. He's picked them up, with the material he had.

"Lou took over a club that wasn't so hot last season—even with Bob Feller winning 25 games. Lou didn't have Feller around this spring. Feller has a much bigger job to look after.

Lou Boudreau

Cleveland, minus Bob Feller, looked to be one of the major flops. Feller meant Cleveland. Bob had won 24 games in 1939, 27 games in 1940, and 25 games in 1941. When you lose a guy who can win 76 games for you in three years, you've lost more than your shirt!

Boudreau's Job

"When Boudreau took his Cleveland club south this spring, he understood what Feller's absence meant. He knew the psychological effect. 'I don't think,' he told his squad, 'this is a one-man club. Let's prove it.'

"I don't know where Cleveland will finish this season. Everyone who knows baseball also knows that the Yankees have most of the good ball players. How can you beat a club that has Joe Gordon, Bill Dickey, Joe DiMaggio, Charlie Keller, and such pitchers as Bonham, Ruffing, Russo, Chandler, Breuer, Donald and a few more.

"But in this first year, with Feller missing, the Indians are still up there giving the Yankees a battle.

"And don't forget there are hardly any members of this Cleveland squad who could even make the Yankee team."

About the Eagle

We turned the pages back to 1908, only 34 years ago, when Tris was playing with Little Rock. That was our first meeting. The Gray Eagle was a great ball player then.

Time has taken nothing from him. He has been beyond all question the greatest fielding outfielder in the game's history—and I can give you Jimmy McAleer, Fred Clarke, Jimmy Sheckard (Ring Lardner's pick), Ty Cobb, Babe Ruth, Joe Jackson, and several others.

And normally Tris was better than a .350 hitter. Beyond this, the Gray Eagle from Hubbard City, Texas, has had more brains than most of the tribe.

Speaker has had the personality that belongs only to a few around the top rung. He is now in his fifties, all gray and partly bald, but still more ready and willing to get in any form of war work where he might be useful. At present he is on a draft board in Cleveland "where," he tells you, "we are playing no favorites." And he's not just saying that.

CHILTON COUNTY NEWS

Entered in the Postoffice at Clanton, Alabama, as second-class matter under the Act of Congress of March, 1897

RELICS OF THE FEE SYSTEM

Over in Talladega County one of the issues emphasized in the run-off primary election by legislative candidates was the fee system. Should the probate judge be placed on a $6,000 salary, or should he continue to be paid by fees?

In counties which have abandoned the old and discredited fee system for paying officials, it comes as something of a shock to find that there are still enlightened counties in Alabama which feel that the only way to get good service out of a public official is to pay him a special handout for each act he performs. Of course it is not true. There are plenty of good honest men who will perform the duties of public office for a fixed salary and without having to be pampered by fees. The fee grabber usually wants to keep the fee system because it is so highly lucrative. In fact, the old days of the fee system in Alabama saw disgracefully high sums drawn by office holders whose raids upon the public treasury finally caused the wave of indignation which abolished fees in most of the larger counties of the state.

There is nothing to be said in favor of the fee system except that it is a good profitable racket for somebody who has enough friends to keep it from being interfered with by the legislature. Senatorial courtesy governs, and whatever the Senator from a given district wants is what the legislature does. All a fee grabber has to do, therefore, is to elect a Senator and keep him in a good humor. His fees are then safe from attack. What a lot of impositions upon the public are perpetrated in the name of senatorial courtesy!—Alabama Journal

THE LEGISLATURE SHOULD ABOLISH ABSENTEE VOTING

One of the first acts of the 1943 legislature should be the outright abolishment of absentee voting in any election held in Alabama.

Pointing out specific examples of flagrant misuse of the absentee ballot is unnecessary. Every informed citizen knows that the system has degenerated into an outright racket, manipulated at all too many elections by the "smartest" politician for themselves or for their favorite candidate.

The safe guards provided to insure a fair and honest method of allowing an absent voter to cast a ballot, have been openly and flagrantly violated. Nothing whatever is ever done to punish these violations or to guard against repetition of such violations. Therefore the one way to end such corruption, is to abolish the practice of absentee voting.

In some cases it would deprive a voter of the right to vote-but in not many. The great bulk of all absentee voters could and should vote in the county and state wherein they reside. Citizens living away for several months or years find it difficult to vote intelligently because they are out of personal touch with both issues and candidates.

Absentee voting breeds corruption of the ballot. It is a canker in the breast of clean elections. The one effective way to guard against its corrupting influences is to cut it out of the ballot box.—Cullman Democrat.

LOCAL NEWSPAPER VITAL IN CHANGING WORLD

The newspaper will assume a position of growing importance in meeting a needed change in advertising and selling methods to fit them into a world vastly altered by war time. Wm H. Howard, Executive Vice-President of R. H. Macy & Co., said at a convention of National Federation of Sales Executives, in New York.

The need is for sharper, briefer messages in advertising to get the sales story across to people who now have less time than ever before for details.

Mr. Howard said changes in daily living would affect a wide variety of articles and predicted that a year from now people would be doing without things "that we never dreamed we would have to do without."

The local newspaper will assume growing importance in the scheme of things, Mr. Howard said, because people will confine their purchases to their own towns. He predicted greater reading of newspapers and magazines and more interest in home decoration.

NEWS AND ADVERTISING

News Something strange, or newly happened; A report of a recent event, information about something before unknown; fresh tidings; recent intelligence.

ADVERTISING: To give notice to; to notify; to give public notice of; to give notice or information.

A NEWSPAPER should never be asked to carry "advertising" camaflouged as "news." The major commodity a newspaper has for sale is ADVERTISING.

You would not expect your merchant to give away the major commodity in his stock of merchandise, would you?

The only kind of paper the newspapers are getting FREE is tons of "releases" that everyone on any sort of government pay roll is sending us—evidently believing that is the best way to keep the pay check coming down.

If the Rubber Industry undertakes to hamstring the production of synthetic rubber for civilian use in this time of stress, the entire industry should be taken over by the Government and operated in the interest of the war needs of the Nation.

You say that you hate tyrany and slavery. What about the capitalistic colussus that will be collecting interest on the "securities" of this war from unborn generations for hundreds and hundreds of years?

Now that Congress has appropriated $300,000 more for WPA, before anybody else can jump in let's start on Congress to pension all editors and newspapermen. There is no question about the need being there.

FOR VICTORY—BUY WAR BONDS AND STAMPS

A Message From 4-H Club President

America is now involved in the greatest and most destructive war in her history. 4-H Club members have been asked to take a leading part in winning the victory. Are you doing your part?

We must save all that we can. Waste articles that were formerly in our way have suddenly become of uttermost importance. Save all of the old scrap iron, paper, rags, tin cans and scrap rubber around your home. It is badly needed for national defense.

Another important way that we can help is to lend our savings to the government by buying war savings bonds and stamps. It will be a lot more pleasant to lend to the government now than it will be to stand by while they take all that you have, including your own free rights.

Recently a drive was made among the clubs of this county for each member in every individual club to own at least one war savings stamp So far, only one club in Chilton County has achieved that goal. We would like for every 4-H Club members in Chilton County to own some war saving stamps Let's have some more 100 per cent reports from other clubs. Encourage all members of your club who haven't already done so to buy war savings stamps at once.

As all of you know, 4-H Clubs in all counties have always stressed the prevention of forest fires in our woodland areas. The number of forest fires in Alabama this year is higher than usual. Is this due to some carelessness on the part of 4-H club members? You have probably seen a poster somewhere in your community on forest fire prevention put up by your local club president. Be careful to obey all of the rules found on this poster and encourage others to do so. Our forests are a valuable heritage. We must protect them.

At the last meeting of the Chilton County 4-H Club council we set up several goals that we plan to strive to reach this year in this county. It will be well for every club president to obtain a copy of these goals and read them at the next club meeting. I would like to ask you for your earnest cooperation in carrying out all of these goals. Let's make this year the best year ever in 4-H Club work in Chilton County.

Sincerely Yours,
JESSE CULP
President, Chilton County 4-H Club Council.

CHILTON COUNTY FARMERS ASKED TO AID IN BAG CONSERVATION

Chilton County farmers farm organizations, grain, feed, and seed dealers were asked today by Mr. Napoleon Posey, Chairman of Chilton County War Board, to aid in the nation-wide bag conservation program launched recently by Secretary of Agriculture, Claude R. Wickard.

"Every farmer and dealer in this county," Mr. Posey said, "has an important part to take in the conservation of fabric bags (burlap and cotton) needed for agricultural commodities this year. There is a shortage of bags now, but if we take care of those we have and keep them in use we will be doing much to offset the shortage and a great deal to prevent it from becoming a serious one.

"Wartime expansion in American agriculture means that approximately two billion bags will be needed for packaging farm commodities in 1942. That is roughly 500 million more bags than would be used under normal conditions.

"Our part in the conservation program is to see that every bag now on hand and in use does its full job and a great deal more. War has cut deeply into the imports of burlap from India and the stocks of this material now on hand must be shared with our military forces. We have plenty of cotton in the raw state, but mills having the facilities to make bagging materials are operating to capacity to turn out war orders."

Mr. Posey pointed out that farmers can take the first step in bag conservation by taking stock of the bags they have on hand, by sorting them for size, type and condition and storing them where they will be dry and safe. Farmers are urged to sell the bags they will not need

Some suggestions on the care and conservation of bags are listed below:

Don't waste burlap or cotton bags --every one is a national asset, vitally needed to carry food and other essentials to our fighting forcs and our domestic workers

1. Open bags without cutting them --your dealer can show you how.
2. Protect filled bags from rats and mice.
3. Store filled or empty bags in a dry place.
4. Remove from bags, as soon as practicable, such materials as lime and fertilizer--they make bags unusable.
5. Empty bags promptly, turn them inside out, beat, wash, (If necessary), and hang them over a wire.
6. Dry wet bags in the sun to prevent mildew and rot.
7. Sell bags you do not need so they can do double duty. Bags for re-sale should be sorted for kind (burlap or cotton), and for size. They should be bundled according to their condition,
   (a) excellent condition; no repair necessary,
   (b) patched bags; no repair necessary,
   (c) bags which can be cleaned or repaired,
   (d) torn or slashed bags not usable as containers.

Mrs. W. F. Fletcher and Matt Griffith, twin sister and brother, residing on Burleon mountain, North Alabama, will be 73 years old Aug. 10. Their mother lived to an age of an 100 years, one month and 23 days.

MORAL ECHOES

By Rev. D. W. Haskew, D. D.

The train stopped at a mining station and a workman entered the coach in haste. His brow was wet with perspiration and his garments were soiled with dust and grime of the pit. He sat down just in front of my seat, and as he did so he apologized for his unkept condition by saying, "I belong to the reserve and I am called to duty. I did not take the time to wash and change." The army had called for him to report and he was on his way. I have often wondered if we as Christians are as ready to obey the call of Jesus Christ? When God speaks to us, we are called to an important task and we should answer with a readiness that puts us on the way.

Jonah not only paid the fare of the ship when he was running away from God but he also paid the full price of disobedience. Notice that all of his journey was, "Going Down." First he went down to Joppa. From the sweet highlands where he walked and talked with God, he went down to the lowlands where there was miasma and disease. After going on the ship, he went down to his bunk and fell fast asleep. When the crew of the vessel threw him over into the sea, he went down into the belly of the whale, and then on down to the very bottom of the great deep. When we disobey God it means that our course is ever downward. Disobedience is the weight that sinks us deeper and deeper into the depths of ruin.

Little Alma was on the street car going home, when an old fat lady came in and sat down on the seat beside her. Before flopping down, the cross old lady said, "Little brat, get out of my way". And down she came. Alma was then covered over with coats, bundles and groceries, but she sat there with never a word of complaint. When she arrived at home and told her mother how she had been smothered and crushed by the unkind old woman, her mother wanted to know why she did not resent such treatment, but Alma replied, "Oh mother, it wasn't worth while to trouble about it; we had such a little way to go together. For each of us that would be a great motto for our life journey. So many of the annoyances of life are not worth mentioning. After all, we have only a little way to go together and why make the journey an unpleasant one.

Should you come face to face with a disease that was carrying off all who took it, you would keep away from the exposure. If thirty men walking along a cliff should fall into the depths below, you would not try that cliff. If forty men had been devoured by the sharks on the shark infested shore, you would refuse to enter the water at that point. And yet you see men and women drinking, and drinking ruins them, but you are not warned to let whiskey alone. And yet, you see homes broken up because of infidelity and immorality, but you go right on and commit adultery. And yet, you see dishonesty as it disgraces and ruins your fellowman, but you practice dishonesty just the same. It seems mighty hard for people to learn lessons, and be warned, when others go down in ruin. Oh slow of heart, to believe the testimony of mankind. The thing that will ruin your fellowman will ruin you.

The old time Methodist preacher delivered a soul stiring sermon on Sunday about Eternal Punishment The next day a pompus young man came to the doctor and said, "Reverend there is a dispute between you an me, and I have called to see if we can settle it" "Ah", said the clergyman, "What is it?" "Why" replied the egotist, "You say that the wicked will go away into everlasting punishment, and I do not think that they will, for there is no such thing. "Oh, if that is all" replied the minister, "There is no dispute between you and me. Just turn to Matt. 25 and 46, an you will find that the dispute is be tween you and Christ, and I advis that you take up the matter wi Him." We should be very careful ho we contradict, "Thus saith the Lo It is certain that Jesus knows mo about some things than we know pays to know the mind of the Mas er.

FOLKS AND THINGS ABOUT TOWN

By BEN

Well, it looks like we have made another mistake . . we have mentioned before that we thought that we had seen everything. Well we haven't Friday afternoon we got a hurry-up call from A. B. Windham out at the Smokehouse. We rushed out and, no, you can't guess. Yep, another fish story, except this one is true and just a little different. Jesse Dobine had caught a fish in his front yard that weighed nine ounces. It had wings at least three inches long on its side and a wing-fin on its back two or two and a half inches high, (boy what you been drinking?) under the wings were little tenacles about a inch long and resembled fingers. What it was or where it came from we couldn't say, but within the next week we will show you a picture of it and let you decide for yourself what it was. Those who were brave enough to offer an opinion said that it must have blown up here from the Gulf in the heavy winds of Friday.

Let's throw our bouquet this week to Mr. Fenn Jones for the good work he is doing on the Rationing Board. He works hard from early morning until late afternoon every day and probably gets less thanks for it than anybody in town. And remember, there isn't one penny goes to Mr. Jones for his undivided attention to this job. It is purely a patriotic duty that he is doing for his Country and his home town. It will be a good thing for those not getting just everything they ask for to remember. They should think twice' before they make ugly remarks about the board members Remarks that they do not mean and could not possibly mean if they are patriotic Americans. We are sure if it were possible nothing would please members of the Board better than to give everyone, everything that they ask for

And too there's Buck Roberts, ... Buck has served as Chief Registrar at every Selective Service registration in the City so far. It's got to where they don't ask him if he can serve, they just tell him to get his gang together and be ready. Buck says it is getting harder and harder for him to get assistants for the work. That isn't fair. If it is humanly possible everyone asked to serve, should serve . .... the one you register may put in months or years in "service" where you who register him only put in one day, and that under conditions that are quiet different.

We had a most pleasant caller Saturday afternoon. It was Mr. W. J Holley, of Birmingham. He was visiting friends in and about Clanton Mr. Holley will be 77 years of age on his next birthday but you would never suspect it by looking at him. In conversation we learned that he had visited in every country of any consequence on the globe with the exception of Russia and Italy. He spent two years and seven months in the Phillipines during the Spanish-American War and he says that if it were possible to turn the years back a few decades he would again probably be in the Pacific Islands.

It's been a long time since the young folks of Clanton had a real "get-to-gether," and enjoyed themselves. We don't know why but seems that everyone for the past two years have been wrapped up in their work, the war, their troubles, and the like. But, you'll always find the Clanton Lions Club in the lead when it comes to merriment and this time is no exception. Friday, (to-night) at the Thomason Hotel, is their annual "Ladies' Night" and a grand time has been planned by the Committee. There will be a banquet and dancing after. Nothing is being spared in their effort to show the members and visitors that, "all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy." We all have to mix a little recreation with our work if we are to be happy and contented. Personally, we're getting old, we'er just going for the intermission, anyway.

THIS SOLDIER SERVES NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. G W. Sansom received a letter from their son, Pvt. Vernon L. Sansom of Ft Bragg, N. C., containing a letter written by one of his Alabama buddies in Fort Bragg, and it was Vernon's request that we have it printed in the county papers. He has titled it

"A Lesson To All Slackers"

I am writing this short letter and every word is true.
Don't look away Draft Dodger for it's address to you
You feel at ease, and in no danger, back in the old home town.
You cracked up some pitiful stories, so the Draft Board would turn you down,
You never think of the real men who leave day after day.
You just think of the girl friends you get while they'er away.
You sit at home and read news papers and jump and yell, we'll win
Just where do you get that "we" stuff this war will be won by men
Just what do you think? Draft Dodger, that this free nation would do,
If all the men were slackers and afraid to fight like you
Well I guess that's about all Mr. Slacker I suppose your face is red
America is no place for your kind, and I mean every word I say.
So in closing this letter, Draft dodger just remember what I say bum" for I'm coming back some day.

The letter was: "By the boys from Fort Bragg, N C

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

U. S.-Russ Pact Means 'Second Front' And Co-Operation for Lasting Peace; Yank Warships Join British Blockade; New Pipeline to Supply Oil for East

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

How the United States can help Greece, now starving and prostrate under Nazi rule was among things discussed when King George II of Greece conferred with President Roosevelt during the Greek monarch's flying visit to Washington. Above, the President is shown with King George on the White House lawn.

U. S.-RUSS PACT:
'Second Front'

In triphammer succession came three moves by the United States, Russia and Great Britain that promised momentous consequences for the prosecution of the war and the safeguarding of the peace afterwards.

First, President Roosevelt announced that the United States and Russia had reached a "full understanding with regard to the urgent tasks of creating a second front in Europe in 1942." Second, British Foreign Minister Anthony Eden announced that Britain and Russia had signed a 20-year military and political alliance pledging peace and renouncing territorial greed. Third, the United States and Russia signed a mutual assistance agreement for prosecution of the war against the Axis, pledging increased lend-lease aid and post-war economic cooperation.

Central figure in negotiating the three-way understanding was Soviet Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov. The Russian statesman flew first to London and then hopped the Atlantic to Washington, where under the incognito of "Mr. Brown" he was a White House guest for a week. Not until Molotov was safely back in Moscow was the curtain of secrecy about his visit lifted.

Significance of this latest diplomatic coup for the United Nations is that war activities will be greatly speeded and the framework for a durable peace based on economic fair play provided.

OIL FOR EAST:
New Pipeline

Acting to avert a threatened fuel oil famine in the East, the War Production board authorized immediate construction of a 24-inch pipe line from Longview, Texas, to the Salem, Ill., area.

The new pipeline will cut in half the distance Texas oil has to travel at present by rail and inland waterway to reach the Atlantic seaboard.

While it will have a capacity of [illegible]0 barrels a day, the pipeline will not supply enough oil to lift gasoline rationing restrictions in the East, WPB officials declared. They pointed out that shipments of oil and oil products to the East have not been meeting essential demands, despite rigid rationing and that stocks have fallen dangerously below safety levels.

RUSSIAN WAR:
Nazis Speed Drive

Stepping up the tempo of their Russian offensive, Nazi armies and air forces pressed attacks on three major fronts. These included a push from Kharkov in the Ukraine, a drive against besieged Sevastopol in the Crimea and an air attack on Murmansk north of the Finnish sector.

With completion expected by December 1, the 550-mile pipeline will require 125,000 tons of finished steel.

The size of the force directed at Sevastopol suggested that the Nazis were at last getting their summer campaign under way. More than ten German divisions numbering 150,000 men were reported striking at the strategic Black sea city. The importance of this city is that it opens a gateway to the rich Caucasus oil fields.

From Moscow came a cheering communique announcing that "despite the intensity and stubbornness of the attacks, the enemy failed to break the resistance of the Sevastopol defenders."

YANK WARSHIPS:
Join British Fleet

As land and air warfare in Europe and Africa approached a critical stage, the Atlantic ocean battle theater crowded into the forefront with the announcement that a powerful task force of U. S. warships had joined the British home fleet.

Commanded by Rear Admiral Robert C. Giffen, the American naval force will help the British blockade German-controlled Europe, guard Allied convoys and hunt Axis submarines.

News that the Yank sea reinforcement had joined the British became public in connection with a three-day visit to an English port by King George VI, who boarded a U. S. battleship and saw other warships of the task force.

With British seapower scattered in the Atlantic, the Mediterranean and Pacific oceans, the arrival of substantial help from the American navy in the Atlantic area had significant implications. Important among these was that the stronger United Nations naval squadron now would be able to keep closer watch on the powerful Nazi warships lurking in Norwegian waters.

NAZI TERROR:
In Czechoslovakia

In a reign of terror following the death of Reinhard ("The Hangman") Heydrich at the hands of Czech patriots, Nazi Gestapo executioners slaughtered the entire male population of the Czech village of Liditz, banished its women and children to concentration camps and burned it to the ground.

The Axis-controlled Prague radio charged that the village had harbored Heydrich's killers. The town's population was estimated at 483, indicating that upward of 150 men were shot. Liditz was located a few miles west of Prague and not far from where "The Hangman" was fatally wounded by patriots while driving along a winding road.

ALEUTIAN ISLANDS:
Jap Footholds?

While the navy department denied Axis claims that Japanese navy and army units had established footholds on the inhabited areas of the Aleutian island chain stretching 1,500 miles across the north Pacific from Alaska, further reports of the extent of the American air and naval victory at Midway island came from Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander in chief of the Pacific fleet.

Admiral Nimitz intimated that of a Jap invasion fleet of more than 30 vessels engaged in the battle, probably half were casualties. Besides heavy loss in warships and transports, the enemy's toll of manpower ran into thousands.

That the Tokyo government was preparing the Nipponese public for news of the sea reverse was indicated by reports that an official spokesman had warned a radio audience not to expect that "all battle news could always be favorable."

MISCELLANY:

Omaha: Rich, high quality beef steaks will probably disappear from American tables this fall, because of present price ceiling regulations, according to Guy Scudder, secretary of the National Live Stock Advisory council. Because feed prices are not regulated, cannot feed animals up to a good market quality and must throw them on the market after short feeding, Scudder said.

FOOD VS. ARMS:
Anglo-U. S. Pool

The announcement by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Winston Churchill of the establishment of two combined boards to integrate Anglo-American arms production and plan the most effective use of food resources of the United Nations had a two-fold significance:

1. It meant that the United Nations' war effort would be speeded up tremendously by quicker production of essential materials and a more efficient use of shipping facilities.

2. It meant that careful plans for the post-war world were being laid, for the organization of the vast resources of the United States carried into peace-time operations could help solve international problems of distribution, eliminate cutthroat competition and raise living standards.

That both the arms production board and the food board would have the benefit of the best Anglo-American planning brains was evident from their personnel. Donald M. Nelson, war production chieftain, and Oliver Lyttleton, British minister of production, comprised the production board. Claude R. Wickard, secretary of agriculture, was named American representative on the food board, working with the Hon. R. H. Brand, head of the British Food mission.

Reduction of American food surpluses might become necessary, President Roosevelt warned, as a means of alleviating hardships abroad. One of the objectives of the food board, he said, is to distribute foodstuffs on a fair basis among all United Nations.

BUMPER CROPS:
For U. S. Farms

Progress in the battle for all-out food production was reported by the department of agriculture which predicted that all previous records of United States farm production may be "considerably exceeded" if weather conditions remain favorable.

The department said most crops were in better condition than at the corresponding time last year when the nation had one of the most bountiful harvests in its history.

A winter wheat production of 646,931,000 bushels was forecast. The department, likewise, predicted a spring wheat crop of 221,128,000 bushels. If harvested, a crop of this size once more would far exceed domestic requirements of about 700,000,000 bushels of wheat a year and add substantially to the nation's food stockpile for war purposes and peace-time planning.

WAR PRODUCTION:
Ahead of Schedule

Donald M. Nelson told the world that America is "doing the impossible" with war production exceeding all estimates.

The chairman of the War Production board in an address before the graduating class of the University of Missouri confidently declared:

"This year we shall make 60,000 airplanes and by the end of the year we shall be picking up speed for an even greater production. We have found our total production of war goods is higher than we had any reason to suppose it could be when blue prints were first prepared for war plants."

DONALD M. NELSON
". . . Impossible is accomplished."

But it was of the post-war period of opportunity as well as the conflict itself that the round-faced production boss spoke.

"If this war is costing us a fearful price," he said, "it is also developing for us new technique and new abilities. It is placing at our disposal an industrial plant—a set of developed resources—that will be beyond price.

"Poverty is not inevitable any more. The sum total of the world's greatest possible output of goods, divided by the sum total of the world's inhabitants, no longer means a little less than enough for everybody."

VICHY FRANCE:
Keep Ties

To most Americans the Vichy government of France is anathema. But to Ambassador William D. Leahy, in the United States since the return to power of pro-Axis Pierre Laval, the Petain regime has merit enough to warrant Uncle Sam in maintaining diplomatic relations.

In the eyes of most Americans, Petain is far less a Nazi tool than Laval, who is looked upon as a traitorous puppet.

The War isn't fought in Fox Holes alone

IT'S fought in the mind. It's fought with a will to win. It's fought with a belief in a cause worth dying for.

That will, that belief, is known as morale.

Our enemies have had years of indoctrination. They have been conditioned to believe themselves part of a "new order" . . . to which the contribution of their lives is small but all-important. They believe themselves cogs in a vast machine.

Our soldiers do not fight that way—because they do not live that way. Theirs is the belief in the sanctity of the individual.

To maintain their morale in the American way, the USO has devoted all its time and energy since practically the beginning of conscription.

It has done this by staffing and maintaining club houses near all training camps and in our outlying possessions from Alaska to the Caribbean.

Today its work is far greater than ever, its need for funds to carry on more than doubled.

The USO needs your help more than ever before!

High government and military officials—including General MacArthur—have praised the work done by the USO and recognized its importance in the war effort.

But it needs recognition from you—recognition in the way of dollars and cents. For the six national agencies which comprise the USO are publicly supported.

Now above all times, to make your dollars count, give to the USO!

Send your contribution to your local USO Committee or to National Headquarters, USO, Empire State Building, New York, N. Y.

Adeline Gray, 24-year-old girl parachutist, is shown being assisted by friends after she had made the first test jump with a nylon parachute at Hartford, Conn. Miss Gray jumped from 2,000 feet in the presence of army and navy observers, and representatives of the Pioneer Parachute company, makers of the nylon 'chute. The successful jump assured army and navy pilots of a constant supply of parachutes when the nation's stockpile of silk is exhausted.

Hope for Tires

There is now in large scale production an artificial rubber (thiokol) which promises to help carry the nation over its critical tire shortage. After the liquid has dried it will stand up well and give satisfactory mileage.

The Private Papers
Of a Cub Reporter:

You probably read, in the stories about John Barrymore, how saddened he was over the loss of his interned Jap valet and the Jap's family . . . On the other hand, some of Charles Chaplin's Jap servants turned out to be spies . . . The most ironic situation of all, we think, concerns Eugenia Clair Flatto, Grand Hostess of the American Gold Star Mothers' annual convention . . . Before the war, Mrs. Flatto had a loyal Jap gardener . . . He had been here for many years—had even fought for this nation in the last big war . . . But, because he is Japanese he had to be interned . . . Mrs. Flatto now has a new gardener, who is acceptable to the authorities—a German, who can't even speak English!

One of President Roosevelt's closest advisers, a New Yorker, was feasting in a delicatessen. As he started to leave, the owner handed him a small package . . . "This," he explained, "is for the President. It contains some of my best corned beef and pastrami. Please take it to him with my compliments" . . . The next day when the President opened the package, right on top of the spicy cold cuts were two dozen of the delicatessen man's cards . . . FDR sent for Steve Early and, handing the cards to him, dryly instructed:

"Here—pass these around to the various Embassies."

When FDR was assistant secretary of the navy, they say, he was visited by some ladies of the Temperance Union. They wanted him to christen the ships with soda pop instead of champagne.

"The trouble with you ladies," said Mr. Roosevelt, "is that instead of opposing the christening of a vessel with champagne, you should encourage it. And get a great temperance lesson."

"Why, how can we?" queried one of them.

"Well," he replied, "after the first taste of wine, the ship takes to water and sticks to it ever after."

Then there's the one about the Mussolini troops, who will go down in history as men who'd rather eat and make love than fight . . . One Italian captain decided to do something about it, and after a pep talk—he charged: "Avanti!" ("Forward!") and so shouting—he led them into battle.

When he turned, the captain found himself 50 yards ahead—alone! With all his men still seated on the ground—applauding and yelling: "Bravo! Bravo!"

Admirers of Herbert Bayard Swope were disappointed not to find an anecdote about him in our recent pillar called "Newspaperman Stuff." M. Throckmorton Cohn, who says Swope is a guy you always find in a photo finish when newspapermen are discussed, relays this one about him.

While exec editor down on the World, Swope formed a habit of depending a great deal for the exact time on the clock in the tower of the Tribune—which was directly across the way . . . Every now and then the Trib clock would stop. This riled Swope no end . . . So one day he got it off his chest by running this on the World's editorial page: "The Tribune tries to tell the administration how to run the government, yet cannot keep its own clock going."

For almost a year she has been trying to crash the Broadway heavens . . . To attract attention she circulated the fable that she is an heiress to millions and that her family pays her a large sum weekly to keep out of the theater . . . Naturally, that kind of a story got her a lot of publicity, and playwrights and producers catered to her as a potential backer . . . The thing exploded right in her pretty face when she was threatened with eviction over a $20 hotel bill.

Most top salary players could not squander their money even if they wanted to. The greater part of their salaries goes to taxes and professional and living expenses. The rest is handled by business managers.

Hollywood stars are not the gourmets they are cracked up to be. They have to eat sparingly of simple foods in order to maintain their figures and physical condition. Most stars' dream of Paradise is to be able to eat steak and potatoes and pie whenever they feel like it—but they don't.

Modern Americans believe more myth and legend about Hollywood than did the ancient Greeks about the boys from Mount Olympus, from Ajax to Zeus, inclusive.

WAAC ENLISTMENTS

Thousands of determined women, eager to don the WAAC uniform, are driving WAAC officials wacky.

The campaign for enlistments in the Women's Army Auxiliary corps has succeeded too well. Maj. Oveta Culp Hobby and her chief lieutenants, Mrs. Arthur Woods and Mrs. Genevieve Forbes Herrick, have a bear by the tail and they know it.

Sad truth is that there cannot possibly be more than 500 WAAC officer-candidates taken in now. No "auxiliaries," that is, non-officer WAAC's, can be recruited until the officers have been trained, possibly around September 15. The greatest number of WAAC's that can be taken in this year is estimated at 25,000, and all of these will be subjected to a minimum of four weeks' training. This leaves some 275,000 disappointed would-be WAAC's out of an estimated registration of 300,000.

Toughest job of all falls upon the chief recruiting officers in the nine army corps areas. It is their job to sort out the WAAC registrants and select the lucky women. Those chosen then must face a series of very stiff aptitude tests.

BOND LOTTERY

Rep. Adolph Sabath of Illinois, genial chairman of the house rules committee, wasn't able to sell the President on government-sponsored lotteries when he called at the White House. However, he was given a novel idea on how to use the lottery principle in the sale of war bonds.

Sabath contended that a legalized lottery, conducted monthly by the treasury, would greatly aid in relieving taxation and raise billions in revenue for the war effort.

Under a bill he is sponsoring, the Illinoisan said, the government would realize approximately $875,000,000 from the sale of a billion $1 tickets, whereas if it borrowed this amount at 3 per cent for 20 years, the interest alone would total $525,000,000.

"It wouldn't be the first time our government has held a lottery," argued Sabath. "We did it in 1776 to help finance the Revolutionary war."

"Yes, I know," said the President, adding that he doubted the advisability of lotteries at this time because of the strong opposition of religious groups. Instead, he proposed a compromise.

"Why not apply your lottery ideas to the sale of war bonds," he suggested. "The Belgian government held bond lotteries for a number of years."

SHAKY CHINA

Chinese leaders in Washington are not shouting it from the housetops, but behind closed doors they are doing some tough talking to the effect that an increasing number of Chinese are getting discouraged about the war and would like to see some kind of appeasement with Japan. Chinese leaders give this as the reason why China must have airplanes—and have them immediately.

The Chinese don't demand a lot of planes. But they do say that even a small fraction of the munitions going to Russia would work wonders in bolstering China.

Here is the Chinese picture now being presented to U. S. war strategists. After five years of war, the Chinese are warweary. Most discouraging thing is the ironical fact that the Chinese are worse off now, with Allies, than they were before, fighting alone. The Chinese were delighted after Pearl Harbor because it meant they had a powerful ally against Japan. But now after six months of it, they almost wish they had been left to hold out alone.

That is why recent reverses in Burma and along the China coast have shaken Chinese determination down to the foundation.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek is not weakening. But many Chinese are, especially the well-to-do class, the people who yearn for restoration of normal business, who would rather have a chance to make money and live peacefully even under the Japs than to pay the frightful cost of continued war.

Meanwhile, Japan seems determined to crush China now. Apparently the U. S. bombing raids on Tokyo scared the Japs sick, made them see the danger of nearby Chinese bases, caused them to shift their strategy to cleaning up China ahead of other warfronts.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Heard in the navy press room: A sailor after 20 years' service retired with a sizeable fortune of $60,000. He amassed this sum through careful investment, enterprise, initiative—and the death of an uncle who left him $59,000.

The war department's service of supply shortly will release a new movie called, "The Army Behind the Army," showing America's vast war production machine. The picture will be shown in defense plants throughout the country.

If you're concerned about what sort of gift to send a friend or relative in one of Uncle Sam's branches of the services, your worries are over. If he smokes a pipe or rolls-his-own, the answer is a pound of tobacco. Numerous surveys made among soldiers, sailors, marines, and Coast Guardsmen show that tobacco ranks first on his gift list. Local tobacco dealers are featuring Prince Albert in the pound can for service men. Prince Albert, the world's largest-selling smoking tobacco, is a big favorite among many men in the service. —Adv.

Treat Constipation This Gentler Way!

Many folks say that almost as bad as constipation are harsh cathartics and purges. That's because many medicinal laxatives work this way: they either prod the intestines into action or draw moisture into them from other parts of the body.

Now comes news of a gentler and pleasanter way of treating constipation, for the millions of people with normal intestines whose trouble is due to lack of "bulk" in the diet. This way is by eating KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN, a crisp, delicious cereal, and drinking plenty of water. ALL-BRAN, unlike many medicinal laxatives, acts principally on the contents of the colon and helps you to have easy, normal elimination. ALL-BRAN is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is not helped by this simple treatment, better see your doctor.

Sentinels of Health

Don't Neglect Them!

Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—life itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure.

When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all worn out.

Frequent, scanty or burning passages are sometimes further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance.

The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Use Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Are endorsed the country over. Insist on Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

Care Asked In Filing Questionnaire

An appeal to all persons who have received occupational questionaires to use care in answering the questions and in filling the blanks was issued today by S. C. Patton, manager of the Calera office of the United States Employment Service.

Selective Service Boards throughout Alabama have mailed or will soon mail questionaires to all persons who have registered under the Selective Service Law, these questionaires will be used by the United States Government in mobilizing manpower for essential war industries.

The failure of a registrant properly to fill out the questionaire will result in delay and may force the Employment Service to call the registrant into the local office to supply additional information. This will mean additional expense and delay to the government and to the individual.

Mr. Patton said many questionaires are being returned with incorrect or incomplete information. He pointed out that many registrants failed to give the date of birth, others fail to give a complete description of their jobs, still others do not give the name or names of present employers, including the division or branch in which the registrants are employed, while others neglect to give a complete description of the jobs for which they believe themselves to be best fitted.

"No unnecessary questions have been included in the questionaire," said Mr. Patton. "Your government needs this information in order that every American may be placed in a job where he can render the greatest service in the war. If the information is not given in answers to the questionaire, the Employment Service is required to call the registrant into the office nearest his residence and obtain facts which should have been included in the answers."

Mr. Patton said data which will be obtained by answers to the questionaires will be used for the following purposes:

1 To avoid induction into armed forces of men whose skills make them more urgently needed in war production.

2 To replace workers now deferred from military service on occupational grounds whenever possible with persons who can be trained or are equipped for the jobs and are not suitable for military service.

3 To speed up war production by promoting the transfer of workers from non-essential to essential war work.

Every person who does not understand the questionaire may obtain assistance in filling it out by applying to his employer, to the advisory committee of the local selective service board, to labor unions, to veterans' posts and to the United States Employment Service

Letter To The Editor

With these two kings war was sure to be
Read Daniel's prophecy and you will see.
Daniel was put into a lion's den
To satisfy evil minded men
He told the men that God had closed their mouth,
And later told about the king of the South
Both of the kings are useing bombing planes,
And both are losing more than he gains.
Many people are already dead,
And many others wounded and half fed.
Hitler is the man's name,
That has to bear the blame.
Hitler is the hater of the truth and and right,
And works for the Pope day and night.
He is against freedom and free speech,
And don't like the way Jehovah's Witnesses preach.
He persecutes and burns their literature,
And has not the wisdom that is pure.
The little wheels in his head get so awful hot,
That he forgets that the NAME of the wicked shall rot.
Many people will not be able to buy or sell,
Just before all the wicked are turned into hell.
Many people will go fifty miles per hour,
Just to put Hitler and Nazis in power.
Democracy say that it will never be done,
For we are going to use an airplane and a gun.
Many people have been living somewhat high
But we are going to win this war or die.
The rationing of sugar and auto tires
Shows our sincere desires.
Democracy says many Germans and and Japs will be dead.

Save The Straw

In threshing or combining small grains this year, Alabama farmers are reminded of the importance of making arrangements to utilize the straw for barn bedding for livestock next winter.

Before the little wheels stop turning around in our head.
Now peace and plenty are a thing of the past,
And no one can tell how long the war will last.
Then both kings will speak lies at one table,
And many people will take time to write a fable.
On this earth people could have a joyful time,
If all nations and people would stop doing crime.
There is a right and there is a wrong
Now there is a call for a song--a war song.

CLANTON BOYS AND GIRLS URGED TO ENROLL IN CHILTON COUNTY HI BAND

In order to further the great interest already shown in the Chilton County High School Band, it is now our desire to increase its membership to at least a 60 piece marching band with new enrollments taking place immediately in order that we may be prepared to take an active part in our football games this fall. Too, the instrument question has become a very critical one. We all know that the government has frozen all band instruments and the only ones now available are those in stock. Which, I'm sure will be gone by the time school opens.

Perhaps some of you are planning to begin your child this fall. If that is your plans it would be wise to purchase your instrument now and avoid disappointment later. Many people are buying their instruments now, especially, the larger schools, and just as soon as the present stock is gone no one will be able to get one-not even a used one.

Music plays a very important part in the lives of our boys and girls and helps to maintain the morale of our boys in the Armed Forces. Our president has asked that there be more bands that this morale might be increased.

There are many reasons why your child should take music-not just to pass away the time, or play for foot games, but as a means to building character.

(1) Music offers great riches to one's education and appreciation to life and beauty in the world.

(2) Music takes a vital part of life in sorrow and happiness

We are taught that music is ordained to refresh the mind of man, and it provides us with many musical experiences.

(3) Music broadens one's mind and brings out the wholesome emotional part of one's feelings, and it is something that grows out of life and creates a new spirit for a complete living. Music and people are inseparable interwoven.

(4) Music involves suitable areas and their developments. And it's values may be more real and permanent than those concerned only with factual subjects.

(5) Music has a dramatic influence so far as personality, behavior, and character are concerned.

(6) Last but not least, when we consider that man is body, heart and mind, and that education neglect the heart it may be more dangerous to society than the neglect of either the body and mind.

Music, more than any other subject, is a fruitful direction for education toward one's right feelings. It has a peculiar advantage of an emotional appeal both in appreciation and expression.

We are very proud of our band and feel that it is an asset to our school and community. Therefore, we again urge those in the Chilton County High School, and Jemison High School district to enroll your child in the new band classes that has already begun. I am authorized to state that a band teacher will be paid a salary next school term.

WAR FLASHES

ASHINGTON,—The Senate pre- red today for quick action on two ge war bills. The 43 billion dollar propriation bill for the Army and authorization to expand the Navy 1,900,000 tons of warships at a cost eight and a half billion.

MONTGOMERY, — W. W. Hill, ansportation co-ordinator of the ate Defense Council, is working out ans for use of Alabama school bus- to transport defense workers be- een their homes and work.

WASHINGTON,—President Roosevelt today signed a precedent-making bill authorizing deferment of family men until the reservoir of single men is exhausted and providing financial aid for dependents of service men in the four lowest ranks.

The act authorizes the drafting of married men without children ahead of those who have children—when the supply of single men is exhausted.

LAST MINUTE SUMMERIES,—Germany's armies gained ground today on the Sevastopol and Kharkov Fronts in Russia and moved upto the new British desert line astride the Egyptian border for a full-force assault that may come at any hour.

Prime Minister Winston Churchill faced his gravest crisis since he assumed leadership in the dark hour following Dunkirk two years ago—an angry demand in Parliament and among the people that he beheld responsible for "the disaster of Tobruk."

So serious was the situation, in which even members of Churchill's own Conservative Party are demanding a shakeup, that he may fly back to London from the United States where he is engaged in a council of war with President Roosevelt.

WITH BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY IN EGYPT,—German long range guns opened on the British Frontier Line today and a powerful Axis army of tanks, guns, mobile anti-aircraft artillery and infantry poured over the desert road at forced march for its greatest offensive o fthe Libyan war.

British engineers and infantrymen worked without pause, their endurance strained to the limit, to improvise a defense line which would hold a jubilant and determined enemy until armored and foot forces could be reorganized

The British Eighth Army faced, imminently and certainly, a task so great that it did not leave much room for immediate optimism.

The Allied hope was that the British grit for improvisation under desperate handicap and at the moment of greatest peril would save the day, with the aid of the Royal Air Force and the great United States Army Air Corps Consolidated B-24 planes which were now in action and had already bombed the great Axis base of Benghazi.

A CARIBBEAN PORT,—The sinking of 15 more United Nation ships—13 in the Caribbean and two off the United States Atlantic Coast—raised to at least 319 today the toll of vessels Axis submarines and submarine-laid mines have taken in Western Hemispherical waters since the middle of January.

All together, 353 United Nations shells and submarines in this area, but 34 reached port.

Washington,—President Roosevelt today called a special meeting of the Pacific War Council for tomorrow at the White House, Prime Minister Winston Churchill of Great Britian will be present.

White House secretary Stephen T. Early also announced that Prime Minister W. L. McKenzie of Canada is enroute to Washington to attend the war council meeting "and later conferences."

Postal Censorship Ferrets Out Messages From Enemy Agents

Experts in the office of censorship in New York city, where foreign mail is examined, leave no stone unturned to make sure that no messages to aid the enemy go out in the mails. All incoming foreign mail is carefully examined by a staff of expert workers.

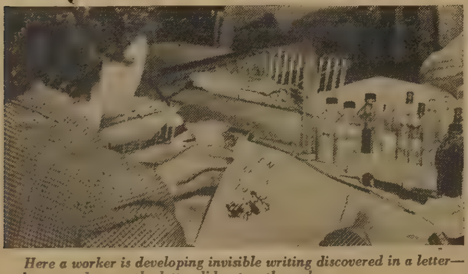
A girl worker uses a magnifying glass to examine a letter written in Dutch. She is searching for a possible code message.

It would take a smart spy to get his message past this assembly of expert spy busters in the scientific section. Suspect messages are given an especially careful going over to discover any hidden code or invisible writing which might be meant to convey a message to the enemy.



Here a worker is developing invisible writing discovered in a letter—and you can be sure the letter did not go through.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

Consolidated Features—WNU Features.

NEW YORK.—In June, 1940, a few months after becoming governor of Alaska, Ernest Gruening said, "A few parachutists could take Alaska today." He pondered the observation of the late General William Mitchell, "He who holds Alaska holds the world," and, a man of peace and a foe of imperialism, the governor thereafter never missed a chance to urge the strategic importance of Alaska, and to insist that "It has the greatest possibilities for an offensive of any land under the American flag." Congress was not, at first, responsive. Just how effective the governor's pleas have been is still shrouded in the mists of that frozen domain.

This Doc Doesn't Treat Eyes, Ears, But Uses His Own

The least insular of men, Dr. Gruening has long been concerned with insular affairs, and was chief of the division of territories of the department of the interior from 1934 to 1939, receiving the Alaskan appointment on December 5 of the latter year. He is a doctor of medicine, with a degree from Harvard university, diverted to newspaper work early in his career. His studious bent has been such that he might have been put down for bookworm, had it not been for his success in practical affairs, notably running big town newspapers and making them pay.

The son of a famous New York eye and ear specialist, Dr. Gruening also had intended to treat eyes and ears, but began his career as an alert reporter for the Boston American. That led him to the successive managing editorships of the Boston Herald, the Traveler and the Journal, the New York Tribune and the New York Nation, with time out for his service as a private in the World war.

A liberal and reformer, he began back-trailing our tentative adventures in imperialism, in the Philippines and in establishing our hegemony over the Caribbean. Entering the department of the interior he became the administration torchbearer for a territorial New Deal. He was born in New York city in 1887.

HOWARD MINGOS is a skilled writing man who also can add and subtract. This unique combination of talents naturally has made him our current historian of aviation progress, as editor of the annual aircraft year book, published by the aeronautical chamber of commerce. The 1942 edition of the book, just out, says our plane manufacturers have some "frightful surprises," for the Axis, which will jolt the enemy clear down to his cloven hoof.

Howard C. Mingos A John the Baptist Of Air Wilderness

"Who says it?" is the wary onlooker's natural query about wartime news like that. The first answer, as to Mr. Mingos, and it is reassuring, is that he is cautious and never has gone off half-cocked in reporting aviation news, good or bad. In 1937, he did not pull his punch in reporting the swift ascendancy of the German Luftwaffe over the British RAF.

He has long sustained a reputation as a good reporter, on the New York Sun for quite a spell. He is the author of more than 1,000 articles on aviation in newspapers and magazines, and several books. "The Air Is Our Concern" was the subject of a book on which he collaborated in 1935. He now gets long over-due agreement on that.

After his graduation from his home town high school in Athens, Pa., young Mr. Mingos studied two years at the Philadelphia School of Industrial Art, then switched to a long stretch of newspaper work, with the Philadelphia Telegraph, the Scranton Republic, the New York Times and Sun. From 1922 to 1930, he was special contributor of aviation articles to the Times. With the volunteer air service of the U. S. army, overseas, in the first World war, he became a special representative of the aeronautical chamber of commerce in 1920. He is 51 years old, our outstanding professional score-keeper in air doings.

ANY day now we may get word that swarms of American planes, manned by Americans, are fighting and bombing with the British over Germany. Maj. Gen. James E. Chaney will wing them eastward, as commander of all American army forces in the British Isles. He is a flying general, a military student of the German industrial regions in the post-war years, an international authority on military aviation, on tactics, fighting and bombing interception. He is 57, and graduated from West Point in 1908.

Magic for Your Meals—Berry Jams

(See Recipes Below.)

Time for Jam

With the arrival of the fruit and jelly season, you homemakers will want to make the most of these garden products for winter use. This year it is doubly important for you to can fruits and jellies wisely, as this will help you not only in conserving the nation's resources, but also assure you of delicious accompaniments to your meals during cooler weather.

Since sugar is used in canning not only as a sweetener, but as a preservative, the government will allot five pounds of sugar per person, in addition to what you receive in your ration, so that you will have sugar for canning.

Ripe Raspberry Jam.
(Makes 10 6-ounce glasses)
4½ cups prepared fruit
6 cups sugar
1 box powdered fruit pectin

To prepare fruit, crush thoroughly or grind about 2 quarts fully ripe raspberries. Remove some of seeds by sieving part of pulp, if desired.

Measure sugar into dry dish and set aside until needed. Measure prepared fruit into a 5- to 6-quart kettle, filling up last cup or fraction of cup with water if necessary.

Place over hottest fire. Add powdered fruit pectin, mix well, and continue stirring until mixture comes to a hard boil. At once pour in sugar, stirring constantly. (To reduce foaming, ¼ teaspoon butter may be added.) Continue stirring, bring to a full rolling boil, and boil hard 1 minute.

Remove from fire, skim, pour quickly. Paraffin hot jam at once.

Jam takes slightly less sugar than jelly, and you will work an economy by making use of the fruit in addition to the saving on sugar:

Ripe Blackberry Jam.
(Makes 11 6-ounce glasses)
4½ cups prepared fruit
6½ cups sugar
1 box powdered fruit pectin

To prepare fruit, grind or crush thoroughly about 2 quarts fully ripe blackberries (not black caps). Sieve about ½ of ground or crushed pulp. (For Spiced Blackberry Jam, add ⅛ to ½ teaspoon each cloves, cinnamon, and allspice, or any desired combination of spices.)

Measure sugar into dry dish and set aside until needed. Measure prepared fruit into a 5- to 6-quart kettle, filling up last cup or fraction of cup with water if necessary.

Place over hottest fire, adding powdered fruit pectin, mix well, and continue stirring until mixture comes to a hard boil. At once pour in sugar, stirring constantly. (To reduce foaming, ¼ teaspoon butter may be added.) Continue stirring, bring to a full rolling boil, and boil hard 1 minute.

Lynn Says:

The Score Card: The status of tin available for commercial canning has at last been clarified, and now we know exactly what will be available to use by way of canned goods.

The "Big Four" in canned vegetables, peas, tomatoes, string beans and corn, plus asparagus, pears, peaches, evaporated milk and fish will be allowed unlimited amounts of tin for canning purposes.

"Secondary" products such as spinach, beets, cherries, berries, applesauce, grapefruit, sausage, luncheon meats, beef and others will continue to be canned, but they will be allowed only the same amount of tin as used in 1940, with some exceptions having more or less.

Foods packed last year will last until fall at least, and the goods packed this year will be available even before last year's are gone. There's no need to hoard.

Your Jam Shelf
Ripe Raspberry Jam
Ripe Blackberry Jam
Sliced Strawberry Jam
Spiced Ripe Peach Jam
Cherry Relish
Recipe Given

Remove from fire, skim, pour quickly. Paraffin hot jam at once.

Sliced Strawberry Jam.
(Makes 10 6-ounce glasses)
4½ cups prepared fruit
7 cups sugar
½ bottle fruit pectin

To prepare fruit, cut about 2 quarts fully ripe strawberries in halves lengthwise; cut large berries in quarters. Measure sugar and prepared fruit, solidly packed, into large kettle; mix well. Bring to a full rolling boil over hottest fire. Stir constantly before and while boiling. Boil hard 3 minutes.

Remove from fire and stir in bottle fruit pectin. Then stir and skim by turns for just 5 minutes to cool slightly, to prevent floating fruit. Pour quickly. Paraffin hot jam at once.

Spiced Ripe Peach Jam
With Brazil Nuts
(Makes 11 6-ounce glasses)
3½ cups prepared fruit
¼ cup lemon juice
7½ cups sugar
1 cup sliced Brazil nuts
1 bottle fruit pectin

To prepare fruit, peel about 2½ pounds fully ripe peaches; pit and grind or chop very fine. Add ½ to 1 teaspoon each cinnamon, cloves and all-spice, or any desired combination of spices, to ground or chopped peaches. Squeeze juice from 2 medium lemons. Slice Brazil nuts very thin. Add to fruit mixture.

Measure sugar and prepared fruit into large kettle, filling up last cup with water, if necessary. Add lemon juice and mix well.

Bring to a full rolling boil over hottest fire. Stir constantly before and while boiling. Boil hard 1 minute.

Remove from fire and stir in bottled fruit pectin. Then stir and skim by turns to cool slightly, to prevent floating fruit. Pour quickly. Paraffin hot jam at once.

Relishes are excellent to serve with meats of any kind for they give the meal added zest. Here's a recipe for a real sugar-saver:

Cherry Relish.
2 cups pitted cherries
1 cup seedless raisins
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ cup brown sugar
¼ teaspoon cloves
½ cup honey
½ cup vinegar
¾ cup pecan nutmeats

Mix all the ingredients except pecans and cook 1 hour, slowly. Add pecans and cook 3 minutes longer. Pour into hot sterilized jars and seal at once.

Sugar Substitutes.

If you feel that you cannot use sugar in all of the canning recipes given here, even with your extra canning ration, here are the rules for substitutions:

If you are using a bottled fruit pectin recipe, you may substitute 2 cups light corn syrup for 2 cups of the sugar. Do not use more than 2 cups of corn syrup in any recipe, however, as this will give unsatisfactory results.

In a powdered fruit pectin recipe, you may use 1 cup light corn syrup for each cup of sugar omitted. But, do not try to use all corn syrup in the recipe instead of sugar. You may substitute corn syrup for only ½ the sugar required. If, for example, the recipe calls for 6 cups of sugar altogether, you may use 3 cups of light corn syrup, but you must also use 3 cups of sugar.

Star Dust
STAGE SCREEN RADIO

By VIRGINIA VALE
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

METRO'S "Mrs. Miniver" will probably be one of the best remembered war pictures that have reached the screen, not merely because it is well directed (by William Wyler) and superbly acted, but because it deals with a typical family, facing the war at home. It vividly presents the sort of situations that we might have had to deal with in this country. Incidentally a "Mrs. Miniver," rose has been developed, named for the one in the picture; it is dedicated to "the unselfish and sterling qualities of American women in the war," women like the one whom Greer Garson plays so movingly in the film. Don't miss "Mrs. Miniver!"

Buddy Clark, young baritone of radio's "Hit Parade," has an important role in RKO's "Sweet or Hot," starring Lucille Ball and Victor Mature. His comedy specialties and songs last year won him one of the highest individual ratings on radio listener polls, but in the picture he'll do more than sing: with Peter Lind Hayes and Arnold Stang he'll play an army buddy of Mature's.

Alan Ladd attracted plenty of attention and favorable comment during his stay in New York; as part of the campaign to introduce this new leading man to the public Paramount can consider the trip a success. But all the girls who eyed him admiringly realized that it was a case of "Hands off!" Mrs. Ladd (the former Sue Carol, once a movie star) was with him, and they're devoted.

Joan Crawford is one screen mother who wants her daughter to follow in her footsteps. Looking at golden-haired Christina, now three, she remarked: "If she isn't an actress I'll be the most disappointed person in the world."

Russell Hoyt, handsome 24-year-old North Carolina traveling salesman signed by RKO, reached Hollywood without an iota of dramatic experience. A friend, an agent and a talent scout were responsible, and he got a contract without even making a test.

Gary Cooper can spend his vacation traveling with the San Francisco Seals as the ball team's assistant manager if he wants to. He was invited by Lefty O'Doul, the manager, who taught him to bat and throw left-handed for "The Pride of the Yankees."

As part of his war work, Ronald Colman is making three films this year; during the past six years he's made only one a year. The bulks of his income will go to the government in taxes. During the last war he served with Kitchener's "Contemptibles," saw action at Ypres, was wounded at Messines, and he holds the Mons medal with 1914 bar. His next picture is "Random Harvest."

Eric Blore celebrated his 50th picture role when he began work in Paramount's "Happy Go Lucky," which stars Mary Martin and Dick Powell. Once on the London stage, with time out for serving in the last war, he's been in demand in Hollywood since 1934.

Warren Hull, Parks Jóhnson's new "Vox Pop" partner, is instantly recognized by young radio followers as "The Green Hornet," a role he played in a screen serial. He was besieged by juvenile autograph hunters in an Alexandria, Va., store.

Phil Baker ought to be happy; the one thing that visitors to New York seem to want more than anything else is tickets to his "Take It or Leave It" broadcasts.

ODDS AND ENDS—Edward G. Robinson of "Big Town" has taken up horseshoe pitching at his ranch behind Beverly Hills . . . No actor changes leading ladies more often than Tim Holt; his new one, in "Son of the Saddle," is Ann Summers, a newcomer . . . Khaki-clad Staff Lieutenant Hopper puzzles audiences when she aids the treasury department in selling war bonds—till they recognize her as Marsha Hunt; she uses her married name when in uniform . . . Hedy Lamarr does a jitterbug routine in "White Cargo"—in a sarong . . . Keep your eye on Helmut Dantine, who gives an outstanding performance as a German flier in "Mrs. Miniver."

PREPAREDNESS
by ✚ the AMERICAN RED CROSS

NEWEST of all the American Red Cross activities is the Wool Conservation program. Under it, volunteers from the more than 3,700 Red Cross chapters throughout the nation collect scraps of new, unused wool and place them in reprocessing channels.

The Wool Conservation program was developed jointly by the War Production board and the Red Cross when it became apparent that the nation faced a serious wool shortage. There were only two ways in which this shortage could be alleviated within the next year. The first was by cutting down wool consumption in every possible way by restyling and redesigning garments to save wool. The second was to have every scrap of new, unused wool reprocessed as rapidly as possible. The Red Cross was selected to do this job.

Under the agreement between the Red Cross and the War Production board, the 3,700 Red Cross chapters arrange for the collection of trousers cuff clippings, wool samples and other wool clips from tailors, men's clothing stores, department stores, clothing manufacturers and cleaners. These are then placed in reprocessing channels by selling them to wool reclaiming firms.

When reprocessed into wool cloth, the clippings from 21 pairs of men's trousers will be enough to make a complete soldier's uniform or another civilian suit.

Proceeds from the sale of the wool clips collected under the Wool Conservation program are retained by the local Red Cross chapters to carry on their work of War Relief and Civilian Defense Preparedness training.

Prepared Exclusively for WNU.

Meteoric Shower

The Perseids, one of the ten principal meteoric showers occurring annually, is usually seen about August 11 and presents the greatest celestial display of its kind in the Northern hemisphere. It is one of the oldest meteoric showers on record, its first recorded appearance having been 1,111 years ago.

SAME BED WITH FOOT CUT DOWN·THE DOTTED SWISS VALANCE IS STITCHED TO MUSLIN BETWEEN THE SPRINGS AND MATTRESS
HAND-MADE QUILT IS NOT WELL DISPLAYED ON A BED WITH HIGH FOOT BOARD AND NO VALANCE

MOST quilts today are planned as bedspreads and have a color scheme to harmonize with other decorations. If a variety of figured scraps is used one color is generally repeated in each block to give the design unity.

The beauty of any quilt is enhanced if it is set off with a valance around the bed. The bed in the sketch had no particular tradition and the footboard was much too high to display the quilt to advantage. What a difference in the effect when the board was cut down and the crisp frills of dotted Swiss were added! Surely, any quilt worth piecing is worth this extra touch.

NOTE: If you have a metal bed that you would like to modernize you will find sketches and directions in Mrs. Spears' Book 3. There are eight of these booklets of 32 pages of things to make from odds and ends which accumulate around the house, or from inexpensive new materials. Copies are 10 cents each and with an order for three (No. 1 to 8) you will receive a set of three different quilt block patterns including the Whirl Wind illustrated herewith. Send order to:

Fortunately Hole in Barrel Was Discovered in Time

The particular unit in question had taken on a large number of new recruits and some of them were a little raw. During the first rifle inspection, the officer approached one of the men, had a look at his rifle, and then called to the N.C.O. in charge.

"Look at this man's rifle!" he announced.

The sergeant looked down the barrel, swung the rifle around to the recruit, and barked: "Take a look at that rifle, you!"

The recruit peered carefully down the barrel, then muttered in a surprised tone:

"Well, what do you know. Got a hole clean through it!"

If you know a Navy man, don't ever call him a "gob"—sailors consider the name an insult. You can get on the right side of him though if you offer him a Camel—or better yet, send him a carton. Camels are the favorite cigarette with men in the Navy (Army, Marines, Coast Guard, too, for that matter) based on actual sales records from the service men's stores. Local dealers are featuring cartons of Camels to send to any member of our armed forces anywhere. Send him that Camel carton today.—Adv.

What's a musical comedy got to do with winning a war?

PLENTY! We're building an army of men—not machines. And men have minds. And minds need freshening . . . change . . . relaxation.

So one of the biggest undertakings of the USO is its sponsoring of free entertainment, through the cooperation of the movie and theatrical industries, at army camps, naval bases—wherever the fighting men of the USA go to train or dig in.

USO Camp Shows, Inc. is actually the biggest single theatrical enterprise the world has ever seen. It books 264 shows for the boys every week, which play to an average nightly attendance of 50,000.

It contacts movie stars, theatrical headliners, big name bands and their leaders. It routes all these . . . plans their itinerary . . . arranges the most convenient times when soldiers and sailors can take time out to sit and be entertained.

For it realizes that the one great advantage of the American fighting man is his ability to think for himself, to make the most of any situation, to fight as a liberty-loving individual.

And this is one of his great differences from our enemy.

To help carry on the all-important work of maintaining the morale of our fighting forces, the USO needs your help . . . it needs your contribution.

Your dollar has many demands on it this year. Many of these demands must be met—others deserve to be met. And among these latter, the plea of the USO for whatever sum you can contribute merits your earnest consideration.

For we have a war to win, and the USO is directly concerned with the men who must—and will—win it.

Dig deep—for the men who are digging in!

Send your contribution to your local chairman or to USO, Empire State Building, New York.

Entered in the Postoffice at Clanton, Alabama, as second class matter under the Act of Congress of March, 1897

MARK L. TUCKER, Owner and Publisher
R. M. TUCKER, Managing Editor
The Defense of American Freedom is our First Consideration

Mark Remarks:

Alabama peanuts (not political kind) are going to help win this war.

It isn't our fault if you forgot to renew your subscription—but it is our loss—and yours too.

Don't forget that New York is nearer to Berlin than Pearl Harbor was to Tokyo.

I wonder what the Executive Committee of the Alabama Press Association has decided in regard to summer get-together.

The war picture is dark What is to be done by the Allies to check the onward march of the enemy must be decided upon quickly—and acted upon quickly.

One of the most important tasks of the war effort falls to the lot of Chilton Countians—that of furnishing food, feed, and fibers in a never ending stream.

There is considerable anti-liquor aggitation in various parts of the State, which can easily develop into a real live issue by the time the next Legislature meets.

The greatest responsibility to a people that ever rested upon the shoulders of men, are at this moment being carried by the members of the Congress of the Uuited States of America.

We must not overlook the fact that an expert young man on the farm is just as necessary and important in the effort to win the war, as the young expert in any capacity on the firing line—he can't stay there unless the farmer feeds him.

Gov. Frank Dixon and Gov.-Nominate Chauncey Sparks attended the Conference of governors at Asheville, N. C. They no doubt have learned much that will prove advantageous to Alabamians during the troublous and trying days that are ahead.

I have been in the editorial garage for the past week or ten days—undergoing a sort of physical check-up and re-caping, and the doctor and the missus finally decided the only thing they could find that was not the matter with me was—I am not bald-headed

Tol Hayes Shropshire, Alabama's most colorful, and in many respects most interesting newspaper editors, died at his home in Centre Saturday, where he had been connected with the Coosa River News practically all of his life. I considered Tol one of the best friends I had in whole wide world, and it makes me sad to see my pals and buddies joining the Innumerable Carrivan so frequent and regular of late.

WILL SCHOOL TEACHERS GET A 25 PERCENT RAISE?

The teachers of Alabama returned from the meeting of the Alabama Educational Association last March thinking that relief from the increased cost of living was in sight. They were told at this meeting by the governor of this state that the state had funds and that legal means had been found whereby these funds could be made available for the increase of salaries for teachers for the year 1942-43 They were told, also, that this increase would be approximately twenty-five per cent.

A short time ago following a meeting of the State Board of Education it was reported through the press of the state that the teachers of the state were assured of a twelve percent increase in pay for the next school year from the minimum program fund. It was reported at the same time that an agreement had been reached whereby the present governor, immediately after the November election is over, with the consent of the governor-elect, would call the new legislature together so that funds which were on hand but have not been appropriated to schools could be appropriated to the schools and that this appropriation would further increase the salaries of teachers in 1942-43.

What is the truth of this as it effects the average teacher of Chilton County? The teachers of Chilton county were paid for salaries for the year 1941-42 $142,926.73. The increase which Chilton County will receive from the Minimum Program Fund is $12,775.00. This $12,775.00 is reduced to $9,575.00 by paying teachers for futher experience, for raising their certificates, and some other necessary expenses. The twelve percnt has dwindled to a bare seven percent.

Of the funds now on hand to be made available at the November meeting of the legislature none are contemplated for monthly increase in salaries of teachers. This fund probably will be used to lengthen the term to eight months in those counties which have less than eight months and will be spread out over a period of four years. It will not help those teachers who have already have eight month terms or longer.

The increase for the average teacher of this county, assured and in prospect, is a bare seven percent. How is it in the other counties? The story is about the same. According to the Montgomery Advertiser the percentage increase in teacher's salaries in the city of Montgomery and the county of Montgomery will be about five percent.

The people of thie county and state should know the truth concerning these attractive reports The wrong impression has been created about the pay of teachers. The result will be a less efficient teaching force and therefore a much less efficient school system unless this situation is recognized and remedied.

RAILROADS
...and War

To the Public:

From the scant business of a great depression the railroads are now handling the largest volume of freight and passenger business since the boom times of 1929. The demands of war required immediate carriage of men and supplies to the front lines. That the railroads could so quickly and ably meet the crisis shows meritorious performance. Many attest to that conclusion. Read these typical expressions:

Congressman Clarence F. Lea, Chairman, Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce:

"Today we have a railroad management schooled in our transportation difficulties in the World War and trained in efficiency under the pressure of unfavorable economic conditions and keen competition of the last two decades.

"In all the world no job is being better done today than by the American Railroads."

(From speech in House of Representatives, September 25, 1941)

* * *

Director of Office of Defense Transportation, Joseph B. Eastman:

"The carriers have also been on the alert, and last year made a record in increased efficiency of operation which is both remarkable and highly commendable."

(From address at Atlanta, Ga., February 27, 1942)

"Notwithstanding the meager additions to equipment which have been made since 1939 in the face of a tremendous increase in traffic, the railroads have met all needs, with a few minor and temporary exceptions, adequately and efficiently. Every one must concede that they have done an outstanding piece of work."

(From address at Philadelphia, Penn., April 9, 1942)

Senator Clyde M. Reed:

"The railroads have been through some lean years. With very few exceptions their credit was impaired during these lean years. About one-third of the mileage of the American railroads was in bankruptcy. Substantial mileage is still in bankruptcy . . .

"Yet the railroads of the United States are doing the most phenomenal job in their history . . .

"Outside the production of essentials, no factor in our economic structure is so important as transportation. The railroads of the country have an ample supply of ability in their executives, and of efficient and loyal service from the million men who operate the trains and man the offices and yards. To all of those men who have contributed to this almost miraculous result, I pay my tribute . . ."

(From speech in the United States Senate, May 11, 1942)

The American Magazine:

"The American Magazine believes that railroad efficiency is one of America's modern marvels. No industry has responded more completely to the call for extra work and greater responsibility. The railroads have taken on the war load instantly and effectively, and they have done it without impairing their regular services. Passenger travel was never handled better, and the standards of comfort are the highest in the world's transportation history.

"A train may be late occasionally because of troop movements, but what good American would squawk about that?"

(From "The Girl on the Train" pamphlet, June 1942)

The Louisville & Nashville is glad to have made its contribution to the war effort. It not only put its entire facilities in good condition in anticipation of the demands, but in addition has since January 1938 spent or contracted for over $46,000,000 in improvements to roadway and equipment.

Its Federal taxes in 1941 were $9,391,531; taxes for railroad social security, pensions, etc., were $3,087,523, and for purposes of local government, $5,183,378—a total of $17,662,432.

As further calls are made upon us, management and employes will face the demand with confident courage. We greatly appreciate the many ways in which our patrons have been co-operative and helpful.

Properly, precedence must be given to the essential requirements of war. Government freight and soldier trains must have the right-of-way. If occasional delays or inconveniences ensue, we hope these will be accepted as a part of your contribution to what it takes to win this war.

L&N

To merit and hold your patronage and good will is our earnest desire.

FOLKS AND THINGS ABOUT TOWN

By BEN

"Sunset and Evening Star."—Three popular citizens have passed into the valley of the shadows since last Friday. Arthur Willis, Mrs. John VanDerveer and Mrs. Inez Smith ...all were assets to the city and county in which they lived and will be terribly missed ...not by relatives alone, but countless friends, acquired through years of service to their fellowman and their community.

Everybody was there and everybody had a big time...we'er talking about that Banquet and Dance that the Lions had last Friday night at the Thomason Hotel....Fun has taken a holiday in Clanton for the past year or two but depend on the Lions to bring it back and in a big way. Those responsible for the entertainment are deserving of a world of credit in doing a mighty fine job.

Just about the time that we were beginning to think that Julian Evans didn't love us any more he ups and writes us a letter. We received it Sunday and we were really glad to hear from him. Like the others, Julian says that all is well but that he is working mighty hard Julian is at Keesler Field, Miss.

W. H. L. Smith down at Upchurch Drug Store is selling Christmas presents in the summertime. Now that is a fact and we can prove it by Mr. Smith. Saturday afternoon a lady went into the store and bought a very nice Christmas present for next Christmas and had it put away to be delivered on that date. Just goes to show you that where a lady is concerned you can't tell when Christmas is liable to come.

We have always been a Harold Helfer fan and enjoyed his column in the Birmingham Post each day. Last week in one of his items he stated that, "there is something refreshingly homely about country journalism." Now according to Mr. Webster, we guess that we will have to admit that it is O. K., but anyhow as the word is generally used we can't appreciate the article very much. "Homely" to us has always been a very ugly word.

We noticed in the Soldier section of the Birmingham News Sunday the picture of Thomas R. Bazzel He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Bazzel of Clanton and is now piloting a bomber in the Virgin Islands. He is a First Lieutenant.

We'er still waiting for Hubert Thompson to bring that model airplane by the News office. We have been hearing mighty nice things about some of Hubert's models and we'er anxious to have a look-see ... Mr. M. M. Ratleff, of Maplesville, Rt 2, sent a cotton bloom into us Saturday afternoon. It was the second time that we had received this summer ...... boy that scared the life out of me. "Chick" Fiquette just rode by on a bicycle and for a minute we couldn't tell what was holding him up. He certainly covers a wheel nicely ..... the best one that we have heard to date on War Bond advertising is: "If you can't go over—come across." ... ...and the one that Bing Crosby gave the other night on his program: "It's not much to ask, a mere dime on a buck isn't giving till it hurts—because you can't give enough money to hurt. I mean hurt the way some of the guys are getting hurt. Pay your way. Pick up your share of the check. Funny thing. Freedom ain't free. But whatever you pay for it, it's worth it."

That girlish voice emanating from the loud speaker atop Chief Petty Officer Buckalew's Station wagon last Tuesday, didn't sound like a very good advertisment for the navy.

Friends of Catherine Bryan were badly disappointed Monday afternoon when after going to much trouble in preparing several songs for the "Farmers on the Air," broadcast, she learned too late that all were ASCAP numbers and barred from the air upon penalty of $150 smackers per song.

Floyd Ellison went into the Shell Service Station the other day after a package of cigarettes. He handed Paul Williamson his old empty pack with the money and said, "Heres the old empty." .....yep, we'er getting old. The wife and family have been in Birmingham all week and we haven't pulled the first 'soup and fish,' even.

Make an inventory of your kitchen equipment and utensils. Discard those pieces that are worn and beyond repair. If they are aluminum, tin, or iron give them to Uncle Sam.

Reduce Boll Weevil With Poison-Ruffin

Farmers may be able to materially reduce the boll weevil infestation this year by locating infested areas and poisoning the weevils as they emerge from winter quarters, says W. A Ruffin, extension entomologist, in reporting that boll weevils are already numerous in many cotton fields of central Alabama. Best time to poison boll weevils with calcium arsenate is during the time the cotton is fruiting heavy.

CONSERVATION of rubber is vital to Victory and the cooperation of everyone is a national necessity!

Southeastern Greyhound Lines, already in all-out effort, now goes still further. It is cooperating with the Governmental recommendation for 40-mile-per-hour maximum . . . to conserve tires.

War-time travel has reached unprecedented volume . . . facilities and equipment have been pressed into service of military men on duty trips and furloughs, government men on important missions, war workers between defense plants and homes, civilians on business.

It's a big job to maintain accommodations to meet the increased demand and provide emergency service. But! Far bigger is the all-important job of every possible contribution toward Victory. Compared with that, a few minutes additional running time becomes a very small matter.

We've got to win this War. Rubber is needed, urgently, and Greyhound has pledged its cooperation to conserve it.

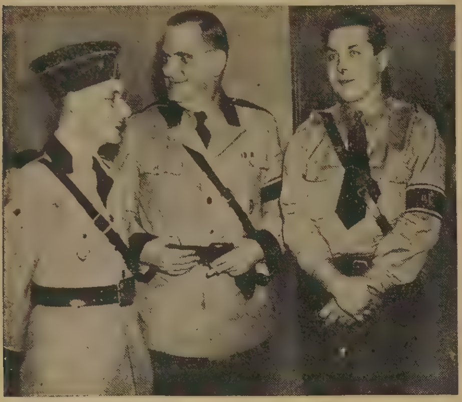
WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Churchill-Roosevelt Meetings Presage New Action on Second European Front; Mediterranean Naval Battles Indicate Growing Anglo-American Air Strength

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.



Gone are the days when this unholy trio of American Nazi chiefs paraded around in their Bund uniforms. George Froboese (left) of Milwaukee, Midwest bund head, killed himself under a train en route to a grand jury hearing in New York. Fritz Kuhn (center), former national Bund chief, is ill in Sing Sing prison, and Dr. Otto Willumeit, Chioago leader, is under indictment as a spy.

CHURCHILL:
Third Meeting

For the third time within a year Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt met face to face to discuss war problems, when the British statesman arrived unheralded in Washington for a series of conferences. Their first meeting occurred last August aboard ship and resulted in the Atlantic charter. The second was Mr. Churchill's visit to Washington last December after America's entry into the war. It resulted in the declaration by the United Nations.

This third meeting, following closely on Russian Foreign Minister Molotov's historic conferences in Washington recently, promised momentous consequences in the prosecution of the war. Two matters of pressing need—the opening of a second European front and further steps to curb dangerously rising Allied ship losses by Axis submarines—faced the two leaders.

Another leader of the United Nations to reach American shores was Queen Wilhelmina of Holland.

REDS VS. NAZIS
History Repeats?

Balaclava, famed site of Tennyson's poem, "The Charge of the Light Brigade," took its place in modern battle headlines as Hitler had rammed his massed power against the defenses of Sevastapol's fortifications.

The Crimean fishing port—Balaclava—where the legended charge by the British occurred in 1854, was a fierce point of contention between the Russ and Nazi forces in the battle for control of the western Black sea coast.

Possession of the Sevastapol naval base was vital to the hard-pressed Russians, for it represented a powerful barrier to the approaches of the Caucasus oil fields—a prize which would give the Nazis coveted oil and bulwark their war effort.

To the north in the Ukraine, where the Nazis were attempting to straighten out their long circular line at Kharkov, battles raged doggedly, with Red army communiques reporting successful counterattacks.

FATS AND OILS:
Housewives Contribute

Frying pans, pots and roasters in millions of American homes yielded up a harvest of fat as the national program to salvage grease and oils from the nation's kitchens got under way.

Fats collected in this household campaign will be used in making glycerine an important element in explosives manufacture. Meat markets everywhere will be collection agencies where housewives will deposit the salvaged fat. Butchers will then turn the fat over to the renderers.

In Chicago where a fat salvage program has been in progress for months past, it was reported that collections averaged 50,000 pounds weekly.

AUSTRALIA:
Japs Still Menace

Lest his countrymen be lulled into a belief that the battle of the Coral sea had removed all danger of a Jap invasion, Prime Minister John Curtin of Australia held aloft a warning finger. Declaring that "Australia can be lost," he declared if the commonwealth fell to Nippon, that Hawaii and the entire North American coast would lie open to Japanese attack and west coast cities would be in danger.

MEDITERRANEAN:
Axis Gamble Fails

As the swiftly moving battle for world naval supremacy shifted to the Mediterranean, Germany and Italy had made a supreme gamble by throwing every available airplane, submarine, torpedo boat and virtually the entire Italian fleet into an effort to knock out the British forces. The stakes were the strategic convoy routes supplying Axis-menaced Tobruk and Malta.

That the Axis gamble had failed was due in part to the timely intervention of United States army heavy bombers which made their Mediterranean debut by scoring 35 direct bomb hits on two Italian battleships, setting them afire and sending the whole force of 15 Italian warships scurrying home to port.

The epic sea and air fighting centered around two heavily laden British convoys—one leaving Alexandria for Tobruk and the other leaving Gibraltar for Malta. Both carried badly needed supplies for hard-pressed British garrisons.

In two days of death-struggle fighting, the British and Americans beat off Axis attacks, shepherded the convoys safely to their destinations, sank or damaged seven Italian warships, and shot down 33 planes.

LIBYAN FRONT:
Nazi Fox

With the Suez canal as his eventually hoped-for goal, foxy Nazi General Erwin Rommel continued his harrassing thrust against the British forces in Libya.

Whether Rommel's dream of a drive to the Suez and a possible link with Japanese forces pushing west would ever materialize depended on how stout was the British resistance. Tobruk, recently reinforced by a huge British convoy, was the immediate target. The tide of battle had surged back and forth, with the Nazi desert force registering a superiority in tanks and anti-tank strength. Hope for the British lay in receiving further supplies and replacements and in a wearing down of Nazi power due to its sustained exertions.

The seriousness of the Libyan situation was evident from the fact that the Axis offensive succeeded in splitting the British army—one force withdrawing to Tobruk to make a stand while the other withdrew to positions near Egypt.

ARMY PAY:
$50 for Bucks

Uncle Sam prepared to add at least $20 more per month to the pay check of every enlisted man in the nation's armed forces, when President Roosevelt signed legislation granting the first general military pay increase in 20 years. Non-commissioned officers, "shave-tails" and ensigns shared in the raise.

American soldiers and sailors thus became the highest paid fighting men in the world. The lowest grades—buck privates and apprentice seamen—will receive $50 a month, as against $30 formerly.

Officers above the rank of second lieutenant or ensign got no pay raises, but were allowed boosts in their subsistence and rental allowances.

One result was hoped for by sponsors of the new legislation—that was to eliminate recruiting competition between the army and navy. It had been charged that the navy had been in better position to obtain recruits since it could offer more attractive ratings. The uniform pay schedule would, it was believed, equalize the appeal of all services.

AIRCRAFT CARRIERS:
Lessons Learned

Lessons learned in the battles of the Coral sea, Midway island and the struggle for the Aleutian islands were applied by the house naval affairs committee when it approved an $8,500,000,000 expansion bill projecting a "five-ocean navy." For a definite swing to sea airpower was discernible in the bill's provisions calling for immediate construction of 500,000 tons of aircraft carriers, while postponing the construction of five 60,000-ton super-battleships.

This trend was the immediate result of the smashing blows dealt Japanese seapower, in recent weeks by American airplane carriers and their accompanying forces. It was tacit recognition that a revolution in naval tactics has occurred as a result of the battles in the Pacific.

In place of the postponed battleships, the navy will rush construction of more than a score of aircraft carriers with escort vessels and submarines. Scheduled to be completed within a year, they will be distributed among naval forces in all areas in which Axis fleets are operating.

CHINA:
Japs Push On

As Jap armies drove deeper into China and two pincer columns were converging on the strategic 450-mile Chekiang-Kiangsi railroad, the China high command appealed again for an Allied blow that would divert the steadily mounting power of the enemy's invasion.

Discouraging news was made public in the announcement that Shangjao, an important station on the line and capital of Kiangsi province, had fallen.

With all highway sources cut off by the Japanese, China had to depend on giant American cargo planes to deliver supplies for her embattled armies. This trickle would have to be augmented to a full-scale flow of supplies if effective resistance was to continue by Chiang Kai-shek's armies.

PEACE TECHNIQUE
'Cooling Off'

A clue to post-war peace table technique was disclosed by Sumner Welles, undersecretary of state, when he advocated a "cooling off" period after the war before final terms are made.

In effect, the American statesman urged that both the victor and vanquished plan together and prepare an equitable settlement that would preclude future wars.

SUMNER WELLES
"Cool Off."

Speaking before a United Nations rally, Welles declared co-operation is no less essential in maintaining peace than in winning a war.

"The final terms of peace," he said, "should wait until the immediate tasks of the transition period—after the defeat of the Axis powers—have been completed and final judgments can be coolly and rationally rendered."

VICHY FRANCE:
'Discontent Grows'

Somber were the words 86-year-old Marshal Petain spoke to the French people on the second anniversary of his nation's military collapse.

Admitting that his recovery program had suffered many setbacks, the aged chief of state declared that "discontent is growing" and warned that the government must undertake sterner measures of punishment to stamp out unrest, public anger and greed.

Petain made no reference to Pierre Laval in his brief radio speech, although he had declared recently that he and Laval are going along "hand in hand and in complete understanding."

Not only the opposition of the people, but a "slack and sometimes incapable administration" by the government was blamed by the Marshal for present conditions.

MISCELLANY:

VICTORIA: Canadian air force squadrons and Canadian anti-aircraft units have been operating for some days with the United States force in Alaska, it was reported by Lieut. Gen. Kenneth Stuart, chief of the Canadian general staff. This marked the first time in World War II Canadian forces have taken part in any operations with the United States army.

NANA WNU Service

THERE are now thousands of college football players, not overlooking 148 National leaguers, on active service in the army, navy and marines. This is an underestimate. And there are many more on their way.

In the face of this we have been asked far and wide what will become of football this next fall.

As far as one can offer a guess on a June date, football will keep under steam with the men that are left. This goes for both the colleges and the pros. It has been the wish of both army and navy that football be carried on, even with an increased number of players. Army and navy teams will be at full speed.

Above all other games, this is a football nation. I am referring to high school, college and professional players, plus the many millions who make up the camp followers. So you can figure it out that football will be the last game to go, if it goes at all. Which it won't.

Typical Case

In the matter of college play we can take Minnesota as a typical case along the upper plateau.

In this connection, George Barton, the sage of Gopher football, writes, "I am afraid Minnesota's national championship days are over for the duration, but the Gopher will do pretty well in Big Ten competition.

"Six regulars are gone from the great line of the past two years—Fitch and Ringer, ends; Odson, tackle; Levy and Pukema, guards; Flick, center. And, of course, Bruce Smith and Bob Sweiger from the backfield. Gone also is Bernie Bierman and three of his coaching staff."

BERNIE BIERMAN

But it might be mentioned here that as long as Minnesota has a back named Bill Daley and tackle named Dick Wildung, the Gopher has something more than a mere nucleus on hand. Daley is a big part of any backfield and Wildung is a big part of any good line. And there are others around in Norsemen gold.

Two Others

From this crow's nest two of the best-looking college squads will belong to Georgia and Texas A. and M. And you can add Texas. Of course, you must remember that more than one or two things may happen between now and late September.

The strength of the different service teams is still a summer guess, but judging from most of their schedules they will have something more than tackling dummies on guard.

It might be noted here that football is only a part of these cadet training centers. Football will be but one-fifth or one-sixth part of the 10 or 12-hour conditioning drills, at which boxing, wrestling, hurdling, etc., will keep them spinning like human tops from dawn to dark.

The added rivalry between college and service teams will add to the general interest of the game, despite the fact that 40,000 or 80,000 crowds might not be on hand when the whistle blows.

Pro Football

There are now 148 National league football players in active service, with others on their way soon. Twenty-eight of these players hold commissions. Eighty-three joined up with the army, 56 with the navy, and nine with the marines.

Each year the pros draft some 200 top-rank players. They will get few from the draft list this fall. But as Steve Owen of the Giants puts it, "While we've all lost good men and key men, we'll have enough left to carry the game along until more men are called. This will make it a closer race—a better race.

"We won't have those Chicago Bears of last season to look at," Big Steve said. "Halas has lost his share of stars, and he had more stars to lose. At this spot I can't see any standout team. But I'm sure we'll have an interesting season with enough material left to go around."

All of which, with the colleges, the navy and army teams, plus the pros, should find the American landscape and atmosphere packed with more flying footballs than any past season ever knew.

Sausage From Greeks

Most people believe that the origin of the most portable meat parcel, the sausage, is lost in dim antiquity, but we can trace the inventor.

Of course, the Romans were in the business. The sausages of Lucania were very celebrated amongst the Romans. But the Greeks were there first. Sausages are mentioned in the world's oldest cookery book by a Third-century Greek writer, Athenaeus.

The work is entitled "Deipnosophists" (Banquet of the Learned). This ancient Greek Epicurean scholar realized that food for the body is as important as food for the mind. He was very fond of tit-bits, whether of scandal or cookery.

One-Man Medical Corps on the Move

Dr. Gordon Seagrave, who was in the Harper Memorial hospital at Namkhan, Burma, when the Japanese moved in, is shown with three of his Burmese nurses in an army jeep after Dr. Seagrave had joined up with General Joseph Stilwell's Chinese army in Burma. Dr. Seagrave was in the thick of the savage fighting in this campaign, attending to wounded and operating under heart-breaking conditions. During the heat of the early fighting he worked one 24-hour stretch with but 90 minutes off, taking care of 150 casualties. The only assistance he had was from Makio, his head nurse, who handled 20 of the minor cases herself. Operating on a porch his work was illuminated by a burning city.

Full Accounting

Admiral Nimitz pronounced Midway a partial accounting for what happened at Pearl Harbor. But Pearl Harbor was more than an attack on the American navy. It was also an attack on the American home.

The navy can settle in full as an ocean force, but the American people must settle in full as a fighting nation. The Pearl Harbor account will be settled when the last concentration camp is a public park. And when a worker in Europe has the dignity of a human being, instead of the standing of a driven slave.

It is America's duty to demand full payment. The question of our future depends on how much the enemy is made to answer for its past. The liberties won on the freezing slopes at Valley Forge were almost lost in a dirty beer cellar in Munich.

While France is bound, while Norway is in prison, and while Belgium is in chains, America will never be fully free. Our monument to Pearl Harbor must be a milestone in world progress. That can only begin to happen when all men realize that the peace cannot be kept while criminal leaders remain in power to start a war.

The Most Quoted Observation of the Month: Raymond Clapper, who has looked at Congressmen as a reporter most of his life, let go with both barrels at their didoes. Said he: "People are looking to editorials, radio commentators and newspaper columnists for the discussion of public affairs they ought to get from Congress . . . The people don't give a damn what the average Senator or Congressman says . . . They know what you hear in Congress is 99 per cent tripe, ignorance and demagoguery and not to be relied on."

Free World smacks the bullseye with a piece on Reinhard Heydrich, who was presented with a skinful of slugs by Czech patriots. The monthly reveals Heydrich as the flunkey who did the work that was too dirty even for Himmler. Meaning that with the right number of promotions he could have won the rank of rat.

The Washington MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON & ROBERT ALLEN

Washington, D. C.

CUTTING NAVY TAPE

Behind Admiral King's forthright order slashing navy red tape 50 per cent and ordering more navy officers out of Washington, was an interesting comparison with the Japanese navy, conducted backstage by some of the President's advisers.

Americans, recently familiar with Japan, have reported that the Japanese navy is staffed by only about 1,000 personnel in Tokyo. In contrast, the navy department in Washington has more than 30,000—not including the navy yard.

The Japanese navy also is reported to have cut red tape and government reports to the bone and it gives widest latitude to commanders at sea. The U. S. navy also gives wide latitude to commanders in distant posts, such as Admiral Leary in New Zealand, Admiral Nimitz at Pearl Harbor. But in home waters, especially in anti-submarine warfare along the East coast, insiders say the navy has suffered from a constant stream of reports and orders to and from Washington requiring a tremendous staff for the paper work alone.

Now Admiral King offers promotions to officers who will decrease their Washington bureaus rather than increase them.

GASOLINE CZAR

The one-man dynamo who runs the gas rationing system of the U. S. A. is a preacher's son and a former professor of economics. Though one of the most harassed men in Washington, he is constantly on the verge of breaking into a broad smile

Only 35 years old, he has gray hair about the ears, thin hair on top, works so late into the night that his wife, mother of a new-born boy, seldom sees him. "I generally make the 2 a. m. feeding," he says.

Joel Dean was born in Vermont, schooled in California, and has a doctor's degree from Harvard, where he wrote a thesis on small loans He spent a year as European manager of a travel bureau, two years as traveling salesman for International Business Machine, and seven years as teacher and research expert.

As a fellow economist, he always admired Leon Henderson, but never met him until he came to Washington less than a year ago.

To effect his own economy in gasoline, he formed a "Drive-In Club" with four other OPA officials. They take turns driving to the office from Arlington, Va., across the river.

When brickbats fly in the OPA office, Dean recalls that his father, a Congregational minister, wanted him to be a missionary on a South Sea island.

"Many people," says Dean, "wish that I had fulfilled that mission."

ARMY HOUR PROGRAM

"Jamming" radio programs is one of the recognized weapons of modern warfare. But it is a two-edged sword, and the war department radio branch is ready to swing on the Axis if the prize Army Hour, on Sundays, is jammed again.

Jamming by manufactured static or other interference is feasible in the United States only on short-wave broadcasts. The Army Hour features short-wave talks from all over the world, made by such noted personages as Mme. Chiang Kai-shek, General MacArthur, General Wavell, and others. The most recent case of jamming was during a talk by a high ranking army officer from the Dutch island of Curacao. A piano banged loudly all the time he spoke.

Winston Churchill's latest speech, which came on the radio immediately before the army hour, was jammed by a gutteral Teutonic voice carefully observing Churchill's own pauses in an effort to escape detection.

These two cases of jamming were traced by triangulation to Axis broadcasting stations. The army proposes to retaliate if this deliberate interference doesn't stop.

WAR FLASHES

¶ If you are a business executive, and uncertain about tax deductions for advertising and pay increases, you can get "informal" advice by applying to the internal revenue bureau under a new treasury ruling.

¶ OPA agents are checking up on private airports on tips that they are bootlegging high octane gas to car drivers. High octane won't run a car by itself, but makes a very smooth-running fuel if mixed with lower grade gas.

¶ Guerrilla warfare in Russia has become so highly organized that every third guerrilla now is armed with an automatic rifle.

¶ The war department soon will break still more precedents. It will start accepting women doctors in the army medical corps. They will be assigned chiefly to the WAAC, and also for general eye, ear, nose and throat work.

¶ The army's new M-1 helmet, that comes far over the cheeks, neck and forehead and is much stronger than the old raky "tin-hat," is now being distributed to all soldiers.

Wartime Problem Solved

Necessity has forced the American people to do many new things. While in the past many bird lovers have raised canaries at home for the pleasure and satisfaction they derived, now the breeding of canaries at home has become a new, worthwhile hobby—a money-making hobby that is spreading all over this country.

With the major supplies of canaries from abroad abruptly stopped . . . with a strict wartime ban placed on the importation of hundreds of thousands of canaries formerly shipped yearly from Central Europe and Asia, the ingenuity and foresight of the American people have met the situation with smiles of satisfaction—as they turned this canary shortage into a wartime opportunity.

But a small out-lay was required to start this worthwhile hobby—turning a most pleasurable undertaking into a profitable, money-making business at home.

Now Is Time To Repair Your Gin

Gin operators can save time, labor, fuel, wear on machinery and improve the quality of cotton by checking up, making proper adjustments and repairs on gin equipment this summer, says J B. Wilson, extension agricultural engineer.

Experiments by the U. S. Department of Agriculture at their cotton ginning laboratory show that by repairing worn brushes ginning time per bale can be decreased seven to 10 per cent. Airblast nozzles improperly adjusted have caused losses of as much as $1.00 a bale of long staple cotton and has slowed down the ginning process as much as 25 per cent.

To draw out the juices of fruits--berries, plums--sweeten the fruit slightly, then heat very slowly, just to the boiling point.

MESSAGE FROM B. T. WHITTINGTON

It was a source of pleasure and inspiration for me to have postponed my summer school registration at Tuskegee Institute for a few days to serve my County and Country by writing pledges for Defense Savings Stamps and Bonds. The County was divided into two groups as follows: Rural and Urban. The County was organized for speedy work and as a result I worked with the urban group.

I wish to take this opportunity to thank Dr. Peterson of Tuskegee Institute for appointing me County Chairman of the campaign for colored pledges. I also wish to thank the canvassers, the pledgers with whom we worked, the pledgers that went in through the County Agent's office and these who went in through their respective jobs, for taking part in one of the greatest and most effective campaigns that has been conducted in Chilton County. It has turned the attention of some youngsters as well as some grown ups towards the road that leads to security by the way of thrift. We are spending to make America safe for Democracy, aren't you? Pledge reports coming to me to date amounts to $11,375.60.

I am estimating that $9,000 in pledges went in through other agents. If you are wise buy U. S. Defense savings bonds and stamps, thereby building a foundation for future security. Again, I am thanking all participants for cooperating.—B. T. Whittington.

Be Alive On The 5th Urges Brawner

Montgomery—Last July 4th the people of the United States celebrated American independence. July 4th this year finds the forces of the United States fighting to preserve that independence.

Last year during the July 4th holidays there were approximately 9,600 persons killed in traffic accidents in the United States—a number equal to that of several regiments of soldiers. About 900,000 persons were injured in traffic accidents during the celebration period, and the economic cost was about $300,000,000.

July traffic accidents for the past several years have averaged 15 percent more than the average months. Heretofore more people were killed in traffic accidents each 13 days in July than lost their lives during the Revolutionary War.

Aside from traffic accidents, one-fifth of the country's drownings occur in July. It is said that July's average is 70 people killed each day by falls, at home at work, in the streets.

Major James F. Brawner, director of the Department of Public Safety, says that no one knows how much traffic there will be this July 4th, on account of the restricted conditions. He points to the fact, however, that with the war program on, with the demand for defense workers, and the country's great need of man-power along all lines, America can ill-afford the loss entailed by one accident, much less the sum total of such casualties. He suggests that people remain closer home this July 4th; that they do not expose themselves to accidents in traffic, or drowning, falls, fireworks and firearms. He warns against over-exercise, over-exposure to sun.

It is hoped that a curtailment of traffic will greatly reduce motor vehicle accidents. However, there must be a full co-operation of all people if appreciable reductions are recorded. Be alive on the 5th.

SURVIVORS OF U. S. S. LEXINGTON

By Irvin Lande

A tall, fine-looking, wavy-haired former Clanton boy returned home last week to tell of American victories over the Japanese in sea warfare. He is Second Class Electrician's Mate Quinton "Bill" Boockholdt, son of Mr. J. A. Bookholdt, former Clanton Chief of Police.

"Bill" is one of the survivors of the S. S. S. Lexington, the American aircraft carrier which was torpedoed and sunk in the Coral Sea—but only after it had taken a heavy toll of Japanese ships and planes. The carrier had been sunk May 8th but revealing announcement was made of that fact only three weeks ago, when it could do the Japanese no possible good.

The story of how the American sailors tried to save their ship, as "Bill" relates it, is an example of American courage and faithfulness. The Lexington was hit at 11:15 in the morning by Japanese planes swooping down upon the forward port battery. Dive bombers, suicide squadrons, and torpedo planes came down with full fury upon the Lexington on that fourth day of May, 1942. The Japs couldn't sink it, though. They succeeded only in setting the aircraft carrier afire. One of the very first bombs landed on the forward battery port, only a few feet from Bookholdt. The entire ship was soon in flames But for five hours, until they could not possibly endure the heat any longer, the sailors worked to save their ship. Finally, realizing the hopelessness of their cause, the captain of the aircraft carrier, Fred Sherman, told them to abandon ship. Sherman was later, by virtue of his skillful maneuvering of his ship in previous battles promoted to the rank of Admiral. Only at his command did the American soldiers go to their life rafts, to be rescued by an American destroyer.

After the survivors had been picked up by other ships in the vicinity, American ships put two torpedoes into the Lexington to sink it so that the Japanese could not get control of it. Of a personel of 2400 on the huge aircraft carrier, 92 per cent were rescued that day by American ships.

Though Bookholdt remarked that all the men hated to give up their ship, they were satisfied with their percentage of victory over the Japanese. For, by means of their five inch anti-aircraft guns on the Lexington, they had downed 67 Japanese planes in the battles at Salamoa Lae, Boulevil, and the Coral Sea. Moreover, they had also sunk 17 Japanese ships.

"Bill" Bookholdt joined the Navy on September 1, 1940, in Miami Florida, along with his two constant companions from Florida, John Russell Bensen and William Harry Hooker (shown above with Boockholdt). The three of them were put on th Lexington on November 18, 1940, and were together when it was sunk. In the Navy they have traveled 100,000 miles --60,000 in their first year, and 43,311 since the war began. "Bill" came home on his twelve day furlough from San Diego, California. Traveling for ten of those twelve days, he had only forty-eight hours at home. By now, he and his two companions are again fighting to make America free.

They're also fighting for something else, too, "Bill" says. The week after Pearl Harbor, they were supposed to have had a dance. But came Pearl Harbor, and the dance was postponed. In the ship's paper was the announcement that the dance would be held at a later date in Tokyo!....And they mean it.

Like most of us would have, we we asked "Bill" from where did the American bombers come that raided Tokyo. But that was one question he could not answer. He knew, but could not say--like most of us, though, he wants them to bomb Japan again.

There was another question which was only natural that we should have asked him—"What do you think of the war, how long will it take, where do we stand?"

Top—Bill Boockholdt, Henry Hooder and John Russell Benson.

And because we feel that he ought to know better than most of us, his answer ought to be worth a great deal to us. In the Coral Sea where the Americans won a decisive victory over the Japanese, "Bill" says that we were outnumbered--too much so. "Americans have underestimated Japanese Naval strength." In "Bill's" opinion we have a lot of reconquering to do to win this war. It's going to take a long time--it's a hard road ahead--but we can win.

After talking with "Bill" and hearing the stories of American courage during the battles of Macassar Strait, the Coral Sea, and Midway, one cannot but feel that we should do everything possible to assist our men in uniform--in the Navy, Army and Marines. They're fighting on the battle lines courageously without thought of danger. They are accepting orders with thought not of work, but of service. They're wiling to undergo all hardships to win the war. They're doing at the front what we at home have neither technical ability or physical stamina to do.

But to back them up every inch of the way is our job. To write letters to keep up their morale, to buy bonds and defense stamps to keep up production, and to sacrifice willingly, to Keep Old Glory flying--that is our job. And we owe it to "Bill" Boockholdt and his fellow American warriors throughout the world to fulfill that job-

FSA Farm Families Operate Systematically

There are 379 farm families in Chilton County who are operating under systematic farm and home plans which they have worked out with assistance of farm and home supervisors of the Farm Security Administration, it was reported today by Marvin Durbin, FSA County Supervisor.

These Chilton County families are part of the 90,067 in Region Five, comprised of the four Southeastern States of Alabama, Georgia, South Carolina and Florida, for borrowers who hve been participating in the program for one year or more, and 869 who have obtained loans enabling them to increase their production for war purposes.

In the Southeastern Region, 11,321 plans were made for new borrowers 77,877 for borrowers who have been participating in the program for one year or more, and 869 who have obtained loans enabling them to increase their production for war purposes

In this county, the number of new borrowers in the ten-month period was 52, old borrowers 300 and Special Food for Freedom borrowers 27 said the local supervisor.

Mr. Durbin pointed out that plans are worked out in consultation with the low income farmers, and are created to enable them to make the most of their farming operations, while making the most of their living practices.

"The farm and home are considered as a unit," said Mr. Durbin. "In the Farm Security program it is considered that a good home must be supported by a good farm, and that there can be no proper farming plan unless it is developed on the idea of proper standards in the home."

"Both farm and home plans create the basis of careful supervision. They provide standards by which the supervision can be applied and by which effective results can be obtained. It is the planless farmer, and the housewife who fails to live according to a budget and a system, who comes to grief.'

Farmers Urged To Improve Soil

With the supply of commercial nitrogen for next year expected to be even shorter that at present, farmers are urged to utilize every soil building crop possible in order to produce yields of other crops next year.

J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist, suggests that crotalaria be planted in corn or cotton middles at the last cultivation this summer. Crotalaria is a soil building plant that has been found to grow successfully on practically all soil types of the state.

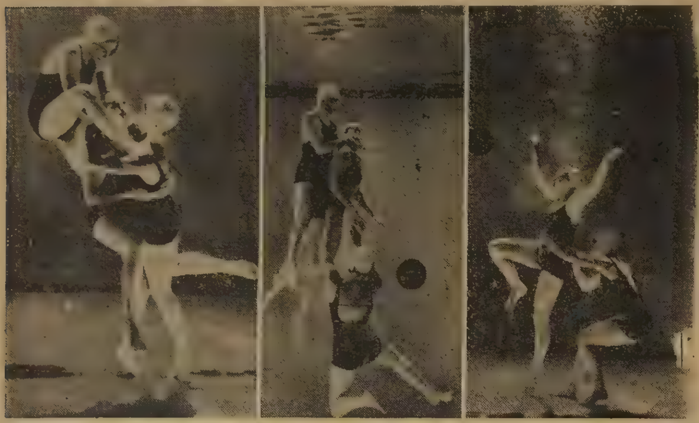
First Under-Water Photos of Life-Saving



A demonstration of life-saving is shown above, photographed for the first time under water, as staged by members of Boston chapter of the Red Cross. At left, three swimmers enact role of "victim," untrained rescuer and trained rescuer. Victim grabs would-be rescuer about neck; would-be rescuer gets panicky, grabs victim. Trained rescuer drops down on both and breaks their grips, prying both apart as shown in first and second photos. Right: Rescuer flexes knees for spring that will shoot both to surface.

Keep 'Em Loaded and Keep 'Em Flying

At an army air depot somewhere in the western part of the U. S., huge transport planes, "the flying box-cars" of the army air force, ship freight on wings to foreign battle fronts. At left the loading crew is transferring freight to waiting "flying box car." Inset: Poised for flight are these air freight planes, to any air field in case of an emergency call.

War Heroes—and Symbol of Their Purpose

Thirteen British and American war heroes visit Independence hall, Philadelphia, Pa., after being given a rousing welcome in New York. They are shown grouped around the Liberty Bell—the bell which is the symbol of that freedom in whose cause they performed their heroic deeds. The heroes then went to Washington to visit President Roosevelt.

Messerschmitt Flies Over U. S.

The first German Messerschmitt plane ever to fly in the U. S. took part in the Air Cavalcade—a joint army force and treasury department tour to boost sale of war bonds. The itinerary included 18 cities. The plane (shown above) was shot down over England. Included in the Cavalcade was a British Spitfire, famous fighter plane.

U. S. and RAF Airmen Cooperate in Egypt

This picture, radioed to New York from Cairo, shows a crew of United States and RAF bombing planes chatting together after a combined attack on Nazi positions in Libya, just before General Rommel's armored columns penetrated into Egypt. These men took part in the bombing of the Italian fleet and the bombing of Bengazi harbor.

Summer Vacations—1942 Style As Gas Rationing Clamps Down

Faced with wartime gas and tire rations, vacation-minded America this year is fashioning a new vacation pattern. Gaieties popular at the turn of the century will be the order of the day for many of the 60 million Americans who annually spend about 7 billion dollars on vacation trips. Here are some of the nation's 1942 vacation styles.

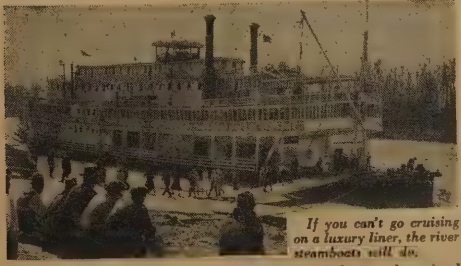
Shown above is one happy solution to gasoline rations—sightseeing in the tradition of the Mauve decade. Yes, the horse and buggy days are just around the corner.

Meanwhile, as good Americans, many summer vacationists may have to say, "After you, soldier," while Uncle Sam's armed forces go Pullman. For example, in the period from December 7, 1941, through April, 1942, nearly 2,000,000 fighting men were transported in Pullman cars to all sections of the country.

Happily for all concerned, there are no Axis submarines in these blue waters. So, with old-time abandon we take to sailing.

"Ham and," cooked in this fashion, will make up many a vacation menu this year. Doesn't it remind you of the "good old days"?



If you can't go cruising on a luxury liner, the river steamboats will do.

And if you haven't had a trip on a river steamboat you've missed something!

Sportlight

by GRANTLAND RICE

NANA WNU Service

IN THE midst of the turmoil of nations and the crash of planets the argument has arisen as to which is the more proficient type in competitive sport—the fellow who is knock-kneed or the one who is bowlegged?

This query comes in from one of the army camps, where it seems that quite a debate followed without arrival at any fitting and proper exit.

Grantland Rice

As a starter I put the matter up to P. Hal Sims, golfer, bridge player and a close follower of all sports where he might pick up a worthy wager—and on the right side. Mr. Sims promptly went for the knock-kneed entry.

"I know in golf," he said, "that it provides a more comfortable stance, and it also allows you to pivot much more freely."

To carry out his point Mr. Sims picked up a random brassie and proved that a bowlegged golfer had to turn with great effort, whereas the knock-kneed party had no trouble at all in this respect.

"With the two knees bearing in," Mr. Sims continued, "you are balanced at the start. You are all set."

To prove his point further, artistically and financially, Mr. Sims then played the first nine holes at Garden City in 36, one under par.

Other Stars

On the knock-kneed side I can give you the case of two star performers. One was Ruby Robert Fitzsimmons, who stopped Jim Corbett at Carson City, Nev., some 45 years ago.

Fitz was a terrific puncher—especially for his weight, which was from 158 to 165 pounds. One day Fitz had a workout with Kid McCoy. In that workout Fitz gave the Kid a heavy lathering. As the operation was taking place, McCoy's keen eyes noticed how Fitz stood—how knock-kneed he was.

Deciding this stance, a natural one, provided at least part of the leverage, the Kid tied a towel around his knees, just enough to permit him to move around, but getting the benefit of the knock-kneed effect. He always claimed as a result he became a much harder puncher later on.

"It was the added leverage," according to the Kid, "that did the job."

He went on:

Christy Mathewson was the most knock-kneed pitcher I ever saw. It was Matty's idea that being knock-kneed helped his balance tremendously—accounting in part for his fine control. You could barely get the segment of a toy balloon between Matty's knees.

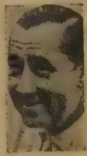
Against this, Hans Wagner was as bowlegged as a barrel hoop. You could drive a horse—a short one—between Wagner's wide-spreading legs.

I have known many great football players who also were on the bowlegged side.

The Normal Stance

Mr. Sims brings out the point that in golf, instructor Alex Morrison always advocates an inward roll of the left and right foot—left foot on the backswing, right foot on the downswing. This naturally comes much easier to the knock-kneed party, who has a slight start along that route.

But it must be admitted that the normal stance is the straight-legged fellow — Joe Louis, Ty Cobb, Bobby Jones, Walter Hagen, Byron Nelson, Jack Dempsey, Bill Tilden, Babe Ruth.



Walter Hagen

I don't think there is any question that a pigeon-toed take-off provides more leverage and a quicker start than one that is slue-footed. I should say the pigeon-toed stance would come more naturally from a knock-kneed player than from one on the bowlegged side at least generally speaking.

Stance is largely a matter of balance and leverage. There is certainly more power to be gotten from the inside of the feet than from the outside. You can get an inside grip, whereas there is no outside grip.

The Greatest Ball Player

"Do you know the greatest ball player I ever saw?" Andy Coakley, the old Philadelphia Athletics' star, asked. "His name was Louis Sockalexis, the Indian who once played with Cleveland. Lou lasted only a short while, but he had everything—Ty Cobb's speed, Babe Ruth's swing, a great arm. He was a master artist. If he had only given more attention to baseball he could have been a steady .400 hitter. I've never seen another who had as much natural all-around ability."

AN OPEN LETTER TO UNCLE SAM

(From "This Week" in B'ham News)

Dear Uncle:

I've just come off the "graveyard" shift in the mill. I'm tired and sleepy but there are some things I want to write you before I go to bed.

I want to tell you that I am getting sick of this rot about Americans being weak, soft and spoiled. Timid advisers have told you to go easy in asking us to give up certain privileges. A few have squawked that they were bearing the heaviest load. Others have said "the people" won't stand for this or that.

I have not been appointed to speak for anyone. But this talk about the people includes me. So I want to tell you how I feel. And I think the people feel the same way.

I feel like giving whatever you need of me. I will not ask if it is really necessary. I will ask if you do not really need more. Let's stop planning how hard our enemies will need to be hit. Let's hit them with all we've got!

If it means giving up every comfort and luxury I have worked to provide, if it means coarser food and less to wear, if it means harder work, just speak up plainly Now! Before the war need is greater. Let me prove that I can take it without complaining.

You have been very good to me, Uncle Sam. You have recognized dignity and equality underneath my overalls that no humble foreign worker ever dreamed of attaining. You made my sweat honorable and the means of providing a comfortable home, good food, a car and entertainment for my family. You stood behind me in the belief that I should look upon no man as my master. You provided a way in which I might work toward security in my old age.

You developed in me a love of peace and leisure. But in doing this you were not a sucker, Uncle Sam. For you developed something else our enemies can't undersand in a common man: Intelligence and Responsibility.

So take my leisure, or cut off the things that have brightened my existence, and watch me redouble my efforts for victory and their return. Take my car or my year-old tires if you can use them. I shall be glad to walk to work, and to the stores, and to church, proud in the knowledge that our huge automobile industry is turning out a miracle of tanks, planes and guns to defend my home.

Some of your advisers have declared that I need to learn that we are at war. They are wrong, Uncle Sam I know it. My wife, even my 10-year-old son know it. And it hurts. Not because you have rationed sugar and gasoline. We were conserving that months ago. And we put the savings in War Stamps. None of this hurts. What really hurts is the feeling that there might be something more I could be doing now to support our men at the front.

On my questionnaire I've given you a record of my experience and working skill. When you get out that information to decide where I can be most useful, please add in capital letters these words to my qualifications: TOUGHER THAN YOU THINK.

MORE WILLING THAN YOU HAVE SUSPECTED.

If you find hat my skill can be more helpful at some far-away battle outpost, or in some war plant where I cannot find living quarters for my family, don't hesitate to call upon me. True, my home would be upset—but my home was attacked when the bombs hit Pearl Harbor. I cannot safely relax in that home until all our enemies are defeated If they are not beaten, I can never relax there again. That's why I want you to command all I've got that will help you to strike faster, farther and harder than the enemies of freedom have ever been struck before.

I must go to bed now, so that I can get top production out of my machines tonight while others sleep. I shall keep doing this until you call on me for something more. I just wanted you to know that it isn't necessary to worry about how much you can ask me to do. Speak plainly the moment the need arises. Your sons can deliver on short notice

By Rev. D. W. Haskew, D. D.

It was the Sunday school hour and the teacher asked his class of adults to name the three times in the Bible when animals spoke. There was silence for a moment and then a man ventured an answer. "The first time" said this Bible student, "Was when the serpent spoke to Eve, the next time was when the Ass spoke to Baalam, and the third time was when the whale said to Jonah, almost thou persuadest me to be a christian." If the man's answer was not correct, can you tell where it was wrong and can you correct it? It is astonishing how little grown people know about the Bible.

The yard had to be mowed and the job fell upon the ten year old son of the home. The boy decided to make his dog help him and so he was harnessed to the mower and set to pulling it while the boy guided it in the grass. After a few rounds the dog stopped pulling and set up a furious bark at a passer-by. The boy who was guiding the mower said to the frightened man, "Don't mind my dog, he is just barking to get to rest." Like that dog, we have many church members who will work for a while, but they had much rather bark than serve and so they will set up a loud furor about something, in order that they may slack the traces. It is easier to be critical than correct. It is easier to hinder than it is to help It is easier to tear up a reputation than it is to produce a character. It is easier to bark than it is to work. When one barks a lot, he works but little.

Have you ever thought about the simplicity of salvation? The plan is so simple that all mankind can claim it. Suppose that God had made it imperative that all Christians should visit the sick, then the lame man would have been hindered. Suppose that God had required that to be saved a man had to see his way, or hear the voice of God, then the blind man and the deaf man could not have been saved. Salvation is based upon belief. The crippled man, the blind man, the deaf man can believe. Even a dying man can believe. God has made the matter of salvation so simple that old and young, rich and poor, wise and unwise, can believe if they will. Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved.

A great ship was sinking off the shore of Fisher's Island and there was a passenger on board who could not swim, and yet this man determined to save his life, God helping him. He bound a life preserver about his body and took his place on the deck of the sinking ship, waiting to see what could be done. On seeing a tremendous wave making it's way toward the shore, the man leaped into the rough breakers and was borne to land. In one sense he saved himself and in another sense he depended upon God. If he had not used the life preserver, if he had not jumped into the wave that was going to shore, he would have perished It takes a lot of common sense, a lot of faith in God and a lot of action on our part to find our way to salvation.

While I was pastor in a certain Alabama Mill town I had in my church one of the most talkative religious men I ever saw. He talked religion all the time. Having the uttermost faith in him I said to his foreman, "I guess that John is one of your best weavers." I shall never forget the reply of that foreman. He had this to say about John, "The trouble about John is that he stands around and talks religion when he should be looking after his loom. He is a good fellow alright but he has not yet learned that while he is on the job that his religion should be coming from his finger tips and not from his mouth." John was one of those fellows who talked much and did little. Mark this truth from me; when a man has a great deal of religion, it is not going to be accompanied with a great deal of talk. What a man does, means more than what he says.

Watch Used Tires

Examine all used tires for defects craftily hidden by unscrupulous second hand tire dealers, before buying, Major James F Brawner, director of the State Department of Public Safety, advised Alabama motorists today. He also urged all drivers to keep records of the serial numbers on all their tires, to help trace thefts.

A patriotic example was set at the recent convention of the Alabama Pharmaceutical Association when all delegates attending an official breakfast were assessed for purchase of defense stamps.

State Guernseys Sold

Continuing the state policy of helping Alabama farmers improve their milk herds, the Department of Corrections and Institutions auctioned off 25 pure-bred Guernseys for a total of only $3,195 at the annual Kilby sale.

Mrs. C. C Wood, of Woodstock, has a copy of a four-page New York Herald, dated April 15, 1865. The paper contains an account of the assassination of President Lincoln.

RUBBER DRIVE MUST BE KEPT UP UNTIL WAR IS WON

"The war is not over yet, and the scrap rubber collection drive must be kept up until the last shot is fired," Tom Bragg, chairman of the Alabama Salvage Committtee, declared today appealing for a continuous effort to all county committees

Dispite the substantial collection of scrap rubber throughout the nation and state, and the public-spirited response in Chilton County, a great deal remains to be done to assure a steady supply of rubber for American Military needs, Chairman Bragg pointed out.

"As tires, garden hose and other rubber articles wear out from day to day, keep your sales and contributions going to the sources designated by your county salvage committee" Mr. Bragg urged.

"The Axis is taking no vacation. It is war—brutal war—everyday, every hour on the fighting fronts of the United Nations, all the way from the battle lines of brave Russia to the outer Australian defenses where General Mac Arthur's men are giving their all.

"The pound or so of rubber which each citizen-soldier on the home front can gather is small to the individual but it is important to the world—to the future of the world."

STATE TO BUILD BEEF CATTLE HERD NEAR GREENSBORO

The State of Alabama, which already has one of the finest milk herds in the country, at Kilby Prison soon will start building up a similar herd of beef cattle, to assist in the spread of pure-bred beef herds among Alabama farmers.

After a conference with Gov Dixon, whose farm program has stressed the building up of Alabama as a dairy nd cattle state, Col. W. E. Persons, state director of corrections and institutions, announced that a number of pure-bred Hereford heifers will be purchased in the Western states and taken to the state prison ranch near Greensboro.

"White-faced beef cattle are what Alabama needs," Colonel Person said. "As soon as a good herd can be built-up, t'is planned to extend the lend-lease system of young bulls, already used in propagating better milk stock, to the beef cattle farmer."

FOLKS AND THINGS ABOUT TOWN

By BEN

Don't be surprised now if you see "Rip" Burnett any day riding down the highway in a newly painted buggy, (the horsedrawn variety) singing "Jingle Bells," Rip bought a buggy and a whole batch of harness the other day and included in the trade was a set, or what ever you call them of sleigh bells. Of course we had never seen anything like them before and doubt seriously if there many people in Chilton County who have. They have a pretty jingle though, and we spent several minutes over there the other afternoon imagining that we were sleigh riding in deep snow, listening to the jingle of sleigh bells.

Dave Cohen sure gets about. The day we hear that he is in New York, we see him pass going to the Parisian. Think it was a buying trip orsomething . . . another of Chas. Wade's flying students makes a name for himself. Bill Ferguson, whom Chas. trained to fly at Gragg Field won top honors in a class at a glider training field in Minnisota.

Here is a short poem written by Peggy Murrah, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Murrah, and we think very good considering that little Miss Murrah is only 12 years old.

Let's help the boys in our camps,
By buying Defense Bonds and Stamps.
Let's help give those yellow Japs
Many hard kicks and hard slaps
Come on, Children, let's help our fighting boys
We can do without so many of our toys.
Let's save scrap paper, rubber and tin
So we can help our boys win.
Some of us have kin in the fighting forces,
And others have sisters taking Red Cross courses.
So let's save at least a dime,
And buy a defense stamp every time.

And speaking of War Bonds and Stamps. Just in case you think you are lucky, listen to this. Miss Euna Powell, who works at the office of Dr. W. C. Golden, if she hasn't retired and ceased hard labor for life, found a small blank on her front porch around the first last month and decided she would try her luck, or brains, on winning a Bond. Proctor and Gamble were the people reasponsible for the contest and the idea was to tell how buying Bonds and Stamps would aid in winning the war. Well, as we said before Euna hasn't decided whether it was brains or luck, (she don't even remember what she said on her entry blank) but nohow she received a telegram last Thursday and a letter Saturday confirming the telegram that she was the winner of a thousand dollar War Bond . . . now read it slow, a t-h-o-u-s-a-n-d do--l-l-a-r W-a-r B O N D. A UNITED STATES WORLD

(AP)—via Alabama Journal Governor Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota pictured a world association of free peoples, operating somewhat like the states of the union under the federal system, as a possible aftermath of the current war.

"The record that has been made by forty-eight states of these United States," he said in an address prepared for the opening session of the 34th Annual National Governors' Conference, "in working together despite their diverse interests, their varying climate, the different background of their people, and notwithstanding the fact that they are populated by sons and daughters of every nation of the world is, in itself, a beacon of hope for the future relationship between the peoples of the world some of the openings and orderliness of the relations between our states, in place of some of the devious diplomacy and international intrigue that has characterized pre-war dys.

Complete Victory Forecast

"With the background of the successful relationship between the states in America we might well develop a free associations of nations."

Speaking as chairman of the conference, which is attended by governors of 40 states, the Minnesota chief executive predicted that the United Nations would win "a complete victory" in the war.

"We will maintain the soundness of our governmental structure on a federal basis with our social, political, economic and political liberties," he added. "We will furnish leadership in the winning of the peace through a world association based upon the United Nations."

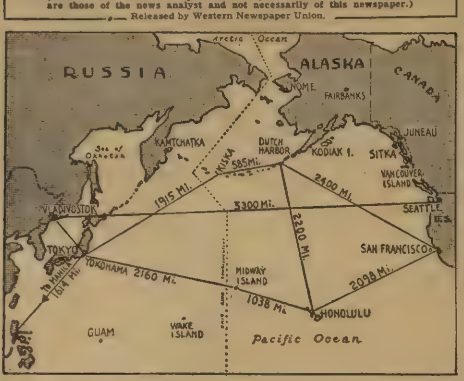
WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Fresh Nazi Offensive Forces Red Army To Yield Key Ground Back of Kharkov; Rommel Drive Perils All Middle East; U. S. Names Leader for European Zone

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.



The strategic importance of the Aleutian islands, off Southwest Alaska, is indicated by the above map. From Kiska, near the western end of the chain, to Tokyo the distance is less than 2,000 miles. Dutch Harbor lies 2,400 miles northwest of San Francisco. Jap landings in the fog-blanketed Aleutians have focused America's attention on that area.

RUSSIAN WAR:
Nazis Pay Dearly

Marshal Timoshenko's Red army had sustained blow after blow on the Kharkov front as General von Bock's Nazi hordes tried a break-through to swing around Rostov, gateway to the Caucasus oil fields.

Stubbornly resisting German forces numerically and mechanically superior to them, the Russians had been compelled to fall back to new lines. Here they had withstood heavy attacks of tanks, infantry and planes.

A Russian communique acknowledged the loss of the railway junction city of Kupyansk, 60 miles southeast of Kharkov.

The Reds were following a strategy that had served them well in last year's bloody campaigns—of fighting fiercely until forced to fall back, then withdrawing slowly to strongly prepared positions. Meanwhile they were taking an enormous toll in Nazi dead and slowing down Hitler's timetable.

Meanwhile, Britain brought additional grief to the Nazis with a world record raid on the German port city of Bremen. More than 1,000 planes raided Bremen, leaving it in flames. A British communique reported the loss of 52 planes.

TAX BILL:
Biggest on Record

The average income taxpayer faced the prospect of paying about twice as much as he is now paying when the new federal revenue bill becomes operative.

As approved by the house ways and means committee, the new bill would provide a gross revenue estimated at $5,924,000,000—the largest tax ever collected in United States history. At that, it was a billion and a half short of the treasury department's original request for new levies to help finance war outlays.

Surprising to many fiscal experts was the house committee's action in striking out a provision making it mandatory for husbands and wives to file joint income tax returns.

The average wage-earner would be affected three ways under the new tax measure. The bill provides a normal income rate increase of from 4 to 6 per cent; exemptions for single men would be reduced from $750 to $500 and for married men from $1,500 to $1,200; surtaxes would be increased from 6 to 12 per cent on the first $1,000 of net taxable income.

U. S. INCOME:
To Hit 117 Billion

Marriner S. Eccles, chairman of the Federal Reserve board told the nation that a new all-time record of 117 billion dollars for the annual national income would be reached during the war years.

Mr. Eccles warned Americans that this tremendous spending power will be far in excess of the consumer goods available to the buying public. Strict curtailment of all but necessary purchases, greater personal savings and steady buying of government war bonds, he said, will stop inflation.

The 1942 national income will be about 110 billion dollars, he said in a radio address. This will be about 30 billion more than it was in 1939.

EUROPEAN FRONT:
U. S. Takes Steps

A further step in the program to make the fighting efforts of the United States and Britain more effective and to pave the way for the second front was taken when the war department announced the establishment of a "European theater of operations for United States forces."

Director of this European theater was Maj. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, recently assistant chief of staff of the war department general staff, who had already arrived in London when the announcement of his appointment was made.

Laconic was the statement issued by the new commanding general in which he said that "formal establishment of a European theater is a logical step in co-ordinating the efforts of Great Britain and the United States."

EGYPT:
Tank Steeplechase

Sidi Barrani had fallen and Salum had been abandoned as the British strove by fierce rearguard actions to slow down the rush of Marshal Rommel's victory-flushed tank armies in engagements on which the fate of Egypt and Suez depended.

The serious plight of the British had been apparent following the surprise surrender of Tobruk in nearby Libya. Foxy General Rommel lost no time in following up his advantage by slicing into Egypt.

General Ritchie's battered forces had not made a stand at the Egyptian border because of the danger of encirclement, but had withdrawn to Mersa Matruh, 157 miles east of the Libyan frontier.

The British had been in possession of Sidi Barrani since December 11, 1940, when they drove out Italian troops which had occupied the town less than three months before and then launched a drive which swept 400 miles across the Libyan desert.

FAMILY MEN:
Deferred by Draft

The departure of many a married draft inductee for training camp was halted when President Roosevelt signed legislation authorizing deferment of family men until the supply of single men is exhausted. This marked the first time in American military history that the policy of so preserving established families had been fixed by law.

Draft headquarters announced that married men with children would be the last to be called into service, but emphasized that they could count on no permanent deferment. The deferment clause applied only to men married before December 8, 1941.

Financial assistance to dependents of service men was provided in the measure, with the government furnishing the bulk of the monthly allowance check and the service men the balance. The allotments would go to army men up to and including the grade of line sergeants and navy men including third class petty officers.

Allowances include $50 a month for a childless wife of a service man, $62 for a wife with one child and $72 for a wife with two children.

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

PRAGUE: The Nazi information service announced that 26 more Czechs had been shot in reprisal for the killing of Reinhard ("The Hangman") Heydrich.

WASHINGTON: The house ways and means committee voted to direct the post office department to increase third class mail rates to the point where the service pays for itself.

ROME: Improvement in the health of Pope Pius was reported in a dispatch by the Vatican City press. Although the pope is giving no audiences, he is receiving his immediate collaborators, the dispatch disclosed. Doctors attending the pontiff were hopeful he could go to St. Peter's on the eve of St. Peter's day for the traditional visit to the apostle's tomb.

SUBMARINE WAR:
Caribbean Casualties

While President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill labored over the problem of finding ships with which to open and support a supreme front against the Axis, disquieting news of the increasing menace of enemy submarines in American waters was made public.

Soon after the navy had announced that a convoy system was protecting shipping along the Atlantic coast, came a communique disclosing that Axis subs had sunk 13 ships in the Caribbean in a 12-day period. The shift in Axis U-boat tactics from our immediate shores to the Caribbean sea lanes presented new problems to an already overworked navy.

That these problems would receive prompt attention was intimated when it was announced that the navy had purchased two big airports in Miami, Fla. Establishment of air bases here would provide the navy with effective operating points from which to strike at submarines in southern waters.

CONSUMER SERVICE:
OPA Takes Hand

Prices for shoe-shines and half-soles, for funerals, pants-pressing and permanent waving reverted to the level existing on March 1, when the Office of Price Administration established fixed ceilings for consumer services.

The new order affecting a million establishments doing a five billion dollar a year business, stabilized costs of important personal service items for every American citizen. It was a further step in the OPA's campaign to prevent inflation and runaway prices.

For example, the laundry that charged 12 cents for a shirt in March and raised the rate to 15 cents in April or June, had to cut its figure back to 12 cents on July 1.

Among the most common family budget items covered by the regulations were shoe repairing and shining; pressing, altering and repair of clothing; hat cleaning; laundry; electrical repairing; food locker service and rental; cleaning and dyeing; film developing and printing; watch and clock repairing; and undertaker's services.

ARGENTINA:
'Neutrality's' End?

While Argentine's policy of "prudent neutrality" had foundered with the sinking by a Nazi submarine of the freighter Rio Tercero, President Roberto M. Ortiz, supporter of President Roosevelt's policies, formally submitted his resignation. Inactive for nearly two years because of near-blindness, Ortiz placed full responsibility for his country's administration upon Acting President Ramon S. Castillo, father of the "prudent neutrality" policy in dealing with the Axis.

DR. ROBERTO ORTIZ

The sinking of the Rio Tercero fanned a flame of popular resentment against Germany, for this was the third Argentine ship attacked and the second sunk in recent months. This resentment failed to calm down even when the government announced it had dispatched an "energetic" note of protest to Berlin. Sterner measures were demanded not only by the public but by the chamber of deputies.

AUSTRALIA:
100 New Airdromes

Steady progress in the task of strengthening Australia's defenses against Japanese invasion and providing offensive springboards for an eventual United Nations assault on Nippon was reported by Brig. Gen. Hugh Casey of the U. S. engineers corps.

At least 100 airdromes have been completed in the last few months, he said. In addition, war construction work embracing 1,500 major and minor projects is "well in hand" despite a scarcity of labor, plants and machinery.

General Casey reported that one airdrome costing $9,600,000 had been completed in 71 days.

ARMY BUDGET:
43 Billion for War

With grave news from the fighting fronts in Russia and the Middle East disturbing the nation, the house of representatives approved a bill appropriating nearly 43 billion dollars for the army for the next fiscal year.

This new army bill exceeds by more than a billion dollars the entire cost of World War I. It brings to more than 129 billion dollars the total provided for the army and navy since Pearl Harbor.

GASOLATIONISTS!

According to a Washington report, over 600 men have lost their lives at sea—in an effort to deliver gasoline for pleasure driving in the Eastern States. This means that the gas shortage is no longer a question of burning gasoline. It is now a matter of burning conscience.

Some people and certain newspapers continue to grumble about their loss of gas. But our armed forces have yet to protest their loss of blood. There are so-called Americans complaining today that they may have to walk. There are other Americans, casualties in battle, praying that some day they may be able to walk again.

The measure of their heroism is the measure of the gas slacker's cowardice. The gas slacker has his constitutional rights mixed up with his driver's license. He thinks that 10 million Americans are ready to stand behind a gun so that he can sit behind a wheel. It never occurs to him that cheating an ambulance out of its gasoline is as rotten as cheating the wounded out of their bandages.

To the Gasolationists, America is only a road map. But for a man who doesn't need it, a full gas tank means an empty heart.

The Story Tellers:

Heheheh: Mefoofsky's little boy, Max Jr., fell in with some toughies on the block who taught him the Nazi salute. He came home parading all over the house, doing it, yelling, "Hi, Hitler!" Mefoofsky's shocked entreaties were of no avail. In desperation he called in Dr. Schmetric.

"Nu, doctur?" was Mefoofsky's frantic cry. "Do you tink ve'll have to hamputate?"

Include Him Out! A favorite Goldwyn story isn't a one-line snapper, to hear a Liberty editor tell it. It's a yarn that throws a spotlight on the famed producer.

Mr. Goldwyn sent for Edward Chodorov to discuss writing a picture. He was shown a script. He told Goldwyn he didn't think it would make a good flicker. Of course, Goldwyn didn't hire him. The story was "Woman Chases Man" and was one of Goldwyn's few failures.

Several years later, Goldwyn needed a writer. The new story editor suggested Eddie Chodorov. Goldwyn hit the ceiling.

"Never mention that name to me," he thundered. "I won't have him around. He was connected with one of my worst flops!"

How is the war going? On the neutral exchanges in Switzerland the Nazi mark has taken a terrific dive—dropped 20 per cent in the last two wks. And to our whiners about inflation: The U. One thing a soldier is afraid of is a display of emotion. That's why his slang so often sounds derogatory. For example, he refers to the silver eagles on his colonel's shoulder straps as "buzzards." But when he speaks of his favorite cigarette, he says: "Camels." They're first with men in the Army as well as with Sailors, Marines, and Coast Guardsmen. (According to actual sales records in service men's stores.) A gift of a carton of Camels is always well received. Here's a Gentler Way to Treat Constipation!

Do you think you have to take harsh cathartics or purges every time constipation makes you miserable? You don't—if you are one of those people with normal intestines who suffer from constipation due to lack of "bulk" in the diet. There is a pleasanter and gentler way.

All you do is eat KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN regularly and drink plenty of water. ALL-BRAN is a crisp, delicious cereal. It works quite differently from many medicinal laxatives. They work by prodding the intestines into action or by drawing moisture into them from other parts of the body. But ALL-BRAN acts principally on the contents of the colon, helping you to have easy and normal elimination. ALL-BRAN is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is not helped by this simple treatment, see a doctor.

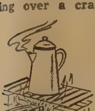
These Babecued Hamburgers Are Appetite-Tempting!
(See Recipes Below.)

Outdoor Fun



The delicious aroma of meat cooking over a crackling fire, toasted buns, and freshly roasted corn or potatoes in the embers—all these make for plenty of summer fun. Toss together your outdoor cooking equipment, bright, gay colored cloths, napkins, and gather some wood for your picnic. Plan to have lots of hearty, nourishing food to give your picknickers so they will have plenty of that up-and-at-them spirit.

Crunchy green salads packed in jelly glasses or paper containers, steaming hot coffee, baked beans, or macaroni and cheese, and barbecued meat. Dispel the chilliness of cool nights with your picnic outdoors.

Hamburgers are old favorites, but you can make them extra delicious by drizzling a tasty barbecue sauce over them while they cook.

Barbecued Hamburgers.
(Serves 8)

2 pounds ground beef
1½ teaspoons salt
Pepper to taste
2 tablespoons vinegar
1 tablespoon flour
1 teaspoon chili powder
2 teaspoons brown sugar
2 teaspoons salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 medium-sized onion, chopped
1½ tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
½ cup catsup
1 tablespoon hot water

Have any of the thriftier cuts of beef ground—such as chuck, flank, shank, neck, or heel of round. If meat is quite lean, ask your butcher to grind in some suet. Mix meat thoroughly with salt and pepper. Cook on a greased griddle-grill with thick slices of onion. Mix rest of ingredients well and drizzle over hamburgers as they cook. This sauce is also excellent over frankfurters which have been pricked with a fork.

To make a new kind of "cheeseburger," add ½ cup grated cheese to each pound of hamburger, mixing lightly.

Hamburger Puffs.
(Serves 8)

2 pounds chuck steak, ground
2 cups grated raw potato
4 tablespoons grated onion
2 teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ peeled clove of garlic, minced
4 tablespoons milk
4 tablespoons fat

Combine all ingredients except fat. Form into 16 patties. Cook in fat on a greased grill or skillet over medium heat until brown on both sides and done. About 5 or 6 minutes on each side is enough.

Recipe Given

Roast Corn.

Have a hot fire and let it burn down until there is a good pile of red embers. Soak the ears of corn in their husks until good and wet and lay them, still in the husks, in the hot ashes. Bake for 30 minutes or until corn is tender. Turn the ears occasionally.

Roast Potatoes.

Bury potatoes in hot ashes and roast as you do the corn, until they are tender. They take longer to roast than the corn. Serve with lots of butter, salt, and pepper.

Marshmallow Dessert.
(Serves 6)

Small bars of plain chocolate
12 graham crackers
12 marshmallows

Toast 2 marshmallows over the coals to a crisp, gooey state, and then put them inside a graham cracker and chocolate bar sandwich. The heat of the marshmallow between the halves of chocolate bar will melt the chocolate just enough, and the graham crackers on the outside are nice to hold.

Do you like to go primitive and roast meat over a forked stick or long-handled fork? Then, you'll like:

Kabobs.

For each person, allow ¼ pound round steak, ½ of a medium-sized onion, and a few slices of bacon. Cut the meat in 1-inch squares, cut the onion lengthwise, from top to bottom. Cut the slices of bacon into thirds. Place beef, onion, and bacon on a fork or stick, alternately, and broil over coals until done.

A salad that is both health-crammed and delicious for a picnic is this one made with plenty of vegetables and cottage cheese:

Vitamin Salad.
(Serves 6)

1 cup celery, diced
2 cups cottage cheese
½ green pepper, diced
1 cup carrots, shredded (cooked)
2 cups cabbage, shredded fine
½ cup mayonnaise
Salt

Toss together all ingredients and serve on crisp lettuce leaves.

A cookie treat to take with you on your picnic is this sugar-saving one:

Fruit Treats.
(Makes 12 Treats)

2 cups sifted, enriched flour
3 tablespoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
2 to 4 tablespoons shortening
½ cup milk (about)
1 tablespoon honey or corn syrup
2 eggs
12 cooked apricots or prunes

Sift flour, baking powder and salt together. Cut in shortening. Beat 1 whole egg and 1 egg yolk, reserving white for tops. Add milk and honey to beaten eggs and add flour to mixture. Stir in only enough to hold flour together. Turn on lightly floured board and knead together ½ minute. Roll ½ inch thick, cut with doughnut cutter. Place on baking sheet and place an apricot or prune in the "hole" on each one. Brush with egg white and sprinkle biscuits with cinnamon sugar. Bake in a moderately hot oven 12 to 15 minutes. Cinnamon sugar: Mix 3 tablespoons sugar with ½ teaspoon cinnamon.

Lynn Says:

For best results in outdoor cooking use a small fire. Be sure you have a deep bed of coals before you start broiling or frying your food.

To start the fire, use a soft quick burning wood like pine, spruce, hemlock, laurel, poplar, or aspen. For a good bed of coals, use a hard wood such as maple, oak, ash, beech, birch, hickory, or any available hard wood in your community.

Seasoned wood which has not lain on the ground long enough to become wet or rotted, but long enough to dry out, is best for fires. Wood without bark makes the best kind of fire, as bark will cause a fire to smoulder. To start a fire more easily, use split wood, as it burns more easily than round logs.

You won't be a sissy if you kneel when using a hand axe for chopping or splitting wood. If you use seasoned wood, it can easily be broken into convenient chunks for the fire.

Ex-Slave Building Bulwark Against Slavery by Axis

NEW YORK.—A few years ago, Thomas Alva Edison offered Dr. George Washington Carver, the Negro scientist, $100,000 a year to join his laboratory and carry through Mr. Edison's research in the making of synthetic rubber. Dr. Carver refused. He said he had too much to do on his peanut research, and wrote: "God didn't charge for his work in making peanuts grow, so I won't charge for mine."

Dr. Carver, at 78, now joins the experimental laboratories of the Ford Motor company at Detroit. It was in 1938 that Henry Ford visited Dr. Carver at Tuskegee institute, and they since have become warm personal friends. Both Mr. Ford and Mr. Edison were deeply interested in synthetic rubber. It is not unlikely that rubber was discussed on that 1938 visit and it is a wide open guess that Henry Ford has taken an even more timely interest in rubber and has enlisted the services of one of the greatest living authorities and skilled miracle-workers in plastics and synthetics—the aged Dr. Carver.

Dr. Carver never has patented any of his innumerable processes, or gained a cent from them. They include making peanuts a $61,000,000 crop and developing from them more than 300 saleable products, including not only foods, but paints, stains and linoleum. Dr. Carver was born in slavery, near Diamond Grove, Mo. He was traded for a horse, found his way into freedom, added scores of millions to the annual crop output of the South.

He was 20 years old before he learned to read or write, and, with this new and prized equipment walked and worked his way to Minneapolis, Kan., and odd-jobbed his way through high school and through the Iowa State college of agriculture and mechanical arts. Soon after his graduation, he joined the faculty of the above college and went to Tuskegee institute in 1896, where he is now director of the department of agricultural research. Simpson college gave him an honorary degree in science, the Royal Society of Arts of London voted him membership and he was awarded the Spingarn medal in 1923 and the Theodore Roosevelt medal in 1939.

He is a kindly, stoop-shouldered old man, with white hair and iron-rimmed spectacles. He is unmarried and deeply religious. He is apt to answer questions about his work by quotations from the Bible.

Admiral Giffen Old Hand at Sweeping Sea Lanes of Foes

REAR ADMIRAL ROBERT C. GIFFEN, commanding our navy task force, joining the British to keep ship lanes clear and blockade Germany, had the same job in the First World war. Here's the navy's official report on his performance:

"Capt. Robert C. Giffen was awarded the Navy cross for distinguished service as commander of the USS destroyer Trippe, escorting and protecting vitally important convoys of troops and supplies, and in offensive and defensive action vigorously and unremittingly prosecuted against all forms of enemy naval activity."

Unofficial accounts of the day went into much more detail about the young captain's skill and courage in chasing submarines through mine-strewn waters. Toward the end of the war, he commanded the USS Schley in the eastern Mediterranean. In 1927, he commanded the USS Sacramento, was commended for distinguished service with the Asiatic fleet and in 1928 and 1929 commanded the destroyer division of that fleet. His other honors include the Victory medal, with destroyer clasp, the Yangtze service medal and the Navy Expeditionary medal.

Admiral Giffen was born in Westchester, Pa., in 1886, studied at De La Salle institute in Chicago and Notre Dame university and was admitted to the Naval academy from Nebraska in 1903. In 1937 he took command of the USS Savannah.

On the German short-wave recently, we heard a fake American voice telling the world that our navy was manned mostly by frightened youngsters who didn't know port from starboard and all of whom would be expeditiously bumped off by Nazi subs. Admiral Giffen is an old hand at answering this kind of talk—with guns. He isn't given too much to talk, expressing himself most effectively in a chart room or on the bridge. Just in passing, it may have been this Nazi short-wave which led the Japanese to stick out honorable neck recently.

The Washington MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON & ROBERT ALLEN

Washington, D. C.

DRAFT PICTURE

If you are registered on the draft rolls, here is the general picture of your prospects under the selective service amendments just passed by congress:

If you are between 20 and 45, unmarried with no dependents, your status is unchanged.

If you are married and now classified as 1-A, your draft board will be directed to shift you to 3-A. That means the chances are strong you will not be called for at least another 8 to 12 months, depending on the trend of the war and on what is done about lowering the draft age to 18.

If you are unmarried, but have dependents and are classed 3-A, you will be moved up to 1-A and headed for induction by fall. The new allowance and allotment act, under which soldiers with dependents put up $22 a month and the government $28, is the basis for this change.

As selective service officials figure it, by offsetting these two switches against one another, the 4,500,000 army which the war department wants to raise by January, can be obtained from 1-As in the 20 to 45 age groups. After that, if the army still needs men, selective service either will have to turn to married men now deferred, or the draft age will have to be lowered to 18, as strongly favored by military chiefs.

That will take congressional action, and until next November, there is no chance of anything being done by congress. Even after November elections there is no certainty congress will be any more eager to act. It will depend on what happens in the elections and the way the war is going. If it is not going well, congress is likely to be more willing to follow the demands of the military and include 18-year-olds.

If that is done, then married exempts will get another breather, probably into the summer or fall of 1943. It is estimated that 18-19 year-ers will furnish 1,200,000 new soldiers. This would bring the army to over 6,000,000 by next July.

If by that time still more men are needed, then will come the turn of married registrants, beginning with the lower age groups.

Note: Privately, military experts believe that before the war is over the U. S. will have from seven to eight million men in the army and navy.

EUROPEAN REVOLT

After returning on the Drottningholm, Leland B. Morris, U. S. charge d'affaires in Berlin, and George Wadsworth, charge in Rome, gave the senate foreign relations committee some eye-opening slants on international conditions in the Axis countries, coupled with a blunt warning. The warning was:

"Don't depend on the peoples of Germany and Italy revolting against their masters."

There is only a long-shot chance of an Axis collapse through revolution, the two diplomats reported. The German and Italian people, they said, are under such severe military rule and surveillance, that it would be extremely difficult to plan, much less carry out, revolts at present.

Morris, who served in Berlin about 18 months, also pooh-poohed rumors that the German people are not loyal to Hitler.

"They are weary of war," he said, "but they are still faithful to Hitler. Make no mistake about that. They may not consider him the idol they once did, but they are still behind him. Anyone who thinks otherwise is fooling himself."

Asked about German "morale," Morris replied that from the standpoint of loyalty to the fuehrer, "it was good."

Wadsworth said the Italian people are kept in such subjugation and fear by the Germans that it was difficult to get a true expression of their feelings, though the morale of the Italians definitely was not as good as that of the Germans.

"Do you think there is any possibility of a revolt in Italy in the next year?" he was asked.

"I do not," Wadsworth replied.

WAR NOTES

¶ Here is more good news for U. S. cotton growers: Camouflage requirements in the far-flung war areas are making heavy inroads in the huge cotton surplus. Vast quantities of cotton cloth are being bought by the army for camouflage purposes.

¶ Suggestion to the army and navy air branches: How about giving the navigators and radio operators of plane crews a favorable mention in announcements of successful attacks. Pilots and gunners, who of course richly deserve credit, are always cited.

¶ Australian External Minister Evatt, busy flying between Sydney, London and Washington to beg planes for his government, nevertheless found time to write a book on the Australian labor movement.

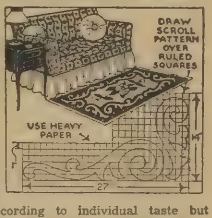
NEW IDEAS FOR HOME-MAKERS

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

WOMEN today are not the first to discover a war-time shortage of floor coverings. The glowing Oriental rugs of the Colonial mansion ceased to be imported during the Revolution; and the simple hooked rug made from old clothing began to be developed in more elaborate designs.

Then, as now, scroll borders around a flower motif were popular. The posies were designed according to individual taste but scroll patterns went the rounds of neighbors who traced the patterns on the burlap or canvas rug foundation. Today wax crayon is generally used for tracing. You will find it easy to make a cut-out pattern by first ruling paper into one-inch squares and then copying the curves in the sketch.



• • •

NOTE: If you wish to make a scroll pattern be sure to clip this diagram and save it as it is not in any of the booklets which Mrs. Spears has prepared for readers; however, Book 5 contains two designs and directions for making original designs. To get a copy, send your order to:

Kidneys Must Work Well-
For You To Feel Well

24 hours every day, 7 days every week, never stopping, the kidneys filter waste matter from the blood.

If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove surplus fluid, excess acids and other waste matter that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole system is upset when kidneys fail to function properly.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warns that something is wrong. You may suffer nagging backache, headaches, dizziness, rheumatic pains, getting up at nights, swelling.

Why not try Doan's Pills? You will be using a medicine recommended the country over. Doan's stimulate the function of the kidneys and help them to flush out poisonous waste from the blood. They contain nothing harmful. Get Doan's today. Use with confidence. At all drug stores.

THIS QUEER LOOKING DEVICE is Made of Copper Alloy

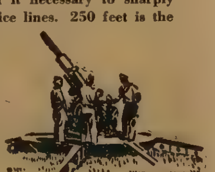
THIS IS a sketch of an oil distributor for an anti-aircraft gun. It is one of the many thousands of items going into war equipment in which copper is necessary to make possible its satisfactory performance.

Almost all implements of war require the use of some copper. Jeeps and tanks, guns and shells, ships and submarines, planes and production machines all require some copper—copper for wire, for tubing, for bearings, for instruments, for electric generating and control equipment.

That is why copper, used to make brass and bronze, is a "critical" metal. There isn't enough of it to meet both military and all civilian needs. Therefore, its use for some civilian purposes is prohibited and is sharply curtailed for others. Even the Army has been asked to use substitutes wherever possible.

Unfortunately, there is no satisfactory substitute, except aluminum, for copper wire used in electric line extensions. It has not been possible to get aluminum for this purpose for almost two years. It's needed for planes—and more planes.

With aluminum unobtainable and with copper scarce, the War Production Board has found it necessary to sharply limit the extension of electric service lines. 250 feet is the maximum extension permitted.



Helping to win the war as quickly as possible is now the most vital thing for Americans to do. After the war, we'll be ready again to make longer line extensions. In the meantime —

Extra Sugar for Consumers in July

A two-pound extra ration of sugar will be released to consumers in Chilton County on their sugar Ration Stamp No. 7 beginning July 10, it was announced today by Houston Cole, state OPA director.

An extra quanity will also be made available to industrial and institutional users as an increase in their July and August allotment.

The extra sugar ration is made possible by receipt of somewhat heavier shipments from the off-shore producing areas than were anticipated when the present ration allotments were fixed.

Farmers who board seasonal labor will be granted extra sugar allowances at the rate of a half pound a week per person, Mr. Cole stated.

The farmer must state that the War Ration Books of his hired men have been or will be surrendered to him and will not be used by him, or that his hired men have no books.

Farmers may immediately file applications for the allowance with Local War Price and Rationing Boards on OPA Form No. R-315.

Boy 11, Hero In Early Morning Blaze At Henley Home

Mr and Mrs. W. L. Henley narrowly missed losing their home by fire early Monday morning. The quick thinking of their eleven year old son, Hoyt, was given most of the credit for saving the house. Hoyt was awakened by the intense heat in his bedroom and found a big blaze which originated in a stack of old newspapers on top of a cabinet containing clothes. He ran for water immediately, calling his parents as he went. Both Mr. and Mrs. Henley had painful, but not serious burns. Some clothes were burned and two walls and the ceiling of the room were charred considerably.

MT. CARMEL

As there was a big singing at Pates Chapel the Sunday School was small in number. We are planning on our singing the 4th Sunday in July at Mt Carmel. We cordially invite all quartets to be there. We still invite all who will to come and take part in the prayer services each Wednesday evening. We think at this time Rev. Lowery will be the helper in the revival starting the first Sunday in August.

Mr. C. C. Sewell and family were week-end visitors of his parents Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Sewell.

H. S. Sewell and G. W. Vines are on a business trip in Montgomery.

All the farmers around here are are most done laying by and enjoying these hot days very much.

We are very much grieved to say Mr. Ira Watley had to leave us today for army service. We hope he can serve Uncle Sam as well as he has his community and church. We extend our best love and sympathy to him and his parents and friends.

Mr. G. W. Vines and wife have moved in and both are well satisfied and believe the good fresh air and good water here will be a great help to recover his health.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Nazis' Drive Into Don River Sector Endangers Rich Caucasus Oil Fields; Jones Warns U. S. of Inflation Peril; FDR Says Tire Seizure Is Possible

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Field Marshal Erwin Rommel (left), receives report from General Navarini, commander of Italian forces supporting the Nazi armies in Egypt. The picture, made after the German victories in Libya, was received from a neutral source.

RUSSIA:
Nazi Menace

Breaking through the Russian front east of Kursk and Kharkov, a Nazi armored assault had driven 100 miles into the upper basin of the Don river and given Adolf Hitler his first significant success in his summer offensive against the Reds.

With both sides throwing in all available manpower and equipment, the greatest armored battle in history raged.

To hard-pressed Marshal Timoshenko it must have seemed that he faced more disastrous threats than he could meet. Although counterattacking gallantly and fighting grimly, the Red forces had been forced steadily back. Violent combat had centered around Voronezh, key link between Russia's central and southern armies.

And the goal, as before, was the rich oil fields of the Caucasus to the southeast. Possession of this prize would mean unlimited fuel for Hitler's mechanized legions.

Two immediate targets of the Nazi offensive were the Don river, one of Russia's chief transportation arteries, and the Moscow-Rostov railway which parallels the Don and feeds much of the Soviet's industrial and military machine.

Meanwhile in Egypt, Marshal Rommel's headlong drive had been stopped by the British under General Auchinleck. Refusing to be bottled up in stationery fortresses, the "Auk" had chosen his own battleground when he turned on the Nazi army. The site was a narrow funnel-shaped front between El Alemein on the seacoast and the Quattera marshes 40 miles inland. Here, aided by reinforcements, fresh equipment and slashing blows by the RAF and their American flying Allies, he had brought to a halt the Nazi steamroller headed for Alexandria and the Suez canal.

INFLATION:
Perils Revealed

Like a stern pedagogue pounding the three R's into the skulls of his scholars, gray-haired Jesse Jones, secretary of commerce, read the American people a lecture on the ABC's of economics.

His theme: The dangers of inflation. Mr. Jones said that the American people will have "over $30,000,000 more income in 1943 than the value of the things for which the money will be spent" and termed this "a potential 'inflationary gap' greater than any the world has ever known."

The secretary's remarks followed hard on press conference warning by President Roosevelt that it would be necessary for Americans to adopt a national economic policy which would control inflation.

Among maxims Mr. Jones laid down were:

"No business man or industrialist can expect higher prices for his products without paying higher prices for having them made."

AIR TRANSPORT:
Saga of Service

The answer to what had become of civilian luxury airliners taken over by the army after Pearl Harbor came when it was announced that these planes were among craft that had flown 5,000,000 miles during the past five months rushing war equipment and personnel to strategic points in the Pacific.

The saga of this bold aerial venture included chapters highlighting the heroism of hundreds of pilots.

RUBBER:
Tire Confiscation?

The administration's nation-wide rubber hunt had produced disappointing results. Only a portion of the hoped-for scrap rubber stock pile had been turned in and meanwhile 30,000,000 American motorists continued to roll along on steadily thinning tires.

Hence it was not a surprise when President Roosevelt declared at a press conference that if war conditions grew worse, the government might be forced to confiscate every automobile tire in the country.

The President tempered his warning with the cautious hope that nation-wide gasoline rationing could be avoided. But, he emphasized, he was trying to save the nation, not gasoline and rubber.

Mr. Roosevelt's review of the situation came after the army, the navy and Petroleum Co-ordinator Ickes' office had appealed to East coast motorists to discontinue immediately all unnecessary use of gasoline, regardless of what their ration cards entitled them to. A joint statement said joyriding in the gas rationed area was preventing war workers from getting enough motor fuel to get to work and back and was threatening to hamper seriously the war production program.

Fortunate were congressmen, members of state legislatures, other government officials and candidates for public office. For under regulations promulgated by the OPA for permanent East coast rationing, such persons were given "preferred" mileage ratings providing them with gasoline for transportation needs "in pursuit of legislative business."

SABOTEURS:
History Recalled

Once before a military commission had sat in Washington deliberating over evidence that was to send a band of conspirators to their death. That was 77 years ago when eight defendants were tried in the dingy old penitentiary building for the assassination of Abraham Lincoln.

Now again, a military commission sat in Washington. This time it was to pass sentence on eight Nazi saboteurs who had landed on the East coast to launch a campaign of destruction against American arms plants. The trial this time was held in the new department of justice building.

In proceedings marked with the same secrecy that characterized the former trial, the prisoners learned whether they were to meet a firing squad or go to the gallows—for death was the penalty they faced.

Observers who noted the coincidence between the two famous trials—eight defendants in each case—remembered that only five of the Lincoln conspirators, including a woman, Mary Surratt, were put to death.

MISCELLANY:

SYDNEY: A highway capable of maintaining heavy military traffic has been completed across the trackless northern territory of Australia, in a little more than a year, a government report revealed. The highway is so designed that army vehicles will not be halted during the rainy season. Civilian road workers, including several United States engineers, worked on the project.

TIRPITZ:
Reds Foil Plans

On the loose again from her Norwegian fjord refuge, the powerful Nazi battleship Tirpitz had harried Allied convoys on the U. S.-British supply route to northern Russia, until two well-aimed torpedoes from a Soviet submarine damaged the raider and drove her to cover.

A Red communique revealed that the action saved a big Allied convoy and let the merchantmen through to Russia intact. The communique reported that a German naval squadron in which three heavy cruisers and eight destroyers accompanied the Tirpitz had aimed to intercept the convoy carrying arms to Russia. The crippling attack on the Tirpitz, however, was said to have disrupted their operation and permitted all ships to reach the safety of a north Russian port.

MANPOWER:
19,900,000 Needed

One out of every six Americans faced the prospect of being inducted into war activities—military and industrial—during 1942 and 1943. At least that was the forecast of Brig. Gen. Frank J. McSherry of the War Manpower commission, who declared that 19,900,000 persons would be required.

Of this "staggering" total, he said, 10,500,000 men and women must be put to work in war industries this year and 2,500,000 more in 1943. Of the remaining 6,900,000, McSherry estimated, 3,400,000 will be inducted into the armed forces during 1942 and 3,500,000 next year.

WAR PRODUCTION:
Nelson 'Realigns'

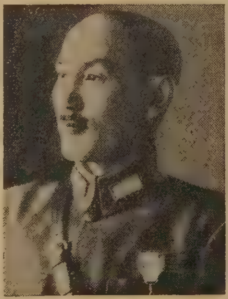
With the headache of an organization shakeup happily out of the way, War Production Chief Donald M. Nelson turned with obvious relief to a contemplation of the WPB's future activities.

The chairman said that the WPB had now reached the end of the tooling up period and was going ahead with the task of conversion, especially of the nation's smaller plants. He said there was little "fat" in the civilian economy, but stressed the fact that vital civilian needs must be taken care of because the economy—although "thin"—must be kept healthy.

Forecast for some time, the WPB's "realignment" program brought William L. Batt in as vice chairman, or "chief of staff," leaving Nelson free to devote his time to essential policies. Batt had previously been chairman of the requirements committee. James S. Knowlson, present director of industry operation, became the other vice chairman.

CHINA WAR:
Sad Anniversary

As China's war with Japan entered its sixth year, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek bravely assured his 450,000,000 countrymen that "Japan's collapse was only a question of time." Chiang declared that the United States "is bound to deal with her first and most threatening enemy, Japan" and "is beginning to discharge her supremely important duty in the Pacific."



CHIANG KAI-SHEK
"Matter of Time."

Meanwhile Chiang's peasant army was heartened by the triphammer blows struck recently by United States air forces against the Jap invaders.

Summing up the price Nippon has already paid for its attempt to swallow China, an army spokesman reported that 1,000,000 Japs had been killed and 1,500,000 wounded in five years of war.

In spite of brave words, the stark fact remained that China's position was desperately grave. Japan was steadily severing her communications. With all but air-borne supplies from her allies cut off, China had to depend on her own slender material resources and her under-armed peasant army to carry on the fight against the Mikado's strong forces.

CANADA:
War Transformation

From a placid agricultural country, Canada has been transformed into a giant war factory from which men, planes, tanks, guns and foodstuffs are pouring across the Atlantic to Britain and the other fighting fronts.

This picture of the war's impact on our neighbor of the north was painted in an official report which told a vivid tale of the Dominion's industrial progress.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

Consolidated Features.—WNU Release.

NEW YORK.—Lord Halifax recently discovered Texas with great enthusiasm. Perhaps he had advance news of the appointment of Major General Dwight D. Eisenhower as commanding general of the newly established European theater of operations for U.S.A. forces. General Eisenhower was born and grew up in Texas, as did Admiral Nimitz, later of the Coral sea and Midway. Other sons of the Lone Star state are bringing fame to the name Texas.

Lone Star State Sons Make 'Texas' Good News Tag

Two main facets of interest light up the general's career. He was long an intimate aide and protege of General Douglas MacArthur, and in his name and fame, the accent is on youth. In army shifts, rapid advancements and adaptations, in which it was indicated that we weren't going to have a muscle-bound army, his name frequently has appeared. General Eisenhower is 52, of the younger school of army officers who make war a science rather than an art. In this connection, he has been characterized as a tactician, as well as a strategist, this, so far as we can learn, indicating a capacity for quick improvisation, even if it breaks some classical rule-of-thumb.

One reasonable deduction from the selection of General Eisenhower for the European command is that it indicates preparations for a land attack. While he has made special studies of co-ordination of land, sea and air forces, he is a land general, one of the army's leading specialists in tank warfare. He was a lieutenant-colonel in the tank corps in the first World war and was commanding officer of the tank corps training center at Gettysburg. Graduated from West Point in 1915, he took a diploma from the army tank school and was an honor graduate of the command general staff school in 1926.

His Distinguished Service medal came from his service in the Philippines. When General MacArthur went to the islands in 1935, to build the commonwealth army, he took Colonel Eisenhower with him as his aide, and as assistant military adviser to the government. He remained until February, 1940, to return home as chief of staff of the Third army at San Antonio, Texas. He attained the rank of brigadier general in 1941. He was assistant chief of staff of the war plans division before his recent departure for London with high-ranking officers to scout a European western front.

"Alert, resourceful, dependable and adaptable" are prevailing characterizations by those who know him.

THIS John Ford, the moving picture director, who became a commander in the navy and got wounded at Midway, is an Irishman named Sean O'Feinne from Portland, Maine. He got a bullet in his arm, grinding out a closeup of the battle, on top of the Midway power house. The filming was an official navy job in the midst of a lot of official shooting. Hollywood passes on the story with an unrehearsed cheer for its Mr. Ford.

Film Director Not Directing in Battle That Isn't Celluloid

He got his start as a property boy and before he was 25 had made 200 Westerns. At 28, he directed "The Iron Horse." He built his name on that of the film tag of his brother, Francis Ford, serial star of the silent pictures. He is known on the picture lots as quiet and tough, biting his pipe a lot and not saying much. He is apt to throw the script away and improvise a plot. His signal achievement in the film has been to get sharp characterization with a minimum of stereotype and hokum.

This year "How Green Was My Valley" won for him the Academy and Film Critics' Circle awards for the best directing of 1941. He won the Academy award in 1935 for "The Informer," and in 1940 for "The Grapes of Wrath." He is big and bulky, with thinning, sandy hair and heavily rimmed glasses, 47 years old.

SOME years ago a famous sociologist said that since we were rapidly developing an "energy civilization," youth would have to acquire so much technical knowledge that it would be gray over the ears before it would be of any use. Many of today's stand-outs disprove this. Here's Abe Fortas, undersecretary of the interior at 32. When 23, he was a member of the President's liquor control commission. In big legal forays and tournaments for the government, his record already would fill a fat biography.

UPHOLSTERY repair work is rather costly hand labor. However, if you can clear a corner where you may work on it a little at a time, it is easy to do. Use boxes or an old table to rest the piece on at a comfortable working height. Remove the outside covering first, keeping it whole to use as a pattern; then remove padding, springs and webbing, writing down everything you want to remember about how they were placed; also the amount of webbing used. When the last tack is out, re-web the bottom of the seat, as shown, with strong new webbing and a homemade stretcher. Use No. 4 tacks or regular webbing tacks, and a tack hammer.

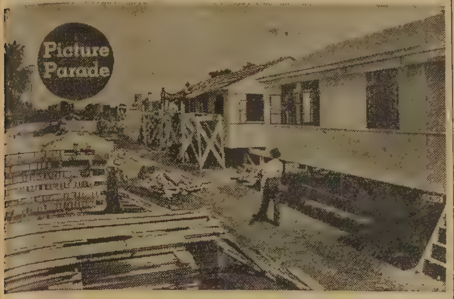
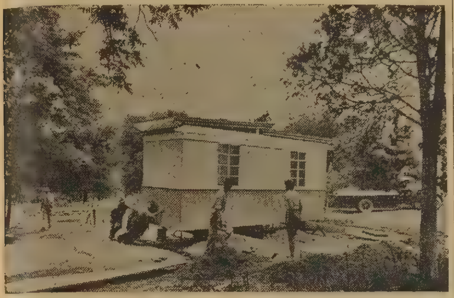
TVA 'Demountable Homes'

And now, under the grim necessity of war, comes the demountable, movable home that can be moved from post to pillar, and which is built on an assembly line as the craftsmen of Detroit used to build automobiles. Uncle Sam got his idea from the Tennessee Valley Authority who first used the demountable home.



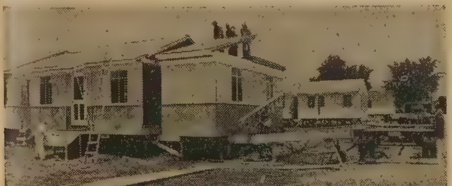
On the assembly line at Muscle Shoals, Ala. The houses being built here are made in uniform-sized, portable sections, and can be put together in about four hours.



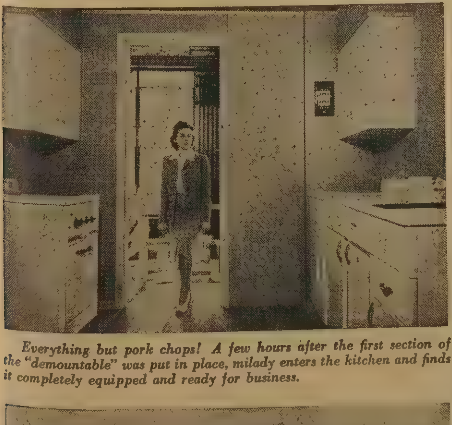
Here is the first "slice" of a demountable house being put in place on its permanent foundation. The lady of the house will be able to cook dinner in her new kitchen within a few hours.

The lady of the demountable house finds that, except for soap and towels, the bathroom is all ready for the master to take a tub when he comes home.

Framework of a demountable house of the type built for TVA and now adopted by the government. The wheels enable the house to be rolled along the assembly line.



Workers are preparing to load a section of a demountable house on a trailer truck (right) at the end of the assembly line.



Everything but pork chops! A few hours after the first section of the "demountable" was put in place, milady enters the kitchen and finds it completely equipped and ready for business.

Completeness of the demountable house shown here.

BEHIND RAF RAIDS

Few people outside the inner circle know it, but the recent bombing raids on Bremen, Cologne, Essen, have been accomplished in part through the farsightedness of Ed Stettinius Jr., who, long ago saw the importance of high octane gas and demanded that the administration start large scale production.

Stettinius has taken it on the chin regarding the slowness of aluminum production and has admitted he was wrong. (Real reason for the tragic error was his reliance on Aluminum Corporation of America figures). But on two other vital commodities he was way out in front.

One of these was rubber. Stettinius was the first to see the need of building synthetic rubber factories to prepare for the fall of Singapore and began dinning on Jesse Jones for nearly a year before he could get Jesse to move.

The other commodity was high octane gasoline, without which the current bombing raids could not take place. One bomber takes about 1,000 gallons of gasoline to fly from England to Germany and back, so with 1,000 bombers staging a raid, 1,000,000 gallons of fuel is used up in one night.

U. S. PRISONERS IN BATAAN

Ex-Undersecretary of the Interior Jack Dempsey has taken up with the American Red Cross the problem of getting a Red Cross representative in Manila to look out for U. S. prisoners from Bataan and Corregidor.

So far, the Japs have not permitted a Swiss Red Cross representative in Manila, though they have admitted Swiss representatives to Tokyo, Shanghai and Hong Kong.

No excuse has been given by the Japs for not permitting a Swiss representative in Manila, but U. S. officials presume it is because they don't want anyone from the outside world to see what is going on there.

Meanwhile, however, the treatment of U. S. prisoners in Japan and China is reported to be good. The Swiss representatives make regular reports, state that American prisoners have no complaints, that sheets on the beds are changed frequently, and that married men are allowed to go to see their wives every week-end.

ROYAL PRESS CONFERENCE

At King Peter's conference with the press, the Jugoslav monarch was completely poised, though admitting the camera men fazed him a bit. With characteristic zeal they monopolized the proceedings with popping flash-bulbs.

A reporter asked Peter what his outstanding impressions were of the U. S.

"One that stands out is your friendliness," he answered promptly. "Everywhere I have gone I have noticed that."

"Does that include photographers?"

"Well, they are persistent, aren't they? I wouldn't mind if they didn't keep shooting off things in my face."

TANKER-SAVING PIPELINE

American automobile owners don't know it, but indirectly they had the British to thank for the final decision to build a new pipeline from the South to the Middle West.

Secretary Ickes had been urging construction of this pipeline for more than a year—always being rebuffed by the War Production board.

Part of Ickes' argument was that it was foolish to waste American tankers by having them carry oil all the way to England from the Gulf of Mexico. If, on the other hand, tankers could load oil and gasoline at a Middle Atlantic port, they could save 1,000 miles of travel and reduce the exposure to submarine attack. Tankers are getting scarce these days, and the shorter the distance they have to steam, the more trips they can make.

Ickes put forth this argument emphatically at the last hearing before the War Production board, but was rebutted by Lieut. Gen. Brehon Somervell, head of the army's service of supplies. Somervell pooh-poohed the idea that England was hard up for oil or gasoline, said he had just returned from there, and that Ickes' argument was pure poppycock.

Ickes made no immediate reply, but cabled the British government. The British were boiling mad, and the reply he received clinched the matter. The War Production board decided Somervell didn't know much about British oil supplies. The pipeline was ordered built.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

¶ Capitol insiders are betting that before the tax bill finally emerges from congress it will contain some kind of provision for compulsory war savings as an anti-inflation measure. Secretary Morgenthau has been opposed to this, but recently seems willing to shift his view.

¶ Former OPM boss William Knudsen, in his new role as a lieutenant-general in the army, has inspected 285 war plants and in many of them he has recommended changes which have increased production.

Stock Those Shelves

Well-justified pride is yours if you can gaze at the summer's crop of vegetables, nicely put up on your canning shelf for, comes the winter, you have but to open one of those brightly colored jars with tomatoes, peas, beans, beets or carrots or any of the other vegetable favorites and part of that well balanced meal is planned and on its way to the table.

Time was when canning was an unscientific and highly questionable process, but all this is past now, and you can now put up any of the vegetable and victory garden produce, and be certain that it will be attractive to look at, good to eat, and will not be spoiled if you take the simple precautions that make for successful canning.

Safest method for canning vegetables is by the pressure cooker. Your concern here is to be sure to process the exact length of time the vegetable requires, as indicated by the table at the top. If not properly processed, the food will spoil.

Selecting Vegetables.

Young, tender vegetables, freshly gathered, give you the best finished product. Canning cannot remedy tough, over-mature produce, so do not expect it to. Nor, should you expect to can what you cannot dispose of at the table while fresh. Commercial canners use vegetables grown to order, not leftovers, so it behooves you, homemakers, to take a tip from them.

Cleanliness is important. You'll enjoy letting cool water trickle, trickle, trickle over the vegetables to free them entirely of every trace of soil. Any soil left on the vegetable can carry bacteria, and thus be a major factor in spoiling an otherwise good product.

Process the jars of vegetables as soon as they are packed, never allowing them to stand around until you get to the serious business of canning.

Spoilage Factors.

Mold, yeast and bacteria cause food spoilage. They lurk in air, soil and water and must be destroyed by proper processing if the food is to keep in perfect condition. Then to assure food keeping well be sure the jar cover is fastened as tightly as possible. This you can do by any number of available devices.

It is also important when packing the jars, after vegetables have been precooked and you are spooning them into the jars, to wipe off any excess before fastening on the cover. Any small particles which lodge between cover and jar will cause spoilage.

Cooling the Jars.

Proper cooling is important to the good keeping of canned food. Do not set them in a draft, but rather away from one, with jars far enough apart to allow a free circulation of air around them.

Stacking the jars or covering them with a cloth does not allow for free circulation of the air. Jars should not be packed in boxes or in the canning cupboard until they are properly cool.

Lynn Says:

How many jars will it take? That's the question many home canners are asking when it comes to figuring the number of jars she should have.

Here are hints on some of the common canned goods:

Tomatoes: 3 pounds yield a quart jar.

String Beans: 1 bushel yields 17 to 20 quart jars.

Greens: 1 bushel spinach yields 13 pints; 1 bushel dandelions yields 15 pints.

Corn: 100 ears of golden Bantam makes about 14 pints.

Beets: 12 pounds yields 6 pints in the stalk, 2 pint jars, if cut in pieces.

Peas: 1 bushel pods yields 14 pints.

When the jars are cool, test to see if they are sealed properly, by taking a spoon and tapping the lid gently. If they give off a clear, ringing sound, they are properly sealed. If the sound is low and dull, there's a leak somewhere, and you would do best to re-can the food, and prevent spoilage.

Sterilizing Jars, Caps, Lids.

To dip the jars, lids and caps in hot or warm water is not proper sterilization. Before placing in sterilizer, wash all caps and jars and lids in soapy suds, then rinse thoroughly. Place in a pan on a rack or on a cloth laid on the bottom of the pan and pour warm water over them. Bring to a boil and boil for 15 minutes. The equipment may stay in the hot water longer, until you are ready to use it.

Speed Is Necessary.

The time from which the vegetables or fruit are picked and canned should be pared down to exceed not more than two hours. Changes take place in the composition of the food which makes it less desirable for canning, each hour it is allowed to stand without being canned.

Packing the Food.

Sandwiching the food down in the jars too tightly prevents the heat from getting around it and will result in improper processing. Especially important is a fairly loose packing with vegetables like corn, peas, greens and lima beans.

If liquid boils away or evaporates during processing, do not replace this other liquid before sealing the jar. Even though all the vegetables or fruits are not covered with juice, they will keep perfectly well, provided the contents are cooked properly and sealed well.

Since tomatoes are technically a fruit and are acid, they are canned differently from vegetables.

Tomatoes.

Scald tomatoes in boiling water 1 minute. Soak in cold water 1 minute. Peel, core and pack into sterilized jars. Add 1 teaspoonful of salt to each jar and cover with boiling water or tomato juice to within ½ inch of the top. Put on cap, screw tightly and place in pressure cooker for 10 minutes at 5 pounds, in a hot water bath for 35 minutes or in the oven for 75 minutes.

Vegetable Soup Mixture.

1 large onion (cut fine)
1 quart tomatoes (cut fine)
2 cups okra (cut fine)
2 cups corn (cut fine)

Combine the ingredients, stirring carefully to prevent scorching, for about 12 minutes. Pack loosely into clean jars and add 2 teaspoons salt to each jar. Put on cap fastening it tightly, and process in pressure cooker 40 minutes at 10 pounds.

If the directions for the vegetables you wish to can are not given in today's column, or if you have any vegetable canning problems, write to Miss Lynn Chambers, explaining your problem to her. Address your letters to her at Western Newspaper Union, 210 South Desplaines Street, Chicago, Illinois. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for your reply.

Whatta you know. 40,000 pounds of rubber and one girdle. That's the record made by R. C. Williams down at the Shell plant. R. C., who is Shell Products. Distributor says that he knows the most patriotic lady in Chilton County. She gave her girdle to National Defense. He doesn't know her name, but he does know that its getting mighty close to a woman's heart when she gives up her girdle.

A. Franklin, of Jemison Route 1, has been reported missing in action. He was with the 48th Material Squadron. His father saw a picture in the Chilton County News last week of some of the U. S. soldiers in Egypt and is sure one of the boys is his missing son. We have written to try to get definite information for the parents of the boy.

Our friend Donald Blackketter called us on the telephone Monday morning and summoned us to the Yellow Front Store. Donald got the idea that we were doubtful of his buying a thousand dollar War Bond with the proceeds of sales made over the Fourth week-end. So to the safe we go and there as big as life is a $1,000 War Bond. However we never doubted Donald in the first place, but it was nice to look at that Bond. Looks like that's about as close as we will get to having one of that denomination.

Our hats are off to the gasoline distributors and service station operators in Chilton County for the work they have done in collecting the scrap rubber for the past several weeks. With a quota of some 80,000 pounds they got together 181,949 pounds which is well over double what their Uncle Sam asked them to get.

Next Friday night's barbecue will have to produce just twice as much money in purchased bonds as is their quota in order not to let the rubber salvage committees top them. And confidentially it looks like they are going to do that. Come out and do your bit.-Maybe you can't go over and fight but you can buy bonds and eat barbecue.

Just to make up to Luther Little for being so careless as to leave his name on the Chilton County Democratic Ticket that we published last week we're running his picture here this week and announcing to the world that he should have been listed. Luther we're sorry and do apologize.

"COPPER IN GUNS? I THOUGHT THEY WERE MADE OF STEEL"

GUNS are made of steel, but many parts of their moving mechanisms are made of copper alloys composed of copper and zinc, with other metals added to give each alloy especially needed qualities such as strength, hardness, toughness.

The elevating worm of the 105 mm. howitzer, used to run the cradle up and down, is made of bronze. Bearing bronze is used in the cradle to line the surface of that part of the recoiling mechanism on which the sleigh recoils. Bronze bushings are used in the elevating gear case and gear housing, and in the firing mechanism. The oil index in the recuperator has a bronze housing. The fire control equipment has bronze parts.

Similarly, many parts of the antiaircraft gun here illustrated are made of bronze.

If you are not mechanically inclined you may not understand just what are worms, cradles, sleighs, recuperators, bushings and housings. However, knowing that they are made of bronze, a large part of which is copper, will help you understand why copper is not available for unlimited civilian use, such as the extension of electric service lines, the length of which is now limited.

Some day the war will be won. When that day comes, electrical devices for convenience, health and comfort will be made again, and restrictions on the extension of electric service will be lifted.

Chilton County News
Clanton, Alabama

Gentlemen:

Friday, July 17th, 1942, has been designated as American Heroes Day. This day will be celebrated throughout our country in honor of the American Heroes, and also as an opportunity to press the sale of War Savings Bonds and Stamps.

The War Savings Committee of Chilton County thought it well to have a barbecue at 5 o'clock on this day at the High School in Clanton, at which time Judge Leon McCord will make the assemblage an address. In addition to the price of the barbecue plate, the privilege of participating in this barbecue will be the purchase of a bond, since July 1st, 1942, and as you know these bonds can be purchased as low as $18.75 We hope that as many as possibly can will buy a bond in as large a denomination as they can possibly spare.

Our High School Band, who have received high praise by all that have heard them, considering the time that they have been organized, will be with us on this occasion and it is possible that Judge McCord will make a speech at the court house before the barbecue.

It is not necessary for me to state to every person in the county that the war news is bad; that regardless of everything, America stands in great danger today. That we cannot fight this war without equipment and more equipment, and all of this takes money and the money must come from every American.

Do your part today and buy a bond and attend the barbecue next Friday.

Respectfully,
R. H. Reynolds
Executive Chairman

Keeping the St. Lawrence Free From Subs

Canada's new mosquito boats are busy at their job keeping convoys safe from submarines in the St. Lawrence river. The sub-chasers, which are the Canadian navy's version of the U. S. "mosquito boat," are called "Fairmiles." They are 100 feet long, fast, and capable of carrying a record volume of depth bombs. In picture at the left two husky crewmen are given the ticklish job of loading a depth charge on a "Fairmile." Center: Typical, French-Canadian sailors enlisted in the Royal Canadian navy operate a blinker signal to escorting destroyers. Right: One hundred feet of water from the St. Lawrence cascades into the air as a depth bomb blasts the "sub" below.

Pushing Against Axis in the Pacific

First photos to come out of the new air base in New Guinea from which U. S. and Allied fliers are striking at Jap bases: Right: Two fliers stand beneath the bomb bay of a U. S. bomber somewhere in New Guinea, inscribing 100-pounders. Left: American pilots and crew push a B-25 from the runway to make room for other planes to take off.

Chemical Warfare Demonstration

A barrage of 25 shells is fired from "Livens projectors" during the army's chemical warfare demonstration at Edgewood arsenal, Maryland. The projectors are used to throw destructive chemicals against the enemy, or smoke bombs to screen troop movements. Men in the foreground are telephone operators in contact with advance forces and the "plunger" man who sets off the charge.

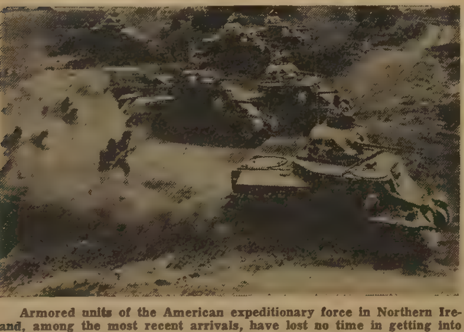
Yankee Tanks in Northern Ireland



Armored units of the American expeditionary force in Northern Ireland, among the most recent arrivals, have lost no time in getting into hard training and preparing for the opening of a possible second front. Negotiating rough country in Northern Ireland, these "General Grant" tanks, followed by U. S. infantrymen, are proving that they can take it—and give it!

STAGE SCREEN RADIO

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

LARRY PARKS, young Columbia Pictures' leading man, and eight other lads who are making their first bid for screen fame have taken over the 26-room house once owned and occupied by the late Thomas Meighan. Larry, who heads the group, has an important role in the Astaire-Hayworth musical, "You Were Never Lovelier." He says it cost only $14.75 to furnish the house—it cost Meighan more than $9,000! They've thrown four rooms together and built a theater in which they rehearse parts for pictures coming up. There is a large portrait of Tom Meighan over the living room fireplace—they picked it up in a Hollywood prop house.

The sponsors who, seven years ago, were farsighted enough to see the potentialities of an obscure radio couple and build them into the famed Fibber McGee and Molly, give radio another innovation this summer; they're substituting a Metro news commentator and a musician in a half-hour replacement program while Fibber and Molly vacation. The commentator is John Nesbitt, the musician, Meredith Willson. The program combines music with snatches of history, literature and current events.

Imagine Charles Boyer producing and acting in something called "Flesh and Fantasy." It will be his first production for Universal; he'll star in one episode, Edward G. Robinson in another, and let's hope they change the title!

This shortage of leading men has proved too much for Harold Lloyd. He's produced two pictures for RKO, "A Girl, a Guy and a Gob" and "My Favorite Spy" and has left the studio. His next picture would have been "Butterfingers," a football comedy.

Samuel Goldwyn will select six of the loveliest and most talented secretaries of Washington, D. C., for roles in "They Got Me Covered," co-starring Bob Hope and Dorothy Lamour. The story brings out the part that Washington secretaries play in helping to run the government; it's said that they arrive in Washington at a rate of 5,000 daily!

The biggest all-star lineup ever gathered for a summer radio show is the one that Bob Hawk's sponsors have booked for Friday nights; it's a 60-minute show featuring Xavier Cugat's orchestra, Connie Boswell and Margo, Lanny Ross and a new comedian, Herb Shriner.

Richard Denning, male lead in "Beyond the Blue Horizon," has held many of filmdom's stars in his arms. He made the test with Veronica Lake which won her her role in "I Wanted Wings." Paulette Goddard got her Paramount contract after making a test with him; Ellen Drew's test set her for "If I Were King"; Mary Martin's put her into "The Great Victor Herbert," her first film role. A closeup of his chest substituted for one of Bob Hope's; his back did the same for Bob Burns'. Now he's getting a chance, all of him, in the Lamour picture.

Walter Winchell

Letter to the German-American Bund:

Thanks for betraying yourselves. Some of us have been hollering all along that the Bund was a school for traitors. The FBI just snatched eight saboteurs from Berlin who confirmed it. That was very helpful. It may even shut the mouths of certain distinguished American dopes, but don't bet on it. From the beginning we always argued that you had to be a sneak and a cutthroat to get into the Bund. We figured that a guy hired to sell out a country that sheltered, fed and welcomed him had to be a 100 per cent no-good. The dopes claimed you were nice guys—just misunderstood. So thanks again for coming forward and proving yourselves rats.

All eight of the dynamiters under arrest were Bundists, they admitted. So you see where that leaves you, don't you? It puts the official Nazi stamp on your activities. It comes out that the Nazi consuls in New York, San Francisco, New Orleans, etc., directed you. It doesn't jell with your claim that you ganged up for athletics and to improve German-American relations.

But then I suppose you can get a few laughs out of fooling those distinguished American dopes. Those so-called good citizens who squatted on Bund platforms and orated how wonderful you were. I'll bet you felt good that night in Madison Square Garden, when they came right out for you. Remember the incident? Dorothy Thompson (the canny girl) spotted you for scum—so you threw her out. You must have been proud of the way you tamed those Americans, who roosted on the rostrum and let you get away with it. They even agreed that Miss Thompson was a trouble-maker. That must have killed you: Americans calling Dorothy Thompson—from a Bund platform yet—a trouble-maker!

How do you like that $170,000 the eight saboteurs carried over here? That's bad. They had to explain it as bribe money, you know, to pay off the subversives for help to blow up war plants, bridges, stores, etc. That looks like something that involves you Bundists. You can bet your dialects that if the saboteurs know any subversive people, they met them at Bund rallies. See where it leaves you? You have no idea of the record Mr. Whiskers has of you chumps. He used to jot down your license number when you came to meeting in your car. Ach! Dot Hoover!

The hell of it is this: You don't know just how much J. Edgar Hoover has on you. He's so wily, that Hoover. He puts out so much to the papers, then holds out quite a lot to work on. That's why you don't know when your front door is going to be kicked in and you'll have to explain how come. It was a bad day for you, wasn't it, when you chummed up with those eight? The minute they're in trouble—boppo—they drag you into it. A fine way for the Master Race to behave.

And don't expect a lift from Hitler. You Bundists are cheap labor. He can buy you in herds. He uses you, but the minute you can't take care of yourself he throws you to the wolves. What makes you think you punks mean anything to him when he butchers his own generals when they fail to deliver the goods? And look how he left Fatzo Fritz Kuhn out on a limb. Fatzo was dumb, but he worked hard. Worked like a dog, but the minute things went wrong what did Der Fuehrer say? He said: "The Reich cannot concern itself with stupid failure." See? He wouldn't even send you a copy of Social Justice to while away the time in jail.

And have you been reading about all the Bundist suicides right here in New York? And can you be sure they were suicides? Lots of the Bundists are better off dead, especially since the FBI's roundup. They had too much to tell, in case the law reached them. So they were found in the river. Or maybe they fell eight stories into Yorkville. How about you, Fritz? And you, too, Hans? Are you too informed? Be very careful. Some bosom pal is going to drop in some night and shoot you right through the square haircut—and blow all the data right out of your head. Working for Hitler is a tough way to make a pfennig.

Any way you look at it, it's a pretty stiff price you're going to pay for strutting around in brown shirts and feeling good about being the Master Race. You can't be very proud of your fellow Aryans for the way they welshed. You wouldn't catch the Czechs doing that. Those brave people, unarmed and conquered, told your armed bullies to go heil themselves when they were tortured for a squeal on who sent Heydrich to hell. More than 800 of them died before they'd please a Nazi.

Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—life itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure.

When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all worn out.

Frequent, scanty or burning passages are sometimes further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance.

The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Use Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Are endorsed the country over. Insist on Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

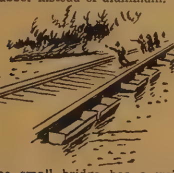
What You Buy With WAR BONDS

Our army spells and pronounces it ponton, not "pontoon", as you do. Ponton bridges cost all the way from $15,000 to $700,000. The smaller bridge using individual metal pontons is pictured here. The largest ponton bridge is 1,080 feet long and is made of rubber instead of aluminum.



One small bridge has a weight capacity of 25 tons, using about 2,000 individual metal pontons. The smallest is used only to take troops over smaller streams. But whether our army uses the smaller or larger ponton, our engineers need plenty of them. If you and every American invests at least 10 per cent of income in War Bonds every pay day we can supply our fighting forces with these essentials to a victorious war.

Stand in Line, Please, If You Are a Dentist

OKLAHOMA CITY.—Scientific crime note: Dentists called into consultation in an Edmond, Okla., murder mystery, said dental work in the unidentified victim's mouth was the handicraft "of an outstanding dentist." So officers appealed to dental magazines to print photos and charts of the dental repairs.

Skipper of Sunk Ship Boiling Mad

Declares the American Spirit Cannot Be Crushed.

BERKELEY, CALIF. — Bombs, machine guns and shrapnel can't destroy the spirit of Americans, Capt. Frank S. Link said after his return from Australia, where his ship was shot out from under him. Only one member of the crew was killed.

The 51-year-old captain should know, for he was wounded in the neck, shoulder, back, thigh and wrist before he and his crew abandoned the lightly armed freighter Meigs at the end of a three-day running battle with Japanese planes.

A hundred Japanese bombers swarmed over American ships in the battle at Darwin, the captain said, before the Meigs went down. Link said he didn't see all the action because he was so busy maneuvering his ship, but he did see the destroyer Peary and a Matson freighter go down. He saw a Japanese bomb make a direct hit on an American munitions ship. He ducked to avoid the falling fragments.

"But nothing came down," he said. "That ship was blown to dust."

Captain Link is boiling mad at the Japanese and just as mad at the Americans at home.

"You're all asleep," he said. "The people here don't know there is a war going on. We've got to forget ethics with the Japanese and pay them back in their own coin."

His strangest recollection of the attack was of the machine gun bullet that injured his wrist. The slug broke the clasp on his wrist watch and it clattered to the deck. In the midst of the attack, the captain stooped over and retrieved his broken watch.

Felon Rides 200 Miles Hanging to Seaplane

BOGOTA, COLOMBIA.—A convict of the Southern penal colony at Aracuara won perilous but brief freedom by hitching a ride on a pontoon of a military seaplane which delivers mail to the colony.

The desperate man clung to the float for nearly 200 miles. The wind ripped his clothing off but he stuck on. Finally the crew discovered its passenger and set the plane down on a river.

Violation of Blackout Gets Him Year in Jail

DEDHAM, MASS.—In Massachusetts' first conviction under wartime regulations, Axel H. L. Ostrom, 42, of Norwood, was given the maximum sentence of one year in jail and a $500 fine in district court on a charge of failure to obey blackout rules. Ostrom appealed and was held in $3,000 bail.

Edward Eppich, auxiliary policeman, testified that when he went to Ostrom's home during a blackout test March 10 and asked him to extinguish lights, the defendant replied:

"What the hell are you—another of those air-raid wardens?"

Find World War Bomb In Chimney in London

LONDON.—British time-bomb disposal experts figure the time element at 24 years or more in the case of their newest find.

It's a dud weighing from 15 to 20 pounds, a featherweight by 1942 standards, of a type which Zeppelins dropped on London in the World war.

Bomb squad men—skilled in digging up the new delayed action explosives — nonchalantly wrested it from the city printing works chimney, near the Associated Press office, which was damaged in the big fire raid of 1941.

Boy Rescues Three From Auto in Irrigation Ditch

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M.—Thirteen-year-old Billy Ryan of Artensia, N. M., rescued his mother, sister and grandfather from drowning in the family automobile after it had plunged into a deep irrigation ditch.

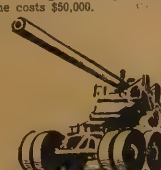
"Aw-w-w, it wasn't anything," Billy said.

The car landed upside down in the ditch after a tire blew out on a bridge approach. Forcing open a door, Billy swam to the bank.

"I stood up and yelled at the others but I couldn't hear anything, so I just went in after them," he said.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

The 155-millimeter gun is the modern version of the old "GPF" of World War I days. It has a range fifty percent greater than the old gun, heaving a 95-pound projectile approximately 15 miles. It is capable of high road speed and each one costs $50,000.



Arsenals of America are working at terrific speed turning out this long range, effective weapon for our armed forces. You and your neighbor working hand-in-hand in unity can make possible the purchase of an adequate number of these guns by buying War Bonds. Put 10 percent of your income in War Bonds to help reach your county quota, every pay day.

Do you have a yen for old-fashioned, oven-baked chicken swimming in a thick, creamy sauce? Well, here's a recipe for you that you can fix early in the morning and put in your refrigerator until cooking time. You may use broilers, frying hens, stewing hens or roasters, but the cooking time varies with the age of the chicken. Broilers take about a half an hour to cook while stewing hens take about two hours.

Oven-Baked Chicken.

- 1 roasting chicken cut up
- Milk
- Flour
- Salt and pepper
- ½ cup butter or fat for frying
- 1 tablespoon onion, chopped fine
- ½ pound mushrooms
- 2 cups hot, rich milk

Dip chicken in milk and seasoned crumbs and flour and fry in skillet until a golden brown. Fry mushrooms in butter until brown (about 2 or 3 minutes). Sprinkle chopped onion over top of chicken arranged in casserole. Pour hot milk over top and bake in a moderate (350-degree) oven until chicken is tender. Serve garnished with chopped parsley and a dash of paprika.

Dramatize the Salad.

Salad greens and fresh fruits occupy an important place in our diets in the spring, and a good salad is a distinctive part of any menu.

Our salad today features citrus fruits and strawberries which are a spring symphony themselves tossed on a bed of greens—watercress, romaine and leaf lettuce are perfect. A light french dressing will bring out the hidden flavors in the greens and fruits:

French Dressing.

- ¼ cup lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon white pepper

Bread 'n Butter

Bread is one of our oldest and best-liked foods. But bread, like many of our other foods, has changed considerably during the last two years. You haven't noticed? Well, it's been enriched and fortified with the B-vitamins, often called morale builders because of the fine things they do for your system, digestion and disposition.

Iron, the magic helper that peps up your system by making hard-working red blood cells, has also been added to bread along with vitamin B.

But not just bread has these new, essential elements. Flour that you use for your own baking has been fortified with the B-vitamins and iron. There isn't much difference in enriched flour or bread and in ordinary bread or flour, except in some cases where the color is slightly creamy. But the nutritive value is so much greater that it's to your advantage to use it.

Although Saturday baking and the resultant shelves and pantries filled with crusty, sweet-smelling loaves of bread are becoming things of the past, perhaps you still feel the occasional desire to turn out a silky textured, moist, delicious loaf of good bread.

Rhythmical kneading is the secret of good bread. Rock the dough under the palms of the hands in three-quarter time until it gets the satin-like sheen.

Twisted Loaf.
(Makes 4 1-pound loaves)

- 2 cups milk
- ¼ cup sugar
- 4 teaspoons salt
- 2 tablespoons shortening
- 2 cups water
- 1 cake yeast
- ¼ cup lukewarm water
- 12 cups sifted flour (about)

Scald milk. Add sugar, salt, shortening and water. Cool to lukewarm. Add yeast which has been softened in ¼ cup lukewarm water. Add flour gradually, mixing it in thoroughly. When dough is stiff, turn out on a lightly floured board and knead until satiny and smooth. Shape into smooth ball and place in a greased pan. Cover and let rise in a warm place (80-85 degrees F.) until doubled in bulk. When light, divide into four equal portions. Roll each portion into a smooth ball. Cover well and let rise 10 to 15 minutes. Mold into loaves. For a twisted loaf, roll dough under hand to 2 rolls about 2 inches thick and longer than the length of the pan. Twist the 2 rolls around each other and place in greased pans. Let rise until doubled in bulk. Bake in a moderately hot (400-425-degree) oven 40 to 45 minutes.

A nutritious coffee cake that is a tried and true sugar skimper adds zest to breakfasts. Made with either of the two dried fruit fillings given here, it is delightful:

Sweet Yeast Dough.
(Makes 2 12-inch rings or 3½ dozen rolls)

- 2 cakes yeast

Lynn Says:

Good things come in little packages. This little saying applies perfectly to the concentrated foods like dried fruits—prunes, apricots, figs, apples, pears, raisins and peaches.

Now more than ever before you'll want to use more of them because they can solve your sweet tooth problem, in addition to acting as important blood builders and keeping your body in good working condition because of their important vitamin and mineral values.

You can appreciate why they do all this for you when you realize that to make one pound of the dried fruit it takes several pounds of fresh fruit. For example, prunes require three pounds of fresh fruit to make one pound dried; raisins, four pounds fresh fruit, apples, six to nine pounds fresh fruit, pears and figs both require three pounds of fresh fruit, while apricots and peaches five and one-half pounds of the fresh to make the dried product.

Man Hunted for 15 Years Is 'Glad' To Stand Trial

Modern Jean Valjean, Under Indictment for Murder, Gives Self Up.

NORWALK, OHIO. — Charles Mitchell, alias Calogero Micciuli, has decided that a man just can't live with a troubled conscience.

This modern Jean Valjean, under an indictment for first-degree murder for 15 years, voluntarily surrendered to authorities recently in order, he said, to stand trial and clear his name in the fatal shooting of Mrs. John Rupino at nearby Bellevue on Christmas day, 1926.

Mitchell, a former railway section worker and resident of Bellevue at the time of the shooting, visited relatives in that city recently and while there gave himself up to K. P. Fox, Bellevue lawyer.

Fox brought Mitchell to Norwalk where the latter pleaded not guilty when arraigned before Common Pleas Judge Edgar G. Martin.

Almost Forgotten.

The case had been almost forgotten by the residents of Bellevue, city of 6,100 on the Huron-Sandusky county line west of here, when Mitchell surrendered after his long torment of conscience.

Records disclosed that the shooting followed a series of quarrels. Officials, declared that Mitchell, along with Mr. and Mrs. John Rupino and others, were guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Biaggio Castrovino on the evening before Christmas, 1926. It was at this time that bitter words were heard.

On the following day, Mitchell, intending to apologize for what he had said in the altercation, went to the Rupino home, according to his account. His good will call led to another quarrel and a fight, in which he asserted that he was knocked down and given a black eye.

He then left the house but later returned; the argument was resumed, a gun was drawn and three bullets struck Mrs. Rupino. She died a week later in Bellevue hospital.

His Version Different.

Mitchell was accused of carrying a gun and firing the fatal shots but his version of the story was that Mrs. Rupino threatened him with the revolver and that she was shot in the struggle when he tried to wrest it from her grasp.

A Huron county grand jury returned a first-degree murder indictment against Mitchell and county commissioners later posted a $200 reward for his capture.

The prosecutor in charge of the grand jury at the time of Mitchell's indictment was E. G. Martin, the judge before whom he was arraigned.

In his cell in the Huron county jail, Mitchell appeared to be more relieved than apprehensive at the prospect of going on trial.

He admitted that, after 15 years as a fugitive, he was glad of the opportunity to get the case cleared up and said he was confident he would win acquittal.

Mitchell, a small man, weighing about 130 pounds, is 55.

After the shooting, he said, he roamed about Ohio, doing odd jobs for a few years, finally coming to a stop in Youngstown several years ago after getting a job in a dry cleaning establishment. In that time he never had met any former friends or associates he had known in Bellevue.

Tuberculosis Deaths in Reich and Britain Soar

PHILADELPHIA. — Tuberculosis deaths in both England and Germany have greatly increased since the start of the war, according to Dr. Bruce H. Douglas, president of the National Tuberculosis association. Dr. Douglas estimated that the rate of increase was about 13 per cent among men and 7 per cent among the women of Great Britain.

Nuisance Is Converted Into Handsome Profit

HAGERSTOWN, MD. — Louis Fauldner turned a nuisance into a profit.

The nuisance was laurel growing too profusely on his 100 acres of woodland. He earns a nice profit now making wreaths and laurel roping to decorate city stores and streets in holiday attire.

British Do Not Believe • In Signs on Cigarettes

LONDON.—Pedestrians in Liverpool did not believe their eyes when they saw a sign outside a tobacco store with the unusual announcement: "Cigarettes for sale here."

Such signs are extremely rare as cigarettes are difficult to purchase these days. Most cigarette stores sell only ten to each purchaser—when they have them in stock.

Invert Philippine Flag During War as Tradition

MANILA. — President Manuel Quezon ordered the Philippine flag inverted, because of the war. He said it was traditional in the Philippines to fly the flag upside down in wartime; it denotes "the valor, firmness and fortitude with which the Filipinos aim to prosecute the war to victory."

Hunting Etiquette for Dogs in Kansas Style

IOLA, KAN.—It's quail hunting etiquette for hunters to toss their dogs the heads of the dead birds they have retrieved. Cliff Washburn and Burt Lawrence were neglecting the rule although they were having great luck. Near the end of the day, the dog took matters into his own hands, bit off the head of a bird.

Missing Heiress Found in Canada

Search for Beneficiary of Scotch Will Succeeds.

LONDON, ONT.—A highly successful "court of missing heirs" was recently conducted in this city when a story appeared about a £15,000 legacy which was waiting for a Scottish woman now in Canada, if only she could be found.

She has been found. C. W. Garside of the city hall staff, a friend of the family in question, who started the search in this country said that he had established that Miss Marjory Leggatt, the girl in question, lives in Montreal and that she is the proper beneficiary.

The money is part of an estate of £6,000 left by Donald Leggatt, Glasgow, Scotland, school teacher. Half of this amount was to go to his sister, Marjory, and is being held in trust for her by her 81-year-old father in Scotland.

It was believed Miss Leggatt lived in this country but her place of residence had been unknown to her family. Mr. Garside has received a letter from a Marjory Leggatt, living in Montreal.

The writer told Mr Garside she was the only sister of the late Donald Leggatt who was a teacher under the Glasgow school board at the time she came to Canada. She went on to say that she did not know the address of the Leggatt family at the present time.

Mr. Garside said he communicated with Miss Leggatt by telephone and said he had determined to his satisfaction that she is the missing heir.

Alleged Counterfeiter Hit by Slot Machines

AKRON.—Even when you make your own nickels and quarters for use in slot machines, you can't win—according to a 38-year-old Akron man held in city jail for investigation by U. S. treasury department agents.

Detectives seized the man in his apartment when they found crude molds for making counterfeit coins and a quantity of pots and pans from which, officers charged, was extracted the metal for the bogus coins.

The raid followed a complaint from slot machine owners that the man was suspected of passing the counterfeit coins in machines in the Ellet district. A 43-year-old woman, found in the man's apartment, also was held for investigation.

Detective Ellis U. Harper said the man declared he had lost a large amount of money in the slot machines before deciding to make his own coins. But even when he was playing "on the house," so to speak, the man told Harper, "I still don't win."

Suspends Jail Sentence Provided Man Marries

WILKES-BARRE, PA. — James Brown, 26, has to be a good husband, or else! Arrested for robbery, he was sentenced by Judge J. Harold Flannery. A young woman stepped to the bar and asked permission to speak. "I am Alice Winchek," she said. "James and I had planned to get married when this happened. I can promise you that if you give him his freedom and let us get married, he will settle down and reform." Flannery thought it over and agreed to suspend the sentence, "provided you marry this young woman, stop your drinking and report to the proper authorities at regular intervals." He added: "If marriage doesn't reform you, the prison sentence must be served."

Supposed Hunger Strike Called Off by Police

WAUKEGAN, ILL. — Mrs. Mae Lantz, central figure in an extortion and love scandal in 1939, was released from St. Therese's hospital after taking food that ended a supposed hunger strike. She announced the hunger strike by pasting notes in the window of her shop. Police took her to the hospital and she was given nourishment. Hospital authorities said she was in excellent condition for one who had fasted nearly 100 hours.

'Traffic Jam' Is Only Start of This Man's Jam

MICHIGAN CITY, IND.—"Gosh, offisher," complained a motorist, "this is the worst traffic jam I've ever been in. These cars haven't moved for half an hour." Policeman James Shelton glanced at the row of parked automobiles ahead of the aggrieved man's car, then acted. In city court, the motorist was fined for drunken driving.

Sportlight

NANA WNU Service

SUPPOSE we could put on a baseball carnival that included Cy Young, Ty Cobb, Nap Lajoie, Tris Speaker, Joe Jackson, Ed Walsh, Babe Ruth, George Sisler, Rogers Hornsby and Hans Wagner. It would be something to look at—especially for those who carry memories of other baseball days.

Gene Tunney

Or suppose you could put on a series of fights that knew such names as Jim Corbett, Bob Fitzsimmons, John Lawrence Sullivan, Jim Jeffries, Jack Dempsey, Gene Tunney and Joe Louis. That, also, would be something to see.

In a way, after this fashion, the Hale America open golf show in Chicago, for war fund purposes, was the closest approach anyone could make along the lines of past and present stardom when it comes to a matter of past color and skill, hooked up with modern ability to wreck par.

Turning Back the Clock

When it comes to turning back the clock in Chicago's golf ensemble we can give you Chick Evans, an ex-caddie from the Edgewater G. C. in Chicago, who was a star golfer 35 years ago—and who is still good.

We could give you Francis Ouimet, another ex-caddie who at the age of 20, turned back Harry Vardon and Ted Ray 29 years ago at Brookline in Massachusetts. And he is still good.

Or we can give you Walter Hagen who threatened at Brookline in 1913, and came along to win the U. S. Open in 1914 at Midlothian, Chicago.

Or Bobby Jones who starred at Merion in 1916, only 26 years ago, at the age of 14.

Or Gene Sarazen, who at the age of 20, won the U. S. Open at Skokie, another Chicago course, in 1922—a mere lapse of 20 years.

And don't think that Jones and Sarazen can't break 70 today.

Hagen, Jones and Sarazen together have won something like 30 national and international championships. Jones and Hagen have been the two great golfers of all times and when it comes to the combined check-up of skill and color Sarazen isn't far away. Harry Vardon had his full share of skill, but not the color that goes with the three we have named.

The Modern Group

No one could expect Cobb, Ruth, Speaker, Young, Lajoie, Sisler or Hornsby to compete with the present day crop—Ted Williams, Joe Gordon, Bobby Doerr, Joe DiMaggio, Pete Reiser, Terry Moore, and others.

So no one could expect Jones, Hagen, Sarazen and other old-timers to match scoring swings with Byron Nelson, Ben Hogan, Sammy Snead or Craig Wood.

Walter Hagen

But this is one outstanding feature of golf. The old-timers, here and there still will play holes and shots as brilliantly as any Nelson, Hogan or Snead can produce.

They no longer have the physical or the concentrative stamina to hook up shot after shot through 72 holes. This means a twelve or a fourteen-hour grind, where there is no let-up on nerve pressure—where only those who have battled from coast to coast, week after week through many months, are well enough seasoned to go the route. But these old-timers still can play all the shots any of the modern crop can produce.

The only trouble is that they can't link them together, stroke after stroke, and hole after hole. It is the linking process that counts. Even 20-handicap golfers have made holes in one, or hammered brassie shots dead against the pin.

So it would be foolish to expect any member from the Old Guard to keep on the heels of a Nelson, Hogan or Snead, to mention only three members from the modern group.

Jones and Sarazen might—in an 18-hole test. But not over the 72-hole route, where concentration and nerves begin to disintegrate and fall apart, and the old urge fades out—not overlooking a little matter known as youth—competitive youth.

For all that, the golfers hang on the longest. They still can stick around when the others are merely records covered with dust.

A Faster Pace

There isn't any debating the fact that modern golfers have set a faster pace than old-timers could offer. Their game is more standardized—a 270-yard drive and then a wallop for the pin.

But I still think they lack the variety of shots old-timers could play—the half and three-quarter iron, for example.

The dynamiter or blaster of the modern crop has made a big difference in bunker play. You also can call it the "wedge."

County Agent Gives Truckers Regulations

(By P. H. Smith, County Agent)

In line with the established policy of the County Agent's office of keeping Chilton County Farmers informed of things regarding agriculture, we are giving below some facts relating to the Emergency Trucking Regulations that go into effect July 1, 1942. It is suggested that you study these carefully.

These regulations are being handled by the Office of Defense Transportation in Birmingham. Several days ago this office contacted the above office asking questions regarding these regulations. These questions and their answers are given below.

Question: Farmer A owns a truck and produces perishable fruits and vegetables. I understand that he can carry these fruits and vegetables to any place he desires and return at his pleasure.

Answer: Farmer A owns a truck may carry his perishable fruits and vegetables to any place he desires and return without the 75 per cent return load provision of Order No. 5 provided he operates over the most direct route and that he does not exceed the tire capacity outlined in Appendix I to Order No. 5.

Question: Farmer A owns a truck. Farmers B, C, and D do not own a truck and are neighbors of A. All are engaged in producing perishable fruits and vegetables. A has agreed to haul the products of B, C, and D to market at the time he carries his own produce to market. Some loads will be composed of produce belonging to A. B, C, and D; other loads will belong entirely to A; and other loads will belong to one or more of B, C, and D. I understand that under all conditions above, A can carry this produce any place the group desires and return at will.

Answer: As to your second example about Farmer A, I believe this would be permissable so long as he complies with the ~~direct route feature and the~~ tire capacity load as outlined above.

You will note in the answers above that "tire capacity load" is mentioned in each example. This means that the load capacity for any truck will be determined by the size and number of tires on the truck. Each size tire has a rated load carrying ability expressed in pounds per tire and this varies with each size and ply tire. This load capacity for some of the more common tires are given below:

Size:	No. of Plies:	Rated Load Ability in lbs. Per Tire
15"	6	1500
15"	8	1700
6.00-16	4	915
6.00-20	6	1130
6.00-20	6	1400
6.00-20 (30x5)	8	1700
6.50-16	6	1290
6.50-20	6	1700
6.50-20 (32x6)	8	1950
7.00-15	6	1415
7.00-15	8	1575
7.00-16	6	1485
7.00-16	8	1650
7.00-20	8	1950
7.00-20 (32x6)	10	2250
7.50-20	8	2250
7.50-20 (34x7)	10	2700
8.25-20	10	2750

Use the above table to figure the maximum load for your truck. This is done by finding the load ability for the tires on your truck. Multiply this figure by the number of tires on the ground on your truck. This will give the rated carrying capacity for your tires. Increase this rated carrying capacity by 20 per cent. This will give the maximum weight capacity that can be carried on your tires. Subtract the weight of your truck from this maximum weight capacity and you will have the maximum load that you can carry on your truck.

EXAMPLE: Figure maximum load for a truck weighing 3000 pounds and equipped with four 6.50-16 tires of 6 ply each. (In figuring for your truck, be sure to use weight and tires on your truck).

From table we find each of these tires have a rated load carrying ability of 1290 lbs. Multiply 1290 by 4 (number of tires on ground) gives 5160 pounds as a rated carrying capacity for the tires. Increase this 5160 pounds by 20 per cent (5160x20 per cent equals 1032; 5160 plus 1032 equals 6192 lbs.) gives 6192 pounds as a maximum weight capacity for your tires. Subtract weight of truck (3000 pounds) from this 6192 pounds gives a total of 3192 pounds as a maximum load for your truck.

You will also note from the above questions and answers that it will be necessary to travel to and from markets by the most direct routes.

This information is given for your benefit and we understand that the regulations went into effect at midnight, June 30, 1942. Study these carefuly and if we can be of further service, please contact your County Agent's office.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob White have as their guests this week their daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Doss and son Ronald of Belmont, N. C.

Verbena Home Demonstration Club Held Picnic

Eighteen members, visitors, and friends of the Verbena Home Demonstration Club gathered at the home of Mrs. Lila Sheppard on July 2nd, 1942 for the clubs annual picnic.

Before noon the ladies enjoyed the fellowship, the entertaining small talk and good humor of the group; while being amused by the antics of two beautiful Persian kittens playing about the front porch and steps.

At noon a most bountiful and delicious lunch was served in the dining room—all the ladies and two gentlemen, who joined the group for lunch, doing their best to take a helping of each tempting viand as it was passed.

After the table was cleared games were played for a while then all walked out upon the spacious grounds, stopping to admire the rustic grill, and the simulated well where Mrs. Sheppard feeds the birds—not failing to notice and speak of the enchanting lovliness of Chestnut Creek as it flows at the foot of the sloping back lawn.

Later all came together again on the front porch where Miss Mattie Jo Barber exhibited a chair which she had rebottomed with reed cord (REED CORD). It was so admired and the picnic so much enjoyed that another spend-the-day at Mrs. Sheppard's was planned for August, at which time the members will mix work with a good time and bottom a number of chairs.

In the late afternoon several musical numbers were given on the piano and some beautiful pieces of handwork were shown to the group.

Alabama Press To Meet July 24

A united War Council will dominate the annual summer convention of the Alabama Press Association to be held in Montgomery on July 24 and 25, President Charles G. Dobbins announced today.

While the summer conventions are usually devoted to recreational programs the officials of the Press Association felt that in this period of national crises that a part of the sessions should be devoted to a consideration of the many serious problems that confront the publishers and their communities.

Alabama senators, governor and governor-elect have been invited to to give reports on national and state affairs at the annual banquet. Acceptances have been received today from Senator Lister Hill and Governor-elect Chauncey Sparks.

Invitations will also be extended to the heads of the leading war agencies in Alabama to meet with the publishers at the barbecue dinner that will climax the convention. They will give brief reports on the progress of their programs and point out how the Press can give greater cooperation in the war efforts.

Two business conferences will be held. Doyle L. Buckles, field manager, will conduct one session devoted to increasing the war-time use of advertising. Marcy Darnall, Jr., Florence Herald and vice-president of the association, will preside over a session devoted to jobprinting. George M. Cox, Mobile Press-Register, will lead a panel on "War Censorship."

The convention committee includes: H. H. Golson, Wetumka Herald, and Herve Charest, Jr., Alabama Farm Bureau News, co-chairmen; R. F Hudson, Montgomery Advertiser; Web Stanley, Greenville Advocate; John Ward, State Chamber of Commerce; and Paul Fuller, Montgomery Chamber of Commerce.

REPORT OF PROGRESS—Up-to-date map, just completed by Highway Department, showing present status of the University Highway.

"Work on the University Highway, between Montgomery and Tuscaloosa, is progressing rapidly," said State Highway Director W. G. Pruett today. "Paving has been placed on 56 of the 101 miles. Grading has been completed on 20 additional miles. Clearing, grubbing, grading and drainage is in the procession of completion on 17 miles.

"Work has been started, or completed, on all of the projects except an eight-mile section between Duncanville and the Bibb County line. Tuscaloosa County has notified the State that the right-of-way is now clear on this section, and the contractor has been instructed to proceed with the work.

"It is believed that within 60 days the entire road between Montgomery and Centerville will be paved, although the completion of the bridge over Mulberry Creek, south of Maplesville, will not be completed until some time this Fall.

"All of the pavement should be completed this year on the remaining sections between Centerville and Tuscaloosa, with the possible exception of the eight miles in Tuscaloosa County between Duncanville and the Bibb County line. It is believed that grading, drainage and base course on this section will be completed by December 1. The work order for this section war issued on April 8, and the right-of-way has been secured. Due to the delay, it is not believed that the paving will be placed on this eight-mile section this year.

The date will be Friday afternoon, July 17th, beginning at 5 o'clock at the high school ball park.

There will be public speaking preceding the barbecue, the latter to begin at 6 o'clock. The [illegible] Dr. J. P. Ha[illegible] chairman W. A. [illegible] committee was given the power to [illegible] as many [illegible] saw fit. To be eligible to partake of the barbecue one will be required to show that he or she had bought a victory bond (any denomination) during the month of July, together with a [illegible] ticket which will cost about 75 cents. Of course everyone will be invited to the rally and to hear the speaker whether they have bought a bond or barbecue ticket or not. Those who ~~have already bought the limit~~ of bonds will be eligible to the barbecue upon presentation of only the barbecue ticket.

The Chilton County School Band will furnish music all during the program of the afternoon and evening.

A committee consisting of both men and ladies was appointed Wednesday afternoon, whose duty it is to look after the sale of barbecue tickets and to advertise the rally.

The chairman commended most highly the meeting for their interest and enthusiasm regarding the sale of bonds. as well as those who have bought tickets on the finance plan. These tickets are still obtainable at one dollar each, and may be procured from stores or from salesmen on the streets.

All citizens of the county are asked to talk victory bonds, come to the rally and above all to buy bonds. This is one of the things necessary to win this war, and Chilton county must do its part.

Judge Leon McCord Will Speak

Judge Leon McCord, of Montgomery, has been procured to speak for the occasion. Judge McCord is a forceful speaker, and has appeared on Chilton county platforms before. You will certainly want to hear him on this occasion.

Sales and Advertising Committee

The folowing have been appointed on two committees, one of men, and one of ladies, whose job it will be to promote the rally and barbecue in the way of advertising it over the county and selling the tickets to the barbecue. Men—M. R. (Red) Glasscock, chairman, Burton Mullins, John Hollis, Patterson Hicks, Dock Levine, Hollis Jackson, Pat Smith, and Dock Smith, president of the local carpenters Union. Ladies—Mrs. Omar Reynolds, Chairman, Mrs. Jack Hayes, Mrs. Hugh Jones, Mrs. Izora Alred, Mrs. Mary Burnett.

These two committees are already at work promoting the sale of bonds, and barbecue tickets, as well as advertising the rally all over the county. Additional community and Beat committees wil be appointed to work with these two central promotion committees.

All barbecue tickets must be purchased three days before the date of the rally, so that the committee may know how many plates to prepare for. If no one approaches you on the sale of these bonds or barbecue tickets, they may be procured at the county agent's office in Clanton.

Jemison Baptists To Start Revival

Our Revival of the Baptist Church of Jemison [illegible] Dawson Memorial [illegible] doing the preaching. [illegible] in August, Rev. A. S. [illegible] doing the preaching. Brother Titus Aldridge, pastor of Thorsby will assist in our revival at Chestnut Creek, beginning the second Sunday in August.

At the same time of our revival at Chestnut Creek. we have planned a Daily Vacation Bible School and Bro. Aldridge will be our principal. We are expecting good results in all these meetings.

What better thing could we do than to go to the Lord's House and worship through prayer and devotion to God while our boys are giving their life blood to maintain our freedom. [illegible] people should turn from their wickedness to God.

You are cordially invited to attend these services.

A Letter From Hon. L. H. Reynolds

We are hoping to have the biggest, the best, and the most patriotic gathering in Clanton, July 17, at 5:00 o'clock P. M. The occasion will be a barbecue for all people that have bought an $18.75 Bond since July 1st. Of course, anyone can purchase a larger Bond and will be permitted to buy one before or during the barbecue if they wish. The size of the Bond that you purchase will not be made public but the names of everyone that purchases a Bond at this Victory meeting will be published.

I have just talked to Judge Leon McCord and he has agreed to speak to the Victory meeting at 5:00 o'clock in the ball park at the High School. Judge McCord is one of the best speakers in Alabama and has always been a friend of Chilton County.

Let's remember our boys who are now fighting for our liberty and freedom and remember that we are expecting them to win this war for us. I hope that we will have at least 500 people in the county that will buy a Bond and come to this meeting. Read the Union Banner and the Chilton County News for the details of the program. Don't fail to do your part and lets show our boys that we are with them and are willing to make any sacrifice that is in our part to do so. Watch for the Committee and report to them that you will buy a bond so that they can have a record of the purchase before the barbecue.

Respectfully your,
L.H. REYNOLDS
Executive Chairman

Cool, Ice-Tinkling Drinks Ward Off Summer Fatigue

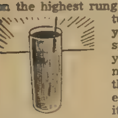
Sugar-Saving Drinks

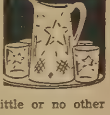


When the thermometer's perched on the highest rung of the temperature ladder, do you feel your spirits sagging, your energy running low? Yes, the warm weather begins to take its toll just about the time you feel you need push and drive most. But, make a comeback, quickly and easily with a healthful, fruit-juicy drink served in a tall, colorful frosty glass.

An attractively served drink will perk up your spirits more quickly than you can say "Jack Spratt!" Plan to freeze some of those fragrant mint leaves and those few odd berries left over from the shortcake, with water in the ice cube trays for they make a pretty drink. Or, if you like colored ice cubes that prevent your summer beverage from taking on a watery taste, freeze fruit juices diluted with water into ice cubes. You'll like this.

There's a lot more to be said for cool drinks other than their general nice appearance. Besides providing your system with the vitamin C, in excellent quantity, and A and B in good quantity, the citrus fruits, oranges and lemons, act as alkalizers for the system. This acts as insurance against fatigue, which is a big thing in warmer weather.

Milk and ice cream are perfect ingredients with fruit juices for cooling drinks. Not only do they contain most of the requisites for a well-balanced diet, but they are easy to take and lend themselves in pleasant combination with other foods.



Your biggest problem with summer drinks will come in trying to save sugar. But don't let this stump you, for you can use fruit juices that have natural sugars, honey as a sweetener, and milk and ice cream, which need very little or no other sweetening at all.

Try fruit powders, too, using 1 level tablespoon of the fruit powder with 3 teaspoons of honey to 1 glass of water or milk. Fill the glass with shimmering ice chips and you have an excellent thirst quencher in a wink.

Fruit juices used with ice cream and honey are kind to the sugar ration:

Orange Cooler.
(Makes 1½ quarts)

2 cups orange juice
¼ cup lemon juice
¼ cup maraschino cherry juice
1 cup ginger ale
2 tablespoons honey
1 pint vanilla ice cream
2 tablespoons sliced maraschino cherries

Mix fruit juices and ginger ale; add honey; mix well. Chill thoroughly. Add ice cream and stir until blended. Serve in chilled glasses topped with cherry slices.

Orange Ginger Ale Punch.
(Serves 12 to 15)

1 quart orange ice
2 quarts ginger ale
Orange slices
Maraschino cherries with stems
Sprigs of mint leaves

Place orange ice in punch bowl and pour in ginger ale. Garnish with orange slices attractively cut and floated in punch. Add cherries and mint sprigs.

Milk drinks make cool, tempting refreshments, and are just the thing for afternoon or evening snacks:

Orange Quench.
(Serves 1)

¾ cup milk
¼ cup orange juice
1 teaspoon sugar

Combine ingredients and beat until thoroughly blended. Serve chilled.

Root Beer Flip.
(Serves 1)

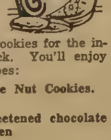
½ cup root beer
½ cup milk
1 serving vanilla ice cream

Pour root beer and milk into a tall glass. Add ice cream and serve immediately.

Maple Cooler.
(Serves 1)

2 tablespoons maple syrup
¼ teaspoon vanilla
1 cup milk
Few grains salt

Combine ingredients and beat one minute. Top with whipped cream, if desired.



You will be driving around less these summer evenings for your breath of fresh air, but you will probably spend more time on your back porch, having the neighbors drop in and serving them simple drinks and a few sugar-saving cookies for the in-between-meal snack. You'll enjoy both of these recipes:

Honey Chocolate Nut Cookies.

½ cup butter
2 squares unsweetened chocolate
2 eggs, well beaten
½ cup honey
½ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
⅔ cup sifted flour
½ cup chopped nuts

Melt butter and chocolate over hot water and stir until blended. Combine eggs, sugar, honey and salt in bowl. Add flour which has been sifted once before measuring. Mix thoroughly, add chocolate mixture and beat until smooth. Add nuts. Drop from spoonfuls on greased baking sheet, and bake in a slow (300-degree) oven 15 minutes. Remove from sheet immediately. The cookies taste better when mellowed, so pack in a tight container between layers of waxed paper.

Chocolate Crunch.

½ pound semi-sweet or sweet milk chocolate
1 cup oven-popped rice cereal

Melt chocolate over hot water. Add cereal and stir until blended. Pack into a pan lined with waxed paper. Allow to set until chocolate hardens, then cut into squares.

Lynn Says:

The Score Card: Definite news has reached me on the spice situation, so now you homemakers can see exactly what is available in this line.

There's enough to go around freely of: cayenne, red pepper, mustard, chili powder, dill seeds, oregano, paprika, curry, cake spice, mixed pickling spice, celery seed, onion and garlic salt and powder, bay leaves, marjoram, cardamon, anise and black pepper.

Careful use is indicated for these spices: cinnamon, mace, allspice, white pepper, cloves, nutmeg and ginger.

Canning rubbers, lids, jars, etc. are available in sufficient quantity for this season's produce. An extra ration of sugar for canners will be allowed, amounting to five pounds per person for the year.

There's a possibility that coffee, tea, and cocoa may come in for rationing. Homemakers are also advised to save and conserve all fats, grease and oil. If you cannot use the fat at home, keep it well preserved in a cool place to prevent its becoming rancid, then bring to your butcher.

STAGE SCREEN RADIO

JINX FALKENBURG received an urgent request from a group of soldiers at a U. S. military outpost recently; signing themselves as the boys in "Hut #33, Iceland," they begged her to send them a large picture of herself in a bathing suit, as soon as possible. "We want to put it on the wall for two important reasons," they wrote. "1—It will give us something interesting to look at. 2—It will help to keep the captain's eyes busy when he comes around to inspect our quarters." She sent a picture five feet high!

"Once Upon a Honeymoon" unites three of the screen's top figures in the studio where each has previously scored triumphs—RKO Radio. They're Ginger Rogers and Cary Grant, who've both made plenty of hit pictures, and Leo McCarey, producer-director of such delightful films as "Love Affair" and "My Favorite Wife." "Once Upon a Honeymoon" is the kind of thing they all do best.

J. Carroll Naish is going to be seen as an ape-man, no less, in 20th Century-Fox's "Buried Alive." It's this company's first effort in the horror line, and just the title promises well. John Shepperd and Lynne Roberts will have the romantic leads.

Rosalind Russell is booked for another of those pictures in which she's such a clever and handsome young business woman that she makes business women in the audience green with envy. This one will be "Portrait of a Lady," and the plot (which somehow has a familiar ring) deals with the efforts of a husband to win his wife away from a business career.

"Guerrilla Brigade," the Soviet picture which was shown in New York recently, has been booked by the RKO circuit and is scheduled for national release. This is the first time in some years that a Russian picture has been booked by a major theater chain here.

Those bitter little quarrels between actors and motion picture companies no longer mean what they once did, not since radio's here to stay. When Madeleine Carroll and Paramount disagreed not long ago, the beautiful Miss Carroll merely departed for New York and picked up some engagements to broadcast, at $2,500 each. Paul Muni and his studio parted, so he did a stage play, got $5,000 apiece for several radio performances, then signed with another studio. John Garfield and Warner Bros. disagreed, and radio grabbed him.

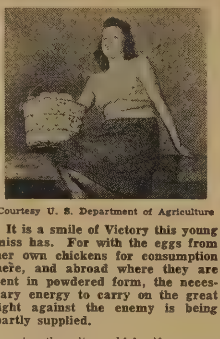
High Egg Production While Prices Are Good

Suggestions Given for Improved Pullet Flocks

By H. H. ALP
(Extension Poultryman, College of Agriculture, University of Illinois.)

In times of good prices one is not likely to think in terms of losing money, certainly not so much as when prices are low. There is a great deal more at stake, however, when prices are high, or favorable to the producer. If low egg production exists then, the loss is actually greater than it would be if egg production were low during a period of poor prices.



Courtesy U. S. Department of Agriculture

It is a smile of Victory this young miss has. For with the eggs from her own chickens for consumption here, and abroad where they are sent in powdered form, the necessary energy to carry on the great fight against the enemy is being partly supplied.

For good egg production at this season of the year, the pullet flock should have:

1. A poultry house which provides four square feet of floor space for each bird.
2. Some form of insulation in the house.
3. A good ration in small feeders, which are freshly filled every day, or at least every other day.
4. Two water containers in a room approximately 20 by 20 feet.
5. A ration featuring some form of milk, whole oats, a good grade of alfalfa, and a vitamin-D oil.
6. A supplemental feeding of moist mash once a day, if necessary. This practice is not essential for all flocks, but in the case of flocks "going stale" or losing weight, and for late, immature pullets.
7. Lights if necessary. Lights might be used in the same situations in which moist mash feeding is suitable. A successful practice has been to use two 10-watt lamps all night in a room 20 by 20 feet.
8. Fresh litter to keep up the spirits of the flock and for the maintenance of health.
9. Regular attention; irregularity plays havoc with egg production.
10. The benefit of some good common sense. It is not bought in bottles and bags.

AGRICULTURE INDUSTRY

Peat Moss

By FLORENCE WEED

(This is one of a series of articles showing how farm products are finding an important market in industry.)

Peat miners, you might call them, those farmers who are lucky enough to find a bed of peat located on their land. Domestic peat is needed now to supplement the reduced supply being imported from Europe.

Most of the beds in this country are located in northern states: Maine, New Hampshire, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Ohio and northern Washington.

Moss, sedge and reed peat are considered safe as a fertilizer for gardens and golf course greens. Other kinds which have an acid reaction and are not chemically adapted to combination with soil are found useful as insulating material, as stable litter, and as an absorbent layer for poultry houses in winter. Peat dust is found to be an effective deodorizer. Peat can be used as a substitute for medicated cotton in the making of surgical dressings. It has been used in the making of paper.

Peat mining is not a difficult job. The peat is first ripped up from the earth, shredded in a machine, pressed or dried to get rid of excess moisture, then cleaned and sacked. For some uses, the peat is pulverized to powder. All of these are farm operations that can be done by one man.

Agricultural Notes

Wet mash has been used from the beginning of the poultry industry to encourage the birds to eat more, and to increase or maintain production.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

OWI Chief Can Show Us How to Take Bad News

NEW YORK.—Elmer Davis once paid $50,000 to see a ball game. It is a story which the new director of the Office of War Information probably won't give out. He is an extremely modest man, it might seem like bragging.

We had the story from the former editor of a national magazine of large circulation. In the reminiscent mood of the editor, the tale unfolded as follows:

"With a moving picture firm, we offered a prize of $50,000 for the best serial, the winning story later to be screened. We put up half the prize money and the picture company the other half. We whooped it up into a big national excitement, and entries came in from every corner of the country. There was something over 90,000 of them in all.

"The winner seemed to be the entry of a widely known New York novelist and magazine feature writer, but there was another serial that crowded it closely and finally, in a hairline decision, the judges picked the former. We had informed the novelist of her victory, when one of the judges recalled that she had published a magazine story several years before with a plot somewhat like her contest entry. We looked it up. The similarity was slight, but we decided it would bar the new offering. We telephoned the woman writer that we were reconsidering our decision.

"That left the field open to the runner-up, a piece submitted by one Elmer Davis, a former ace reporter who had left the city room and set up as a free lance writer of fiction and articles. We were eager to carry the good news to Mr. Davis. Everybody who knew him said he was a mighty nice chap and rated good news if anybody did.

"At Mr. Davis' little writing office, we were told that Mr. Davis had gone to the ball game. We left word for him to come to our office.

"Back in our editorial rooms, there was a big stir among the judges. Miss Blank, the other finisher, had telephoned that she could remove from her script any remote similarity. She, too, was a writer of the highest integrity, and we finally agreed that she get the prize.

"Next morning, Mr. Davis came in. I told him what had happened. You knew he was jolted, but you had to look closely to catch the flick of disappointment in his placid Hoosier eyes. Then he said: 'That was a pretty expensive ball game, wasn't it?'

"He went back to his office and started kicking out serials like an Indiana hired man in harvest time. I bought them. He came through."

Well for Us That Examiner Wasn't Stickler for Rules

YOUNG Lieut. Delos C. Emmons, trying to transfer from infantry to aviation, was rejected three times because he couldn't hear a watch tick. Then he found an examiner who said, "You could not hear a watch tick in an airplane, anyway. Forget it." He became just about the most valuable man that the air service ever came near losing and the Battle of Midway Island might not have gone so well for us had the examiner insisted rules be observed. Colonel Emmons holds the temporary rank of lieutenant general, as commander of the Hawaiian department, and now President Roosevelt breaks all precedent by recommending that he be jumped from colonel to major general.

At 53, he will be the army's youngest major general. He has done as much knock-about flying as any army man in the air, and is air-conditioned not only in hazardous flying exploits but in strategy and techniques, having taught flying at Harvard university in 1920 and 1921.

About a year ago he secretly landed 21 of the biggest Flying Fortresses in Hawaii. He had previous experience in the Islands, having been with the Eighteenth wing command in Hawaii in 1934; in 1936 he took command of March Field, Calif.

BRITAIN'S old school tie gets half a column on the cables, in spite of airplane and battleship competition. They plan to scrap it, says Richard Austen Butler, president of the board of education, as a symbol of class education. Out of Cambridge, Mr. Butler rapidly advanced in the inter-war years as a member of parliament, undersecretary for foreign affairs. He was born in India in 1902. At Cambridge he took honors in the classics and has swung many an impressive Latin quotation into British public life.

Beauty on Production Line Helps 'Keep 'Em Flying'

Picture Parade

Women are playing a vital role in the war effort, principally in the great aircraft factories. Some of these attractive women might easily be carving out a career for themselves in the movies, but they are content to star on the production line.

The pretty worker at the Curtiss-Wright propellor plant shown above stands at the apex of a V formed by two lines of propellors.

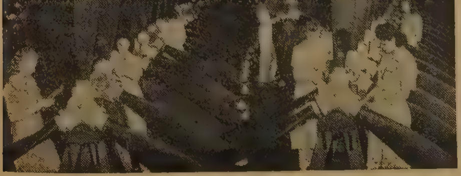
These girls wear various types of protective headgear while they produce the tools to whittle down the Axis. The girl at the right provides the touch of the eternal feminine with a flower in her hair. (Photos approved by war department.)

Marge has her luncheon on the job in the big aircraft plant, where she is one of hundreds of women who are keeping 'em flying.

An office worker before the war, this girl now works a milling machine on a bronze nut line in the Curtiss-Wright propellor plant.

And here is an ex-laundry girl doing an important bit to help wash up the Axis. She is proud to be helping Uncle Sam.

This plastic-masked worker now operates a lathe on a nut-line as expertly as any male machinist. She was once a stenographer.



Sportlight

by GRANTLAND RICE

NANA WNU Service

ONE of the most mysterious and colorful figures in this modern conglomeration of golfing talent is Joe Kirkwood. Joe is almost complete proof as to the vital part the emotional or psychological side can play in this ancient Scottish game.

Grantland Rice

When Kirkwood came to this country from Australia over 20 years ago he was even then the master of every shot in the game. In his exhibitions Joe could call a low hook or a high slice, a low slice or a straight hook, a fade or a pull. He could even call, in advance, that hardest of all shots to play—a straight ball.

At 200 yards away he could make a caddie duck with either a slice or a hook. It was an easy game in trick shot or exhibition play. But Kirkwood could never win a big championship.

"Competition," he has always said, "is an entirely different game from any exhibition stuff."

How It Works

Years ago I followed Kirkwood in a North and South championship at Pinehurst. He wasn't scoring any too well. He was having more than his share of trouble.

"What seems to be the matter?" I asked.

"I've developed a fade I can't stop," he said.

"Why don't you call for a hook, or even for a straight ball, as you do in your exhibitions?" I asked.

"If I tried that," he said, "I'd be all over the course. This tournament-scoring game has nothing to do with exhibition play.

The Curse of Golf

"Golf would be an easy game for anyone to play," Joe continued, "except for one thing."

"What's that?" I asked.

"Tension," he said. "That's the killer—the poison.

"If it weren't for tension almost anyone could play golf well. But tension grabs them all by the throat—or the nerves. Take the average duffer. Watch his practice swing. Watch him swinging at a dandelion or a cigar butt. You'll see an 80 swing. Then watch the difference when he has to hit a golf ball. He immediately tightens up. He plants his feet in the turf. He takes an iron grip with both hands. His legs and body promptly stiffen up. He has wrecked his swing before he even moves the clubhead.

True of the Pro

"After a fashion, this is also true of most pros. Most of the good ones can hit the ball long and straight, can play almost every club well. In practice they can give you a 67 or a 68. But when some big tournament starts, especially a championship, it is too often another story.

"You can tell this in the more hurried pace of their backswings and downswings. You can tell it in their restricted, or more restricted, body turns. The temptation in a big tournament is to steer the ball—to keep it away from trouble.

"Only a few can keep their true form or their true swings working smoothly, as they do in a practice round."

"Leo Diegel told me once," I said to Joe, "that the longest walk in golf was from the practice tee to the first hole of tournament play."

"Leo was 100 per cent right," Kirkwood said. "It's about ten miles—or ten strokes.

"For those who know how to swing a club, golf is about 75 per cent tension, nerves and concentration. It is harder on the nervous system than any other game, since it carries less physical action or motion. The more motion you have, the less tension there is.

"Football players are always extremely nervous and packed with tension before the kickoff. But most of this is removed in the first clash of bodies—after the first impact. You don't get that in golf.

"In golf tension begins to get worse—especially around the greens when you find you've lost your putting touch. I've never seen a golfer who was good enough to win a big tournament when he was putting poorly. And when you get what Tommy Armour calls 'the yips,' you are just about through."

"How can tension be cured?"

"The only sure cure I know," Kirkwood said, "is to cut off your head."

Foot Action

Henry Picard, a master stylist, is among those who believe that good foot action is the most difficult of the golfing arts.

"Only a few stars know how to use their feet properly," Picard says, referring to weight shift through the swing.

Chick Evans had no superior in this respect. You had only to watch the work of his feet to get a big part of the answer concerning especially his iron play.

Leather-Backed Turtle

The leatherback turtle, Dermochelys coriacea, found in warm seas, is unique in two ways, says Collier's. Of the three hundred species of existing turtles, it is the only one that is not encased in a shell, having only a leathery skin.

Secondly, it is the largest animal of its kind, often measuring nine feet from nose to tail and weighing over 1,000 pounds.

TURN IN SCRAP RUBBER

The drive to collect scrap rubber is underway throughout the nation. Certainly, the people of Chilton County have a clear understanding of the vital necessity of turning in as much old rubber as possible.

Practically every household has unsuspected accumulations of worn-out rubber articles which can be of value to the war effort. It is the duty of those of us on the home front to make it our business to deliver this rubber to the collecting stations promptly.

This is not a matter to delay. The national production effort is being seriously threatened by the shortage of rubber. The quick delivery of scrap rubber, in every city, town and hamlet, will insure adequate supplies of this vital raw material.

Civilians with automobiles might be doing themselves a definite favor by collecting scrap rubber. If the search for old rubber is vigorous and the result of the drive surprising, there might be enough old rubber to permit the manufacture of some automobile tires. This is not probable unless millions of people make it possible to reclaim thousands of tons.

The rubber situation, as we gather it, is that the nation has a 1942 supply of 1,241,000 tons, with a demand that will exceed 800,000 tons. Next year, with synthetic production and the balance remaining from this year's supply there will be available about the same supply of rubber as we have this year. War needs will exceed the prospective supply.

From these figures, it appears, that the collection and delivery of a vast supply of old rubber would make a distinct improvement in the outlook for rubber. It may be a long shot, so far as civilian needs are concerned, but the patriotic American will see that the Army and Navy get what they require.

THEY ALSO SERVE

Telephone offices now proudly display service flags—as a patriotic tribute to those in the armed forces of the Nation.

Although the star figures in the center field of white show the number of Southern Bell men now in the armed services, the flag might also symbolize all Southern Bell employes—for all are wholeheartedly serving their country in this great world crisis.

The telephone, fittingly termed the nerve center of the Nation, is even more vitally important in war than in peace. Thus, the telephone men and women at home whose lives are devoted to its dependable and efficient function are definitely—in the war. All stand ready for emergency calls at any hour of any day—operators, linemen, construction men, repair men—everybody.

In or out of uniform, telephone folks are doing their war work—for they all serve, and the spirit of service was never more in evidence than it is today.

MORAL ECHOES

By Rev. D. W. Haskew, D. D.

Dr. Luther Holt is a noted baby specialist and he had a treatment for babies that were frail and that did not gain weight, that was all his own. When he came to the chart of an infant in that condition as he made his rounds in the hospital, he always wrote a special instruction to the nurse, "This baby is to be loved every three hours." The good doctor knows the power of love in the remaking of physical disorders. Even though the infant knows nothing of what it needs yet its' very nature will respond to the affection that it needs. There are wives today, there are husbands, yes there are little children and friends, where a little bit of loving would work wonders in the restoration of health. Love is a curative medicine.

No man has ever walked out on the pages of history with a more heartless and cruel nature than Adolph Hitler. All of his ideals of love are base and corrupt. Family relations, bunk with him. He knows nothing but to hate and kill. His only aim and purpose in life is to establish a throne for himself and the German people out of the swords that he is using in warfare. He is using instruments that will puncture arteries, and release a red stream in which he can swim to power. I am not a prophet, but listen to what I say. Hitler may build for himself a throne out of bayonets, but he will never be able to sit on it. When a man soweth to the flesh, of the flesh he will reap corruption. Like Saul of the Old Testament record, Hitler will fall upon his own sword and it will pierce him through. It will be tough sitting when Hitler sits down on a throne buildt out of sword points.

We planted a small maple bush among the shrubs that were placed about our new home. A year passed and the maple did not seem to do well. In the middle of the second summer it died. A florist came and after removing the dead bush we saw the trouble. It had died because the roots of the plant had wrapped themselves around the tap root, in place of reaching out for food supplies. The roots of that tree had turned inward and had made it impossible for it to live and grow. There are people everywhere, who like that maple shrub, they wrap everything around themselves. A self-centered individual will surely die a a spiritual death. To live and grow we must learn how to send out our heart in service to others. It is the exploring individual who becomes the growing personality.

At Manchester, England the station master found a dog in the baggage car one morning. There was nothing about the dog to identify him, and the station man asked of the baggage man. "Where is the pup going?" The man in the baggage car replied, I "do not know and the pup does not know. He has chewed up his card." To be sure that was a modern day pup. I might add that he was very much like many a human we find on the road of life. Too many people today have showed up all that can identify them as travelers who are going somewhere. They are traveling but no one knows where. Character is the tag that will tell the world where we are going.

It was early Monday morning when the prim and trim pastor of a dead church went down town for his mail. Crouched and slouched beside the brick wall of the Post Office, sat one of the, "Hang Ons" of the church. The parson seeing him there addressed him thus, "Tom, here you are drunk again. Just look at you. The suit that we gave you, looks as if you had slept in it." The man staggered to his feet, saying, "Right you are parson. I'se drunk, and I'se slept in these breeches. I went to your church on yesterday and there was nothing doing and the house was so warm and comfortable, I jus' had to take a nap." That man was drunk, but he told the pastor why it was that many people go to sleep in the church. There are very few people who go to sleep in a church where there is something doing in the pulpit and among the people who sit in the pews.

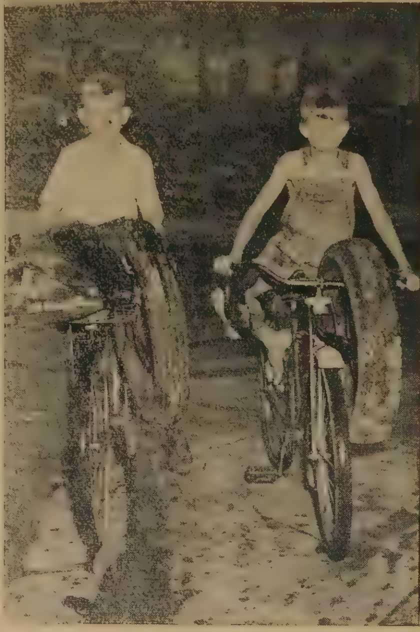
Faster, America!



THE VALUE OF SCRAP RUBBER to America's war effort is priceless. All the money in the world can't buy a ton of rubber that Japan has grabbed. Only the efforts of patriotic citizens, who will round up scrap rubber and take it to filling stations, will help solve the shortage. Above, Billy Crowley (left) and Noble Ray Curlee head for a Talladega filling station with part of their salvage. (State of Alabama News Bureau).

A baker, operator of 42 trucks at Mobile, has invented a new tire, using eight pieces of oak, bandsawed and lathed into the shape of a truck wheel. The pieces are held together by bolts and covered by brake-lining. Test-driving of 100 miles showed that the "tires" held up and that steering was even easier than when rubber tires are used.

The War Effort
Comes First
with GREYHOUND

WHETHER it's carrying selectees to examination points and induction centers . . . war workers to defense plants . . . men of the armed forces to military posts, on official business or on furloughs . . . or government personnel speeding war activities . . . THAT is Greyhound's FIRST JOB.

There can be none other so imperative!

After that, comes Mr. and Mrs. Civilian. We urge civilians to limit travel to necessary trips—and then during the early days of the week, to leave more week-end accommodations for those who can travel only at that time.

We are expending every possible effort to adequately serve the public's needs for transportation. Some of the time we can accomplish our aims . . . bus service as you were accustomed to in days of peace. Other times, our war requirements, like those of other carriers, cause us to fall short of the best of service.

In times like these, we hope that you, too, realize that THE WAR EFFORT COMES FIRST . . . with ALL of us.

FOLKS AND THINGS ABOUT TOWN

By BEN

What with ladies and their children all wearing slack suits....you can't tell the mamas from their middle boy ...Julian Evans has been assigned to 49th School Sq., Goodfellow Field San Angelo, Texas....Folks crying about a shortage of gas and stuff and a car owned by the CCC stood in front of the Dixie Cafe the other morning for about 30 minutes with its motor running and nobody around....never in this life thought that it would come to bootleg cold drinks...Bill Inzer, when asked whether or not the men at Childersburg were taking off for the Fourth." . . . Julius Smith was in to see us this past week-end. He is at Gadsden now on a big Government job . . . Dr. Casady certainly is proud of his boy. He drove to Montgomery the other day, left his car with his son, come back on the bus, just to let him have a few days of pleasure with the car during his leave. He's stationed at Maxwell Field . . . We hear that Grady Burks is in Northern Ireland, and safe.

Bob Oglesby asked us to be sure and mention the tickets on the Bond and Stamp drive that is in progress and says that by buying a ticket you won't only be getting a shot at a nice big War Bond but will be helping the War Effort whether you win or not. In other words if you lose, you win.

And you think that you have to work hard. We know a lady in our town who works every day in the week, that's seven. She gets up at three in the morning and walks eight miles to her job here in town. She also walks back to her home, after a hard day. She has not missed a day on her job in twelve months and has only been offered a ride about a dozen times in those twelve months. We have never seen her that she wasn't smiling and had a cheery word for everyone. Through cold, and sleet, and rain, and heat. She has taken care of her job and liked it. The name? Mrs. Bates, the place? City Grill.

We wouldn't know who the culprit could be but who ever it was had very little to do when they cut Mr. Dave Cohen's awning in a dozen places during the last week-end. Mr. Cohen invested three hundred dollars in the new awning and it had only been up a few days.

Clanton spent one very quiet 4th. And too, death from accidents over the United States were about one-fourth [illegible] they have been in the past on [illegible] holiday. It takes something like this horrible war that we are engaged in to wake folks up sometimes and make them act sensible.

Our slogan for July 17th, when the Chilton County War Bond Committee put on their big barbecue at the High School in observance of American Heroes Day, should be; "Buy a Bond, Then Barbecue 'til You Bust."

Another bunch of Chilton County boys left this morning at ten o'clock on the Bus. For the first time since Selective Service they were sent off with proper ceremonies. Clanton

We'll bet a dollar to a burnt doughnut that Mrs. Spurgeon Williams was the most disappointed person in town last week. Her son, Floyd, whom she hasn't seen in more than three years, wired that he had landed on U. S. soil. Naturally she was overjoyed and expected him to get a leave for a few days anyway. The next thing that she knew, she was notified that his boat had sailed again. To where she doesn't know.

GLOOM OVER MIAMI

"This is war" -- you don't have to tell that to Miamians. They know it, as do residents of all our coastal states. We, in Alabama, can thank our lucky stars that we are far enough inland that we do not have to be nightly blacked-out and daily inconvenienced by the necessities of modern warfare.

Your humble correspondent has just returned from two weeks vacation in Florida's Magic City, where, in forty years, the population has grown from 2,000 to 200,000. But Miami, like every place built on a foundation of merriment and frolicking, is going to take a great fall because of the war -- a fall from which it may not recover unless proper authorities step in and cushion the tremendous shock which the loss of summer and winter tourist trade will create.

Miami's summer tourist trade has already greatly dropped and there is'nt much hope for a large increase later in the summer. There will be no winter season, authorities admit. Because the visitor business is almost doomed, committees have been organized to try to work out a solution for the problem which is affecting hundreds of thousands of people in Florida's resort cities.

There are many good reasons why Florida is losing her tourist trade. A visitor there shows them. It isn't the same Miami thousands of people have known year-in and year-out. It's wartime Miami now.

The government realized this loss of tourist trade when they took over thirty blocks of Miami Beach hotels. It was a double move, first, to prevent many hotels from becoming bankrupt, second, to save the cost of building barracks for the twenty thousand men who are studying and training on Miami Beach.

By taking over the hotels from first to thirtieth street, the government left open only the North Beach hotels, the so-called exclusive section of Miami Beach. Thus, there's still room for some visitors, but the main inhabitants of Miami Beach are now the soldiers. You see them everywhere. Captains, first lieutenants, second lieutenants, majors, colonels--privates corporals, seargeants—all are the occupants of some of Miami Beach's finest buildings.

But the fact that you have to go thirty blocks to get a hotel room isn't the main inconvenience in wartime Miami. At night, the entire beach is dimmed-out. This partial blackout is so effective that a person approaching the Beach on the Dade County Causeway sees only a hazy outline of a large island. This effectiveness is encouraging, but when you walk five blocks past your hotel because you missed it in the dark, you begin to grumble just a little bit!

This dim-out is made possible by several measures which were taken when Miamians realized how near the war was to them. They painted all but four square inches of their street lamps black, and only the side facing the west was left visible. They disconnected their traffic lights. They out-lawed car headlights -- Miamians use their parking lights for night driving everywhere, and cars without parking lights use improvised ones -- small sheets of tin curved and bolted over a bulb on top of the automobile's fender. All the hotels and cafes and night clubs cover their windows with blackout curtains made of heavy rubberized fabric All hotel rooms facing the East, North, and South have no lights. In those rooms the government placed the following notice: "U. S. Army authorities have requested that all lights, in this area, visible North, East, and South, be so obscured that no light whatsoever will be reflected from sunrise to sunset. Kindly observe this request by preventing any light being visable from your room during time designated." And if the air raid warden sees any light coming from your room, the management promptly notifies you of that fact.

This is the way Miami is answering a possible air attack. It is taking no chances.

In the daytime, the soldiers march, rain or shine. If there aren't enough rifles for drilling, wooden imitations are used. These soldiers march up and down the streets. They don't have much interference from cars. The gas rationing has reduced considerably the number of automobiles flying up and down Lincoln Road, Washington, Collins, and Ocean Avenues.

The soldier's day in Miami begins at 5:30. After marching, drilling, and studying the officers end their day at 10:00 p. m. Members of the band which gives concerts in Flamingo Park every other Friday are in by 11 p m. And by 12:00 midnight, only the guards and sentries are left.

Miami knows that this is war. The people are making the necessary sacrifices to protect their city should an attack come. From their contribution, a visitor gets the impression that he isn't doing enough, that he ought to do even more. From Miami comes an example of American willingness to sacrifice--an example which all the country might well follow.

Farmers are being urged to "double up" —pool loads and cooperate in other ways—to reduce the number of trips to town, states A. W. Jones, Chairman of the Alabama USDA War Board.

The ODT reports that only 150,000 new trucks will be available for farmers in the United States in 1942 and 1943 as compared to 700,000 put into operation in 1941. And only one-third as many new tires will be available this year for rationing.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Egypt Defenders Turn on Axis Armies In Struggle for Middle East Control; Nazi Spy Ring Smashed in Canal Zone; Allies' Wheat Pool Aids Famine Areas

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

EGYPT:
Defenders Hit Hard

Even as parliament by a 475 to 25 majority voted its confidence in Prime Minister Winston Churchill after a prolonged debate over the Libyan defeat, reports from Egypt revealed that British imperials, heavily reinforced from the Middle East, had struck fiercely at the flank and rear of Marshal Rommel's Axis army to counter its assault on the main British positions.

At the same time it was disclosed that United States army air force and Royal air force planes had unleashed a terrific air offensive throughout the eastern Mediterranean area. In one assault on Marshal Rommel's supply port of Bengasi, hundreds of bombers rained destruction down on munition dumps and equipment concentrations.

Reinforcements of both men and material had strengthened the British Egyptian position in the battles on which rested the fate of Allied power in the Mediterranean and Middle East. Crucial battle area was the 40-mile wide strip of desert lying between the impassable Quattera salt marshes and the Mediterranean shore.

Few observers had doubted that Prime Minister Churchill's position would be sustained. Facing his critics in the most critical period since the fall of France, Churchill had admitted that Marshal Rommel's victorious drive from Libya into Egypt had placed Britain in "mortal peril."

PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL

Meanwhile on the Russian front, the Nazis had opened a new drive north of Kharkov, while hand to hand fighting in the ruins of Sevastopol, Russia's last stronghold in the Crimea, had highlighted what the Reds termed "an extremely grave situation."

SHIPBUILDING:
Yanks Break Records

Hope that American shipyards would soon equal and then exceed the total sunk by Axis submarines was seen in a report issued by Vice Chairman Howard L. Vickery of the maritime commission which disclosed that 66 vessels totaling 731,900 tons deadweight had been delivered in June and that production was speeding ahead toward a level of 900,000 deadweight tons a month.

Admiral Vickery reported that 288 ships of approximately 2,544,000 deadweight tons had been delivered by American shipyards in the first six months of 1942.

SECRET SPENDING:
F. D. R. Accounts

How President Roosevelt spent $239,500,000 in secret emergency funds since the war crisis became acute in June, 1940, was revealed in an accounting which the Chief Executive presented to congress.

Eighty-seven per cent of the total was allocated to the army, the navy, maritime commission and Federal Loan agency, the President said.

Large sums were spent to suppress subversive radio activities in connection with the German submarine campaign.

Important among expenditures was $52,000,000 for secret naval bases in the Western hemisphere, $12,000,000 for purchase of Australian wool for uniforms $8,000,000 for development of air, rail and highway transportation in Latin America and $36,500,000 for construction of merchant ships.

NEW NAVAL BASE:
Mystery Explained

Why hundreds of American workers embarked for Northern Ireland last summer to toil on a mysterious construction project long before the United States entry into the world war, was explained when the navy department announced formal completion of a giant operating base at Londonderry, guarding the western approaches of Britain. Capt. William J. Larson, was placed in command of the strategic new post.

NAZI SPIES:
Rival Fiction

In a series of dramatic moves matching the thrills of a mystery best-seller, the United States Caribbean defense command arrested 20 alleged Axis agents and broke up what was believed to be a Nazi spy ring refueling submarines and supplying them with vital information on United States shipping.

Nineteen of the enemy agents were rounded up in a trap in Belize, British Honduras. The twentieth—a trusted employee of a labor recruiting office for the Panama canal—had been seized a few days earlier in the Canal Zone. The army disclosed that the leader of the ring was George Gough, a British citizen who was a shipping executive in Belize.

Details of the seizure of the spies were disclosed by Lieut. Gen. Frank M. Andrews, chief of the Caribbean defense command.

WHEAT POOL:
To Balk Famine

With famine stalking many nations and wheat surpluses taxing the storage capacities of others, an agreement of historic importance to the future of the world's bread supply became effective when five nations signed a pact creating a vast international wheat pool.

Signers of the agreement were the United States, Great Britain, Canada, Australia and Argentina. The agreement, initiated at a Washington meeting last April, created a wheat pool of not less than 100,000,000 bushels for the relief of famine in war-stricken areas. It forecast international action toward control of prices, production and export of bread grains after the war.

The United States is to provide 50,000,000 bushels of wheat or flour to the relief pool and Canada and the United Kingdom 25,000,000. These nations, with Argentina would furnish additional supplies as needed on a basis to be worked out by their respective governments.

Agriculture department officials pointed out that benefits to American wheat farmers would be of a long-term rather than immediate nature. The agreement will have no effect on the 1943 farm program calling for a planted area of not more than 55,000,000 acres of wheat and assuring farmers of parity returns.

PRICE CEILINGS:
First Hole

First hole in the universal price ceiling instituted by the OPA was made when Price Administrator Leon Henderson announced that he was "compelled to take measures that will raise retail prices of the 1942 pack of canned and dried fruits by as much as 15 per cent and possibly more."

Henderson indicated that congress was to blame for this, because of special price concessions it granted to farm products and its failure to vote government subsidies to maintain price ceilings.

LEON HENDERSON

Throwing down the battle gage to congress, the fiery price official issued a statement in which he said that the $75,000,000 appropriation contemplated for the OPA in a bill passed by the house, or any amount below the $161,000,000 he originally requested, would cripple his agency and mean "in short that price, rent and rationing controls are all placed in jeopardy."

Mr. Henderson termed the canned fruit price situation "inflationary" and said it constituted "a serious threat in the battle being fought to maintain stability in the cost of living."

"This is not a satisfactory solution," his statement continued: "It is inflationary. It translates into retail price increases a burden that the government might properly assume as a charge connected with the war. This burden will fall heaviest on large families, especially in the low income groups who can least afford the added expense."

Rubber Hunter

His eyes as alert for rubber as a hawk's are for chickens, Petroleum Co-ordinator Harold Ickes was happy when he spied this 75-pound rubber mat inside the door of the White House. He told his chauffeur to take it to the nearest gas station to contribute to the rubber drive. When asked for a comment, a White House spokesman declared, "There's no complaint."

COMMANDOS:
Strike at Japs

Serving notice on Tokyo that the Australians, the Yanks and the Dutch were ready for hit-and-run thrusts preparatory to the general land offensive which Gen. Douglas MacArthur has promised eventually, Allied Commandos swept down on the big Japanese base at Salamaua, New Guinea.

Using the elements of surprise and terror which have made Commando raids on Europe so spectacular, the United Nations' raiders slashed through the defense screen and carried away prisoners, booty and information about the layout of one of the most important Nipponese bases in the Southwest Pacific.

Salamaua, on the Huon gulf, lies 170 miles north across New Guinea from Port Moresby, last Allied outpost north of Australia. It was captured by the Japs early in March and ever since the enemy has been attempting to use it as a base for widening their occupation of New Guinea. It has served as one of the principal air bases for attacks against Port Moresby.

SCRAP:
U. S. Wants More

A "new and greatly intensified" program that will reach into every American home and industrial plant and increase the flow of vital scrap materials to the nation's war plants was announced by War Production Chief Donald M. Nelson and Lessing J. Rosenwald, chief of the bureau of industrial conservation of WPB.

The new program has a threefold objective:

1—To collect metals, and rubber and other waste materials which will flow through regular channels of trade.

2—To gather up waste kitchen fats, such as bacon drippings from households via meat dealers.

3—To collect tin cans in specified areas.

"The immensity of our task," said Mr. Nelson, "makes it absolutely necessary to step up the tempo of our national salvage program."

REPATRIATION:
Nazis Break Pact

Termination of the exchange agreement by which more than 1,400 American nationals were brought home from Axis territory in Europe resulted when Germany withdrew the safe conduct granted the Swedish liner Drottningholm which had docked at New York with 800 repatriated Americans and alien refugees.

The agreement for exchange of nationals held by the respective belligerent governments had provided for continued voyages of the Drottningholm under safe conduct until all Americans held in Europe and Germans held here were repatriated.
